CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

QUEBEC.

Special Telegram to the Review, Sept. 23.

An Appeal for Aid.—A lady correspondent of the Chronicle from Lake St. John, makes a pathetic appeal for aid for the sufferers at Heberville by the hailstorm of a couple weeks ago. She states that the nett loss is equal to $26,700. Some of the settlers whose crops have been destroyed are on the verge of starvation, and those who are best off are unable to procure bread or seed without going into debt for it.

Left for Ottawa.—Sir John A. Macdonald, accompanied by Lieut.-Governor and Madame Robitaille, Capt. Sheppard, A.D.C., the Hon. Mr. Joly, A. P. Caron, M.P., Hon. J. Beverley Robertson, and a few friends left for Ottawa by a special train at 8 o'clock this morning.

FRENCH WHEAT.

Paris, Sept. 23.—The Bulletin Des Hales reports that the new wheat threshed so far is unsatisfactory in yield and quality, being deficient even in the districts where it was expected to be favorable. In several departments new wheat fetches from 3 to 4 francs per quintal less than old, some of it requiring several months drying before it can be milled.

THE BELGIAN CLERGY.

Brussels, Sept. 23.—It is stated that M. Freere Orban, Minister of Foreign Affairs, has gone to Rome incognito to negotiate with the Vatican respecting the Belgian Clergy. Cardinal Vina, the Papal Secretary of State, inclines to moderatun, but the Jesuits are pushing matters to extremes. The Belgian bishops have asked the Pope for precise instructions, which the Pope hesitates to give. The threatened refusal of the sacraments by the bishops to the elementary school teachers who retain their posts under the new system, has so far led to the resignation of only a hundred out of a total of 7,500 teachers.

THE PRESIDENT'S JOURNEY.

New York, Sept. 23.—The Herald's Chicago despatch says that the President's journey from Tremont yesterday was not accompanied by any general enthusiasm along the route. Not a society or organization of any kind came to honor the President. There was no lack of good will, but a great lack of good manners, and a brilliant display of selfishness.

A MILITARY SPECTACLE.

San Fransisco, Cal., Sept. 23.—The California Theatre was filled to overflowing last evening at the performance of the Military Spectacle of the Guards in honor of General Grant. The boxes reserved for the General and his party were handsomely draped. The play was magnificently put on the stage and three full companies of the National Guard added to the scenic effect. When the party made their appearance the whole audience rose to their feet en masse cheering and applauding continuously, while the curtain was run down until the uproar had subsided. After the performance Grant and his party were serenaded at their Hotel by the Band. Great numbers of Officers of the National Guard were present.

A COLOURED OFFICIAL SHOT.

New York, Sept. 23.—The Tribune's Charleston, S.C., despatch says that on Tuesday Fred. Nix, a coloured man recently appointed postmaster at Blackville, was shot in the arm while distributing the mail. Nix is an influential Republican.

A QUARREL OVER CARDS.

Denver, Col., Sep. 23.—At Erie, Weed County, Walter Risley was fatally shot by a man called Sandy, yesterday afternoon, in a quarrel over cards.

DANIEL DREW'S FUNERAL.

New York, Sept. 23.—The remains of Daniel Drew were taken to Brewsters, N. Y., this morning. The funeral was well attended. The body was buried in a private cemetery on the Drew Farm.

BODY FOUND.

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 23.—The body of a Mulatto was found under a stable this morning, embedded in manure and badly decomposed. There were two wounds in the head. The body has not yet been identified.

STRANGE SUICIDE.

St. Louis, Sept. 23.—Two negroes, Washington Arnold and Pryor Ward, locked arms and deliberately walked into the Missouri River at St. Joseph, yesterday. They were swept away by the current and drowned.

MORMON IMMIGRANTS.

New York, Sept. 23.—The Herald says that the recent arrivals of Mormon immigrants are not regarded as evidence that foreign governments disregard the circular recently issued by the United States Government on the subject. All our representatives abroad in acknowledging the receipt of the circular stated that the matter could not be properly presented, as at that season of the year the Ministers of Foreign Affairs were absent from their posts on their summer vacations. The Grand Jury which meets at Salt Lake City next month is expected to thoroughly investigate the subject of polygamous marriages.

RUSSIAN TOWN DESTROYED.

London, Sep. 20.—The town of Serfuchoff, fifty-six miles south south-west of Moscow, has been nearly destroyed by fire.

PEACE IN SOUTH AFRICA.

London, Sept. 22.—A despatch from Sir Garnet Wolseley to the war office announces that he has signed terms of peace with all the Zulu chiefs and effected a thorough understanding with them, which in his opinion, will preserve the future peace of South Africa. One of the provisions of this treaty puts an end to the Zulu military system, whereby the young warriors of tribes were not permitted to marry until they had served in battle and distinguished themselves by bravery. The chiefs who signed the treaty undertake to prohibit the importation of arms into their territories, and promise to make no declaration of war upon other tribes without the consent of the British authorities at Cape Colony. The terms of the treaty, as explained by Sir Garnet, appear to be extremely comprehensive, and prudent and reasonable. Anticipations are now entertained that we have seen the last of warfare between the English and the natives in South Africa.

FRANCE AND GERMANY.

London, Sep. 22.—The French Government having hinted their disinclination to send delegates to meet the Emperor William at Metz, the Emperor has requested the neighbouring States not to send delegates.

BISMARCK AT VIENNA.

London, Sep. 22.—Prince Bismarck will return to Berlin on Wednesday. To-day he had long conferences with Count Andrassy and Herr Haymerle. He also had an audience with the Emperor, who subsequently visited the Prince. This evening the Emperor entertained the German Chancellor at a grand banquet.

A BRITISH CONVOY WAYLAID.

London, Sep. 22.—A despatch from Allahabad says the Mongols waylaid a returning British convoy, four miles east of Shutargardan, and ran off with forty-seven mules after killing the guards and sixteen muleteers.

THE KHURDISTAN TROUBLES.

Constantinople, Sept. 22.—The insurrection in Khurdistan has not yet been quelled. Two powerful tribes have joined Abdullah with 12,000 men. The commanders of Erzeroum and Bagdad have been ordered to send all available troops to Mosul. It is feared the Persian Turcomans will join the insurgents.

GERMANY AND AUSTRIA.

London, Sept. 22.—A Berlin correspondent reports that after the return of the Emperor William from the meeting with the Czar, Prince Bismarck presented to him a memorial demonstrating that it was absolutely necessary for Germany to support Austria against Russia in the East. The Emperor endorsed the views set forth in the memorial.

AMERICAN.

THE SPRAGUE SCANDAL.

Providence, R.I., Sept. 22.—In the Supreme Court a hearing was commenced upon application to Mrs. Sprague, for the appointment of a trustee of her property. Her counsel stated that Gov. Sprague and wife probably will not live together in future. This declaration he based upon the sayings and doings of both.

TERRIBLE DEATH RATE.

Charleston, S. C., Sept. 23.—The Directors of the Penitentiary yesterday discussed the terrible death rate among the convicts hired out under the contract system. During the past year of 200 men hired to the Greenwood & Augusta Railway 100 have died.

ILLICIT DISTILLING.

Greenville, S. C., Sept. 23.—Thirty-three prisoners have been sentenced for illicit distilling, and resistance to the revenue officers.

THE FAMINE IN CASHMERE.

Calcutta, Sept. 22.—The reports from Cashmere are still gloomy. All European eyewitnesses agree that great corruption prevails among the officials. The Maharajah and his Ministers show a want of energy in relieving the distress of the people. A ghastly story has been going the rounds of the papers that two boat loads of famine stricken people were taken out into the lake and drowned. The story has been contradicted, apparently on the authority of the Durbar, but it obtained general credence among the people and visitors in the valley.

CROPS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—The Consul at Belfast, Ireland, confirms the reports of other consuls as to alarming deficiency of crops in the United Kingdom. When a famine occurred in Ireland in 1845, the crops of England and Scotland were fair. Very different is the case now. Disastrous reports come from even the most celebrated of England's agricultural counties. In the first week of September, when reapers are usually busy, the grain is hardly coloured. Not only the potato crop is deficient, but those almost equally important roots, turnips and mangolds, are a failure.

RICH MINES.

New York, Sept. 22.—The Government of Mexico have received authentic accounts of the immense richness of the mines recently discovered in Sierra Majada. Crowds are flocking there. The Government has adopted measures to preserve order.

AQUATICS.

COURTNEY V. ANY MAN IN ENGLAND.

London, Sept. 20.—A Newcastle gentleman states he is authorized to match the oarsman Courtney against Wm. Elliott or any man in England to row on the Tyne or Thames or in American waters.

COURTNEY'S PHYSICAL CONDITION.

New York, Sept. 20.—A Herald's Auburn special, dated 19th, says:—Courtney's physical condition, instead of improving, is declining. I drove over the Union Springs this afternoon, and met the oarsman just as he was returning from a drive. Courtney looked pale, and his appearance indicated that he was suffering from sickness. He said he had just experienced a third attack of ague, and exhibited his left hand, which was a perfect mass of blisters. These were created, Courtney explained, by rowing in the evenings. He took pulls then on account of roughness of water in the day time. His hands were soft in consequence of his partial respite from training, and the heavy dew caused them to blister. It was also his night exercise which brought on ague. It is three weeks ago to-day since Courtney took any actual practice. He was out a little while to-day, but his sore palms prevented him from doing any hard work. He has nearly recovered from the poisoned wound from which he was suffering when the articles of agreement were signed. The ague has even a more serious effect upon his system. Courtney now weighs only 160½ pounds. A gentleman standing near remarked that bets of $100 to $80 were being made on Hanlan in Canada. "They can bet a thousand to one if they want to," exclaimed Courtney, "if I don't get better." Courtney explained his physical disability by saying, "I have been training too hard and too long, you see. I did not know when the race would come off." Courtney will not proceed to Chatauqua Lake before next Tuesday on account of his indisposition. His new boat will be sent to him after he goes into quarters. Courtney expects to be in good condition when the race takes place. His present disability he thinks will last but a few days.

WARREN SMITH.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 20.—The Rowing Association who manage the Warren Smith matches have taken no action so far relative to Riley's challenge. It is not probable that Smith will row any more races this year. His friends believe that he has been overworked, and will not encourage any more racing for him this year.

CENTRAL EXHIBITION IN PETERBOROUGH!

SPECIAL EDITIONS

OF THE

REVIEW.

A SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY

FOR

ADVERTISERS!

BELIEVING that the holding of the Central Exhibition in Peterborough this year, combined with the favourable railway arrangements being made for enabling visitors to reach the town, will afford a rare opportunity for our business men to bring their wares under the notice of a large number of people, and extend the circle of their customers, the publishers of the DAILY and WEEKLY REVIEW have determined to do all in their power to enable their patrons and the public to reap the advantages of the occasion. In order to do this thoroughly they have secured extra and efficient assistance in the Editorial department to fully overtake the work which will devolve upon it during the next fortnight, and render their editions fully up to the times in every department of news. With the view of substantially increasing their circulation for the benefit of their advertising patrons they have decided to send the WEEKLY REVIEW of Sept. 26th to every member of the Agricultural Societies of North and South Victoria, East and West Peterborough, West Northumberland, East and West Durham, Smith, Hamilton, South Monaghan, and the Peterborough Horticultural Societies not already subscribers to the REVIEW, and otherwise distribute them gratuitously—bringing its circulation for that week up to fully 3000 copies. They will also during the week of the Exhibition sell the DAILY REVIEW at ONE CENT per copy, and render it unusually interesting by the full and complete reports which it will contain of Exhibition and Local events, in addition to its usual amount of Telegraphic and other intelligence, up to the hour of going to press each afternoon. In order that no disappointment may occur by the crowding out of important matter, provision has been made that the sheet upon which those Special Editions of the Daily and Weekly are to be printed will be of sufficient dimensions to contain all the news of the day, and full information for the guidance of visitors.

Should the expectations of the publishers be realized, the demands upon the columns of the DAILY REVIEW will be such as to require the issue of a DOUBLE SHEET during the principal days of the Exhibition week, and they appeal with some confidence to the business men of Peterborough to enable them to carry out this design, to the mutual advantage of all concerned.

SPECIAL RATES OF ADVERTISING.

A Special scale of very favourable rates for advertisers has been prepared for these editions, and orders are requested to be handed in as early as possible. All advertisements left at the office of publication, or handed to our authorized agent, MR. ANDREW BORROWMAN, will receive prompt attention.

EXTRAORDINARY SUICIDE.

An Old Man Cuts His Throat With a Razor in the Presence of His Wife.

HAMILTON, Sep. 21.—A most determined and extraordinary suicide was committed last night at the east end. A man named Charles Gibbs, a blacksmith, between 50 and 60 years of age, returned in the evening to his residence on Hunter street, three doors below Liberty street, at about the usual hour, and retired to bed. Between 9 and 10 o'clock he got up, and sitting down on a chair in a corner of the room remarked to his wife, who was sewing at a table, that he thought he would take a smoke. The wife made some commonplace remark, but took no particular notice of her husband until about 10 o'clock, when she heard a noise like water dropping on the floor and Gibbs retching as if he was sick at the stomach. Mrs. Gibbs turned round, when she noticed a pool of blood on the floor, and her husband sitting in the chair leaning forward, his throat cut almost from ear to ear. She immediately jumped up and asked, "My God, Charles! what have you done?" when he feebly replied, "It's all right!" The woman then ran out of the house to some neighbors across the street, and gave information of the tragical occurrence. On returning to the house Gibbs was found to be in a dying condition, and was removed to his bed, and Dr. Wilson sent for, but his services were of no use. The unfortunate man, although he had not touched the main artery, breathed his last in about an hour and a half after being discovered.

No cause can be assigned for the rash act. The deceased up to a short time since drank very hard, but about two weeks ago he quit liquor, and for the past ten days had appeared very melancholy at times. He was the father of three children—two daughters residing in Rochester, and a son who boarded with him, but who was not in at the time.

Dr. Mackelcan, coroner, summoned a jury, who will meet to-morrow at 11 o'clock at the Rob Roy Hotel.

BANKING AND CIRCULATION.

EVEN the strongest advocate of the present system of entrusting our banking institutions with the issue of the currency of the country must have had his faith in the wisdom of such a policy sadly shaken by the exposure of the mismanagement which has been going on for some time in the Consolidated Bank, and by the fact that the Mechanics' Bank proved to have been worth considerably less than nothing before it had to close its doors.

It is true that it has been suggested that such a system of government inspection might be provided as to at least guarantee note holders against even temporary loss and inconvenience, but we apprehend that the more such a proposition is considered, the more difficult—nay, impossible—of execution will it be found, because, to be efficient in providing again loss, such inspection would involve the inspection of the paper discounted, with a view to pronouncing upon its value. Were this not to be so, what would have been the benefits of such an inspection in the case of the Consolidated Bank? Unless the character and value of the paper under discount were to be reported upon, how could a Government Inspector have checked the loaning—we should rather say the giving away—of over half a million of dollars of the Bank's funds, on the paper of Ascher & Co.? The notes, such as they are, were then all right enough! There never is any trouble about the paper itself, but simply about the ability of its makers to meet it at maturity. Moreover, unless we are to destroy our banking system, and to disastrously curtail the business of the country, the banks must continue to make advances on the character of their customers, and in consideration of the objects to which the advances are to be applied, quite as much, if not more, than upon the undoubted wealth of the borrower. It being thus a matter of "judgment," when advances should or should not be made, the directors and officers of the banks should be left free and untramelled from any control, except that of their employers—the stockholders—to make or withhold advances as they deem best. In fact, in our opinion, it would be quite as reasonable to ask the Government to appoint inspectors to see that every man managed his business properly, as to appoint inspectors to see that the banks did not make improper loans. If they make improper loans, if they choose to elect incompetent boards of directors, appoint unsuitable officers, and throw away their money on bogus paper, they should have the same liberty to do so as a private individual has, but they should not be allowed to force their "promises to pay" upon people who have no means of protecting themselves from loss when the crash does come. These latter the Government is bound to protect, and the safe and simple way of doing so is by extending the present Dominion note system so that it may become the universal currency of the country.

Some people we know think that the depositor is entitled to equal protection with the bill holder, but with this we cannot agree. The depositor has a choice. He can choose the bank with which he entrusts his savings, and if the banks do not suit him the Government has already provided the Post Office Savings Banks, so that the depositor has has an ample choice. If in making that choice he chooses the worst instead of the best place he must suffer the consequence in the same way as a man who makes a bad investment in business or endorses a note for a friend, and contrary to his expectations has it to pay.

The Life of a Hermit.

There is an interesting Hermit named Austin Sheldon in the wilds of Pike County, Pa. He is seventy-three years old, totally deaf, and lives in a cave, which he has rudely fitted up for a habitation. His only companion is a tame rat. His personal appearance is startling. He is about five feet in height, and his hair and beard are as white as snow. His clothes are worn and patched, and he wears a waistband made of a hickory withe to support his garments. For his defence against wild beasts he carries a long knife, as sharp as a razor, which he manufactured by grinding down an old file. He says that his parents were Connecticut farmers. In early manhood he fell in love with an accomplished girl and they were engaged to be married. Her parents broke of the match by secretly sending her away to a boarding school. This so prayed upon Austin's mind that he gave up business and started out to find her. He travelled from State to State, but in vain, and finally, when his money was nearly spent, he resolved to settle down in Pennsylvania. He fell into the hands of land speculators who soon got what money he had, and deeded him the barren tract of land upon which he now lives. His astonishment when he saw the "farm" that had been deeded him may be imagined. He found nothing but a forest, and as a storm came up he was obliged to take refuge in a cave in a ledge of rocks. This cave he has ever since inhabited. For nearly twenty years he subsisted upon wild fruit and nuts, and in the winter he trapped game and fish. For three years the hermit never saw a human being. Previous to beginning life as a hermit he was proud of his personal appearance, but he grew negligent, and a thick, shaggy beard covered his face, and his hair grew long; far down below his shoulders. From the time he began his hermit life he has never drawn a razor across his face. But he has grown tired of that kind of life, and lately told a Philadelphia Times correspondent that he intended to return to civilization to die.

A Quinn, shrewd "corner" was put up lately by a party of speculators, who quietly bought up all the grain sacks in the California market, estimated at about fifteen millions. As the farmers must have them or lose their grain, it is estimated that the speculators will bag a net profit of nearly half a million dollars.

ACCIDENT TO THE "CITY OF TORONTO."

Collapse of Part of the Boat's Engines Excitement on Board and on Shore.

But a brief period has lapsed since the City of Toronto was disabled through running aground at the mouth of the Niagara River, when she had to go into dry dock for repairs; and now we have to record another mishap to the boat almost as disastrous in its effect as was the former accident. On Saturday afternoon the City had steamed out into the Bay about four hundred yards on her trip to Niagara, and was just turning to proceed towards the western channel, when the crank strap suddenly gave way with a sharp report, and immediately thereafter most of the moving gear either broke loose or was twisted all out of shape. The engineer and fireman had a narrow escape, but happily neither of them sustained the slightest injury.

At the time the accident occurred there was a large crowd of persons on the wharf, and they, so soon as they became aware of the occurrence, got excited, and for a time there was great commotion. On board the vessel the excitement was more intense, although it did not last very long. Steps were taken on shore [illegible] render [illegible] to [illegible] board the [illegible] steamer, [illegible] the tug [illegible] City [illegible] out shortly [illegible] accident and brought the frightened passengers, numbering 120, on shore. A second trip was made for the hands, who were also landed in safety. Afterwards the same tug hitched a line to the disabled vessel and towed her to Tinning's wharf, from whence she was towed by the tug W. T. Robb to Niagara. From Niagara the boat will be taken to St. Catharines for repairs. The damage done to the boat's engines is very considerable, and it will take about $4,000 to put them in proper order again. Of course she cannot longer continue her sailings this season, but this is not a serious drawback, as she was about to be withdrawn from the route at all events.

COBOURG.

FIRE.—A fire broke out on Division street, at 9 o'clock p. m., on Monday, in the north end of a frame terrace, occupied by Mrs. Mahar. The fire brigade was promptly on the spot and confined the fire to the building, which was badly gutted. No insurance; loss about $450.

Notice to Contractors.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the Secretary of Public Works, and endorsed "Tender for Canal and Lock at St. Anne," will be received at this office until the arrival of the Eastern and Western mails on FRIDAY THE 10th DAY OF OCTOBER next, for the construction of a Lock and the formation of approaches to it on the landward side of the present lock at St. Anne.

A map of the locality, together with plans and specifications of the works to be done, can be seen at this office and at the Resident Engineer's office, at St. Anne, on and after SATURDAY THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER next, at either of which places printed forms of Tender can be obtained.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and—in the case of firms, except there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation and residence of each member of the same; and further, an accepted Bank cheque for the sum of $2000 must accompany the tender, which sum shall be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the works, at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

For the due fulfilment of the contract, satisfactory security will be required by the deposit of money to the amount of five per cent. on the bulk sum of the contract; of which the sum sent in with the Tender will be considered a part.

Ninety per cent only of the progress estimates will be paid until the completion of the work.

To each Tender must be attached the actual signatures of two responsible and solvent persons, residents of the Dominion, willing to become sureties for the carrying out of these conditions, as well as the due performance of the works embraced in the contract.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
F. BRAUN,
Secretary.

From Grip.

The night was rude and dark,
The wind did loud complain,
None up but weather clerk,
A making of it rain.

Not one but he and me,
Yes, and two fellows more,
Whom sudden did I see
Come out of tavern door.

One of them there did say,
(I in the dark stood by)—
"Want to be rich?—you may Make just as much as I.

"This is the way 'tis done,
New is the plan and fine
Go strong A. number 1,
Into the building line.

"Build houses everywhere,
Then fail—a div'dend pay,
But sell some first, with care
To put the cash away.

"Or to storekeeping take,
Or build a big grist-mill,
Or anything—but break
On this formula still."

"But how shall I begin?"
Asked sad the other one;
"With pockets bare of tin,
"Spec'lating can't be done."

"Oh, can't it?" asked his friend,
"That clog don't hamper much,
There's folks to you will lend—
Banks—'sociations—such.

"Make some official twig,
He'll lend—if—if—you hear,
He gets a bonus big,
Quite private: don't appear.

"In ballance sheet I guess,
And when they go to smash,
The public will express
Surprise they lend their cash

"On such security.
'Grave error,' 'twill be thought.
'Over-credulity?'
And who can tell 'twas bought?

"The means are there, I say,
To build or speculate."
The rascals went away,
I home, 'twas getting late.

THE KIDNAPPED!

SCENE: The Kidnapped are looking pale, haggard and distressed. Spent a sleepless night or Day—they knew not which. No signs of Rescue. They are Hungry. The Kidnappers are Inexorable. The Cave seems more Hateful than Ever. The Captives begin to Despair of Relief.

HUNTINGTON: Well, I'm blessed—

BROWN: What noo?

HUNT: I was remarking what an abominable hole this was in which to confine six gentlemen of our position.

ANNAND: If I only had these chaps in Halifax—

1ST, Kidnapper: Well, what then?

ANNAND (softly): I'd treat to half-and-half. I suppose five thousand people drank at my expense the other day, after the boat race. That was a big day for Halifax. We won about $200,000.

ELDER: O, Charles! Say $190,000.

ANNAND: No—I wont. But I'll say $195,000. But that's nothing to what we have won at some other races. There was one time we must have netted $350,000—that was a royal time.

BROWN: Are we no to have summat to eat?

2ND KID: Certainly, whenever you pay up.

HUNT: Pay up? Scum of the earth—John A. emissaries—persecutors and assassins! You can't intimidate us! Now, by the—

ELDER: (softly) Hush—h! Don't annoy them. Let us keep on good terms with them as long as we are in their power. We must dissimulate, mark you.

HUNT—I can't dissimulate. I thank God that I am an honest man! I shall speak of these creatures as I find them—they are threatening the lives of the only honest men in Canada, and I tell them so.

BROWN—Dead are they base hoonds. They will no gie a mon onything to eat! I'm nigh deid wi' hunger.

HUNT—Eating! Hunger! What are they in such a moment as this? Look around on the face of this continent and see——

SMITH—I wish I could see the face of the continent—or the face of anything else out of doors—just for five minutes.

HUNT—Look, I say, at the whole aspect of affairs in this Canada of ours? What's to become of this infant country when we are immured in dungeon vile? Is Tupper to roam over this continent unrestrained? Are the North-West mining interests to be developed without my aid? Are the thousand miles of Pacific Railway to be built without my finger touching the pie? What humiliation! What agony! There is the Joly Government; it may go all to flinders while we lie here, the victims of the ceaseless hatred of our enemies! The thought tortures me—I can not stand it! A Railway Syndicate may be formed in the next twenty-four hours and my friends have no share it it! It's too bad—too bad!

BROWN—What's too bad?

HUNT—What I was saying.

BROWN—I ken no what ye were sayin'! Yer lingo gaes in the ane ear and oot the tither. I warran ye were sayin' na sense.

HUNT—I would have you know——

BROWN—But I dinna want to know.

HUNT—I would have you understand——

BROWN—I onderstan' all aboot it. I ken ye're no the man ye wor before the copper business.

ELDER: It seems unkind to be constantly reviving memories which the chief actor in a scene would willingly forget. And yet History but repeats itself. I read in the life of Numa Pompilius—

BROWN: Wha was the chiel?

ELDER: That on a certain great occasion, his army having been scattered to the winds, he was fain to seek the shelter of the cabin of a colored African in the wilds of Senegambia——

ANNAND: If he had came to Halifax he could have had our boat house and welcome. Why, Sir, there was one occasion in the life of Smith——

SMITH: How?

ANNAND: I say that once on a time Smith——

ELDER: You are interrupting the onward flow of my historical allusions———

BROWN: Gie us a rest wi you heestorical flip flap. What's the preece o' short horn bulls wi' ye?

ELDER: Ah, now I'm at home. Which reminds me of the legend of the Sacred Oxen, which Og, King of Bashan—vide the Chronicles of the Kings of Bashan as preserved in the Bodleian Library—department 84, shelf 278, libro 27, 339—was accustomed to narrate in his cups—for he was an exceeding merry monarch whose staff was the size of weaver's beam (vide Holy Scriptures, Book Leviticus. Cap. 49, V. 37.) This, en passant.—But to recur to Numa———

SIMPSON: Did they have any banks in those days?

ELDER: Banks! Let me see. Yes, there were the banks of the Bosphorus, and I think they had banks in the Nile country. Which reminds me of a good story which Cleopatra once told, apropos———

ANNAND: I used to know her when she was a girl. A good looking wench she was, though nothing to the girls down in Hal—

ELDER (disgusted): I give up this subject, candidly remarking that seldom has it been my lot to address such an unappreciative audience on historical subjects—

SIMPSON: Where did the Government deposit in those days? Did their bankers come down handsomely at election times?

BROWN: I never said it!

SMITH: Said what?

BROWN: Thay reptiles accusit me o' makin' Simpson come doon ilka thousand or twa. I didna do it.

ANNAND: What's a thousand in an election. At the last election in Halifax they come to me at noon and said "Charley, we want five thousand the worst way or we're licked." Says, I, "Boys, will ten thousand do?" And I gave them a check for ten as pleasantly as I ever did anything. I felt I could afford it.

SMITH: Really, gentlemen, you harrow up my feelings. You remind me of campaigning in Westmoreland. You tear afresh wounds which I have striven hard to heal. Ten thousand! It is not a circumstance to what I have had to undergo.

1ST KIDNAPPER: Then you had better come down now!

2ND KID: It's only $5,000 apiece, you know.

SMITH: I can't do it—can't do it! Times are too hard.

1ST KID: The times needn't make any difference to you.

SMITH: Sir! What do you mean?

2ND KID: You don't expect to get out of here again?

SMITH: Heavens! Are you in earnest? Not get from here?

1ST KID: Not a step!

SMITH: Not see Dorchester Corner again?

2ND KID: Not a corner!

SMITH: Shocking! Base wretches, do you mean that I shall never see Tantramar marsh any more?—never look upon the new Penitentiary!—never gaze upon Wm. Hickman? This is too awful! What's to become of Westmoreland—left without a protector, and Bob Chapman Sheriff?

ELDER: I see a distinct parallel in our case to that of Ali Baba—no, not he. It must be to Sinbad the Sailor. Well, no, he had a reserve of diamonds. It must be the Babes in the Woods, that I am thinking of; but perhaps not. Well, there's Paul and Virginia. No, there's no Virginia here. Let me reflect. [Reflects.] We are not like the Israelites in the wilderness—there's no manna—

BROWN: Confood it, ye scoondrels, can we no get summat to eat?

ELDER: There were Pharaoh and his host—well, no, that won't do. By jove—Libby Prison or Andersonville—I've got it?—Where they shot every fellow that asked for food or that stepped over a certain imaginary line!—And—yes—I might cite parallel cases from the Spanish Inquisition—Dreadful thought!—And by the same token I recall the case of Richard, the Lion Hearted—

BROWN: That's mysel.

HUNT: Or me,—I'm Richard.

ELDER: I am sorry to say the story of Richard's imprisonment is largely, if not wholly, fabulous, in which particular I regret to note, his differs from our case, and is consequently not apropos. We can, however, console ourselves with the knowledge that history is full of instances where people were situated as we are now and escaped to tell the story of their sufferings. There was the case related by Herodotus where five Jews were buried alive—

SMITH: O Lord!

ELDER: And the case of Daniel in the Lions' Den—

SMITH: Great Heavens! Where was that.

ELDER: And the remarkable case mentioned in Pliny—

SMITH: Enough! Enough!

ELDER: Not to mention modern instances of people being tied on the railway track to be run over—

SMITH: This is awful—

ELDER: But who miraculously escaped as if by a special Providential interference. I might quote from Cæsar's Commentaries on his campaigns in Gaul to show—

ANNAND: There was a remarkable case in Halifax County once—I forgot the particulars. But the bodies of six of them were found, all right, and very pretty skeletons they were, all nicely arranged as if they had laid down to sleep!

HUNT: And that is what our assassins intend for us. A week from today they will bring John A. and Tupper here to exult over our tragic end, and perhaps the time may come when they will be sending our bones as trophies throughout their camp. (Weeps audibly).

The awful thought was overwhelming. The sight of the Lion Hearted One in tears was too much for the composure of the Kidnapped, and all (excepting the Onontio) broke into tears. It was a touching scene. Even your special reporter wept, but his grief did not wholly unfit him for the performance of the duty assigned to him, viz., to see the whole thing out.—St. John, N.B., Sun.

MISCELLANEOUS.

REV. DR. LACHLIN TAYLOR has been for the past five weeks in New York under medical treatment for his eyes. He has lost the sight of one eye entirely, but it is thought the other one will be saved. The Doctor returned to Cobourg a few days ago, and is the guest of the Rev. Prof Burnwash.

A LOVERS' ALARM CLOCK has been introduced in New Orleans. At ten o'clock it strikes loudly, two little doors open, and a man with a dressing-gown and cap on glides out, holding in his hand a card inscribed "Good night." As he bows and smilingly retires back into the clock the young man taking the hint, says "Good night" to the fair daughter and departs.

IN Heligoland, which is only a mile long and a few hundred yards broad, there is neither horse nor wheeled carriage, barrows excepted. Society, concerts, the theatre, and bathing attract at this season crowds from Berlin, Hamburg, &c. Gambling was abolished in 1871. Steamers run thrice a week from Hamburg.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This preparation stands peerless as a remedy for all summer complaints. Have you diarrhoea? It will positively cure you. Have you cholera morbus? It will positively cure you. Have you colic or cramps in the stomach? It will positively cure you. Is your stomach sour? It will positively cure you. Are you going on a sea voyage? Be sure and take a bottle of the Strawberry in your haversack, for use in sea-sickness, vomiting, and other irritations of the stomach and bowels; it will positively cure you. Every one speaks highly of it. "I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—G. W. EARL, St. Catharines. "I would advise any one suffering from summer complaints to give Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry a fair trial."—CARMAN M. GOULD, M. D., Castleton. "Dr. Fowler's extract of Wild Strawberry gives perfect satisfaction."—THOMAS DOUGLAS, Cambray. "I can recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with confidence."—Judge S. S. PECK, Minden. Worth its Weight in Gold.

When we hear anybody say that such and such a thing is worth its weight in gold we think they are indulging in hyperbole, and pass the matter with a smile. But numbers of invalids who have once partaken of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL in combination with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA say they would not be without it for any consideration. And no wonder, for in all cases of General Debility or Chronic Coughs, in fact, any pulmonary complaint and consumption it is worth its weight in gold. d58-w38-1m

The best remedy in the world for children is
Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

MEDICAL AND SCIENTIFIC.

PERFUMES FROM ROSES.—Tincture of Roses—Take the leaves of the common rose, place them, without pressing, in a large-mouthed bottle; pour some good spirits of wine over them, seal the bottle securely, and let them remain in a dry place for a month or two.

REMEDY FOR FRECKLES.—The following remedy has been found efficacious in Europe for freckles: Finaly powdered sulpho-phenate of zinc, one part; oil of lemon, one part; pure alcohol, five parts; collodion, forty-five parts. To be mixed well together by trituration and applied to the skin.

TO REMOVE FRECKLES.—Scrape horseradish into a cup of cold sour milk; let it stand twelve hours; strain, and apply two or three times a day. Or, mix lemon juice, one ounce; pulverized borax, one-quarter drachm; sugar, one-half drachm; keep a few days in a glass bottle, then apply occasionally.

IF a sprain is nothing more than a sprain—that is, if no bones are broken or put out—wrap the part in several folds of flannel which has been wrung out of hot water, and cover it with a dry bandage, and rest it for some days or even weeks. Entire rest at first, and moderote rest afterwards, are absolutely necessary after a sprain. If it is in the ankle the foot should be raised as high as may be comfortable; if in the wrist, it should be carried in a sling.

ANOTHER important fact has been discovered by physiologists, namely, that the saliva of an infant, before the infant has its teeth, is incapable of converting starch into sugar. This explains at once why all attempts at substituting farinaceous food in place of mother's milk, in the case of infants, invariable fail. Such children cannot digest starch, and are underfed, or even starved, dying finally of marasmus. Starch, arrowroot, sago, tapioca, &c., are useless, because indigestible, for children before they have cut their teeth.

FOR dust in the eyes avoid rubbing; dash cold water in them; remove cinders, &c., with the round point of a lead pencil. Remove insects from the ear by tepid water; never put a hard instrument into the ear. If an artery is cut compress it above the wound; if a vain is cut compress it below. If choked go on all fours and cough. For slight burns dip the part in cold water; if the skin is destroyed cover with varnish. For apoplexy raise the head and body; for fainting lay the person flat.

STAINING PINE.—The Northeastern Lumberman recommends the following manner of staining pine to represent black walnut: Put pulverized asphaltum into a bowl with about twice its bulk of turpentine and set where it is warm, shaking from time to time until dissolved; then strain and apply with either a cloth or a stiff brush. Try a little first, and if the stain be too dark, thin it with turpentine. If desirable to bring out the grain still more, give a coat of boiling oil and turpentine. When the wood is thoroughly dry, polish with a mixture of two parts shellac varnish and one part boiled oil. Apply by putting a few drops at a time on a cloth and rubbing briskly over the wood.

LEMON VERBENA.—The well-known fragrant, sweet-scented, or lemon verbena (Lippia citriodora) is regarded among the Spanish people as a fine stomachic and cordial. It is either used in the form of a cold decoction, sweetened, or five or six leaves are put into a tea-cup, and hot tea poured upon them. The author of a recent work, "Among the Spanish People," says that the flavor of the tea thus prepared "is simply delicious, and no one who has drank his Pekoe with it will ever again drink it without a sprig of lemon verbena." And he further makes a statement, more important than all the rest, if true, that is, that if this decoction be used one need "never suffer from flatulence, never be made nervous or old-maidish, never have cholera, diarrhœa, or loss of appetite."

TO VENTILATE A ROOM.—To ventilate a room without draught, make a hole through the wall to the outer air, in a corner of the room just above the skirting. Through the hole put one arm of a tube three inches in diameter, and bent at right angles. The arm of the tube reaching to the outer air should be in length equal to the thickness of the wall, and the other arm should be two feet long, standing vertically in the corner of the room; if desired, it can be covered with paper of the same pattern as that on the wall. A tube of the diameter given above is sufficient to ventilate a room of moderate size.

THE USES OF THE LEMON.—A piece of lemon bound upon a corn will relieve it in a day or so. It should be renewed night and morning. The free use of lemon-juice and sugar will always relieve a cough. A lemon eaten before breakfast every day for a week or two will entirely prevent that feeling of lassitude peculiar to the approach of spring. Perhaps its most valuable property is its absolute power of detecting any of the injurious and even dangerous ingredients entering into the composition of so very many of the cosmetics and face-powders in the market. Every lady should subject her toilet-powder to this test. Place a tea-spoonful of the suspected powder in a glass, and add the juice of a lemon. If effervescence takes place it is an infallible proof that the powder is dangerous, and its use should be avoided, as it will ultimately injure the skin and destroy the beauty of the complexion.

The Heated Term—Look Out.

DON'T SIT ON THE GRASS.

The most stubborn case of Dysentery which is nothing more nor less than inflammation of the rectum, produced not unfrequently by sitting on the grass—may be cured by that most efficient cathartic, Castor Oil. Its soothing and healing properties are wonderful, but its nauseating effects make it impossible for the patient to retain it. To SCOTT & BOWNE, the public are indebted for an EMULSION OF CASTOR OIL that is not only palatable, but is pronounced by thousands who are using it, absolutely agreeable to the palate. No family can afford to be without it through the heated term. Price 25 cents. d53-w36-1m

THE SOLARGRAPH WATCH!
☞ONLY $1.00☜

A perfect Time-keeper, Hunting-Case, and HEAVY PLATED CHAIN, latest style. We warrant it for five years to denote time as accurately as a $100 Chronometer Watch, and will give the exact time in any part of the world. It also contains a FIRST-CLASS COMPASS, worth alone the price we charge for the Time-keeper. For Men, Boys, Mechanics, School Teachers, Travellers, and Farmers it is indispensible. They are as good as a high-priced watch, and in many cases more reliable. Boys, think of it! A Hunting-Case Watch and Chain for $1.00. The SOLARGRAPH WATCH is used by the Principal of the Somerville High School, and is being fast introduced into all the schools through the United States, and is destined to become the most useful Time-keeper ever invented. The SOLAGRAPH WATCH received a Medal at the Mechanics' Fair, at Boston, in 1878.

This is no toy, but is made on scientific principals, and every one warranted to be accurate and reliable. We have made the price very low simply to introduce them at once, after which the price will be raised.

The SOLOGRAPH WATCH AND CHAIN is put up in a neat outside case, and sent by mail to any address for $1.00. We have made the price so low, please send two stamps if convenient to help pay postage. Address plainly,

THE
Great Cause of Human Misery

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

LOCAL NEWS

Barley.

There were several loads of barley in the market to-day, fine and white, for which 50 cents per bushel was paid.

◆

Recovering.

We are glad to learn that Mrs. Dixon, who broke her collar bone, and dislocated her arm, by a fall from the sidewalk, a short time ago, has nearly recovered from the injuries she received.

◆

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: Moderate winds, partly cloudy weather, with showers in some localities. The weather in Peterborough to-day has been warm, wind south-westerly and partly cloudy with threatening showers.

◆

Music at the Exhibition.

The committee have arranged with the Firemen's Band to play on the Exhibition grounds on Tuesday evening, Wednesday afternoon and evening, and the whole of Thursday and evening. As our band came out first at Toronto, those attending the Exhibition may expect a rare treat from them.

◆

The Shingle Mill Fire.

It is stated that there was an insurance upon the property destroyed on Saturday night, of some $6,000 or $8,000, mostly, if not all, in Eastern States Companies. The fire is still burning, and will probably continue to do so until all the old rubbish is destroyed, unless it is thrown into the bay, as has been suggested.

◆

The Wheat Market.

There has been considerable excitement in the wheat market to-day. Early in the day there appeared to be a desire to secure wheat for milling purposes, the shipping rates being ignored by the buyers. Several loads were taken at $1.05, the bulk was, however, taken at $1.00, except for fall wheat, which maintained its price at $1.05 for best grades. The receipts of wheat are heavy to-day, and the indications are that the farmers will not hold back for increasing higher prices.

◆

The Sherbrooke Street Contract.

The excavation and grading of the Sherbrooke Street wharf approach may now be said to have been finished by M. Boulton, the contractor. The street from George Street has been cut down to a very gentle slope, and as Mr. Calcutt has completed the raising of the wharf, and it has been levelled up, the approach is now a very easy grade for the heavy work that is sometimes necessary. The merchants receiving goods by the Calcutt line of steamers will find it very convenient, as well as less expensive, for hauling in goods. The work of cutting down and grading Water Street to correspond with the Sherbrooke Street grade is being carried forward vigorously, and will in a few days be completed.

Foot Ball.

A very interesting game of foot ball was played yesterday afternoon between the following teams who were chosen on the field. We cannot say the play was at all scientific, and it was inclined to be rough, but that can be easily accounted for by its being the first practice of the season. The first part of the game was largely in favor of Mr. Hamilton's team, who kept it well down at their adversaries goal, and managed to score three touch downs and one goal, kicked by Mr. Braithwaite. At the latter part of the game Mr. Haultain left the ground, and Mr. Rogers' team gained an advantage, Mr. Geo. Rogers at last scoring a touch down, when after an unsuccessful try at goal, time was called.

TOWN COUNCIL MEETING

NOT MUCH BUSINESS, BUT A RATHER LARGE AMOUNT OF TALK

◆

The Police Court Fees Again—Mr. Toole's Petition Declined—Petitions for Tax Exemptions—Street Improvements.

The Council met on Monday evening, Sept. 22nd, pursuant to adjournment.

Present,—The Mayor, and Councillors Cahill, Taylor, Smith, Buller, Paterson, McBain, Yelland, Douglas, Rutherford, Robertson, Denne, and Griffith.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From George Snider, and others asking to have Mrs. Bird's taxes remitted. Referred to the Finance Committee.

From the Health Officers, as to a nuisance on Townsend Street, not being abated. Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee with power to act.

From Joseph Smith, and others asking for work on the Downie Street drain.

From Wm. Chapman, asking for remission of taxes, as he had not occupied the premises.

From John McMann, asking for remission of taxes overcharged. Referred to the Finance Committee.

From J. McChire, asking to be relieved from his assessment for a dog.

From Mrs. Walsh, asking for remission of taxes.

From J. B. McWilliams, asking to be relieved from his assessment for a dog, as he only had one, and was assessed for two.

From J. B. McWilliams, claiming exemption from taxes for his office as held for the Province.

From M. Boulton, asking for an approach to be made over the drain to his lot.

From W. Stock, asking for a platform in front of his new building on the corner of Stewart and Sherbrooke Streets.

ACCOUNTS.

Wm. McBain, fixing offices	$25 68
W. Hamilton, castings for Council Chamber	15 00

Referred to the Finance Commmittee.

THE FINANCE REPORT.

Councillor CAHILL brought in the report of the Finance Committee, as follows:—

The Finance Committee beg leave to recommend the payment of the following accounts:—

J. R. Stratton, printing	$42 50
J. Doharty, weighing iron	1 25
Toker & Co., printing	42 34
Toker & Co., stationery	9 70
W. Roberts, repairing tanks	3 75

Your Committee recommend that the Treasurer be directed to refund to Mr. Hilliard the sum of $105, with interest at 7 per cent, on account of an error male in carrying out his assessment in the Treasurer's book for the year 1875.

In reference to the petition of John Delaney and 214 others, asking the Council to submit a by-law to aid Mr. W. Toole to rebuild his factory, lately destroyed by by fire, your Committee recommend that a by-law may be submitted for that purpose to the extent of $2,000, the conditions of such by-law to be made by the whole Council.

Councillor CAHILL moved the adoption of the report.

Councillor ROBERTSON moved in amendment, seconded by Councillor McBAIN,—That the portion of the report referring to Mr. Toole be struck out.

Councillor RUTHERFORD advocated the submission of the question to the ratepayers, after they had received such an influential petition. He spoke at some length of the necessity for encouraging industries, if the town was to prosper.

He moved, seconded by Councillor PATERSON,—That the conditions required to be inserted in the by-law shall be:—

1. This Corporation to hold first mortgage on the property.
2. The property to be insured and policy to be held by the Corporation.
3. To give sureties not to engage in any works now carried on by any ratepayer in the town.
4. Interest to be paid at the rate paid by this municipality.
5. Re-payments to be made in ten equal annual instalments, first to be paid in the year 1881.

Councillor DOUGLAS asked if it was lawful for the Corporation to loan money.

Councillor YELLAND thought if the large ratepayers mentioned were so ready to aid Mr. Toole they might do so themselves. He did not see in these hard times where the money was to come from.

Councillor CAHILL said he thought that after a petition signed so largely by heavy ratepayers, they ought to submit the by-law for the opinion of the people. As to the conditions they would be inserted by the Council.

Councillor SMITH said he thought they were bound, after such a petition, to submit the matter to the voice of the people. If Mr. Toole put up the amount of the expenses, he could not see that any harm could be done by an appeal to the ratepayers.

Councillor ROBERTSON made an enquiry as to the case of Mr. Baptie, and was informed it would be considered when it came up.

Councillor RUTHERFORD's amendment was put and lost.

Councillor ROBERTSON's amendment was put and carried.

The report as amended was adopted.

STREETS AND BRIDGES.

Councillor PATERSON moved, (after notice) seconded by Councillor SMITH,—That the Inspector of Streets and Bridges make an approach on Charlotte street to Mr. E. Green's yard, at a cost not to exceed $25.

Councillor DENNE objected to undertaking new work.

Councillor PATERSON said it could not be called new work, being a necessary approach to a dwelling.

Councillor RUTHERFORD thought they should adhere to their resolution.

After some further discussion the motion was carried.

RAILWAY TRAINS.

Councillor RUTHERFORD moved, seconded by Councillor ROBERTSON,—That the Clerk be instructed to communicate with the President of the Midland Railway to request him to take the proper steps to prevent the trains running faster than allowed by law. Carried.

THE POLICE COURT FEES.

The MAYOR stated that Mr. Dennistoun required to be retained under the seal of the corporation, to act for them in the matter of the claim against Mr. D. G. Hatton as Police Magistrate.

Councillor ROBERTSON said he would move the resolution which was as follows:—That James Frederick Dennistoun be formally retained under the common seal to prosecute an action against D. G. Hatton in the Court of Common Pleas for the recovery of certain fees received by him, and which the corporation of the town of Peterborough claim to recover against said D. G. Hatton, and that the Mayor do seal such retain or with the Common seal and attest the same by his own signature as Mayor.

Before this motion was seconded, Mr. Robertson said he would move an amendment that Mr. Dennistoun be asked the probable costs.

There was considerable discussion during which several Councillors advocated dropping the proceedings for fear of the costs. Others wanted to have a decision of the courts.

Councillor SMITH said that if the case came before the Court it might be decided in 5 or 10 years. When the legal points were settled the matter would be referred to the Auditors to take accounts in each case, and each one might be disputed.

Councillor ROBERTSON's second resolution was then put and carried.

The first resolution for retaining Mr. Dennistoun, having been moved by Councillor PATERSON and seconded by Councillor McBAIN. Was put and carried.

LIQUOR LICENSES.

Councillor PATERSON moved, seconded by Councillor McBAIN,—That the Clerk be and is hereby instructed to communicate with the Hon. the Provincial Treasurer, and ascertain why the amount due the town on account of liquor licenses, for the present year, has not been paid as required by law.

Councillor CAHILL said the difficulty was that the Council had not paid a claim under the Dunkin Act of last year, which might as well be paid at once.

Councillor DENNE said he did not see why they should pay an illegal claim of last year, to get what was legally due this year.

The motion was carried.

POLICE COURT FEES.

Councillor PATERSON moved, seconded by Councillor RUTHERFORD,—That the Clerk communicate with the Attorney General, regarding the Police Court fees, and any other information he may require as to Town and Council cases. Carried.

THE MONAGHAN DRAIN.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor TAYLOR,—That the Street Inspector be instructed to proceed to expend the amount appropriated for the Monaghan drain, upon said drain.

After some discussion, a point of order being raised, the motion stood as a notice of motion.

NUISANCE.

Mr. D. LEMAY was heard in reference to a nuisance on the premises adjoining his house.

The Council then adjourned for one month.

The Flouring Mills.

The flouring mills in and around Peterborough are now in full operation. The "City Mill," Messrs. Denne and Sperry, started on night work yesterday. They are shipping 300 barrels to-day, via the Midland railway, to the Montreal market. Hall's mill has also started on night work, and is flouring for shipment. They have now a large quantity ready, awaiting cars. The Ontario Mills, Messrs. Clegg, are running full time on local orders, and are buyers of wheat for local milling use. The Otonabee Mills, G. C. Rogers, Ashburnham, are running day and night for local use and shipping purposes. This mill has been running night work for some time, mostly on local orders. The mills further up the river are also running full time, and the season may now be said to be fully opened.

Special Telegram to the Review, Sept. 24.

HANLAN'S MOVEMENTS.—Hanlan will go to Chautauqua Lake to-morrow morning. It is stated that he will not accept Elliott's challenge, but will return the Sportsman's challenge cup.

MONTREAL.

Special Telegram to the Review, Sept. 24.

ENGLISH FARMERS.—One hundred English farmers arrived here yesterday en route for the Little Saskatchewan, where they propose to settle. They bring capital to the extent of $50,000.

MASONIC.—The Grand Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons of the Province is now in session here.

OTTAWA.

Special Telegram to the Review, Sept. 24.

THE EXHIBITION.—At 11 o'clock, the time appointed for the formal opening of the exhibition, there were fully fifteen thousand people on the grounds. Just about that hour the sky became over-cast and some rain fell, but as the Royal Standard, which heralded the presence of the Vice-Regal party floated from the flagstaff the sun again shed forth its lustre over the bayonets of the Guard of Honor.

From the Morning Papers.

TORONTO.

THE KIDNAPPERS' HOUSE on the banks of the Don was yesterday visited by about 3,000 persons.

"GOOD TIMES."—The Mail says:—"The thought that must at this time be uppermost in the Opposition mind is, that there is such a fatal coincidence between Liberal-Conservative rule and good times, and between Reform rules and depression. The public mind is quick to see and seize these points of comparative prosperity, and the more clearly they are perceived the worse for the Opposition.

FIRE AT TAYLOR'S ELEVATOR.—Shortly before twelve o'clock on the morning of the 23rd, P. C. Adair from the corner of Frederick and Front streets saw flames ascending from the south end of the roof of Taylor's Elevator, a three-story building situated on the Esplanade, between Frederick and George streets. He at once sounded the alarm at Box 127, and the firemen with their wonted promptitude were soon on the spot, but not, however, before the flames had assumed considerable headway at the summit of the southerly portion of the roof. The firemen were soon hard at work; and streams of water poured on to the rising fire did good execution, but at the same time in the interior of the structure the fire fiend was making tremendous havoc. The flames then shot forth from the east side, anon from the west of the building, and again from the whole roof. The scene at this point was terribly grand, and the excitement intense. Warren's dwelling, the adjoining structure, was deemed to be in peril, and its contents, among which were Hanlan's shells Toronto and Louise, were immediately removed. The flames hissed and crackled, and smoke rolled up in dense volumes for upwards of an hour, when water and human effort conquered. However the firemen were terribly exhausted before their work was completed. The building was completely gutted and presented a sombre appearance. The damage is estimated at between $7,000 and $8,000. The amount of insurance could not be learned.

METHODIST HYMNOLOGY.—The committee appointed by the Conference to revise the Methodist hymn-book, has been for some time in session in Cobourg, and it is understood its work is nearly completed. Considerable changes have been made in some of the hymns, and many familiar ones have, for various reasons, been expunged, while a large number of the more modern productions, especially those adapted to particular occasions, have been introduced. Much difference of opinion is said to exist amongst the Methodist people as to the necessity for any revision at all, while the omission of any of the old hymns is looked upon by many with great disfavor, and the introduction of inferior efforts by the latter poets in warmly criticised.

A RUMOR.—It is rumored here that the Governor-General has requested permission from the Imperial authorities to reside at Toronto the greater part of the time.

THE TOTAL RECEIPTS of the exhibition just closed are about $60,000, including $12,000 subscribed by business men of the city, $5,000 donated by the city, and $2,000 by the Council, with a handsome sum for selling rights to operate a dining-room, wharf, &c.

AFTERNOON TELEGRAMS

Press Despatches to the Review.

CABLE.

EXCURSIONISTS DROWNED.

LONDON, Sep. 24.—A despatch from Dover gives a rumor that the excursion steamer Undaunted, from Ramsgate for the Isle of Wight, has been run down, and that all hands on board, about 100, were lost.

THE IRON TRADE REVIVING.

GLASGOW, Aug. 24.—The pig iron market is active and prices are higher than at any time for the past 18 months. The revival is almost solely due to large orders from America.

FIRES IN RUSSIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 24.—In the past ten days four fires have occurred in Astrakhan. One steamer, with twelve barges loaded with naptha, was burned on the river Volga, and a naptha train was burning yesterday.

PARLIAMENT TO MEET.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The arrangements are progressing for a mass meeting at Hyde Park on Saturday, to consider the present grave crisis, to denounce the Governments reckless incapacity, and to demand an immediate appeal to the country. It is reported that the Government seriously contemplates summoning parliament early in November.

AMERICAN.

COLORED LABOR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—The World's Washington despatch says that arrangements are about completed by the Mississippi and Louisiana planters for importing colored labor from Missouri and the border states.

A CROQUET MALLET.

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 24.—Munroe Snyder, residing near Nazareth, while playing croquet yesterday, was hit on the head with a mallet and instantly killed.

A SWINDLER ARRESTED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Mr. McGrath, the pretended San Francisco millionaire, who has swindled people in various sections, by leasing stores and declaring that he was about to open large grocery houses, and then borrowing freely from newly made friends, has been arrested at Yonkers.

THE GREAT WALKING MATCH.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—The Times says victory for Rowell is now almost a foregone conclusion. The receipts to date are about $22,000. The estimated receipts of the week are $57,000, of which the winner's share would be $20,000, and the share of the lessees of the garden $14,000.

A RACER KILLED.

At Brighton Beach races yesterday the well-known running horse Jack Screw fell and broke his fore legs.

A VALUABLE HORSE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 24.—Lewis Clark today bought for J. R. Keene, the great colt Lord Murphy, the first three year old to capture the Derby and St. Leger. Price ten thousand dollars.

TRADE MORALS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Francis D. Moulton and W. H. Hazard, composing the firm of F. D. Moulton & Co., have been suspended from the Produce Exchange for "Conduct inconsistent with just and equitable principles of trade."

A COMMERCIAL TREATY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—The Herald's Paris report says that at a banquet last night given to Fernando Wood by a committee for promoting a commercial treaty between France and America, a great meeting was announced to promote the treaty, to be held on October 5th, at Paris.

FATAL ASSAULT.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—George Truman, Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions, who was assaulted a week ago by a Naval Office Clerk, named Shissler, died yesterday. His aged mother it is feared will also die from the shock the affair gave her.

GOLD IMPORTED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—The Abyssinia, from Liverpool, yesterday, brought £275,000 of gold in bars.

MURDERER'S ESCAPE.

BOSTON, Sep. 24.—The jury in the case of Dr. Kimball and M. M. Goodrich, charged with the murder of Jennie Clarke, disagreed. It is reported that 11 were for a conviction.

A FIENDISH CRIME.

JANESVILLE, Wis., Sept. 24.—While Alexander White, a farmer of Porter Rock, was absent yesterday, his five year old son was taken to the barn, where he was found with his throat cut and disembowelled. George Barrington, a farm hand, who has disappeared, probably committed the crime. No cause for it is known. A vigorous pursuit is being made.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS

CABLE.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—A despatch from Vienna says that the conference between Bismarck and Andrassy has resulted in an agreement that German and Austrian interests in all pending European questions are identical and that the condition of Europe is such as will leave no doubt that the two empires will be able to assert these interests peaceably. The Times's correspondent at Berlin thinks the expressions of certain Russian newspapers about the occupation of Bosnia and Herzegovina have contributed in a high degree to bring about the consolidation of the interests of the whole group of German speaking people, which is believed to be proceeding in Vienna. The unmistakable and monstrous plans of Panslavism can only be met by a firm and unmistakable attitude of watchfulness, which is by no means to be understood as an unfriendly one towards Russia herself. Bismarck indeed, by showing that while waiting for a most desirable change in the direction of Russian foreign affairs, which is already spoken of and looked for, he is prepared for war, takes the most effectual means to secure peace.

FRANCE AND ENGLAND.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The Times's Paris correspondent says on both of the main points which induced the interview between the Marquis of Salisbury, the British Foreign Secretary and M. Waddington the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, namely the Greek and Egyptian questions, the understanding complete. As to plans attributed to Austria, Germany and Russia, it is naturally held that neither France nor England need pay much attention to them or modify the policy they are pursuing. Bismarck's visit to Andrassy is merely designed to show the cordiality unity and of the views of the two. Andrassy, in all probability, will retire from his present office only to become the third great chancellor in Europe, while Baron Haymerle will fill in Austria the specialist role filled in Germany by Von Bulow. Bismarck, after the Berlin Congress, had two chancellor candidates in view. If he had not succeded, in Russia where Gortschakoff's age protects him from any change, he will at least succeed in Austria and Schouvaloff is still young enough to wait his turn patiently. There is no reason why the future Austrain chancellors should have a different policy from that which he has pursued as minister of foreign affairs.

THE MERV EXPEDITION.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 23.—An official telegram from General Lomakin, commanding the Russian expedition in Central Asia, states that the advanced detachment of the expedition against the Tekke Turcomans passed Hoget Dagh on the 4th instant at Bashi and Beurma. No Turcomans were encountered. Only fifty Kibitkas remained at Artchman, the rest of the population having decamped. The Russian vanguard passed the night at Gurum, the main body remaining at Artchman. It is rumoured the Tekkes are assembling at Geok Tepe to resist the advance of the expedition. The health of the troops is satisfactory.

SIMLA, Sept. 23.—Official intelligence has been received here and confirmed by the way of Persia that the Russian advanced column has been defeated by the Turkomans at Geok Tepe with a loss of 700 killed, and that the Russians are falling back on Beurma.

The Viceroy of India confirms the report that the Russian advanced column of the expedition in Central Asia has been defeated by the Turcomans at Geok Tepe with the loss of 700 killed.

THE EMPRESS OF RUSSIA.

LONDON, Sep. 23.—The latest news from St. Petersburg states that the court physicians have urgently recommended the Empress to attempt to recruit her health in Sweden.

THE FRANCO-AMERICAN TREATY.

PARIS, Sep. 23.—To-day M. Leon Say, Finance Minister, received Mr. Fernando Wood, of New York, M. Leon Chatteau, Mr. Cornelius Jeremiah Vanderbilt, and others as a deputation interested in the success of the proposed Franco-Ametican treaty. A long and interesting discussion between these gentlemen and the Minister took place, Mr. Wood and Mr. Chatteau ably combating for the objections which Leon Say put forward against the proposals.

EGYPT AND ABYSSINIA.

THE FALL RIVER OUTRAGES.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 23.—The greatest indignation is felt here to-day over the attempted murderer of officer Townsend last night. It is expected a meeting of Aldermen will be held to-morrow, and an effort will probably be made to offer a reward for the arrest of the assassin. The French population are greatly agitated over the present outrages, and particularly at the assault on their countrymen last week.

The Board of Aldermen to-day offered a reward for the capture of the parties who tried to shoot officer Townsend.

THE KIDNAPPING CASE.

The Deal Brothers Again in Court—Adjournment of the Case to the 30th inst.

From the Globe, Sept. 23.

Yesterday morning the brothers Thomas and John Deal were again brought up in the Police Court on the charge of having attempted to kidnap Mr. Robert Jaffray. As on the former occasion, there were a large number of people in Court to witness the trial.

Mr. Fenton, County Crown Attorney, desired a further postponement of the case, as upon evidence which had been gathered he had filed an indictment before the Grand Jury of the Court of Quarter Sessions, and upon that a true bill had been returned.

The Magistrate argued that in this case the matter was taken out of his hands, and the prisoners would have to go to trial without any knowledge of the evidence to be brought against them, which was a manifest injustice.

Mr. Fenton did not so regard it, but considered that from the publicity given to the case, they, whether innocent or guilty, could easily instruct their counsel. He had taken the case into the Court of Sessions because he had been informed that the prisoners had elected to be tried by a jury. In answer to the objection of the Magistrate that if the prisoners elected to be tried summarily he had no option but to try them, he (Mr. Fenton) quoted the statute to prove that in such cases as the present it was left to the discretion of the Magistrate to either try the prisoners or commit them to a higher Court.

The Magistrate said he had not from the first any intention of trying the case, but as it appeared that there might be a conflict of authority between the courts he desired to have the matter strictly defined.

Mr. Murphy, for the prisoners, held that if the case went at once before the Court of Sessions it would in all probability be adjourned to the Assizes, and as no evidence could be given, bail could not be granted by the judge, and the prisoners would in the meantime have to remain in gaol. This was a plain injustice. Besides there was no evidence beyond Mr. Fenton's statement that a true bill had been returned.

After some further argument the case was adjourned until Tuesday next.

THE CANADIAN INDIANS.

The Tribes in the Saskatchewan Region Suffering from Hunger—A Gloomy Prospect.

HUMBOLDT, N. W. T., via Winnipeg, 21st Sept.—Col. Osborne Smith's party passed here, 140 miles from Battleford and 80 miles from Fort Carlton, to-day, en route for Battleford. The destitution among the Indians is very great. Several slight breaches of peace have occurred, but nothing very serious as yet. The buffalo are not coming in, and it is feared the winter will be a hard one among the tribes. Col. Smith is pushing on to Battleford with all possible haste, in order to equip companies of infantry at that point. The traders throughout the Saskatchewan valley report that the Indians are suffering terribly from want of food, but so far they have not made any hostile movements.

CENTRAL EXHIBITION IN PETERBOROUGH!

SPECIAL EDITIONS

OF THE

REVIEW.

A SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY

FOR

ADVERTISERS!

BELIEVING that the holding of the Central Exhibition in Peterborough this year, combined with the favourable railway arrangements being made for enabling visitors to reach the town, will afford a rare opportunity for our business men to bring their wares under the notice of a large number of people, and extend the circle of their customers, the publishers of the DAILY and WEEKLY REVIEW have determined to do all in their power to enable their patrons and the public to reap the advantages of the occasion. In order to do this thoroughly they have secured extra and efficient assistance in the Editorial department to fully overtake the work which will devolve upon it during the next fortnight, and render their editions fully up to the times in every department of news. With the view of substantially increasing their circulation for the benefit of their advertising patrons they have decided to send the WEEKLY REVIEW of Sept. 26th to every member of the Agricultural Societies of North and South Victoria, East and West Peterborough, West Northumberland, East and West Durham, Smith, Hamilton, South Monaghan, and the Peterborough Horticultural Societies not already subscribers to the REVIEW, and otherwise distribute them gratuitously—bringing its circulation for that week up to fully 3000 copies. They will also during the week of the Exhibition sell the DAILY REVIEW at ONE CENT per copy, and render it unusually interesting by the full and complete reports which it will contain of Exhibition and Local events, in addition to its usual amount of Telegraphic and other intelligence, up to the hour of going to press each afternoon. In order that no disappointment may occur by the crowding out of important matter, provision has been made that the sheet upon which these Special Editions of the Daily and Weekly are to be printed will be of sufficient dimensions to contain all the news of the day, and full information for the guidance of visitors.

Should the expectations of the publishers be realised, the demands upon the columns of the DAILY REVIEW will be such as to require the issue of a DOUBLESHEET during the principal days of the Exhibition week, and they appeal with some confidence to the business men of Peterborough to enable them to carry out this design, to the mutual advantage of all concerned.

SPECIAL RATES OF ADVERTISING.

A Special scale of very favourable rates for advertisers has been prepared for these editions, and orders are requested to be handed in as early as possible. All advertisements left at the office of publication, or handed to our authorized agent, MR. ANDREW BORROWMAN, will receive prompt attention.

A DARING SWINDLE.

One of the most daring swindles ever heard of even in this centre of swindling, was perpetrated on the 5th Sept., upon a well-known West-end Bank. About 2 p.m., a well appointed brougham, with coachman and servant correctly dressed, cockades in their hats, breeches, topboots, &c., and an earl's coronet upon the harness, drew up at the door of the establishment in question. The servant was seen to get off the box, go to the window of the vehicle, touched his hat, and receive from one of the inmates a piece of paper, which he took into the bank. It proved to be a cheque for £140, signed by the Earl of——, and payable to self or bearer. The nobleman in question having a large ballance at the bank, the servant or groom was merely asked how he was to take it, when he produced a slip of paper, on which was written:—"Ten pounds in gold, the rest in 50 pound notes." The cheque was paid at once, and the man took his departure. A couple of hours later, when the ballance of the day was being made up, one of the clerks remarked he had read in the papers that the Earl of———was crusing in his yacht off the coast of Spain. This caused the manager to send around to his lordship's town house, where he learned that the peer in question had not been in town for nearly a month. To make a long story short, the cheque was found to be a forgery—although the signature was an admirable imitation of the Earl's, and the cheque was evidently taken from a chequebook which had been given to his lordship. Further inquiry showed that within 20 minutes of the cheque being paid at the Bank the notes had been changed at the Bank of England.

COBOURG.

ANOTHER FIRE.—About 3 o'clock on Tuesday morning a fire broke out in O'Neil's livery and boarding stables, and in spite of all the firemen could do the flames spread south burning a large two storey building, from thence it spread to the adjoining house occupied by two families which was also burned. The buildings were all frame and some of them pretty old. The horses and carriages were saved. Loss probably $3,000; Insured for $2,000.

THE DAILY EVENING REVIEW circulates a Larger number of papers every day in the Town and Ashburnham than any one of the weeklies, and more than Double the number during the week than all the weeklies combined.

Daily Evening Review

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1879.

SIR A. GALT AT BELFAST.

SIR A. GALT recently attended a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at Belfast, Ireland. As from the nature of the meeting he could not be afforded as much time as he would desire to explain the present tariff policy of Canada, he published a carefully prepared document and placed it in the hands of all the members. It is an admirable exposition of the policy adopted by the present Government, and of course has great weight as the production of one of our ablest financiers, who not being immediately responsible for the ministerial policy, regards it simply in its effect upon the welfare of our Dominion.

The first subject discussed is very naturally, the necessity for an increased revenue owing to to the chronic deficit established under the mismanagement of the late administrations. This additional revenue had of course to be raised, whatever party might be in power, and had no connection with the "National Policy" being simply the stern necessity for paying one's way which is incumbent upon nations as well as individuals.

The incidence of the taxation thus increased, is an altogether different subject. Sir A Galt in dwelling upon it, showed very clearly that the new tariff, while framed to protect and foster Canadian industries, was intended as a check to the unfair competiton of the manufacturers, not of Great Britain, but of the United States. He conclusively exposed and refuted the impupent assertion of the anti-national organs that the new tariff was aimed particularly at the British manufacturer, by showing that the old system had caused our imports from Great Britain to diminish, while those from the States had steadily increased. In fact it was the late Government that had favoured the Yankee manufacturer at the expense of those of the mother country. The following statistics as given by him, show this in the plainest manner:—

Imports from Great Britain, 1873	$68,522,776
Imports from Great Britain, 1878	37,431,180
Decrease	$31,091,596
Imports from United States, 1873	$47,735,678
Imports from United States, 1878	48,631,739
Increase	$ 896,061
Exports to Great Britain, 1873	$38,743,848
Exports to Great Britain, 1878	45,941,539
Increase	$ 7,197,691
Exports to United States, 1873	$42,027,526
Exports to United States, 1878	25,244,898
Decrease	$16,837,628

Of course this able document is virulently attacked by those who are striving to belittle the country and its industries, if by so doing they can aim a blow at the present administration. Sir A. Galt, who is widely respected is even accused of misrepresentation and diplicity. His crime is that he states explicitly the policy announced by the present ministry and their friends, that an end was to be put to the suicidal arrangements connived at by the late administration, by which Yankee manufacturers had the run of the Canadian markets, while our manufacturers were excluded inexorably from the markets of the United States.

There is every appearance that the policy thus established only six months ago is already working towards the desired end. Our own manufacturers are gradually replacing with their product those that we formerly imported from the other side of the line, while the imports from the mother country are not sensibly diminishing and are even likely to increase as the country grows prosperous under the regime of an administration which desires the welfare of Canada, instead of carrying out the doctrinaire absurdities of the late Government with their encouragement of foreign manufacturers at the expense of this country.

CETEWAYO'S CAPTURE.

Assembly of the wise Men of Zululand—The Terms of Peace.

CAPE TOWN, Sept. 2.—Cetewayo will come here immediately to await the orders of the Home Government. His capture has a quieting effect among the natives, and danger of rupture with the Pondos has passed away. A final assembly of the great chiefs, councillors, and people of Zululand was to be held at Ulundi to-day, when the terms of peace were to be proclaimed, and each of the chiefs selected to rule over the territories was to sign an agreement. According to this agreement each undertakes to forego the importing of arms from any quarter whatsoever, and importation of merchandise from the sea-coast is also forbidden. The making of war and succession to the chieftainship will by subject to the approval of the British Government. When British subjects are accused of crimes, trial and sentence will depend on the Resident's approval. The alienation of land will be absolutely forbidden in all respects. These chiefs will be sovereigns, each in his own territory. A chief will not be compelled to admit missionaries and the prohibition of the alienation of land will not be relaxed in favour of grants to missionaries. The British Residents will be instructed to advise the chiefs, but to exercise no authority over them. If the chiefs disregard the terms of the agreement, Residents will report their conduct, but will have no power to give orders. The course of the White Umvaloni river, from Kambula Mountain to the sea, will divide the northern from the southern Residency divisions. Many of the Chiefs receiving territories are representatives of ancient tribes, who were subjugated by the Zulus, and they rejoice at the recovery of their independence.

DEFICIENCY OF GRAIN CROPS IN EUROPE

Journal of Commerce, Sept. 19, 1879.

There is no longer room for doubt that, allowing for the chances of fine weather during the harvest, the grain crops of Great Britain must prove very much below the average; and considering the position of other countries from which she usually draws supplies, it may be reasonably concluded that the bulk of this extra demand will have to be supplied from this side of the Atlantic. Other countries of Europe have also experienced for the last two years a considerable deficit in their production; they also, instead of being exporters, have to draw their supplies from abroad, and it becomes an interesting question with us to know to what extent their requirements, added to those of Great Britain, may effect our prices.

The London Agricultural Gazette collects every year reports of the prospects of the crops throughout the United Kingdom, and its returns, just received, are three weeks behind the customary date. The classification of the reports is by "over average," "average," "below average," and the following table shows what percentage of some three hundred reports comes under these respective headings for the last two years.

1879.	Wheat.	Barley.	Oats.
Over average	1	4	20
Average	24	35	57
Under average	75	61	23
Total	100	100	100
1878.	Wheat.	Barley.	Oats.
Over average	24	14	22
Average	58	43	50
Under average	18	43	28
Total	100	100	100

Thus it will be seen that 75 per cent. of the reports indicates a crop of wheat below the average, where last year only 18 per cent. was "under average." The best authorities on the English grain trade seem to agree that the deficiency in the wheat yield will be one-third of an average. As to the quantity of wheat Great Britain will need to import, there is a general agreement of estimates, most of the authorities fixing the requirements at about 16,100,000 quarters, or 128,000,000 bushels.

The deficit on the continent is not so easily calculated, as very little reliance can be placed on telegraphic despatches, so often have they been found untrustworthy respecting the European crops. Yet from more disinterested sources, the prospect of the general yield in Europe is accounted better than has been hitherto estimated on this side of the Atlantic. The International grain market of Vienna publishes every year a report of the probable results of the harvests in all the grain-producing countries, and the result for this year exceeds the representations that have reached this country, and show a far higher ratio than associated press cables have led us to expect. Germany has a surplus; Russia has probably been underestimated, and France is also deficient, and after poor returns from the fields for the last three years, the reserves of the country, usually very large, are exhausted. The Paris market shows that actual wants are not so urgent as represented.

The amount of specie in the Bank of France on the 21st of last month exceeded the circulation by 113,000,000 francs, a proportion of 195.36 per cent. of specie to circulation; the amount of indirect taxes for the first 7 months of the present year exceeds the budget estimate by 85,000,000 francs. This surplus is not a symptom of pressing wants tending to exhaust the resources of the country.

The total deficiency of wheat in Europe seems therefore to necessitate an importation of 150,000,000 bushels, which in a slight measure may be reduced by exports from other European countries, but the great bulk of the supplies must be drawn from the United States and Canada. Two successive bountiful crops will allow the exportation of such a quantity without inflating prices, as the stocks in the country are too large to justify farmers or dealers in hoarding for higher prices.

A New Industry.

A Mr. Soule, of Elgin, Illinois, is in his third year of frog farming, and his first crop is now being marketed. He has an acre and a quarter devoted to the frog industry. The kind grown is the "Goslin frog," much larger than the common sort. Mr. S. will, next season furnish St. Louis, Chicago, and Cincinnati with frogs, and is confident of success in the business.

Notice to Contractors.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the Secretary of Public Works, and endorsed "Tenders for Canal and Lock at St. Anne," will be received at this office until the arrival of the Eastern and Western mails on FRIDAY THE 10th DAY OF OCTOBER next, for the construction of a Lock and the formation of approaches to it on the landward side of the present lock at St. Anne.

A map of the locality, together with plans and specifications of the works to be done, can be seen at this office and at the Resident Engineer's office, at St. Anne, on and after SATURDAY THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER next, at either of which places printed forms of Tender can be obtained.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and—in the case of firms, except there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation and residence of each member of the same; and further, an accepted Bank cheque for the sum of $2000 must accompany the tender, which sum shall be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the works, at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

For the due fulfilment of the contract, satisfactory security will be required by the deposit of money to the amount of five per cent. on the bulk sum of the contract; of which the sum sent in with the Tender will be considered a part.

Ninety per cent only of the progress estimates will be paid until the completion of the work.

To each Tender must be attached the actual signatures of two responsible and solvent persons, residents of the Dominion, willing to become sureties for the carrying out of these conditions, as well as the due performance of the works embraced in the contract.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

I sees some sistahs pruzint, mighty proud o' whut dey wearin',
It's well you isn't apples, now, you better be declarin' !
For when you heerd yo' markit-price, 't'd hurt yo' little feelin's ;
You wouldn't fotch a dime a peck, for all yo' fancy peelin's

O sistahs—lettle apples (for you're r'a'lly mighty like 'em)—
I lubs de ol'-time russets, dough it's seldom I kin strike 'em ;
An' so I lubs you, sistahs, for yo' grace, an' not yo' graces—
I don't keer how my apple looks, but on'y how it tas'es

Is dey a Sabbaf-scholah heah ? Den let him 'form his mudder
How Jacob in-de-bible's boys played off upon dey brudder !
Dey sol' him to a trader—an' at las' he struck de prison :
Dat comed of Joseph's struttin' in dat streaked coat ob his'n.

My Christian frien's, dis story proobes dat eben men is human—
He'd had a dozen fancy coats, ef he'd 'a' been a 'ooman
De cussidness ob showin' off, he foun' out all about it :
An' yit he wus a Christian man, as good as ever shouted.

It learned him ! An' I bet you when he come to git his riches
Dey didn't go for stylish coats or Philadelphy breeches?
He didn't was'e his money when experunce taught him better,
But went aroun' a-lookin' like he's waitin' for a letter !

Now, sistahs, wont you copy him ? Say, won you take a lesson,
An' min' dis sollum wahnin' 'bout de sin ob fancy dressin' ?
How much yo' spen' upon yo'se'f ! I wish you might remember
Yo' preacher ain't been paid a cent sence somewhar in November,

I better close. I sees some gals dis sahmon's kinder hittin' ;

For the Peterborough Review.

TIM GLEESON.

Colonel Montgomery was a tall, handsome, wealthy man, humane, charitable, occasionally eccentric in his acts of generosity. It might have been well said of him, "his failings leaned virtue's side." His residence was a magnificent mansion, superbly furnished with extensive gardens and pleasure grounds. A sloping lawn in front, at the foot of which was a large fish-pond, and hundreds of acres of a hilly, picturesque park in the distance, in which were finely gravelled winding avenues.

The residence was about two miles from the town of M—. The road was old fashioned and hilly crooked, old hedge-row ash trees at either side, in some places forming a sort of bower, and in view of hardness and drainage, the dykes were all on the road sides.

One evening while the Colonel was sitting in his gig, about half a mile from town on his return home, he saw a man in a field on the other side of the hedge, making several attempts to get on his back a bag of potatoes which he was after digging. Failing in his attempts, he muttered, groaned, and cursed Adam for being the cause of his hardship. The Colonel alighted, fastened his horse to the gate-post, assisted the man to put the bag of potatoes on his back and into the boot of the gig. "What is your name?" said the Colonel. "Tim Gleeson, yer honor," replied Tim, "a name that never disgraced any man. I live in Back street, next door to Peter McCabe, and have a little con acre in this field." "Why did you curse Adam?" said the Colonel. "Is it any wondher I'd curse him, sir, for having, by his disobedience, brought on me all the hardships and misery I have to endure in this world ? He was no man, sir, for giving in to his wife and then to lay the blame on her. Long life to yer honor for yer timely assistance."

"Well, Tim," said the Colonel. "I am sorry for you, and as we are fellow travellers to the grave where we shall all soon be, and where rich and poor are equal, I will try to relieve you. Jump up in the gig. I have something for you at Belvidere House that will be better for you than digging potatoes, carrying them on your back to town, and working for a shilling a day. On our arrival at my house I will send a servant to your house to say that you are all right. What family have you?"

"The sorra one but my poor oul woman," replied Tim.

"Now, Tim, I will give you some of my reasons for saying you were wrong in blaming Adam. It is admitted that Eve, the first of God's creation, was an exceedingly beautiful woman, with winning conversation, and was dearly beloved by Adam, and considering the effect eating the fruit had on her, we may fairly conclude that few men would have resisted his temptation. Had Adam obeyed God, we doubtless would have been happy, as we would not have known poverty or affliction, but we would not have been so happy as those who are relieved from distress and suffering, and with God's image restored, sing the song of the Redeemer for ever. St. Paul says, 'For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more and exceeding and eternal weight of glory.' And again, 'For I reckon that the sufferings of this life are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed to us.' We get an earnest of eternal happiness by submission to God's law, and accepting and trusting Christ as our Redeemer. St. John says, 'If we receive Christ we become sons of God, who treats us as a loving father treats his dear children.' Jesus, who is the fountain of all happiness, says, 'Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted.' Wealth is no criterion of happiness. In most instances it brings anxious cares and perplexities, and setting the affections on the fleeting things of earth, as in the case of the rich man and his barns. The beggar died and was carried by angels to Abraham's bosom. This life is only a nursery, from which we are soon transplanted to an everlasting life. All things considered, there is little difference between the rich and the poor, as both are subject to the natural ills of life. The rich, after being tortured by jealousies and many things the poor are strangers to, while the poor have real enjoyments, by plain food, exercise, good appetites and refreshing sleep, and many other family comforts the rich are strangers to. Nevertheless, riches are a great blessing when properly used. On the whole, it matters little whether we are rich or poor in this world if we have the spirit of Christ, and attain to everlasting joy. By Adam's disobedience, all mankind are earthly, sensual, and devilish by nature. Jesus says, out of the heart proceed evil thoughts and many sins. St. Paul says, we are dead in trespasses and sins until quickened by the spirit of God, which is obtained by earnest application. 'Whosoever will, may take of the water of life freely.' The peace of God fills and rules the heart. Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man to conceive what God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his spirit. And now, Tim, you might be as happy as a lord in your cabin, with the love of God in your heart, which you may have for simply asking Jesus for. Forsake every sin, ask him as if you saw him in his bodily presence, just as you would ask your greatest friend on earth for something you are most in need of, and you will obtain it. Grace to conquer sin, to realize his presence at all times and places, to give you his spirit to witness with yours that you are his child."

"God help the world," said Tim, "I think there must be very few enjoying the blessings you describe."

"There never were so many," replied the Colonel, "and if they don't it is their own fault. Some well-meaning people condemn where they should pity, retaliate where they should forgive, get estranged from their best friends for real or imaginary offence, which might be adjusted by a little friendly interposition, which offence, or slight sink into utter insignificance when painful anguish, some dreadful catastrophy and death ends all negotiations and reconciliations. Some people, under strong provocation, will give utterance to expressions which they would gladly withdraw or apologize for if approached in a proper spirit. Others, by irritable tempers, caused by disordered systems, say and do many things that no consideration could induce them to while in good health, and many are driven to wrong acts by the brain not working rightly in most cases in consequence of outraging or neglecting the stomach. Some, who would be excellent, intelligent people, have painful struggling against a craving appetite for strong liquors, which give very pleasing momentary relief from depression, but in many instances lead their victims to undescribable suffering, calling for pity, sympathy, and alleviation, instead of censure and scorn, who censures and fails to relieve in such cases, assists the enemy, who has his foot on the necks of such victims, and is on the track of the censurer, who will soon follow the victims to the grave."

Who forgives and alleviates come within the meaning of the promise, "That we may be the children of your father who sends his rain on the just as well as the unjust." No one should blame another until he is well acquainted with both sides of the case as well as the surrounding circumstances.

What sort of potatoes have you Tim?

"Well, yer honor," replied Tim, "I had one ridge of early ones called cork reds and yellow legs, but they are all eaten. I am now using two ridges of Browns, Paddy's and Farmers, and I am keeping three ridges of cups for winter and spring. But yer honor has a wonderful store of larnin'. I would like to hear a little more from you it's so encouraging."

"Most willingly, Tim," replied the Colonel, "but there is not much time, we shall soon be at my gate." "The Robinsons were a nice family; the father a sort of elder or deacon in the church, the mother and three grown up daughters good church members, well respected and of a good old stock. The Muldoons had been very low, coarse, vulgar, mother and two big ordinary daughters, they lived in a back street, and sold milk. Old Muldoon had one idea, and that was to accumulate money at almost any sacrifice. He was fortunate in two or three speculations, made money fast in tavern-keeping, and retired to an elegant house next door to the Browns. The big daughters had gold watches, chains, bracelets, &c., and a variety of costly dresses, seal skin jackets and other elegant furs, they called on the Browns, left their cards, &c., but all their ingenuity could not get the Browns to reciprocate, because they, the Muldoons, were vulgar upstarts, and so annoying was their dress, house and the respectable people who used to be seen calling on them and at their parties, that the Browns contemplated selling out and removing, it was so unbearable to have people so far beneath them socially and intellectually so near them, that they would have been greatly relieved if the Muldoons would become bankrupt and get back to their milk selling. Now Tim you will see that the Browns were guilty of something bordering on envy. They should, as pious christians, have been content and thankful for health, as they brought nothing into this world and can carry nothing out. What right had they to be annoyed at the Muldoons any more than at the O'Fogarty's, of Cork? We must recollect that the heaven of pious christians would be the reverse of happiness to those whose lives have been devoted to growling, passing sinful pleasures of life, and vice versa, but here we are at the gate." When they drove to the farm yard, the Colonel gave directions to have the bag of potatoes sent to Tim's, and that he should get a good dinner. When Tim got his dinner, for which he expressed heartfelt thanks, a valet and attendants had him well washed and shaved, his hair cut and his old fluttering garments replaced by a warm, comfortable suit of clothes. The Colonel then brought him into the library. Tim was astonished at the shelves of books, and wondered that any man could find time to read them all.

"Do you read much, Tim?" said the Colonel.

"Not much yer honor," replied Tim. I have the Hibernian Tales, the Life and Adventures of Redmond O'Hanlon, and Robinson Crusoe." "You shall have free access to this library," said the Colonel, so saying he took down a book and read a few extracts on contentment, gratitude, patience, &c. He then conducted him through every room in the house, pointing out everything worthy of notice, and lastly into a well furnished suite of apartments comprising dining-room, sitting-room, bed-room, &c., and through a glass door on a verandah, and to a beautiful garden and pleasure grounds. "Now, Tim," said the Colonel, "the four rooms we last passed through are for your sole use, make yourself easy, and I will see you in a day or two. Good-bye for the present." Tim slept well that night, and after a sumptuous breakfast next morning, took a walk in the garden and grounds, admired the extensive pond, trees, fruits and flowers, furniture, library, ornaments and especially the elegant bed-room in which he slept. In two days he was visited by the Colonel, to whom Tim expressed his gratitude in feeling terms for the unmerited friendship of his benefactor. "May the Lord of Heaven mark yer honor with grace, and bring yer sowl safe to glory. You are the best gintleman on the face of the earth." "I am aware of your gratitude Tim," said the Colonel, "feeling for your helpless condition and poverty, and with a view of making you happy during your life, I have given you these apartments and furniture and servants to attend you. Don't imagine yourself under any restraint, nor be timid in asking for anything, as everything you can wish for is at your disposal. If you feel inclined to ride or drive, the groom and coachmen will attend. It will be a pleasure to me to gratify you in everything. Put away every vestige of bashfulness, you never put your foot in a house you are so welcome in as this." "O sir," said Tim, "if poor Betty only knew of your wonderful friendship to me, it would do her heart good." "Who is Betty?" said the Colonel. "She's my darlin' wife," replied Tim, "and as good a sowl as ever broke the world's bread. The sorra a cross look ever passed betune us, barren a few times when she growled at me for takin a dhrop too much, but small blame to the crathur for that, as it was my own fault, I confess, sir, after all you have said and done. God reward ye. A Paradise would be gloomy to me without her company." "I shall send for her immediately," said the Colonel. "Good-bye."

When Betty arrived at Belvidere House, she was very bashful, and looked like one who had a [illegible] notion of the future. She gained confidence, however, by the encouraging words of the female servants, who had her divested of her dowdy drapery, and so fashionably attired that Tim stared in amazement when the Colonel introduced her to him. The Colonel there repeated what he had told Tim about their future, adding that for amusement they might both assist the gardener, and he would have changes of apparel given them for that purpose, and to make themselves perfectly at home. "The only condition is that when the butler brings your meals, he will place a small silver coverdish on the table, the cover of which you are not under any consideration to remove." They made the most solemn promises that they would never touch the dish, and thought what idiot they would be to risk the possession of such a Paradise by the disobedience of such a simple request, and were profuse in their expressions of confidence in themselves and gratitude to the Colonel, who after a few more words of kindness said "Good-bye Tim and Betty, remember the dish." "Never fear, sir," replied Tim.

As soon as he was gone, Tim laughed immoderately, and clasping his wife in his arms, he said, "Well, Betty, my darlin', you treasure of my heart, I thought the sight would leave my eyes when I saw you coming in with the colonel, I never thought you were such an elegant woman, I declare you are a perfect lady." "And you, Tim, my jewel of a husband, I am delighted to see you again; I declare to my sins you're a rale gintleman, wasn't et the happy day that we first met. Och, Tim, asthore isn't this the heavenly place; I wonder if heaven is any betther than this?" I feel as if I was enchanted, the priest himself hasn't a betther coat, trousers, and waistcoat than yon have on, and your boots shinin' like a kitten's eye under a bed, and that beautiful ruffled shirt, they do up things in grand style here ; may the Lord love them for their goodness to us, how do I look in this nice poplin dress, this nice rock-spun shawl, this love of a bonnet!" "Like a Queen," replied Tim, "in that beautiful Limerick-lace cap and ribbons ; that cambric collar and cuffs as white as the dhriven snow ; that illegant Tabinet gown, and lute sthring apron ; that damask dimmitty petticoat with Brussels-lace edging ; tibbet, shawl, and cordavan shoes, you would grace a citizen's ball given honor of a princess, and take the shine out of the up-start, dressed up sprisswans that go in debt for their fixins, and have hard work to keep body and sowl together, while their husbands and brothers are fretting and compounding at ten shillins in the poun'." "You made a mastake," said Betty, "my shoes are not cordavan, the're Spanish leather," thus he and she continued interrupting each other until the servants brought in a sumptious dinner. In a few weeks Tim and Betty became familiarised with their exalled position, the only thing that tended to mar their enjoyment was their curiosity to know what was in the silver coverdish which was placed on the table at their meals. One night, while in bed, Tim said, "Betty, asthore, I'me not myself at all, Ime oneasy every day for fraid I would spoil my clothes, or say or do something wrong, and maybe if the colonel would die soon we might be kicked out." "Whist ye gomeral." replied Betty, "it's time enough to bid the divil good-morrow when ye meet him."—"Well, Betty, I was thinkin if we had about 5 acres of cheap land, you and I could manage it well, if the roof of our cabin was newly thatched, and if we had a new dhresser and bedstead, a pair of blankets, a table and two chairs, an ass and bardhogues is all we would want to keep us with the land, and you could attend to a little cow and keep a pig and some fowls ; and we could live as happy as an Irish King and Queen." Betty admitted that Tim was not far astray, and after a little more talk on the subject, and wondering what could be in the dish they fell asleep.

One day after dinner, and Betty had boasted of the beef, the elegant pudding, and the beautiful tay, that she said would take a fine grip of the second water, their curiosity had risen to a high pitch, they stopped to gaze at the dish, Betty rose and handled, and minutely examined it all around, at tea they talked about it, stopped and gazed at it, and fancying all sorts of things to be in it, they both got up and handled it all over, and only for Tim, Betty would have had the cover off. Next morning, at breakfast, after having talked of it the greater part of the night, they stood up and came to the conclusion that it would be no harm to take a peep into it, so after looking all around to be sure that no one was peeping, they stepped softly to the doors, locked them, stuffed the keyholes, and ventured cautiously to work. "Will you?" said Betty, "No, do you!" whispered Tim, then, slowly and gently, while Tim gazed with breathless attention, she raised the cover a little, let it down again, and drew a long breath. "Ah, Betty Mavourneen," whispered Tim, "I think you had better let it alone." "Keep still." "Listen! did you hear the sounds." "As Ime a sinner," said Betty, "its a painna and a lady singing, do you hear the words. Listen!"

"And I know that the angels
Were whispering to me."

"Och, Betty, sheaka come away from that dish, remember the conjunctions of the colonel." so they let it alone until after dinner. "Thank God and the colonel for that excellent dinner. What in the name of wonder can be in that dish?" said Betty. "Maybe its a Bumbee," replied Tim, "I'll bet its a rat, I smelled a rat beside it a while ago," said Betty, "go long you old cat," said Tim, "it was the green cheese you smelled." "Here goes to take a peep," said Betty, and noiseless the pair went on tip-toe to the dish. "Will you, Tim," "the sorra a han I'll lay on it," said Tim. "Och, Betty, a cushla let it alone." "Keep still as a mouse, you poor chicken-hearted gomeral," replied Betty, as she raised the cover again, and while Tim was stooping to take a peep, lo! and behold! to their surprise, out started a mouse which scampered away into a little hole before they could say Jack Robinson, after gazing at each other in silent consternation for a few seconds, they sat in a moody posture between hope and despair until the servants took away the breakfast things.

In about ten minutes in came the colonel, accompanied by four big porters, and called out, "Where are you, Tim Gleeson?" Tim, who had gone to the garden with Betty, came in. "Why did you take the cover off the dish?" said the colonel. "It was none o' me, sir, it was Betty," replied Tim. "Betty, why did you uncover the dish?" Betty, in a confused manner and in a lugubrious tone, replied, "Och, yer honor. shure it was the divil tempted me, but the sorra a ha'porth o' harm is done. I can get another mouse as good as the one that got off. Jemmy Doogan catches them in a live trap in the oul praitchin house on the Mall road." "Porters! to your duty!" said the colonel; so two took Tim and two took Betty, and marched them to the outhouse in the yard, where they were divested of their elegant clothes, rigged out in their old tatters, a bag of potatoes put on Tim's back—and both turned out on the high road, and the gates closed on them. "Tim Gleeson," said the colonel, "allow me to say a few words before we part. In countenancing your wife to disobey my orders after all my injunctions, and what I did for, and promised you, you were as bad as she was, and worse than Adam, every human being has an insatiable desire for something he does not possess, and which this world cannot satisfy, never curse Adam again—go and be content in the sphere in which it has pleased God to place you, and by a life of industry, prepare for a higher and nobler state of existence beyond the grave."

"And you, Betty, go and answer the design of our Heavenly Father by giving all the assistance and encouragement in your power to your husband, and never give yourself any annoyance by your curiosity about the acts and business of others."

ST. JOHN, N. B.

GOLD.—Gold has been discovered on the Nashwaak river, York Co. A party numbering five persons went up the river about forty miles from Fredericton to the spot whence specimens had been brought. The country is wild and wooded, and vein of quartz runs down to the bank of the Nashwaak. The party found on examination that the vein towards the river was crumbly, and there among the sand saw shining grains of yellow metal. The party then began to search on the surface and found two dozen grains of pure gold, varying in size from a mustard seed to a swan shot. The land on which the gold was found belongs to Mr. A. Gibson, and he has taken immediate steps to put a quartz crushing mill up. The gold region is about two miles below the Napadoggin steam, and there is every reason to believe that quartz rich in gold extends through the wide track. The quartz was shown experienced gentlemen, who pronounce it richly loaded with gold. The grains picked up were valued at $10.

MONTREAL.

THE BANK OF MONTREAL.—On Tuesday afternoon Mr. C. F. Smithers, joint Manager of the New York agency, was appointed General Manager of the Bank of Montreal. Mr. Smithers began his banking career in the Bank of British North America, entering the service of that institution about the year 1845, and after several years of faithful work, he accepted the position of Inspector of the Bank of Montreal in 1858, with which institution he continued his connection until 1863, when he accepted the managership of the Montreal agency of the London and Colonial. Upon the closing up of the Canadian business of that bank, Mr. Smithers re-entered the service of the Bank of Montreal in 1869, as Manager of the New York office, and has continued to fill that office down to the present time with the exception of a short period, during which he engaged in the borking business in New York. Mr. Smithers will enter upon his new duties in the early part of October, although Mr. Angus will continue the responsibility of the management of the Bank until the close of the half year, October 31st.

The Heated Term—Look Out.

DON'T SIT ON THE GRASS.

The most stubborn case of Dysentery which is nothing more nor less than inflammation of the rectum, produced not unfrequently by sitting on the grass—may be cured by that most efficient cathartic, Castor Oil. Its soothing and healing properties are wonderful, but its nauseating effects make it impossible for the patient to retain it. To SCOTT & BOWNE, the public are indebted for an EMULSION OF CASTOR OIL that is not only palatable, but is pronounced by thousands who are using it, absolutely agreeable to the palate. No family can afford to be without it through the heated term. Price 25 cents. d53-w36-1m

THE

Great Cause of Human Misery

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife: pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Daily Evening Review

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1879.

LOCAL NEWS

I. O. G. T.

Carswell Temple No. 411, I. O. G. T., meets this evening at the hall, on George Street. A full attendance is requested, and a pleasant time is expected.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: Brisk to high, westerly to north-westerly winds, partly cloudy to clear, cooler weather.

Masonic.

Corinthian Lodge No. 101, A. F. A. M., meet in regular communication this evening, at Masonic Hall. This being the first regular communication, since calling from labor to refreshment in June, it is expected that there will be a full attendance.

Foot Ball Association Game.

The Foot Ball Club had another practice match yesterday afternoon, under the same leadership as the day before, playing according to the Association Rules. Several games were played, with much spirit and with more satisfaction than the Rugby game. Mr. Rogers' team won three games.

The Fire Brigade.

Yesterday a committee of gentlemen from Omemee visited Peterborough to inspect the Fire Brigade apparatus with a view of organizing a brigade at that place. They have a company using a hand engine, and now they propose to add a hook and ladder truck. They were well pleased with the Peterborough fire apparatus and returned home gratified with their visit.

Catch the Fall Trade.

The merchant who is wise should advertise at all times, more particularly before the harvest seasons is fully closed. The farmer during the harvest season has little in the way of news save when he gets it in the newspaper, and the local news sheets get well read at the close of a hard day's work. Advertise now, and catch the fall trade at an early tide. Don't wait until your opponents have taken the wind out of your sails by their announcements. Advertise early and advertise often.

The Excursion to Midland.

Nearly two hundred excursionists left Peterborough for Midland by the 6.45 train this morning. There would have been a greater number, but the morning was cold and the excursion cars could afford little protection against the cold biting September wind, which would be encountered all the way. The day has turned out a lovely one, and no doubt those who did take courage to try the trip will return only to express themselves as highly pleased with the results.

Harvest Home Festival.

The first services of this kind in Peterborough or vicinity, are announced to take place in St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, on Friday next. There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 10 a. m., and evening, and sermon at 7.30 p. m., the preacher to be the Rev. W. E. Cooper, Trinity School, Port Hope. The church will be neatly decorated on the occasion, with fruit, flowers, grain, etc., and the service in view of the late abundant harvest, will it is hoped, be more than usually interesting and fully attended, not only by our country friends but civilians also. The collections are to be handed over to the Organ Fund—an excellent object.

Handsome Shoes.

W. J. Larmour has just received large additions to his already fine stock of boots and shoes. Among the new goods are some fine French Kid ladies', misses', and childrens' button boots, of a quality never before exhibited in Peterborough. Ladies' and misses' French skating boots. Ladies' Pompadore heel walking boots and shoes. Gentlemen's French Kid dress boots and shoes. "Compliments of the season" French doeskin slippers. The above named fine goods have never before been risked in this market, and Mr. Larmour deserves credit for showing such handsome work. Ladies will very soon discover that they can obtain these handsome goods fully as cheap as any they have been accustomed to wear.

Mechanics' Institute Association.

Among the officers elected for this year at the present meeting of the Mechanics' Institute Association we find the name of the Rev. V. Clementi, as one of the Executive Committee.

The Shanties.

A large number of men left here this morning for the shanties. Lumbering operations in our back country will be extensive this winter, as the market for lumber at present looks more favorable than for years past.

A Pleasing Sight.

A procession in honor of Hymen passed up our main street this afternoon. The happy looking bride and satisfied groom were followed by a large body of friends in making the grand tour of our streets. Old sol himself shone out in sudden brightness, an auspicious omen to the new made couple. Such is the benign effect of the National Policy.

St. George's Societies.

At the last annual convention of the North American St. George's Union, held at Bridgeport, Conn., on the 9th, 10th, and 11th inst., the constitution of the Union was changed, so far as relates to the subscriptions of Affiliated Societies, by making the act of Affiliation to consist of a subscription of five dollars to the funds of the Union.

The Wheat Market.

The wheat market has been lively this week thus far, and this bids fair to be continued for some days to come. The receipts yesterday were 3,500 bushels, and about 3,000 to-day. It is thought that the week will foot up heavier receipts than any week for years. The ruling figure has been $1.00, although a higher price was paid for one or two lots, owing to some little skirmishing among the buyers.

A SAD CATASTROPHE.

A Young Lady Drowned by a Canoe Upsetting Near Lakefield.

Late last evening the sad news came from Lakefield that Miss Clara Strickland, eldest daughter of Mr. George Strickland, had been drowned in Lake Katchewanuk, and that Mr. Eugene Clementi-Smith, who was paddling her in a canoe, though he had been taken out alive, was in great danger.

It was reported that the canoe had been sunk by the waves of a passing steamer, but owing to Mr. Clementi-Smith remaining for many hours in an unconscious state, the facts of the case could not be ascertained.

It is said that he supported his ill-fated companion till her life was extinct, and he himself was picked up insensible, after he had been in the water it is supposed for two hours. It was not till late this morning that he was considered to be out of danger.

Search is being made for the body of Miss Strickland, which had not been found when we last heard.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

A MISSION FROM THE AMEER.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—A despatch from Simla states that a special mission from the Ameer is now on its way to the Indian frontier to seek an interview with Lord Lytton. The object of this movement is believed to be to induce the latter to abandon the advance on Cabul. In view of the doubts entertained of the Ameer's loyalty to the British this mission is viewed with distrust, and the opinion is openly expressed by the commanders of the English forces and others, that it only can be explained upon the theory that Yakoob Khan is in secret league with Russia, and is thus seeking to gain time. The mission has already arrived at Ali Kheyl en route to the present headquarters of the Viceroy. The feelings among the English troops is strongly against granting any concession of the kind which will probably be demanded by the Ameer.

By Telegraph to the Review.

FORCES ADVANCING.

SIMLA, Sept. 24.—General Baker, commanding a brigade of infantry, will probably start on the route from [illegible] to Cabul to-day. Resistance is expected. The force under General Roberts, of [illegible] men, is now supplied with transportation, and is ready to move on Cabul by the Logar Valley. The main body, under General [illegible], numbering [illegible], will advance immediately. [illegible] will be supported by a reserve of [illegible] men under Generals S. Gordon and Gough, holding the Kuram Valley, and maintaining the communication between the advancing forces and north-western India.

[illegible] of all kinds, fresh from the Rochester gardens received daily, cheap at the "Rose" Fruit Store. J. H. Bailey & Co. 161

Commercial.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 24.—The market this morning was better attended by the farmers than on any previous Wednesday this season. There were, however, fewer townspeople, and the market was not so lively as might have been expected. Apples were again plenty, but prices ruled at 50 @ 60 cents per bag. Some very choice apples brought 80 cents. Plums are becoming scarce. Some fine ones were offered at 50 cents per pail, while some large blues sold at 5 @ 8 cents per quart. Cranberries are getting plentiful, at 6 @ 10 cents, the high-bush bringing the higher price. Grapes are not plentiful; one fine lot of "Clintons," for jellying, sold at 50 cents per pail. Potatoes were in light supply, with no change in prices to note. Onions in fair supply, yellows selling at $1.50, reds at $1; some lots were offered at 80 cents. Tomatoes have not ripened well for the past two or three days, and were scarce, selling at 60 cents per bushel. Cabbages are very fine, and large heads were sold at 7 cents. Smaller ones were sold at 5 cents per head. Chickens—no change to note. Ducks, tame, at 30 @ 40 cents. Some very fine ones were held at 50 cents per pair. Black Ducks at Chamberlain's, the finest and largest this season, at 50 cents per pair; some smaller ones at 40 cents. Butter and eggs, no change. Cheese—no home-made in; factory is selling at 6 @ 7½ cents. Hay is coming in slowly. No change in price to note.

A Generous Monarch.

The Sheik-ul-Islam does his best to make a disagreeable business look pleasant. In his "Fetwa" to his fellow countrymen and fellow religionists in Thessaly, apoligizing for the approaching concession of a portion of the Turkish dominions to the Greek Kingdom, the highest ecclesiastical functionary of Islam expressed himself as follows:—"An ancient and small State in our immediate neighborhood has during this late critical times lived beside us in peace and concord. Since the Almighty commands His faithful servants to give alms, especially to the deserving, our sublime ruler, the Padishah, penetrated by a desire to conform to the Divine law of kindness, has condescended to tear off a little slice of the enormous Empire of the Ottomans, and bestow it upon the above mentioned deserving little nation of the Greeks, in order that they may continue in that peaceable mind which they observed during the recent troublesome times, and also may be the better able to enjoy their earthly existence."

The best remedy in the world for children is
Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This preparation stands peerless as a remedy for all summer complaints. Have you diarrhoea? It will positively cure you. Have you cholera morbus? It will positively cure you. Have you colic or cramps in the stomach? It will positively cure you. Is your stomach sour? It will positively cure you. Are you going on a sea voyage? Be sure and take a bottle of the Strawberry in your haversack, for use in sea-sickness, vomiting, and other irritations of the stomach and bowels; it will positively cure you. Every one speaks highly of it. "I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—G. W. EARL, St. Catharines. "I would advise any one suffering from summer complaints to give Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry a fair trial."—CARMAN M. GOULD, M. D., Castleton. "Dr. Fowler's extract of Wild Strawberry gives perfect satisfaction."—THOMAS DOUGLAS, Cambray. "I can recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with confidence."—Judge S. S. PECK, Minden. "My customers bear high testimony to the virtues of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—T. STEVENSON, Orangeville. For sale by all dealers. See advertisement in another column. w29-d70-2w

The Magneticon

THE CELEBRATED

English Magnetic Appliances

For the Cure of Disease.

THESE APPLIANCES are at once a direct assistance and safeguard, as they not only possess strong curative properties, but are also a most valuable preventive; by their invigorating and vitalizing influence constantly averting much of the liability to disease or suffering, and daily adding to the strength and vigor of the constitution. Thus, the various appliances may be used with immediate and permanent benefit by the strongest man, or the most delicate invalid or child. They comprise

Throat and Lung Invigorators

For all diseases and weaknesses of the Throat and Lungs, and affections of the Chest generally.

Ladies' and Gents' Belts.

For any general weakness of the Constitution; Indigestion and all other difficulties of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, etc., Lumbago or Weak Back, Internal weakness of any kind, Constipation, Physical or Nervous Exhaustion, etc., etc.

The Ladies' Support and Accouchment Belts are of incalculable benefit, averting the Nervous prostration from which thousands of ladies suffer so intensely. The use of these Belts is more particularly referred to by correspondence or consultation.

Spine Bands.

For Spinal Weakness or Injury, Neuralgia, and all Nervous affections, Sleeplessness, Paralysis, Headache etc.

Knee Caps, Anklets, Wristlets, Soles, and various other Appliances.

For Rheumatism of any kind, in any part of the body or limbs, Cramps, Numbness, or nervous Sensations in the Hands, Wrists, etc., Weakness of any of the Joints, either from Injury or from Constitutional causes; Defective Circulation, causing Coldness of Hands and Feet, Chilblains, etc., and for any part of the body where there is any Functional or Nervous derangement, or want of vigorous healthy action.

Price from $1 to $10. Consultations Free.

The Magneticon appliances are manufactured only by Messrs. Wetton & Co., of London and Cheltenham, England; Edinburgh and Glasgow, Scotland; Dublin, Ireland; and Toronto, Canada.

Illustrated Pamphlets, containing Price Lists, Testimonials and all information are supplied free on application, or sent by post to any address. The appliances are also sent by Post or Express, to any address, on receipt of price.

THE CHAMPION'S DEPARTURE.—Hanlan left in good spirits by the morning train for Chautauqua Lake taking with him the Louise, Toronto and Dufferin shells. He was accompanied by Mr. Coulson, of Montreal, who will advise him in his business, and Adair, a boat builder and sculler of local repute will accompany him ashore and afloat and attend to his equipment.

WINNIPEG.

THE MENNONITES.—The Times emphatically contradicts on the authority of the immigration agent at Winnipeg, the recent editorial statement of the Pioneer Press that a Mennonite Bishop had written to the St. Paul and Sioux City Railroad Company, declaring that he was induced to come to Manitoba by misrepresentations, and would visit Minnesota to select a new location for a settlement. One hundred and forty Mennonite families removed this fall from the Rat River reserve to the Pembina Mountain reserve, but they have no intention or wish to leave Manitoba.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The Chamber of Commerce has collected thus far $7,800 for the Memphis sufferers.

A Youthful Murderer.

Willie Anderson was one of the brightest and most popular boys in Waynesville, Ohio. He worked in a printing office, went regular to Sunday School, and had no pernicious habits, except that of reading an inflammatory class of fiction. The romances of robbers particularly interested him, and he talked a great deal with his companions about the wonderful adventures that he found described in dime novels and boys' story papers. He lived with his mother, aunt, and cousin, the latter being a little girl, of whom he was very fond. It is now remembered that she was the heroine of his youthful imagination. One day Willie asked his employer to let him sleep in the shop for a week, saying that his house was crowded with visitors. Permission was readily given, and he did not for a week go home at all. The house had during that time been closed, and the neighbors conjectured that the family had gone away on a visit; but they finally entered and found the dead bodies of Mrs. Anderson, her sister and niece. They had been killed with a hatchet as they lay asleep. Willie fled immediately; but he had no money, and was put off a railroad train at Plainville, where he comitted suicide with a pistol. Mrs. Anderson's husband, from whom she had been parted for many years before her death, is under arrest, but there is only a vague suspicion against him, and nobody doubts that Willie was the murderer. A motive can hardly be conjectured, and it may be that he was incited only by bad literature.

The North-Western Grand Trunk.

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 24.—The formal transfer of the Chicago and North-Eastern railroad to the Grand Trunk Railway Company was completed at the Lansing House yesterday. The old Board of Directors resigned, and a new Board for the North-Western Grand Trunk was organized as follows:—Joseph Hickson and S. E. Sargent, of Montreal; Jas. McMillan and E. W. Meddaugh, of Detroit, and James M. Turner, of Lansing. Officers were also elected as follows:—Joseph Hickson, President; Chas. Percy, Secretary and Treasurer; Mr. James, Chief Engineer.

AN EXTENSIVE STRIKE.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The workmen at Conset Jarrow, Stockton and Hartlepool have struck against the award of the arbitrator in the great dispute in the North England and Cleveland iron trade.

A DISASTROUS FIRE.

BELFAST, Sept. 24.—The stores of Devlin & Co., druggists, Mortimer & Sons, umbrella manufacturers, Gonigal & Mack, and Young & Anderson, wholesale warehouse men, have been burned. The loss is estimated at £80,000.

ORLEANISTS AND LEGITIMISTS.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—M. Herve, editor of the Soleil, and a leading Orleanist, declines to attend the banquet in honor of the Count De Chambord's birthday. This is regarded as an official declaration that the fusion of the Orleanists and Legitimists is ended.

ADMIRAL INGLEFIELD'S SUCCESSOR.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Vice-Admiral Sir Leopold McClintock has been definitely named as the officer who is to succeed Sir Edward Inglefield in the command of her Majesty's ships on the North American and West Indian Station. Sir Leopold is an old Arctic explorer, and a very popular officer in the branch of the service to which he belongs.

SPAIN AND MOROCCO.

MADRID, Sept. 24.—Intelligence has been received from Tangier that a Spanish war ship arrived there with important despatches for the Spanish Minister. It is generally believed that Spain claims $6,000,000 from Morocco for the use of the fishing grounds of Agadir, near Magador, which the Moors ceded to Spain, but which were never used by the Spaniards. It is said the Spanish Government fearing the accusation of negligence in the Cortes, desire to obtain some concession from the Moors before that body meets.

THE AUSTRO-GERMAN ALLIANCE.

LONDON, Sept. [illegible].—A despatch from Berlin states that Prince Bismarck is expected to return to that city from Vienna on Thursday. Among the provisions of the new Austro-German alliance completed in the conference between Prince Bismarck and Count Andrassy are the lowering of the railway rates and duties on merchandise passing between the two countries. These arrangements will go into effect on January 1st. The commercial side of the new alliance, which is all that has so far been authoritatively made public, is regarded with intense interest in St. Petersburg, as being the only outward and visible sign of a military and political combination of a character menacing to Russian designs on the map of Europe. The action of Prince Bismarck is commented upon in all circles in Berlin as being a bold and necessary check to the unbridled ambition of Russian diplomats.

JEWISH DISABILITIES.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—A Bucharest correspondent reports that the deputies have rejected a motion to disregard the provisions of the Treaty of Berlin relative to the emancipation of the Jews. They also rejected measures stipulating that the naturalization of the Jews be individual only. This leaves the field clear for the introduction of the Government project, which provides for the immediate enfranchisement of 1,200 Jews.

EMANCIPATING SLAVES.

MADRID, Sept. 24.—A telegram from Havana states that three stockholders, owners of four thousand, twelve hundred, and eight hundred slaves respectively, have emancipated them and contracted with them for their services for five years. Other slave holders intend following this example. The Spanish Government has decided to send 500 troops to Cuba. Several deputies have resolved to move in the Cortes for the immediate abolition of slavery in Cuba without indemnity to the slave owners.

SALE OF COAL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—The Delaware, Lackawana & Western Railway sold 100,000 tons of Scranton coal by auction to-day. The bidding lacked spirit, and prices fell off from 3 to 7 cents per ton from last month's sales.

CHILI AND PERU.

The following particulars have been received of the Huascar's bombardment of Autofogasta. The Huascar launched a new English torpedo against a Chilian transport, but after proceeding a short distance, it came directly back, and would have anihiliated the Huascar, but for a lieutenant, who jumped overboard and averted its course. Admiral Green has discarded the use of torpedoes. The Peruvian treasury is empty, and the Finance Minister, appalled by the difficulties of the situation, has resigned. Nobody is bold enough to take his place. The officers of the Banco Nacional have been arrested on the charge of over-issuing two-and-a-half million dollars of paper money.

A LUNATIC'S DEED.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 24.—At Stratford, this morning, the Rev. D. L. Lounsbery, rector of Christ Church, was shot dead by his wife as he lay asleep. She had been dreading an operation which her physician intended to perform. She is of very full habit, and subject to rushes of blood to the head. She remembers having an attack of that kind in the night, when deceased got her a drink of water, after which she recollects nothing until the deed was done. It is reported that there has been insanity in her family. The jury rendered a verdict that the deed was done during a temporary aberration of mind.

A SINGULAR SUIT.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 24.—The widow of Hugh McConville, murdered by Sherry and Conley, for which the latter was hanged, has begun a suit for $10,000 damages against the owner of the saloon where Sherry and Conley procured liquor, which got them intoxicated; against the owner of the building and agent who leased the premises. The building was occupied by Durand Bros, wholesale grocers.

THE FLOW OF GOLD.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The Collector at New York reports that from July 1st to Sept., 20th, the imports of specie at that port exceeded the exports by $26,306,314. The recent flow of precious metals towards the United States is more remarkable in view of the fact that during every year since 1861 there has been an excess of exports of specie from the United States over imports. Even as late as 1875, there was an excess of exports of specie over imports, amounting to $71,200,000.

STRANGE DEATH.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Barnard Musterman, a field hand at Canarsie, L. I., died yesterday morning after a continuous sleep of seven days, from which it was impossible to arouse him. Musterman fell asleep one evening while in apparent good health, after supper. Physicians disagree whether death was caused by a dose of morphine or paralysis of the brain from the immoderate use of acohol.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

THE ADVANCE ON CABUL.

The latest despatches from Simla bring intelligence that Gen. Roberts, commanding one of the English columns in Afghanistan, has completed his commissary and transport arrangements and that the advance on Cabul will commence without further delay. It is expected that Col. Baker will attack Kushi, a point about forty miles distant from Cabul to-day. No confidence is placed in the Ameer in connection with his Embassy to the viceroy and military preparations will go on without any regard to any action Yakoob Khan may take. The influence of Russia at Cabul is said to be becoming constantly more apparent.

CENTRAL EXHIBITION.

GLEANINGS FROM THE ENTRY BOOK.

In horses, as usual, a very large majority of the entries are in the road and carriage class, which numbers alone 110 out of the 158 horses entered, and of these 70 entries are for either saddle, single, or pairs of carriage horses, from all parts of the District, so that we may safely guarantee the lovers of horse flesh that on Wednesday and Thursday next there will be the finest display of horses ever seen in Peterborough.

In addition to local exhibitors in Durhams, Mr. Pratt, of Cobourg, will show eleven head. In Devons, Mr. Jos. Walton will have to contend with Mr. Gray, of Garden Hill and Mr. Courtice, of Bowmanville.

In Ayrshires the display will be very large, Mr. Foott, of Port Hope, contributing 11 head, while Mr. Guy, of Oshawa, who carried off no less than nine prizes in this class at Toronto the other day, contributes 13, while about home Mr. Ludgate and a number of others are competitors. Grades too will be well represented both from a distance and from about home.

In sheep, the entries are numerous, and the exhibition promises to be a fair representation of the stock of the whole district as the exhibitors hail from all parts thereof. In pigs, as usual, the competitors nearly all belong to the "small" breeds. It is somewhat strange, but nevertheless true, that our pigs always belong to the "small" breeds about show time, whatever they may be at other times. In the present instance only three gentlemen own "large" pigs. Last, but by no means least among the live stock, comes poultry. The entries being numerous. Of one thing we are certain, namely, that the judges are to be pitied. No better proof could be afforded of the excellent quality of the white fall wheat that has just been reaped, than that no less than twenty-six people believe their own to be the best that ever grew. In this case the judges will be somewhat in the position of the young man who would have been happy were either dear charmer away—as they might be happy were twenty-five of these twenty-six bags left at home. And the judges of butter and bread will be in much the same position before they taste some thirty-nine samples several times and decide upon the relative merits of fifteen lots of bread. Of fruit, we shall not say more than that the entries are numerous, and meekly hint that the exhibitors might do worse than remember the Printer's D——l when the show is over. Whatever the judges may do, we will guarantee that he will vote the exhibitors who remember him a first prize. Of the articles entered in the remaining classes it is impossible for us to say more than that the entries are numerous, and that the names and localities of the exhibitors are such as to give us reason to believe that the variety and taste displayed in these departments will be such as to improve and gratify those who are more particularly interested therein.

TRAVELLING ARRANGEMENTS.

The Midland, Whitby, Port Perry and Lindsay Railway companies, have issued hand-bills, informing the public that they will issue tickets from every station on their lines, by all trains to Peterborough, during the whole exhibition week, good to return up to Saturday the 4th of October, at a single fare, and also on Wednesday, the 1st of October, return tickets, good for that day only, at the following low rates, viz:—From Lindsay and Reaboro, $1.00; Port Hope 80 cents; Omemee, 75 cents; Quay's, 70 cents; Perrytown, 65 cents; Garden Hill and Franklin, 60 cents; Bethany, 50 cents; Summit, 40 cents; Millbrook and Lakefield, 30 cents; and Fraserville, 20 cents; and for the special convenience of the Lakefield people, the train arriving at Peterborough from Port Hope, at 10.15 p. m., on Wednesday evening, will proceed to Lakefield.

On Rice lake and the river, the steamers Golden-Eye and King-Fisher will, during the exhibition week, leave Hastings every morning at 7 a.m. for Peterborough, calling at Cameron's Point at 7.30, Robin's Landing at 8.00, Idyl Wild 8.30, Harwood, (where they will connect with train from Cobourg) at 9.00, and Campbelltown at 10 a. m. Returning, they will leave Peterborough at 2 p. m. The fare for return tickets to and from Peterborough, good to return up to and on Monday the 6th October, will be as follows:—Cobourg, (including R. R. fare) and Hastings, $1.00; Cameron's Point, 90 cents; Robin's Landing, 75 cents; Idyl Wild, 60 cents; Harwood, 60 cents; and Campbelltown 40 cents.

THE PROGRAMME.

TUESDAY.—By the rules it is required that everything except live stock shall be on the ground by 1 o'clock p.m. During the afternoon the arrangements of the articles will be completed and the judges will be discharging their duties. In the evening the Exhibition in the Drill Shed will be open to the public from 7 to 10 o'clock. The Firemen's band being present.

WEDNESDAY.—The stock will require to be all on the ground by 10 o'clock a.m. So that the judges in these departments may proceed with their duties. The Exhibition will be open from 9 a.m., to 10 p.m., this day to the public. The Firemen's band will be present during the afternoon and evening. The judges will probably reach the carriage horses during the afternoon.

THURSDAY.—The work of the judges will be completed. The Exhibition will be again open from 9 a.m., to 10 p.m., when it will be finally closed to the public. The band will be present during the whole of this day.

FRIDAY.—Exhibitors will be at liberty to remove their animals or articles.

THE GREAT IRISH PILGRIMAGE is to Lough Derg Island. The penitential exercises are very severe, and repeated thrice a day, and the pilgrims spent the night in what is known as "the prison." When morning has fairly dawned they leave the prison, and wash head and feet in the lake, and are allowed to take a little water in the hollow of the hand. This refreshment is stated to be much needed, in view of the heat of the prison, watching all night and reciting so many prayers. Formerly in the night an exhortation was given on the great truth of eternity, but the cries of the contrite disturbed the neighborhood so sorely that the practice was abandoned. The priests hear confessions all day and all night.

THE MARKETS.

During the past week there has been a steady advance in the price of almost everything the farmer has to sell. The deliveries of grain in the Peterborough market this week have been large—larger than on the street market in Toronto, and were about 2,000 bushels on Monday; 3,500 on Tuesday; 4,000 on Wednesday, and to-day about 3,000 bushels. Or, in four days about 12,500 bushels, and the price paid therefor ranged steady at $1.00 per bushel, with a cent or two over this occasionally, no difference being made in prices between spring and fall.

In Liverpool, the great centre of the grain market at the present time, the prices have steadily advanced with considerable excitement—among dealers—until to-day, when prices seem to have remained stationary.

The following table shows the top prices of the different kinds of produce in the Liverpool markets for each day during this week and last Saturday. To-day's (Thursday) quotations being obtained by special cable to the REVIEW:—

	Sat.		Mon.		Tue.		Wed.		Thur.
	s.	d.	s.	d.	s.	d.	s.	d.	s.	d.
Flour	12	0	12	0	12	6	12	6	12	6
Spring Wheat	9	4	9	4	9	6	9	8	9	8
Red Winter	9	10	9	10	10	4	10	5	10	6
White	9	9	9	9	10	3	10	5	10	5
Club	10	3	10	3	10	6	10	9	10	3
Corn	5	1	5	1	5	6	5	8	5	8
Oats	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6	6
Barley	5	3	5	3	5	3	5	3	5	3
Peas	6	11	6	11	6	11	6	11	6	4
Pork	47	6	47	6	47	6	47	6	47	6
Lard	32	6	33	0	33	3	33	3	33	0
Beef	00	0	00	0	00	0	00	0	00	0
Bacon	20	0	29	6	30	6	30	6	30	6
Tallow	32	9	32	9	32	9	32	9	32	9
Cheese	43	0	48	0	48	0	48	0	50	0

While it is evident that at least renumerative prices will be obtained, it may not be amiss to point out to both sellers and dealers, that there are some circumstances of a temporary nature which are contributing (how far we are not prepared to say), to the present excitement and the steady advance of the week. For instance, owing to the lateness of the harvest in the Old Country, the present demand there for consumption has to be supplied altogether from importations, thereby increasing the immediate demand for foreign grain to an extent which must of a necessity proportionately increase the home supply as soon as it is ready for market, and thereby tend to depress the market at a future period. Then, as everybody knows, freights must soon begin to advance, necessitating a decline here unless prices advance proportionately at home.

In cheese it will be seen an advance from forty-three shillings on Saturday to fifty to-day has been established, and the Globe reports a sale of September make at 12 cents. When we remember that the June make was slow of sale at 5 cents, the rapidity of the advance will be appreciated. Of course sellers would very much like to know how long this state of affairs is going to continue, but as that is beyond the knowledge of man, we shall not hazard an opinion further than to say that if we held stocks of produce we should feel very much inclined to sell, believing that the prices are good, and that a bird in hand is worth two in the bush—especially if one is in debt.

Below, will be found not only the latest quotations of our local Market, but those of Liverpool, Montreal, Toronto and Chicago for to-day, and from which the reader can draw his own conclusions quite as well as ourselves.

BELGIUM WANTS CANADIAN CATTLE.

We have several times of late adverted to the growing trade between this port and the Continent of Europe, and the importance of our merchants extending it as much as possible. Already a grain business has been opened with Antwerp, Rotterdam and Bordeaux, and now it looks as though a profitable trade in live stock between here and Belgium was about to be inaugurated. Mr. Jules Bernard, who recently arrived in this city from France, is trying to engage vessel room for cattle from this city to Antwerp, and if he succeeds he will ship at once 500 head. Our fat steers and heifers are well known and liked in the Belgium markets through being re-shipped there from Great Britain, and Mr. Bernard now intends to import them direct from Canada, providing he can make satisfactory arrangements for their transportation. It is unfortunate that we possess no direct steamship communication between here and the Continent, as it is the opinion of many of our merchants that such an enterprise would pay handsomely just now, when Canadian products of all kinds are becoming more widely known and appreciated in different European countries. We wish Mr. Bernard every success in his undertaking, and hope that it will not be allowed to fall through for want of sufficient shipping facilities.—Montreal Gazette.

The Queen and the Herd Laddie.

One day some years ago, when Her Majesty was standing on the public road near Balmoral, sketching the castle from a particular point, a flock of sheep approached. Her Majesty, being intent on her work, took little notice of the flock, and merely moved a little nearer the side of the road. A boy in charge of the sheep shouted at the top of a stentorian voice, "Stan' oot o' the road, 'oman, and let the sheep gae by!" Her Majesty not moving out of the way quite so fast as the shepherd wished, he again shouted, "Fat are ye stan'in there for? Gang oot o' that, and lat the sheep pass?" One of Her Majesty's attendants, who had been at a distance, on hearing his royal mistress thus rudely assailed, went to the shepherd, and thus addressed him, "Do you know who it is you have been speaking so rudely to, boy?" "Na—I neither ken nor care; but, be she fa' she likes, she sudna be i' the sheep's road." "That's the Queen," said the official. The boy looked astonished, and, after recovering his senses, said, with great simplicity, "The Queen! Od, fat way disna she pit on claes that fouk can ken her?"

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This preparation stands peerless as a remedy for all summer complaints. Have you diarrhoea? It will positively cure you. Have you cholera morbus? It will positively cure you. Have you colic or cramps in the stomach? It will positively cure you. Is your stomach sour? It will positively cure you. Are you going on a sea voyage? Be sure and take a bottle of the Strawberry in your haversack, for use in sea-sickness, vomiting, and other irritations of the stomach and bowels; it will positively cure you. Every one speaks highly of it. "I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—G. W. [illegible], St. Catharines. "I would advise any one suffering from summer complaints to give Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry a fair trial."—CARMAN M. GOULD, M. D., Castleton. "Dr. Fowler's extract of Wild Strawberry gives perfect satisfaction."—THOMAS DOUGLAS, [illegible]. "I can recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with confidence."—Judge S. S. PECK, Minden. "My customers bear high testimony to the virtues of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—T. STEVENSON, Orangeville. For sale by all dealers. See advertisement in another column. w29-470-2w

Sentenced for a Murder Never Committed.

About eighteen years ago, a convict named Brady, who had nearly completed a term of imprisonment for a small burglary, attempted with several others to escape from Dannemora Prison, in New York State; one of the party killed keeper Wright; all of the men were captured, tried, and, although Sewell, the man who struck the fatal blow, manfully admitted and insisted that he alone killed Wright, two besides himself were condemned to death on the evidence of three convicts, afterwards pardoned, who had attempted to escape with the others, but lost heart and remained behind. The prisoners were even denied the right of challenging the jurors before whom they were tried. Incredible as it may seem, the law at that time was so worded that Brady for ten years suffered the cruel agony of anticipating daily a death warrant, which the governor alone could sign. Besides this torture, a thousand times worse than death, the wretched man wore for five years a ball and chain, which lamed him for life, and has served seventeen years at hard labour since convicted. No one appears to believe Brady guilty; the prison warden, the principal keeper, the physician and the chaplain all believe he should be pardoned. Hundreds of the best citizens of Plattsburg, the largest town in the vicinity of the prison, and naturally the last place to give escaping convicts even indirect encouragement, have signed a petition for his pardon.—New York Herald.

Worth its Weight in Gold.

When we hear anybody say that such and such a thing is worth its weight in gold we think they are indulging in hyperbole, and pass the matter with a smile. But numbers of invalids who have once partaken of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL in combination with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA say they would not be without it for any consideration. And no wonder for in all cases of General Debility or Chronic Coughs, in fact, any pulmonary complaint and consumption it is worth its weight in gold. d53-w35-1d

Notice to Contractors.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the Secretary of Public Works, and endorsed "Tenders for Canal and Lock at St. Anne," will be received at this office until the arrival of the Eastern and Western mails on FRIDAY THE 10th DAY OF OCTOBER next, for the construction of a Lock and the formation of approaches to it on the landward side of the present lock at St. Anne.

A map of the locality, together with plans and specifications of the works to be done, can be seen at this office and at the Resident Engineer's office, at St. Anne, on and after SATURDAY THE [illegible] DAY OF SEPTEMBER next, at either of which places printed forms of Tender can be obtained.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and—in the case of firms, except there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation and residence of each member of the same; and further, an accepted Bank cheque for the sum of $[illegible] must accompany the tender, which sum shall be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the works at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

For the due fulfilment of the contract, satisfactory security will be required by the deposit of money to the amount of five per cent. on the bulk sum of the contract; of which the sum sent in with the Tender will be considered a part.

Ninety per cent only of the progress estimates will be paid until the completion of the work.

To each Tender must be attached the actual signatures of two responsible and solvent persons, residents of the Dominion, willing to become sureties for the carrying out of these conditions, as well as the due performance of the works embraced in the contract.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
F. BRAUN,
Secretary.

Humbug Exposed

Welcome News!

IT having come to our knowledge that certain travellers for Paper Bags have been offering to sell to Peterborough merchants at various percentages lower than our quotations, in the hope of damaging our business in this Department, we have determined to make the following

STANDING OFFER

NAMELY:—

We will sell our Paper Bags CHEAPER than the very best bona fide offer made to any Merchant in Peterborough, FREE of Freight or other Charges.

Our trade in Paper Bags and Wrapping Papers has gradually grown to an extent which has made it hardly worth the while for travellers to come to Peterborough. And the result has been to make them jealous of our success and annoyed at their loss of sales.

Retain your future orders for us. We are bound to "Hold the Fort!"

THE KIDNAPPED!

THE SCENE: is Unchanged, except for the Worse. Gloom and Despair sit on the Countenances of the Kidnapped. Life is Becoming Unbearable. Starvation Stares them in the Face. The Captors grow more Insolent, though there is a Falling Off in their Demands. Gradually Matters are compromised, after much Mutual Recrimination and the Confession of their Sins by the Kidnapped. The Victims leave the Cave more Dead than Alive!

HUNT: Such a night as the one we have just passed! This life is undurable. And yet—I count my physical sufferings as nothing in the presence of the great crime committed against the country by our incarceration. As patriots, our first thoughs should always be given to our country. When I made my great copper discovery, do you suppose I considered as of any weight the merely personal advantages I was to gain? Nothing of the sort. As I gazed upon the "find" and later upon the British gold to which it led up, the first impulse was to thank Heaven for placing in my power the wherewithall to battle for my country and purify the politics of Canada from the abounding corruption into which John A. and his crowd had plunged it. I saw this country poor and I enriched it—that is, I enriched a part of it, myself being that part. I saw it corrupt and I sent fourth streams of purity to heal it and fertilize it—

BROWN: Wha's your opeenion o' thir bone dust for toornips?

ELDER: I can answer that. I have just been peursing a Manual of Agriculture from which I gather that a small portion of bone dust applied to the bulk of the turnip before planting is sure death to cockroaches. Harrow at discretion. One of the best authorities on the subject, to wit, Joseph Miller—

BROWN: Aye, just wha' I expectit. Thir bulk fairmin is a gran' business. I wonner' an' oor bones will be better for cawbages nor toornips?

SMITH: Shocking! Don't mention it! It's a hateful subject. Immured in this villainous place, and the Lord knows what happening at Dorchester Corner this blessed minute! Events may be in progress there to shake the earth to its centre; and we completely in the dark.

ANNAND:—The same in Halifax. If I were there the earth might be kept balanced, but there's no telling even now what may be happening.—Speaking of bone dust reminds me of an experiment I tried once with it on a farm of 50,000 acres I have on Mount Uniacke. It was applied to beets and they grew so deep in the soil that each separate beet had to be hauled out with a yoke of oxen. Fact! We had twenty acres of them.

ELDER (Crossing his legs): This is insufferable. Such people should be stamped out? I don't mind an evasion or an equivocation that carries an opponent off on a false scent, but downright fibs are a crime against the æsthetic in our nature. What sense in retailing, where all are friends together, such utter absurdities?

ANNAND: You don't believe it? Well there are not less than three gentlemen in my office will endorse every word I say.

SIMPSON: Speaking of endorsements reminds me of the fact that the financial situation in which we are situated is a situation not to be envied by people more fortunately situated. We have got to pay up and get out, or surrender ourselves to die. What shall it be?

BROWN: Will ye no come down handsomely, Maister Simpson, just for the nonce, and gie us free o' the scoondrels?

1ST KIDNAPPER: Gentlemen, the time is shortening up. We have other business to attend to—can't be detained here many hours longer. Shall you go or shall we seal you up?

SMITH: How? Seal us up?

2ND KID: Close up the door way. Fill up the entrance. Leave yer to perish. Yer money or yer life, ye know.

HUNT: Scoundrels, work your wills!

BROWN: An' wul ye no come back again?

1ST KID: We shall retire for a while and leave you to think over the matter. Be back in two hours for your answer.

2ND KID: And if you're not agreed then, so much the worse for you.

(They retire after fastening the door in a very thorough manner.)

ELDER: Something must be done. There men must be conciliated or they will work us mischief. They are reckless and desperate, and mean just what they say. They have bad eyes, and one has a wart on his nose. I never like men with warts—Faugh! There's a toad! To thing of our being shut up with toads, and, perhaps, may be food for worms!

SMITH: Lord! Lord! How you distress me!

ELDER—And then to think of our families, and our principles all going to ruin, and the distress there must be throughout the land.

SMITH—True—too true.

ELDER—The great interests that centre in us, as Henry Ward Beecher said—the scandal that our absence creates, the ugly things that may be said of us by our enemies when they think we are gone for good.

SMITH—That is so—I did not think of that.

ELDER—And then, if we get out, the satisfaction it will be to us to be able to come forward and confront our opponents and charge home upon them for this outrage on the liberty of the subject.

SMITH—You are right. It would give us a great advantage politically—I didn't know but what I might agree to give the rascals $50 apiece to release us!

ALL—Fifty dollars!

SMITH—Is it too much? Then say forty.

HUNT—Why they demand thirty thousand for the lot, and are not likely to come down. They know they have us where the wool is short, to use a vulgarism.

SMITH—I won't go a cent over fifty dollars.

ELDER—Then we may as well resign ourselves to our fate at once. I had hopes that the Knight would consent to save our lives and his own, but there is no chance of this now—no chance whatever. Our situation is truly deplorable. If we were prepared to die it might not be so bad, but we have a good deal to answer for, as all know.

HUNT—I can't do anything—my money's all in the States.

ANNAND—And my fortune is all locked up in real estate and mortgages and bets on boat races.

SIMPSON—And the Bank of Ontario can't come down handsomely any more.

BROWN—And I'll no pay a cent—I'll dee first. I defy them to the last breathe!

ELDER—That's all very fine—but I'm not prepared for the last breath—nor are you—or you. We all have sins to be forgiven, and we should confess them—unto one another, of course, which was the Apostolic fashion. This was the custom in the Early Churches. The Fathers taught it. Eusebius says——

SIMPSON—The important thing just now is what these kidnappers will say when they return and find themselves no nearer ransom money than before.

ELDER—All we can do is to prepare for the worst. I confess——

ANNAND: That's right. Let's all confess. I confess that I' the greatest sinner in the crowd. I'm the wickedest man on the Continent. My paper is the wickedest paper in all creation and we have the wickedest staff, although no man works for me under $5,000 a year. I confess that having such an enormous circulation the Chronicle has been instrumental in doing a power of evil, and that people have come to me with tears in their eyes and said that but for the Chronicle they would have grown up good men and women and died respectably and gone to heaven, whereas now——? I admit frankly I'm the greatest sinner here or elsewhere, and if I was in Halifax I'd bet two to one on it up to $20,000 and plank the money in five minutes! But [illegible], too—

ELDER: [illegible]

ANNAND: Well, you turned your coat pretty often. That's wrong, you know.

ELDER: Why, I only changed as the people changed. Can that be wrong? Can the people be wrong?

ANNAND: Well, you were on the eve of deserting the Mackenzie Government, too. That wasn't right, you know.

ELDER: Well, at worst the people. Things were very ticklish then, one time, and it was hard to say how matters would go, and eventually they did go so badly as to justify my first impressions. It is the part of prudence to be always on the alert and not allow events or politicians to anticipate you. Politicians at the best are ungrateful. They remember injuries. Mackenzie wasn't much improvement on the rest, and I would have been justified in deserting him.

ANNAND: And what would you have done then?

ELDER (crossing his legs). That's a difficult question. However, there were not less than three courses open. I could (1) have gone into active opposition and led up the Opposition Party in New Brunswick with Tilley, King, Palmer and Domville. Or, 2, maintained an independent position and criticized the acts of the Mackenzie Government impartially. Or, 3 while really opposed to Mackenzie, I could have remained in the Party and managed to trip them up occasionally, speaking for the Party, until the General Election came around, when I could have thrown off the mask and openly denounced them. Other courses might have suggested themselves as time wore on, but these three at least were open. There's nothing opposed to honest warfare in all this. Of course, the subject was one for prayerful consideration and not to be dealt with hastily.

ANNAND: Then you did consider the propriety of deserting?

ELDER: Well the people seemed to be moving that way.

ANNAND: But did you or not?

ELDER: If the popular wave was tending that way, I may have been impressed by it. The people are generally in the right.

ANNAND: That is no answer.

ELDER: Well political and newspaper agitations and movements are a good deal like your boat races. The other day, the boat at the turning buoy, as you are aware, was driven from her proper position. When it happened it was not observed, and no one knew exactly how it happened, but assumed it was the influence of the tide and wind. The race managers, of course, had to go to the spot and re-moor the boat. Well, moderate Party newspapers occasionally drift from their moorings in the same way under the influence, it is supposed of natural causes, and they need to be overhauled and re-moored from time to time. Besides Mr. Mackenzie never showed me any special favors, whatever the New Brunswick Ministers may have done.

ANNAND: I despise a turn coat!

ELDER: Then you despise a third of the people of the Dominion.

ANNAND: Do you mean to say there are over a million of turn coats in Canada? God forbid! But if there are, I despise them all. Now look at Elder's case. He supported Confederation and now goes back on it. He supported Free Schools, and is now hand in glove with those who fought against them. He supported John A. as long as John A. had power, then deserted to Mackenzie, and contemplated deserting back again. I hate turn coats—I hate them.

ELDER: There are precedents in history. There was Sir Robert Peel—

SIMPSON: I confess—

ANNAND: Simpson's going to confess. Our case is pretty bad when Simpson caves in.

SMITH: I must admit in this solemn moment that if I had my life to live over again—

SIMPSON: I confess—

ANNAND: Let's hear Smith first.

SMITH: I was about to remark that I have done many things which I regret. I oughtn't to have crowned Fisher on the Crown Land question, or deserted Tilley on the Inter-Colonial Railway, or opposed Confederation when it was likely to be so beneficial to my country. I oughtn't to have deserted John A. on the Pacific Scandal for the sake of the Marine and Fisheries Department. I oughtn't to have taken credit for everything Mitchell did in the Department in connection with the Fisheries Commission. I oughtn't to have bought the "Glendon." I oughtn't to have put faith in Hugh Davidson—

ELDER: I think I can produce precedents for similar acts on the part of statesman. Thus the United States trusted Benedict—no, that won't do. As regards statesmen changing their allegiance, it is a very ancient custom, dating from the time of the Romans. Seneca says—

BROWN: O'd rot auld Seneca! Let us ha'e peace wi' thir awncient Romans. I would we were weel oot o' this scrapie. I feel sick 'till the death. I'm no mysel'. I [illegible] I hadna opposit the National Poleecy just sae wicked. I hae given John A. many hard digs in you Globe which I am sorry for. Mon! Mon! How we fall when we are temptit o' the de'il which gangs around like a roarin' leein seeking ilka chiel to devoor him! It isna richt!—it isna richt! We maun act fair by John A., an' we get oot o' this awfu' place.

SIMPSON: These are Christian sentiments worthy of the Reform Party, and will be endorsed any day at the bank counter. And speaking of banks suggests the thought that if our banker here from Westmoreland is going to pull us through he had better be quick about it. It don't take long for a bank to go to smash in these times, and who can tell what may happen from day to day? What says the Knight?

SMITH: I confess——

ANNAND: Blessed day! There's nothing but confessions to-day!

SMITH: I admit the gravity of our circumstances, and am willing to advance $50 apiece, if that will do.

HUNT: What a price to set upon our heads! Why not make it the thirty pieces of silver at once?—Now, by the Goddess of Liberty, we are cheapened to the lowest point. This is the unkindest cut of all. If I am not worth more than fifty dollars, cut me up for fox bait. Or skin me, tan my hide and make for your children [illegible]. Or throw me into Lake Ontario, and sink me with leads that I may be food for eels. Or nail me up over some farmer's barn door for a scare-crow. Do anything but ransom me for fifty dollars!

ELDER: Well, fifty dollars is a good deal of money these times, especially if you haven't got it.

SMITH: It's a pile of money I tell you! It's just more money than all here, put together, can command at this moment. And that's what's the matter.

Here the kidnappers returned, before their time was up, and quite flurried. They had sounded the market and found that the disappearance of the six worthy people had not produced the smallest sensation; nobody was enquiring for them, and the hope of securing a ransom might not be realized to the smallest extent. The information decided them to secure what they could, and when Smith offered to find them $50 a piece, or $300 in all, they jumped at the prospect of obtaining even so small a sum. The check was written, and one of the kidnappers left the Cave to get it cashed. On his return the Kidnapped ones were first blindfolded and then placed in a coach and driven to a lane in the outskirts of the city; and the fastenings of one of [illegible] being loosed they were left to work their way to freedom and perfect liberty. Huntington never got over the shock of being ransomed for so small a price, and his friends had difficulty in persuading him to leave the Cave at all. Most of them were satisfied they had been victims of political animosity and are likely to continue in the belief for the remainder of their lives.—St. John, N. B., Sun.

THE

Great Cause of Human Misery

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' succesful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife: pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

ADDRESS,—

THE SOLARGRAPH WATCH!

ONLY $1.00

A perfect Time-keeper, Hunting-Case, and HEAVY PLATED CHAIN, latest style. We warrant it for five years to denote time as accurately as a $100 Chronometer Watch, and will give the exact time in any part of the world. It also contains a FIRST-CLASS COMPASS, worth alone the price we charge for the Time-keeper. For Men, Boys, Mechanics, School Teachers, Travellers, and Farmers it is indispensible. They are as good as a high-priced watch, and in many cases more reliable. Boys, think of it! A Hunting-Case Watch and Chain for $1.00. The SOLARGRAPH WATCH is used by the Principal of the Somerville High School, and is being fast introduced into all the schools through the United States, and is destined to become the most useful Time-keeper ever invented. The SOLAGRAPH WATCH received a Medal at the Mechanics' Fair, at Boston, in 1878.

This is no toy, but is made on scientific principals, and every one warranted to be accurate and reliable. We have made the price very low simply to introduce them at once, after which the price will be raised.

The SOLOGRAPH WATCH AND CHAIN is put up in a neat outside case, and sent by mail to any address for $1.00. We have made the price so low, please send two stamps if convenient to help pay postage. Address plainly,

POLICE COURT

PUBLIC NUISANCE.

THURSDAY, Sep. 25.—At the Police Court this morning a charge was laid by Mr. McDonald, residing on Queen street, against Mr. George Dunsford, complaining of a public nuisance caused by opening a drain from the premises occupied by Mr. A. P. Morgan. The complainant's testimony went to show that dirty water, stable drainage and other offensive liquids were drained from the premises into and along the lane in the rear of his (McDonald's) premises, and further stated that this overflow upon the lane would not have occurred had not a drain been opened by the defendant. The defendant, in his cross-examination of the complainant, desired to bring out the fact that he has long tried to prevail upon the Mayor, Mr. McDonald and the other owners of property along the lane to join with him and have a sewer dug for drainage purposes. He had also applied to the Mayor, Health Inspector and Constable McGhee, who say that the town has no authority in the matter, as the lane is not a public thoroughfare. Some of the owners of the property claim that the lane is a public highway, and upon that ground refused to co-operate with the defendant.

Mr. A. P. MORGAN, proprietor of Morgan's Hotel, on Hunter street, was sworn for the defence, and stated that he had occupied the premises about four years. He found the place low and always wet, and had drained or tried to drain the yard into Water street. He had carted into the yard each year from forty to fifty loads of gravel to give a drainage towards Water street, the lane being too high for drainage that way. He had raised the yard over two feet with the gravel carted in. He had filled in along the lane with gravel and there was no chance for any water to flow from the yard into the lane. The water was all drained to Water Street until lately. The building of the bakery for Messrs. Hall & Ostrom necessitated the water drainage to the lane, and a small drain had been dug to and along the lane as far as the property of Mr. Dunsford extended. There was no water thrown out from the house, but the pump water and rain water were alone carried off by this drain. The stable water soaked into the gravel before reaching this drain. The stable manure and all the slops were removed from the premises two and three times a week, and in proper vessels for the purpose.

Constable MCGHEE was sworn, and said, He was called upon by Mr. Dunsford to inspect the lane. He explained to the Magistrate by diagram the water shed and its natural flow from the yard and pump.

The MAGISTRATE, after listening to both sides of the case, enlarged it until Monday, Sept. 29, to give time for the owners of the property to investigate and arrange for the proper sewage of the lane. Upon inspection of the lane, yard, and approaches, the conclusion seems to be inevitable that the property owners are all more or less liable to produce a nuisance by not having a proper drain through the lane. A closed sewer would be a very important improvement to the two streets, and prevent the risk of the breaking out of some pestilential disease.

LOCAL NEWS

Board of Education.

A special meeting of the Board of Education has been called for this evening at 7.45. It will be held in the Town Council Chamber.

◆

The Assizes.

The Fall Assizes will commence on Monday, September 29th, Chief Justice Adam Wilson presiding. It is believed that the court will only last for a short time, as there is very little business.

◆

Merchants!

If you want to get a nice set of account books, you had better call at the REVIEW office, where you will find a large stock to select from, or where they will make you just what you want, to order.

◆

The Lakefield Canoe Accident.

The body of Miss Clara Strickland was recovered on Wednesday evening about 5 o'clock and the funeral took place this afternoon. Mr. E. Clementi Smith is better though still in a very low state.

◆

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are fresh south-westerly to southerly winds, clear to partly cloudy, and slightly warmer weather. This morning there was a heavy frost in this locality, the weather moderating towards noon, and partly cloudy.

◆

New Side Walks.

Smith street from Water street to the Bridge has got a new plank side walk, which is an improvement long felt to be needed by the residents in that locality upon both sides of the river. There has been a new bridge made over the creek at the Dalhousie street crossing, and a plank walk is being laid from the bridge to George street.

◆

Bring Them Along With You.

Parties having pamphlets, magazines, or books of any kind, which they wish to preserve, had better bring them along with them and leave them at the REVIEW bindery, where they will get them bound to suit their tastes and requirements at less than city rates, and returned to them free of charge. Be sure to see our specimens of book-binding at the Exhibition.

◆

A New Hand in an Old Stand.

By advertisement in another column it will be seen that Mr. B. Shortley has purchased the stock in trade of the late Mr. James Pengelly, harness maker, &c., Hunter street, and that he has determined to continue the business in Mr. Pengelly's old stand, in addition to his present business in George street. Those in want of anything in his line will to give Mr. Shortley a call at either of these places before purchasing elsewhere.

A Serious Accident.

This morning Mrs. Wm. Foster, aged 76 years, residing in North Monaghan, about three miles out on the gravel road, met with a serious accident. While she was moving about the kitchen stove, and in the act of turning around she slipped and fell, breaking her right leg near the hip. Dr. Boucher was sent for and proceeded to Mr. Foster's residence. Dr. Boucher subsequently sent for Dr. Fraser, who has gone to assist him.

◆

The "Roarin'" Game.

The indications of an early winter are already re-kindling the enthusiasm of our players, who are adepts at this cheerful and health-giving exercise. We learn that the club intends to purchase four elegant belts to be competed for by rinks within its membership, and worn by the successful four as marks of honor, even as the ancient Greeks rewarded their athletes with crowns and chaplets. Many of the members intend this winter to purchase stones of superior design and finish, such is their fondness for the sport. A grand bonspiel is to be looked forward to, in which most of the neighboring clubs will take part, for our local society may take to itself the credit of having the most suitable rink for such an extra occasion.

The Spaulding's Bay Fire.

The burning of Brown's shingle mill, at Spaulding's Bay, George Street, on Saturday night, set fire to the sawdust and rubbish that forms the piling ground on the south side of the mill, along George Street. The steamer played upon this heap for several hours on Sunday, and drove the fire from the roadway crib-work, since which time the fire has been continually burning underneath the pile, and has worked its way up to within 10 or 12 feet of the street. The whole of this vast pile of rubbish, as well as the framework and bridge, must be entirely consumed unless some steps are taken to arrest the further progress of the fire. Should a high south wind spring up, there would be danger to the residences in the south ward from the sparks that would be blown to a great distance from the burning pile.

Chas. Stapleton's Coming Sales.

The following auction sales are advertised to come off at the dates and places mentioned below:—

Monday, Sept. 29.—General Credit Sale of Horses, Cattle, &c., of Mr. Henry Coombs, on his premises, Lot 24 in the 14 Concession of the Township of Otonabee, about three miles from Peterborough on the farm called "Frank Smith Farm." Sale at one o'clock p.m.

Monday, Sept. 29.—Mortgage Sale of Horses, Cattle, Implements, &c., to be sold on the premises of Mr. Coombs, immediately after the sale. No Reserve.

Tuesday, Sept. 30.—Credit Sale of Farm Stock, Implements, and Household Furniture of Mr. John Tarlington, on his premises at Lakehurst, being Lot 8 in the 13th Concession of the Township of Harvey. Sale at 12 o'clock noon. Strictly no Reserve.

Tuesday, Sept. 30.—Sheriff's Sale in the matter of Lundy vs. Blewitt, will take place at the same time and place as Mr. Tarlington's.

Tuesday, Oct. 7.—Unreserved Sale of Farm Stock, Implements, Lumber, &c., of Mr. James Dickson, on his premises at Keene. Sale at 11 o'clock a.m.

Friday, Oct. 10.—Important and Unreserved Sale of Farm Stock, Implements, &c., of Mr. Wm. Wood, on his premises Lot 13 in the 3rd Concession of the Township of South Monaghan, about one-half mile from Bensford P. O. Sale at 10 o'clock a. m., sharp.

Monday, Oct. 6.—Cash sale of Household Furniture, belonging to Mr. John Fraser, at his residence, on Dublin Street, opposite Baptie's planing mill. Sale at 1 o'clock p. m. No Reserve.

Farm Buildings Burned.

On Saturday last, about half-past twelve o'clock, noon, the barns and sheds belonging to Messrs. Alex. and Charles Davidson, on Lot 4, in the 1st concession of Smith, were discovered to be on fire, and, under the circumstances, it was impossible to save anything, except a pair of horses in one of the sheds, with considerable difficulty. During the forenoon Alexander Davidson was with the man drawing manure out of the barn-yard, and left everything apparently perfectly safe when they went to dinner. Before leaving the house after dinner, the girl observed smoke issuing from the barn, with the disastrous result already recorded. The origin of the fire is a complete mystery under the circumstances, no one having visited the barn in the meantime, to their knowledge, except a neighbor boy of about nine years old, who positively declares he had no matches about him. These barns contained the whole of this year's crop, off of two hundred acres, which makes the loss of the Messrs. Davidson fully $2,000, upon which they only have an insurance of $1,100. Besides the crop and barns, a number of implements have also been lost.

STILL ANOTHER FIRE.—A fire broke out this morning about 3 o'clock in a wooden block on King Street, owned by S. Retallack, and it was completely destroyed. The lower part was occupied by the following parties:—M. Quinn, merchant tailor; Wetherington & Co., Cambdrne flour mill depot, and W. J. Evans, as an ice-cream saloon and broom factory; the upper part was occupied by Mr. Evans, Mr. M. Quinn, and Mr. O. Fox. The building was insured for $1,000. Mr. Quinn was insured in the Western Assurance Co., on his stock for $1,000, a good part of which was saved. He had no insurance on his furniture. Wetherington's flour and feed store was insured. Mr. Evans was insured for $1,000. The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. This is the fourth fire in Cobourg this week.

LIGHTING THE STREETS.—The gas bill for lighting the streets of the city last year amounted to $33,200.

A MURDERESS.—Susan Kennedy, who is charged with murdering a woman in this city will be placed on trial in the Court of Queen's Bench here on Tuesday next.

From the Morning Papers.

TORONTO.

LIVE STOCK TRADE.—About 40,000 sheep and 15,000 head of cattle were sent by Toronto live stock exporting firms via Montreal, Quebec and Boston, for the British market during the month of September. The live stock trade is growing so rapidly that several Toronto firms have stationed one of their members in England to dispose of the stock after landing, and thus save the commission and other expenses incurred through engaging agents.

HARWOOD.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.—About 3.30 on Thursday afternoon Ryerson Hart Piller, employed in Ullyott, Sadier & Co.'s lumber yard, was jammed between two trucks heavily laden with green lumber, and died thirty minutes afterwards. Particulars of the accident state that Hart was between the trucks, and in the act of disconnecting the chain which connects the trucks, when a car drawn from the mill by the horses struck the trucks, causing them to collide suddenly. Dr. Burnett, of Cobourg, was immediately summoned, but too late. Hart's last and only utterances after receiving the injury were asking "God for mercy." He leaves a young wife and child to mourn his untimely end.

COBOURG.

LAWSUIT.—The Star says, Miss Schenick has sued the Collegiate Institute Board; the amount she claims is $187.50 for salary from 31st March, the date of her dismissal, to the 1st July last; she also claims the sum of $135 for the holidays, amounting in all to $322.50 The case comes off at the Division Court on Monday next.

A FRESH FIRE.—A fire broke out in the workshop of Mr. Hank Delaney, boat builder of this town, between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock on Wednesday night. The fire engines were quickly on hand, but the building being frame quickly burned. Several boats valued at $75 a piece, a hundred decoys, all his tools and several other articles were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $800; no insurance.

HASTINGS.

GOT DISAPPOINTED.—The Norwood Register says:—We deeply sympathize with the people of Hastings on account of the sad disappointment they met with on Saturday last, by the failure of the Grand Junction authorities to provide a special car for their transport to Belleville, on the occasion of the visit of the Governor-General and the Princess Louise to that city. However, they have had so many disappointments in connection with this Railway that we think they ought to be able to bear up with a good deal of grace the repeated trials and vicissitudes they are compelled to submit to from that source. A gentleman living near Hastings says the people of that village don't care so much about the disappointment; but Norwood, that hideous Norwood, will hear all about it.

GEN. GRANT'S RECEPTION.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—On his return from Oakland last evening Grant attended a banquet, tendered by the press to Jno. Russell Young. In reply to a toast Grant expressed his gratification at his welcome, concluding as follows:—"The good opinion of my countrymen is dearer to me than the praise of all the world besides." The General remained but few minutes and left for the Carnival ball at Pavillion.

THE GREAT WALKING MATCH

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The estimated receipts will reach $72,000, giving the winner about $26.000 for a week's work. The reason for attempting to disable Hazeal last night by throwing a stone at him, was that a pool of $1,500 had been formed on Rowell, Guyon and Merritt for the first three places.

FIRE WITHOUT WOOD OR COAL

A Perpetual and Economical Source of Fuel.

A correspondent has sent us a startling letter from Miss M. Betham Edwards, from which we give an extract: "I send you the particulars of a recent scientific invention, just patented, and destined, without doubt, to play a very important part in our economic history. I think it must be regarded as a solution, for once and for all, of the great coal question, or rather fuel question, not only among ourselves, but abroad. M. Bourbonnel, of Dijon, the celebrated lion and panther slayer, lighted upon the following discovery by hazard, and after six years persistent investigation, brought it to entire workable perfection. He discovered by means of two natural substances, inexhaustible in nature, the means of lighting and maintaining a fire without wood or coal; a fire causing no dust, smoke or trouble; a fire costing one-tenth, at least, of ordinary fuel; and what is more wonderful still, a fire, the portion of which answering to our fuel is everlasting, that is to say would last a lifetime. M. Bourbonnel's invention comprehends both stove and fuel. The fires could be on the minutest scale or on the largest. They would be used for heating a baby's food or for roasting an ox. Being lighted instantaneously, they will be a great economy of time. M. Bourbonnel at once patented his invention, and a body of engineers and savants from Paris visited him, and pronounced his discovery one of the most remarkable of the age. He has had several offers for the purchase of the patent in France, but wants to sell it in England, his own occupation being in another line. Any English gentleman or firm wishing to see his fires or stoves could do so by writing to him a day or two beforehand. His address is M. Bourbonnel, Dijon. I have seen these fires and stoves. There is no mistake about the matter. It is as clear as possible that here we have a perpetual and economical source of fuel. Two hundred years ago the discoverer would surely have been burnt as a wizard."—London Athenæum.

STANLEY AT THE CONGO.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Advices from the west coast of Africa state that Stanley evidently intends to complete his exploration of the Congo River from the west coast. At Sierra Leone his steamer was in danger of being stripped by the authorities, and Stanley had to declare himself although he was travelling under an assumed name.

TROUBLE IN CRETE.

A message from Athens states that the Turkish authorities in Crete have refused to punish a Turk who recently assassinated a Christian, and in consequence of this refusal, a Greek mob has seized a rich Turk as hostage, threatening that justice is done by the authorities, to put the hostage to death. Much excitement exists and a serious insurrection is not improbable.

DISOWNS A GOOD SUGGESTION.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—A despatch from Berlin says the report that Bismarck, at his late conference with Addrassy, proposed the general disarmament of Europe, is unfounded. No such plan has been submitted to the Emperor or Count Andrassy as reported by the Paris correspondent of the Daily News.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA.

PARIS, Sept. 25.—The Ambassador to Vienna telegraphs that at the interview Bismarck expressed a desire to maintain cordial relations between Germany and France.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—A Vienna despatch says it is now clear the object of the meeting of Andrassy and Bismarck was to maintain peace in Europe by a strong alliance, and gradually separate Russia from the rest of Europe.

SPANISH INTRIGUES.

PARIS, Sept. 25.—The Gaulois, denouncing the intrigues of the Spanish Republicans here, expresses regrets that the Government shuts its eyes to facts tantamount to conspiracy against a friendly Sovereign.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—A Paris correspondent referring to the article in the Gaulois about the Spanish Republicans intriguing says:—"If this communication emanates, as reported, from the Spanish Embassy, it is an indication that in King Alfonso's opinion the Austro-German alliance bodes no good to France, or he would not dare thus to bark at its heels and seek an excuse for quarrelling later." The foregoing is believed to be sensational.

RUSSIAN PROPOSAL REJECTED.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—A Berlin correspondent reports that Lord Salisbury and M. Waddington have agreed to reject the Russian proposal for a European commission of control over the entire administration of Egypt.

BID FOR AN AUSTRIAN ALLIANCE.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 25.—The Golos offers Austria an offensive and defensive alliance with Russia, on condition that she shall entirely give up the policy hitherto pursued by Count Andrassy, retain the Taafle Ministry in office, and satisfy the demands of the Slavonic populations. "If" continues, the Golos, "Austria-Hungary should presist in her former policy and pursue her coquetting with England, Russia will have to look to France and Italy to form a combination with her for protecting the peace of Europe against Anglo-Austro-Hungarian designs."

RUSSIA'S PRESENT TO BULGARIA.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The Danubian flotilla, presented by Russia to the Bulgarians, is at anchor at Rustchuk. The flag is hoisted with the Bulgarian lion. The ceremony was performed in presence of the Governor of Rustchuk and a great crowd.

FRANCE AND THE NEW ALLIANCE.

PARIS, Sept. 25.—The Republique Francaise, Gambetta's organ, in a leading article maintains that the duty of France with respect to the Austro-German alliance should be that of an observant. The situation at present does not call for any action or official enquiry, but the movements of the Government at Berlin and Vienna should be keenly watched for developments inimical to the interests of France, or in violation of any treaty obligation.

LAST OF THE ZULU WAR.

CAPETOWN, Sept 9.—Cetewayo's arrival is hourly expected. Quarters are prepared for him at the Castle. All the remaining hostile chiefs of Zululand have surrendered.

ATTEMPTED TRAIN-WRECKING.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The News Rome despatch says a fruitless attempt was make to upset the train from Brindisi carrying the Indian mails by obstructing the track near Foggia with masses of stone.

AMERICAN.

GRAIN AND FLOUR.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 25.—The grain market has been exciting for the week past and prices ran up rapidly. No. 2 winter red yesterday reached 128. Two grain firms are embarrassed, one of them operating largely suspended to-day. To-day the bears broke the market. Western wheat fell off 6½c, southern wheat 9c. A further decline is expected. Corn shared in the excitement. Flour advanced 50 to 75c a barrel.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

SECOND MEETING IN CABUL.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—A despatch from Simla states that the Afghan regiments engaged in the massacre at the British embassy at Cabul again became insubordinate, and demanded with threats their arrears of pay. Upon payment of some money, order was restored.

GUARDING THE PASSES.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—A Simla correspondent reports that the lines of communication in the Khurum and Khyber Valleys are being strengthened by considerable reinforcements, and various posts fortified in view of a possibility of local troubles.

THE BORDER THREATENED.

LAHORE, Sep. 25.—The Mohmunds threaten the border. The forts of native infantry and cavalry will be largely augmented.

SUFFERING FROM CHOLERA.

Cholera has occurred among the troops at Peshawur. The Ninth Regiment has lost five men and is retiring from Jumrood in consequence.

THE DAILY EVENING REVIEW circulates a Larger number of papers every day in the Town and Ashburnham than any one of the weeklies, and more than Double the number during the week than all the weeklies combined.

Daily Evening Review

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1879.

Business Men, Hotel-Keepers, Lodging-House Keepers, and every one with an article to sell, or a want to supply, should ADVERTISE in the REVIEW.

THE DAILY REVIEW FOR NEXT WEEK.

ACCORDING to our announcement, we have this week published and distributed THREE THOUSAND copies of the WEEKLY REVIEW. The appeal made to the business men of Peterborough to seize such an excellent opportunity of bringing their goods under the notice of the large population comprised in the old Newcastle district, has been responded to in a manner which so far exceeded our most sanguine expectations, as to necessitate the refusal of of more than one advertisement, notwithstanding that we had added a supplement for the occasion.

The liberality and enterprise on the part of our patrons, and the proof which it affords of the estimation in which both editions of the REVIEW are held by our merchants and manufacturers as an advertising medium, serves us to make every legitimate effort to give them even more than we promised when soliciting their patronage.

To this end, and in view of the orders already received, we have decided to issue the DAILY EVENING REVIEW in A DOUBLE SHEET FORM during the three days of the Exhibition, and trust that those who have neglected to test the value of printers' ink in our great weekly issue, or who were disappointed in getting their advertisements into the same, will hand in their copy for the coming week as soon as possible.

As already announced, we have secured extra and efficient editorial assistance to overtake the work of the week, and render the DAILY EVENING REVIEW replete with the fullest and latest reports of exhibition and local events, which, combined with its extensive telegraphic despatches received each day up to the hour of going to press, will make it in every respect A REAL LIVE NEWSPAPER, and NOT A MERE ADVERTISING SHEET issued for the occasion.

During the whole of the Exhibition week the DAILY REVIEW will be sold for ONE CENT per copy, and in order to secure its widest distribution, and the greatest advantage to our patrons, an additional staff of carrier boys will be engaged for the purpose of distributing it thoroughly throughout the town and Ashburnham, and on the Exhibition grounds, and arrangements have been made for its sale on all morning trains arriving in Peterborough from Millbrook on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The number of copies thus issued each day will be very large, and fully adequate to the demand, and this is all that is desirable, as a paper that is bought is always read, while those distributed gratuitously are seldom considered worthy of more than a passing glance—if even that.

For the accommodation of our citizens who are not already subscribers, and who may desire to have it regularly delivered to them during the week—especially if they are entertaining friends—we will deliver the DAILY regularly for the whole week for the sum of FIVE CENTS, by their leaving their orders, accompanied by the cash, at the office of publication.

As OUR WEEKLY for the 3rd of October will contain the earliest complete List of Prizes awarded at the Central Exhibition, it will undoubtedly prove an unusually good medium for advertisements, which those who missed the last issue, or who have only ordered their advertisements in once in the WEEKLY, will do well to take advantage of. To prevent disappointment, and enable us to do full justice to their orders, they should however be sent in early.

Pleased With the Tariff.

There seems to be an impression, founded probably on the speech delivered by Sir A. T. Galt at the Belfast Chamber of Commerce, that there will be some important changes made in the Canadian tariff when Parliament meets. But this is unlikely. One of the great arguments in favor of the new tariff was it promised stability, for it was not to be subject to frequent changes. As it was largely experimental, there may be some slight improvements or modifications made at points where it was found to work clumsily, or where it pressed unjustly on some particular industry or interest. But that there will be important changes, or any backing down from the principle upon which the whole tariff is based, is of all unlikely things the most unlikely. The N. P. has not pleased everybody, of course; nor was it ever seriously expected that it would. But it seems to have pleased the "people" who voted for it—excepting Mr. Phipps, to be sure—and that was all that could reasonably be expected.—Toronto Telegram.

Will Beat Courtney.

The Toronto Telegram says:—Hanlan will start for Chatauqua to-morrow. The champion says he does not expect to be in this race equal to what he has been, but will be fit to beat Courtney if he starts. Mr. Ward will not go with Hanlan to Chatauqua this week, but a competent trainer has been [illegible].

The postponement was determined upon as a necessity at a meeting of Hanlan's friends held here yesterday; Mr. Davis, of Windsor, having been telegraphed for was one of the advisers. Hanlan is taking gentle exercise, and feels a little better.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

It is particularly requested that subscribers not receiving the REVIEW regularly will at once make the fact known at this Office, in order that all cause of complaint may be removed as speedily as possible.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RESIGNATIONS OF TEACHERS AND APPLICATIONS FOR THE VACANCIES.

The Government Grant Received—Advertising Our Educational Establishments—Waste-Paper Baskets Wanted.

There was a special meeting of the Board of Education in the Town Council Chamber on Thursday evening, Sept. 25.

Present—J. Stevenson, Esq., Chairman, and Messrs. Errett, Shaw, Edmison, Wrighton, Toole, Dumble, Cook and Macdonald.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, after some discussion.

TEACHERS' RESIGNATIONS.

Mr. DUMBLE said there was no report of the Committee on Appointments, as nothing had been specially referred to them. He thought it would be well to read certain letters of resignation, and to refer them to the Committee, who could report on them at the next regular meeting in a few days.

After some discussion this was resolved upon.

The Secretary then read the following communications:—

From Miss Jennie F. Brown, tendering her resignation.

From Miss Baguley, tendering her resignation.

From Miss Baguley, asking to withdraw her resignation.

From Miss Elizabeth Beckett, as to probable resignations, offering her services to fill vacancies. She enclosed certificates.

GOVERNMENT GRANT.

The SECRETARY read a communication from the Department of Education, stating the amount of Government grant due to the Collegiate Institute, viz.:—

Fixed allowance	$200 00
Average attendance	66 50
On inspection	108 00
Meteorological grant	90 00
Collegiate Institute grants	375 00
	839 50

This amount has been received.

From the Principal, asking for certain maps.

THE VACANCIES.

Mr. ERRETT moved, seconded by Mr. SHAW, that the resignations of Miss Ellsworth, Miss Brown, and Miss Baguley be accepted and referred to the Committee on Appointments.

Mr. TOOLE would like to see the application of Miss Brooks also referred to the Committee.

Mr. ERRETT added to his motion that the applications be also referred to the Committee on Appointments.

Mr. DUMBLE thought they were acting too hastily. The case of Miss Baguley, for instance, required further consideration. He would like to see her name put in a separate motion, as it was an exceptional class.

Mr. EDMISON advocated a short delay in all the cases, in view of the fact that at their next meeting in a few days, the Inspector was to report on the teachers' certificates. There were other teachers whose certificates had expired.

Mr. ERRETT thought they were abandoning their previous line of action, by advocating the retention of teachers without legal qualifications.

Mr. DUMBLE moved an amendment,—That Miss Baguley's communications be simply received for the moment.

Mr. EDMISON seconded the motion.

The amendment was put and lost.

The original motion was put and carried.

SOUTH WARD SCHOOL.

Mr. ERRETT said that Miss Greenhow had complained to him of the insufficient sidewalk accommodation at the South Ward School.

APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. EDMISON, as a member of the committee on appointments, asked for instruction as to Miss Brown's resignation. Was she to be permitted to leave without the two month's notice?

It was stated that Miss Brown wished to be released immediately and that this should be done if possible.

SUPPLIES.

The Committee on Supervision were authorized to get the maps, asked by the Principal, and waste paper baskets for the Collegiate Institute and the head rooms in the public schools.

A motion was carried, granting a holiday to the school children on Wednesday, that they might see the Central Exhibition.

ADVERTISING.

The PRINCIPAL was authorized to insert an advertising card in the papers during the three exhibition days at an expense not greater than $6.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE WEATHER PROPHET.

Mr. Vennor's Predictions on the Present and Coming Winter.

The following letter from Mr. Vennor appeared in a recent number of the Montreal Witness:—"There are yet no indications of autumn in this section of the country. The woods are still of a fresh and beautiful green, but few of our birds have left, and several species of them are raising their third clutch. A second edition of mosquitoes and black flies have appeared, the sand midges are as hard at work in their attempts to make us miserable as ever. The general weather is warm, hazy and balmy, although the nights are occasionally pretty sharp. A great deal of grain is out yet, and much has yet to ripen. Although it looks as if our summer season was to be protracted, as if winter was to be, as it were, "shoved off," or out a little of its usual position. The rivers and small streams are low, and still falling, notwithstanding the wet summer, and, as there is no chance of them filling again, winter will, in all probability, set in with low water everywhere. The approaching winter of 1879-80, though still distant, looked at through the weather glass of past experience, appears formidable. There are well defined indications of severity and lengthy duration when it does set in, but the outline presented to me just now, depicts the heaviest snow-falls as characterizing chiefly the latter half and end of the winter. Further, it is probable that a severe term will set in abruptly towards the middle of November and continue through a portion of December, with [illegible] snow-falls."

YOUMANS' SINGING CLASSES. The Post says: The singing classes conducted very successfully in town the past two or three weeks by Mr. Youmans gave a concert on Wednesday night, which was largely attended and came off very satisfactorily and creditably to all concerned. Mr. Youmans is a careful and thorough instructor, and gets on admirably with the young people.

ONE YEAR IN THE CENTRAL PRISON.—John McRae and Kenneth McLeod, reported in the Post last week as having been committed to gaol for the theft of a dozen or more cattle in Dalton, were sentenced on Saturday last by Judge Dean to one year each in the Central Prison. McRae pleaded guilty, but McLeod stood his trial. Both prisoners bore the appearance of being satisfied with their sentence. The cattle were sold for notes, so that a good deal of the property will be recovered.

THE 45TH. BATT. BAND.—A number of citizens have "come down handsomely" towards the battalion band since the appeal was made to them by Col. Deacon, and $50 has been subscribed. In the next few weeks the Post hopes to be able to state that a sufficient fund has been raised to place the band on a sound basis. Mr. T. Harris will reach town next week and will at once enter upon the duties of leader of the band. Under his leadership and with the support of our townspeople we believe the band will become a credit to the town.

Notice to Contractors.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the Secretary of Public Works, and endorsed "Tenders for Canal and Lock at St. Anne," will be received at this office until the arrival of the Eastern and Western mails on FRIDAY THE 10th DAY OF OCTOBER next, for the construction of a Lock and the formation of approaches to it on the landward side of the present lock at St. Anne.

A map of the locality, together with plans and specifications of the works to be done, can be seen at this office and at the Resident Engineer's office, at St. Anne, on and after SATURDAY THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER next, at either of which places printed forms of Tender can be obtained.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and—in the case of firms, except there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation and residence of each member of the same; and further, an accepted Bank cheque for the sum of $2000 must accompany the tender, which sum shall be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the works at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

For the due fulfilment of the contract, satisfactory security will be required by the deposit of money to the amount of five per cent. on the bulk sum of the contract, of which the sum sent in with the Tender will be considered a part.

Ninety per cent only of the progress estimates will be paid until the completion of the work.

To each Tender must be attached the actual signatures of two responsible and solvent persons, residents of the Dominion, willing to become sureties for the carrying out of these conditions, as well as the due performance of the works embraced in the contract.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
F. BRAUN,
Secretary.

WHY.

I did not love him. Long ago,
Instead of yes, I gave him no.

I did not love him; but to-day
I read his marriage notice. Pray

Why was I sad, but never yet
Has my heart known the least regret

Over that whispered no? and why,
Reading the notice did I sigh?

No analyst can guess the cause;
A woman's reason laughs at laws.

Sure, I am glad to know the wound
I gave is healed, that he has found

Love's blessedness and peace; and yet
A woman never can forget

The man who once has loved her; and
To-day I seem to see him stand,

With every glance a mute caress,
Still pleading for the longed for yes.

His early love for me is dead—
Another lives in that love's stead;

And if he loves her well, as men
Should love their chosen ones, why, then

He must be glad, that long ago,
Instead of yes, I gave him no.

Perhaps that is the reason why
I read the notice with a sigh.

INFLUENCE OF CLIMATE UPON HEALTH.

The following interesting extracts are from an article by Dr. M. Beard in a recent number of the Atlantic Monthly on "The Physical Future of the American People":—

A fact of special note is that the exceeding cold of our winter compels us to pass a large part of our time not only in-doors, but in rooms overheated with dry air; thus one of the bad features of our climate into the hands of the other, reinforcing, extending, multiplying its capacity for evil. The high temperature and unnatural dryness of our closed rooms are both harmful, and are both made necessary by excessive external cold, and by the alternations of heat and cold that produce a sensitiveness of organization which can only find comfort in a somewhat high temperature.

Dryness of the air, whether external or internal, likewise excites nervousness by heightening the rapidity of the processes of waste and repair in the organism, so that we live faster than in a moist atmosphere. The rational of this action of dryness on living beings—for it is observed in animals as in men—is as follows:—Evaporation from the surface of the body is accompanied by dissipation of heat, and by the numerous and complex vital changes of which the evolution and dissipation of heat through evaporation are the results. In a moist atmosphere such evaporation takes place slowly, because the air, being already saturated with water, cannot rapidly take up the vapor that comes from the surface of the body; hence this vapor accumulates in the form of sensible perspiration. A dry atmosphere, on the contrary, is eager and hungry for the bodily moisture and rapidly absorbs it, so that it does not accumulate on the surface, but passes off as insensible perspiration. Hence the paradox that we perspire the least when we are apparently perspiring the most; on sultry August days our clothing is soaked, because the moisture of the body has no chance for ready escape, and consequently the vital changes that produce the moisture are obstructed and move with corresponding slowness. A day that is both moist and warm is hotter to the nerves of sensation and far more oppressive than a far warmer day that is also dry, for the conversion of the fluids of the body into insensible vapor, which process takes place as rapidly in dry air, is attended with escape of bodily heat, which gives relief.

Dryness of the air is the main clause of the long-observed leanness of the Americans as compared with the Europeans. We are taller, thinner, lanker, than the original stock in England and Germany, mainly because in our dry atmosphere we so rapidly evaporate; the animal fluids disappear into the aerial fluids; we have little chance to accumulate fat. Remembering that the body is composed mostly of water, it is clear that rapid evaporation must be attended by a rapid loss of bodily weight. A thousand Americans, taken at random, weigh less on the average than a thousand Englishmen or Germans of the same age and social status; even the dark aborigines, in spite of their indolence, were almost always lean.

Our habits and institutions, so far as they are distinctively American,—rapid eating, eager quest for gold, exciting revivals and elections,—are the product of a dry atmosphere and extremes of temperature combined with the needs of a new country and a pioneer life. We are nervous, primarily, because the rapid evaporations in our dry, out-door air and in our over-heated rooms, for reasons above given, heightens the rapidity of the processes of waste and repair in the brain and nervous system, and the exhausting stimulation of alterations of torrid heat and polar cold; and secondarily, because this nervousness is enhanced by the stress of poverty, the urgency of finding and holding means of living the scarcity of inherited wealth, and the just desire of making and maintaining fortunes. We cannot afford to be calm; for those to whom the last question is whether they shall exist or die there is no time or force for acquiring plumpness of the body. Not how shall we live? but can we live at all? is the problem that almost every American is all his life compelled to face.

Susceptibility to alcohol and tobacco is one of the most striking characteristics of the many evidences of American nervousness. We cannot bear these stimulants and narcotics as our fathers could; we cannot bear them as can the English, or Germans or, French; indeed, all the Old World can both drink and smoke more than the Americans. Even coffee can be indulged in with freedom only by a minority of the population of the Northern States, and a cup of weak tea is for many a sure prescription for a wakeful night. Foreigners travelling and sojourning here must be far more cautious than is their wont with the purest and mildest liquors; while Americans, when long abroad, can often partake of the native wines, and also of stronger liquors, to a degree that at home would induce intoxication, perhaps lead directly to the symptoms of alcoholism. In truth, this functional malady of the nervous system, which we call inebriety, as distinguished from the vice or habit of drunkenness, may be said to have been born in America, has here developed sooner and far more rapidly than elsewhere, and here also has received earlier and more successful attention from men of science. The increase of the disorder has forced us to study it and to devise plans for its relief.

All of the above reasons apply to the Northern and Eastern portions of the United States, far more than to the Southern States or to Canada. In the South particularly in the Gulf States, there are not the extremes of heat and cold, nor the peculiar dryness of the air, that have been described. The Southern winters are mild, with little or no snow and abundance of rain and dampness, while the summers are never as intensely hot as in the latitude of Boston and New York. Throughout the year the Southern climate is both more equable and more moist than that of the North. Herein is explained the most interesting and suggestive fact, that functional nervous diseases of all kinds regularly diminish in frequency and variety as we go South. Canada has extremes of temperature, but more of steady cold than the States, while the air is kept moist by numerous rivers, lakes, and the wide extent of forest; it does not, therefore, share, to any marked degree, in the nervousness of the Northern United States.

DOMINION EXHIBITION.

Formal Opening by the Governor-General—Numerous Crowds—Mr. Wilmot's Fish Display.

OTTAWA, Sept. 22.—There was an immense crowd present at the formal opening of the Dominion Exhibition by His Excellency the Governor-General and Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise this morning. The school children occupied a position on the grand stand, and sang a song of welcome. Their Excellencies were met at the entrance by the members of Art and Agriculture, and escorted to the grand stand, where President Wilmot introduced the gentlemen accompanying him as the members of the Council, and asked his acceptance of their address. After the introduction the address was presented. The address refers to the fact that the Provincial Exhibition had assumed a Dominion form at the request of His Excellency; refers to his generous encouragement of horticulture, mechanism, manufacture, agriculture, &c., and thanks him for the medals contributed by him. There is also an expression of homage to Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise, who by her grace and affability had indeared herself to the hearts of all. The address was accompanied by the presentation of two badges; the one to His Excellency was of scarlet with a crown and maple leaf, and the inscription "Dominion Exhibition, Ottawa, 1870, Patron." "That of Her Royal Highness was of white satin clasped with a beautiful gold broach, adorned with the maple leaf, rose, shamrock and thistle, the badge bore the inscription, "Agricultural and Art Association of Ontario." The badge was enclosed with a handsome cast with the inscription "Souvenir of the Agricultural and Art Association to Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise, 1879."

MR. WILMOT'S FISH DISPLAY.

Some difficulty has been experienced with Mr. Wilmot's fish display in consequence of the warmness of the water. There are fifteen aquaria filled with all manner of fresh water fish. The collection of stuffed fish is really magnificent. Among the fish on the list is a Greenland shark ten feet long and weighing 410 pounds. The next in order is a spoonbill sturgeon, a native of the Mississippi, which was caught near Sarnia. How it came there is a mystery. It is the only one ever caught in Canadian waters. Then follows a sturgeon caught in the River St. Lawrence, and an alligator from Florida, which was presented to Mr. Wilmot by a New York Professor, and a tunny caught near Halifax. The latter is an immense specimen of what is vulgarly called the giant mackerel. Its weight is 610 pounds. Near by is a perfect model of the Newcastle establishment with all its interior fittings made with a jacknife by Mr. W. H. Barber, an employee of the establishment. There are several specimens of the percidae family. A codfish caught on coast of Nova Scotia, weighing sixty-eight pounds and a California salmon produced from the first importation of eggs ever brought from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic and bred at Newcastle. These were turned into Lake Ontario, and one of five and a half pounds was caught at two years from the egg. This was the first ever caught this side of the Pacific Ocean. The following year a California Salmon weighing fifteen pounds was caught. There are salmon from the Restigouche River, star pike caught in the Bay of Quinte, specimens of salmon caught in Lake Huron and Georgian Bay, also a specimen of fish vulgarly called the lunge, caught at the Magog Lake. There are also specimens of the flounder, dog-fish, pickerel, sucker and other fish of the province, and a specimen of Winnoniche from the Saguenay River. Then there is a working model representing the process in vogue at the Newcastle establishment, and giving an illustration of the entire working; all the trays, troughs, &c., are represented.

VICTORIA'S REPROOF.

Queen Victoria was noted in early years for her punctuality, and was apt to be impatient with those who were negligent as to time. She administered once a courteous but severe reproof to the Duchess of Sunderland, who, as the Mistress of Robes, was obliged to be near the Queen on public occasions. The duchess was a little careless in matters requiring promptness.

One day, when a public ceremony was appointed for a given hour, the Queen and her ladies had gathered in her palace, and the duchess alone was missing. The Queen grew impatient, and, as the hour appointed passed, she was about to enter her carriage without her first lady. The duchess suddenly appeared, breathless with haste, and stammered an excuse.

"My dear duchess," said the Queen, "I think you must have a bad watch."

Unloosing from her neck the chain of a magnificent watch, she fastened it round the neck of the duchess. The reproof, though conveyed in an elegant present, was overwhelming. The proud duchess colored, bit her lip, and dropped a hot tear. The next day she resigned her office. The resignation was not accepted, and from that time the duchess was never known to be a second late in keeping an engagement.

Making Use of His Time.

An American paper (the Newhaven Register, gives a curious account of a workman, by birth a Swede, and by occupation an iron-moulder, who, so far from wishing to cut his day's work short, can with difficulty be induced to leave off. His usual spell of labor is from four in the morning until seven at night, without even the usual knock-off for meals. As of course he is obliged to eat and drink, he economises his time by keeping a pail of soup on a bench above him, placed on a level with his mouth, so that when he feels inclined he grasps the rim of the bucket with his teeth, and throwing his head back, drinks what he requires, while his hands are busy with his moulding. The same performance is gone through with his loaf of bread, which is cut up in convenient mouthfuls. The extreme results for a first-class artisan at this branch of work are 120 moulds a day, but this restle industrial makes nothing of turning out 200 moulds. Half a-dozen such workers would be fatal to the passing of a short-time bill in any country in the world.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This preparation stands peerless as a remedy for all summer complaints. Have you diarrhoea? It will positively cure you. Have you cholera morbus? It will positively cure you. Have you colic or cramps in the stomach? It will positively cure you. Is your stomach sour? It will positively cure you. Are you going on a sea voyage? Be sure and take a bottle of the Strawberry in your haversack, for use in sea-sickness, vomiting, and other irritations of the stomach and bowels; it will positively cure you. Every one speaks highly of it. "I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—G. W. EARL, St. Catharines. "I would advise any one suffering from summer complaints to give Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry a fair trial."—CARMAN M. GOULD, M. D., Castleton. ARRESTED FOR MURDER.

"A Singular Coincidence"—A Man Fully Answering to the Description of a Murderer, but Not the One.

About a month ago the following post-card was received by the chiefs of police all over the country:—

$1,200 REWARD!

Aaron Goodfellow was murdered by two men in the streets of the city of Bloomington, Ill., about 9 o'clock p.m., Aug. 4th, 1879.

The city of Bloomington offers a reward of $1,000 for their arrest and conviction, or $500 for each of them.

The Governor offers $200; the sheriff $100.

The following described men are supposed to be the murderers:—

Pat Devine, alias Kelly, height about five feet eight inches; light complexion; grey eyes, and weight about 140 pounds; light moustache; dark clothes, with slouch hat; carries in a belt a very large revolver, rather old and bronzed; white shirt, with square cut colored stone on shirt front; wore boots.

Harry Williams, alias Smith, with other alias. Height about 5 feet 9 inches; dark hair, cut close, and dark eyes; smooth and slim face; thin and somewhat hooked nose; high cheek bone, and is supposed to have some tattoo marks on his right arm, rather slim; round shoulders and stooped; talks quick; wore shoes; striped clothes; navy blue shirt; dark slouch hat, and carries a very large silver-plated revolver. Age of each man about 24 years. E. S. MILLAR, City Marshal.

Bloomington, Aug. 5th, 1879.

One of these cards was received by Constable Kelly of Fenelon Falls, and with commendable attention to duty he decided to keep his eyes and ears open. On Thursday morning last considerable excitement was caused in the village by the arrest of a man named Pat. Kelly, who had come to the village in company with another man on the previous Monday, and stopped at the Mansion House, as being one of the parties "wanted" by the Bloomington authorities. On seeing the prisoner and his companion on Monday Constable Kelly was struck with the strong resemblance there was between the man Kelly wanted and one of the parties before him. He at once got the assistance of a confederate who "pumped the strangers and learned that one of them was named Patrick Kelly, and that he was sometimes called Devine. The other left the village on Tuesday. This information being elicited the constable thought he was warranted in making the arrest of the man Kelly, which he accordingly did. When taken into custody the prisoner expressed surprise and said that he could prove that he was harvesting with Mr. Alex. McKinnon, of Mariposa, at the time the murder is said to have been committed, and his home was at Bobcaygeon, where he had a brother. He was brought before Messrs. Davis and Jordan, J.P.'s, and committed to gaol for eight days in order to give the Bloomington authorities time to get there. The prisoner was brought to Lindsay on Friday morning and at the same time a telegram was sent "collect" to the city marshal of Bloomington informing him of the arrest, but it is understood no answer was received other than a refusal to pay the telegram. On Monday the prisoner was ordered to be brought before Police Magistrate Dunsford, who telegraphed constable Kelly to appear and prosecute. This the constable refused to do, and the prisoner being arraigned no person appeared against him. Under ordinary circumstances the prisoner would have been dismissed, but the charge being of such a serious nature the Magistrate did not exercise that power. Mr. D. J. McIntyre appeared for the prisoner and submitted the declaration of Mr. Alex. McKinnon, of Mariposa, which stated that the prisoner was in his employ from the first of July till about the end of August, and on the day the murder was said to have been committed. Evidence was also offered by the brother of the prisoner to prove that the prisoner was never in the United States. After hearing this statement the prisoner was at once discharged, the magistrate holding that his arrest in the first instance and the whole proceedings were irregular and illegal, ordinary justices not having jurisdiction under the extradition acts.

The prisoner was not unlike the party described in the card and the coincidence of his name and alias being the same, and that of Devine being uncommon, is certainly very singular. In only one point does the prisoner differ in appearance from the party wanted and that is in complexion. The prisoner is inclined to be dark with black hair, whereas the man wanted is described as being of light complexion. This flaw in the identity of the prisoner was doubtless overlooked by the Fenelon Falls constable when he examined the prisoners valise and found therein a white shirt with a square cut stone in the shirt-front. similar to that worn by the murderer, which it would appear completely convinced him that he had the right man. An action against the magistrates is talked of.—Lindsay Post.

THE

Great Cause of Human Misery

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' succesful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

THE SOLARGRAPH WATCH!

ONLY $1.00

A perfect Time-keeper, Hunting-Case, and HEAVY PLATED CHAIN, latest style. We warrant it for five years to denote time as accurately as a $100 Chronometer Watch, and will give the exact time in any part of the world. It also contains a FIRST-CLASS COMPASS, worth alone the price we charge for the Time-keeper. For Men, Boys, Mechanics, School Teachers, Travellers, and Farmers it is indispensible. They are as good as a high-priced watch, and in many cases more reliable. Boys, think of it! A Hunting-Case Watch and Chain for $1.00. The SOLARGRAPH WATCH is used by the Principal of the Somerville High School, and is being fast introduced into all the schools through the United States, and is destined to become the most useful Time-keeper ever invented. The SOLAGRAPH WATCH received a Medal at the Mechanics' Fair, at Boston, in 1878.

This is no toy, but is made on scientific principals, and every one warranted to be accurate and reliable. We have made the price very low simply to introduce them at once, after which the price will be raised.

The SOLOGRAPH WATCH AND CHAIN is put up in a neat outside case, and sent by mail to any address for $1.00. We have made the price so low, please send two stamps if convenient to help pay postage. Address plainly,

LOCAL NEWS

Entries.

To-morrow will positively be the last day for making entries upon any terms for the Central Exhibition.

Honorable Mention.

The Central Committee have added the names of William Sanderson and Arthur Stevenson to the list of those who passed the recent "Intermediate." The first obtained 2nd class grade A., and the second 2nd class grade B.

Furniture Sale.

On Monday October 6th, at the residence of John Fraser, Dublin Street. Mr. Chas. Stapleton will sell for cash, household furniture at one o'clock. This will be a good opportunity for buying furniture cheap, as the sale is an unreserved one. See posters.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are moderate to fresh, southeasterly to south-westerly winds, clear to partly cloudy, warmer weather. Peterborough was visited again last night with frost. To-day has been a warm geniel one.

A Fine Sight.

The ivy crossing the western side of St. John's Church, presents an appearance just now, which not even the fresh verdure of spring can surpass in loveliness. The richness of the autumnal tint is superb, and with the gray stone for a back ground forms a picture well worth going to look at.

Curliana.

We are glad to learn that the Peterborough Curling and Skating Rink Company flourishes financially, as we might expect from the business abilities of the Directors. A meeting to elect officers for the coming year will be held at the Huffman House on Monday evening next, at 8 o'clock, p. m, which all shareholders are expected to attend.

The Poultry Coops.

The poultry coops for the exhibition at the Agricultural Grounds have been completed by Mr. G. H. Leslie, of McDonnell street, who has charge of them, and they are all ready for the poultry. Mr. Leslie has made an excellent job of them, and the arrangement is such as to meet the approbation of all who may have poultry to exhibit. He evidently knows how to care for the feathered tribe.

Another "Hum!"

The early cold snap has quickened the householders in getting stoves and furnaces up. Even our Grit contemporary can not deny that the "hum" of the tinkers is heard in the land ascending from almost every dwelling. The old industry has received an impetus, compelling the employment of many extra hands, and our local tinsmiths are reaping a harvest. In future the phrase "as busy as a nailer" must give way to as busy as a tinker in September.

Excursion to Midland.

The excursion from the various towns and villages along the Midland Railroad to Midland City was patronized by about 500 people. Peterborough supplied a quota of fifty, and many more had intended going, but the poor accommodation supplied by the Railway Company deterred them. Those who left here were, however, transferred to better cars at Millbrook, enabling them to make the trip with comfort. The embryo Chicago of the north has grown considerably since the excursion of a year ago. A number of buildings having gone up, and a new depot being under way. The air being keener up north, many of the excursionists had taken a supply of caloric in a liquid state, which braced them against the rigors of the climate.

Fairweather & Co.

Improvements on store property along George Street have been the order for the past month or six weeks. Handsome plate glass windows have been placed in quite a large number of them. Refitting, painting and decorating has also been going on, encouraging symptoms of business confidence. Messrs. Fairweather & Co., are mentioned among others who are to have plate glass windows next spring. Their large and well located store has recently undergone improvements. Gas has also been substituted for coal oil lamps, and the appearance of the store otherwise changed and freshened up. These improvements have a good effect on their new fall stock, which they are busy marking. The dress goods department never has been so replete as now. The white and fancy goods department has also been enlarged and full stocked, The millinery department occupies the whole of the second floor and is full of the latest and choicest styles and patterns. The clothing and cloth department has also been heavily stocked. We note that they have added tea to their business, and have lately received a fine assortment at low prices.

The Grain Market.

The Wheat market to-day has a steadier tone at higher prices than for some days. Some very fine clean Spring has been sold at $1.04, other grades from $1 @ $1.03. The market seems to settle down to $1 @ $1.04 for Spring. Fall wheat has been very steady at $1.04 @ $1.05. Some of last year's Fall Wheat was sold at $1. One load of Fall, two years old, was taken at $1.02. Fall Wheat we quote at $1 @ $1.05. The receipts are heavy. Flour is being shipped in large quantities. Hall & Taylor's mills are shipping 700 barrels sold for delivery. Denne & Sperry's mill has been shipping all the week, and about 1,000 barrels have gone forward. The Otonabee Mills, G. C. Rogers, has shipped 200 barrels. These mills, including Hilliard's and Clegg's, are milling and preparing for shipment from three to four thousand barrels per week. Barley is now coming forward more rapidly, and several fine loads have been received to-day. The price has slightly advanced, and 50 cts. @ 55 cts. may now be quoted. Oats have also advanced, and 28 cts. @ 30 cts. is being paid for choice lots. Peas have advanced; some fine large peas were taken at 58 cts.

Friendly "Crack" with our Merchant.

Just at this period when so much attention is being directed to the subject of judicious advertising a few words with our merchants as to the most attractive and remunerative methods of public announcements will prove serviceable:—Our primary interest in advertising is to get as much money as possible from our patrons; a secondary idea is to give patrons the greatest value for their money. If the latter is neglected, the former cannot be successful. On the same principle a merchant tailor is most concerned to get a good price for a suit of clothes, but he is also anxious that the suit shall fit his customer and wear well; otherwise he cannot expect to retain his patron's custom. Those who advertise regularly or casually in newspapers have a variety of ideas with regard to the kind of advertising that pays best. The writer has had a good opportunity of hearing the views of the public on this matter, and has had experience enough to form opinions of his own which it can do no harm to express. The great point of divergence is respecting the relative value of the display columns and the solid, or reading matter, columns in which to insert advertisements. Perhaps half the people who deal with newspapers think that a line in the "local," columns is worth two lines in the advertising columns; some go so far as to say in so many words that a line in the "local" is as good as ten lines in the display columns. The principle upon which this conclusion is based is that people buy newspapers for the sake of the news columns, editorials, and selected reading only; that they never read advertisements willingly, but must be tricked into doing so, either by the use of large black lines, by placing the advertisement so close to reading matter that the eye searching for the latter takes in the former involuntarily, or by disguising the advertisement as a piece of local news so that the reader in search of the result of a cricket match will be compelled to see that Mr. Jones sells watermelons at four cents apiece. Our opinion may not be accepted as a disinterested one, but it is none the less an honest one, founded upon the experience of many years—and we say emphatically that this preference for advertisements in the local columns is unwarranted. People do not need to be tricked into reading advertisements. They read them of their own accord, and for their own profit. An honest advertiser, who carries out his promises—whether it is to sell cheap goods, or goods of a superior quality, or some patent article of real value—has no occasion to disguise his advertisement. To draw illustrations from the columns of the REVIEW: Messrs. T. Dolan & Co. occupy one hundred lines of space upon the second or third page, which space is sometimes for special reasons temporarily doubled. Their advertisements are carefully written, and form the principal means of letting their customers know what the have to sell. Does anyone suppose they would draw as many customers, if their announcements were split up into little paragraphs and scattered through the reading matter? No. The ladies who patronize them have learned to look for their semi-weekly new advertisements. They have learned that any line of goods described in the advertisement will be found in the store, and will be sold at the price specified. They do not read this advertisement by accident, but purposely and with the intention of obtaining information about dry goods, and they look for it in its proper place. Housekeepers regularly scan the "Situations Wanted" to see what servants are at their command, and the "To-Lets" to see if they can get a better, or more eligibly located dwelling house without an increase of rent. In a word the people have learned to use the advertising columns of the newspaper as a directory. We are indebted to the Hamilton Spectator for some of the suggestions contained above.

LACONICS.

—Who would be without a dog. Store keepers are delighted with them.

—Frost has made its appearance and for several mornings, it has favoured us with reminder that winter is coming on apace.

—Pigs are ornamenting our streets, by upturning the earth in front of some of our handsome residences.

—The shop windows along George street are now very attractive, and many ladies may be seen on the fine afternoons we are having, inspecting there from displays.

—Heavy shipments of flour are being made by the millers, and from 500 to 1,000 barrels are being daily shipped.

—His Worship, Mayor Lundy returned from Midland last night. He is looking bright and cheerful.

—Kempt's drug store is receiving a coat of paint and some internal improvements, which, with the beautiful plate glass windows is making it very attractive.

—The Midland Railway is severely taxed to furnish cars in sufficient number to forward the wheat, flour and lumber that is now going forward.

Worth its Weight in Gold.

When we hear anybody say that such and such a thing is worth its weight in gold we think they are indulging in hyperbole, and pass the matter with a smile. But numbers of invalids who have once partaken of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL in combination with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA say they would not be without it for any consideration. And no wonder for in all cases of General Debility or Chronic Coughs, in fact, any pulmonary complaint and consumption it is worth its weight in gold. d53-w36-1m

Special Telegram to the Review, Sept. 27.

The Railway Debentures.—Several members of the Council objecting to the payment of the Railway debentures asked for by Mr. Joly, the matter has been referred to the legal adviser of the Corporation, with the conditions on which the million was voted.

Curling Stones.—The Chronicle, this morning, says the Allan mail steamer sailing this morning carries with her eight pair of curling stones, consigned to Lord Dufferin at St. Petersburg.

THE YELLOW FEVER.

AID FOR MEMPHIS.

New York, Sept. 27.—The Chamber of Commerce sent $3,000 to the Memphis sufferers yesterday.

BOBCAYGEON.

Bold and Successful.—The Independent says:—A man named Maguire, one of the smartest river drivers in Mr. Boyd's employ, successfully accomplished this week one of the boldest exploits ever attempted on these waters. A drive of about fifteen thousand logs was at Fenelon on its way to this village. Owing to high and contrary winds the steamboat could not tow it down the lake, and it was made fast to the shore near the mouth of the Lindsay river. Maguire was left to take charge of the drive, which was enclosed in a boom. One morning the wind chopped round and blew fair. Striking his tent on the shore, he got his tent and provisions on two big logs, which he lashed together and cast the whole drive loose. He was three days on his voyage, and found that sleeping on two floating saw logs, adrift in the lake was not altogether what it is cracked up to be, but on the third morning he got his drive into the bay above the mill and triumphantly moored it there in safety.

New Bridge.—Mr. Rannie has commenced operations on the new bridge, and is progressing vigorously with the work. A temporary bridge has been erected, and the old bridge removed. Blasting and quarrying are going on and the new bridge will be open early in the season.

COBOURG.

Immigrants.—The Star says, on Wednesday and Thursday two parties of immigrants passed through here on their way west. The first party was composed of well-to-do farmers to the number of seventy. They were bound for the Little Saskatchewan district, where there is an embryo city. This party has with them over $50,000. Among them are two younger sons of peers, a retired colonel and his wife, who is the daughter of a baron. The other party numbered 111, principally English and Scotch, most of who will stay in Ontario.

On Her Dignity.

They were fond of each other, very, and had been engaged. But they quarreled, and were too proud to make it up. He called a few days ago at her father's house—to see the old gentleman, on business, of course. She answered the ring at the door. Said he: "Ah! Miss ———, I believe. Is your father within?"

"No, sir," she replied, "Pa is not in at present. Did you wish to see him personally."

"Yes, Miss," was his bluff response, feeling that she was yielding—"on very particular personal business." And he proudly turned to go away.

"I beg your pardon," she called after him as he struck the lower step, but who shall I say called?"

He never smiled again.—Cincinnati Commercial.

NEW RUSSIAN LOAN.

London, Sept. 27.—It is reported that a new Russian 4½ per cent loan of 15,000,000 or 20,000,000 is about to be offered for the construction of railways. A larger loan on account of the war material may follow.

THE RUSSIAN PRESS.

Berlin, Sept. 27.—A last caution has been given to the Russian newspaper Ruskaia Pravda. Several Russian journals have made a bold attack upon the Russian Government respecting the Turkoman expedition, the cession of Kuldja to China, and the disregard of all economy in the public service.

A TURKISH PLOT.

Constantinople, Sept. 27.—It is reported that the person arrested for attempting to enter the Sultan's palace has been assassinated by a soldier at the instigation of an influential person, who had employed the prisoner to awaken the Sultan's fears of assassination. The instigation expected this would strengthen him in the official position he was holding, and from which he feared removal.

GOLD FOR NEW YORK.

London, Sept. 27.—Seventy thousand pounds of gold was purchased for shipment to New York on Friday. It is expected that 200,000 pounds gold just arrived from Australia will also go to New York.

CURTAILING PRODUCTION.

London, Sept. 27.—The short time movement in the Oldham Cotton trade is extending and four-fifths of the trade are now curtailing production.

FIELD AND TILDEN.

New York, Sept. 27.—Cyrus W. Field publishes a long reply to Tilden, charging the latter with deceit and falsehood.

A COUNTRY SEAT FOR GRANT.

It is rumored that Gen. Grant has been negotiating for the purchase of the Garner Mansion, Staten Island, for his country seat.

THE PRESIDENTIAL PROGRESS.

Burlingame, Kansas, Sept. 27.—All yesterday the progress of the Presidential party was marked by a continued ovation. The President is greatly pleased with the hospitality shown him at the reception in Kansas and by the enthusiasm and cordiality everywhere spontaneous and overwhelming.

AN ELOPMENT WITH AN HEIRESS.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 27.—John Walker, who was abduced to present his elopement with Miss McClellan was released yesterday morning. Miss McClellan has disappeared. It is believed that she has met Walker, and that they have been married. She is an orphan worth $100,000.

NOT A SECRET SOCIETY.

Philadelphia, Sept. 27.—Archbishop Wood decides that the Grand Army of the Republic is not a secret society, and that Roman Catholics can be members.

THE GREAT WALKING MATCH.

New York, Sept. 27.—Rowell charges that he was poisoned by eating grapes handed him by a spectator while walking Thursday night. The doctor thinks the grapes might have been simply indigestible. Grapes were given to other walkers but those who ate them did not suffer. Hazael's trainer says his man will run 50 miles to-day.

New York, Sept. 27.—Fully 15,000 persons were in the garden this morning at 8 o'clock, and 1,400 remained throughout the night. The score at 1 o'clock was:—Weston, 434; Rowell, 499; Hazal, 473; Guyon, 452; Ennis, 418; Merritt, 488; Hart, 453; Khron, 417; Taylor, 226. Rowell finished his 500th mile at 1.02 amid vociferous cheering, the bands playing "God Save the Queen." The total receipts will be nearly $80,000.

DEDICATION OF A CHURCH.

Norwich, Conn., Sept. 27.—The greatest demonstration of Roman Catholics ever seen in Connecticut takes place to-morrow at the dedication of St. Patrick's Church.

GRANT AND A THIRD TERM.

San Francisco, Sept. 27.—Gen. Grant, when asked by a reporter concerning a third term yesterday, replied, "Well, I don't aspire." He made no further response, when the reporter asked him what he would do if the nomination were tendered him in a political exigency.

MURDERED BY TRAMPS.

Portland, Me., Sept. 27.—Soseph A. Lowe, a farmer at West Cumberland, went home from a dance at a fair last night. He was found this morning in a barn murdered. Tramps are suspected.

PRESIDENTAL PROGRESS.

Topeka, Ka., Sept. 27.—The President arrived last night. The city is beautifully illuminated. A public reception will be given at the State House this morning, after which the party leaves for Lawrence and Leavenworth.

A Texas Sensation.

Yesterday while one of the busy item snatchers of the Democrat was perambulating the streets, seeking news for these columns, he was informed of a tragedy alleged to have occurred in the edge of Johnson county. The following are the facts as related:—

"On Tuesday evening a lady was entertaining two of her lady friends at her house, and during the conversation, mentioned the fact that she had recently obtained a sum of money from an estate of which she was one of the devisees, and expressed considerable uneasiness on account of her husband's absence, for fear she might be robbed. The ladies sympathized with her in her mental distress, and after a pleasant chat took their departure. That night a wayfaring man sought accommodations at the house, which were at first denied him on account of the absence of the "man of the house"—but the stranger proposing to sleep on the gallery and care for his horse, he was permitted to stay. During the night he was awakened by a noise in the room of the mistress of the place, and peering in at the window saw two negroes choking the woman. He fired upon and killed them both. At the sound of the pistol two men ran out of the yard, and he fired upon them but with what effect is not known. Upon investigating it was discovered that the assailants were not negroes but the lady's guests of the previous evening disguised as negroes, and the men who ran are supposed to be their husbands.—Fort Worth Democrat.

FIXING THE ZULU BOUNDARIES.

London, Sept. 26.—A despatch from Cape Colony states that Sir Bartle Frere, in connection with Sir Garnet Wolseley, has appointed a commission to fix the boundaries of thirteen territories in Zululand, assigning each of these Provinces to the hereditary chieftain of the tribe which occupies them. All the hostile tribes have now thoroughly submitted and no apprehension of war is entertained.

CETEWAYO'S DEMEANOR.

King Cetewayo impresses all who come into his presence with his kingly and dignified behaviour. He discloses admirable qualities of mind, a keen appreciation of the condition of his own people, and the manner in which this disastrous war was forced upon him. He is without much education, although he is by no ignorant. He shows the qualities of an excellent statesman. He is a keen reader of human nature and skilful tactician and warrior. At the moment of his capture, when his pursuers attempted to seize him, Cetewayo stretched forth his hands, saying in a composed and tranquil voice, "kill me if you like, but do not touch me. The person of a Zulu King is sacred." This appeal was respected by his capturers, and since then no restraint other than his own parole has been placed upon him.

THE EXPEDITION TO MERV.

The Russian telegraph lines have been repeatedly cut by Turcomans. News has been received from the advanced detachment of the expedition against the Teke Turcomans across the Kopet Dagh, accompanied with an urgent petition for reinforcements. Another division has been ordered to assemble at Baku.

ONE BROTHER KILLS ANOTHER.

A Cold Blooded Murder at Lambton Mills—The Result of a Quarrel over a Dead Parent's Property.

A most horrible and cold blooded murder was committed yesterday at Lambton Mills, a few miles west of Toronto, by one brother shooting another. It seems that Robert and Edward DeCoursier, have been at variance for some time about money matters, and Edward having obtained a judgment against Robert, and the Sheriff being about to sell the later's property, in order to satisfy the execution, Robert yesterday deliberately lay in wait for Edward, and shot him without a word passing between them, much less of warning. Having killed his brother, Robert returned home, and attempted to poison himself by taking prussic acid. In this, however, owing to the exertions of a doctor, he proved unsuccessful, and he is now in safe custody.

MANTELS AND THEIR ARRANGEMENTS.

New fashions in mantel-piece decorations are springing up every day. Those who can afford to go to an artistic upholsterer for their chimney piece adornments, in the shape of "over mantels," may be well nigh bewildered by the fascinating combinations of velvet and carved wood (the latter either ebonized or stained or polished a deep, lustrous olive, or painted a delicate cream, or green or pink, or left to its own tone of brown), with decorated panels and tiles, and stamped and gilt leather. All, however, have not purses long enough to allow them to indulge in such charming extravagances, and it is to these the following suggestions are made:—If you have a wood "over mantel," it should match the wood work of the room. A triple shelf of velvet, with supports and background of the same material, is a pretty and not an expensive decoration over a drawing room or boudoir mantel piece; the upper shelf should be narrower than the lower, and they may be decked with any lace or Persian, Japanese or Indian embroidery. The velvet should harmonize with the predominant tint of the room, but must not be too light or bright a shade—deep olive claret or dark peacock are the most effective. It should be remembered that the purpose of these shelves is to hold ornaments, and that they require a most alarming mount of bric-a-brac, so if you have not enough china to fill them well, it will be better for you to eschew them altogether, and turn your decorative art in another direction. Another pretty idea, especial suitable to a boudoir, is a continuation of the mental board in the form of a velvet screen of any shape you like against the wall above; this not only makes a good background for the ornaments of the mantel-piece, but it is itself a fine field for decoration, as odds and ends of all kinds look well on it. It is a good plan to have in the middle of the screen a small painting or a Dresden or Venetian mirror. This forms a centre, and around it you may hang all manner of things—Indian jewelry, photographs, Japanese screens, quaint fans, china plates and plaques, old foreign beads, carved ivories, old daggers; in fact, the thousand one nick nacks a woman's soul delight in. These will all look well if prudently arranged, so that a certain harmony shall among the heterogeneous collection, and each article shall depend for part of its effect upon another. If you are fortunate to possess small prints, family miniatures or even fairly good water color sketches, they will look charming sunk in such a velvet screen.

Curious Letters.

"My mother, New York, America," was the address of a letter received at New York, and preparations were made to send it to the Dead Letter Office. The same day, however, a woman called at the general delivery window, and asked for a letter from her son. The gentleman who had charge of the deciphering bureau was struck with the coincident, and sent for the letter alluded to above. He asked the woman where her son lived, and when she gave the name of the town, it was found to be the same as the postmark on the letter. Other inquiries justified the official in delivering the letter to the woman, but he insisted that she should open it there, and, on examination, it was discovered that it was from her son, and that she was the person for whom it was intended. Of course, if she had asked for a letter addressed to her name, the answer would have been that there was no such letter. Among other curious letters received lately was one addressed to "J. H. Johnson, wagon and plough maker; all kinds of work promptly attended to; America."

Worth its Weight in Gold.

When we hear anybody say that such and such a thing is worth its weight in gold we think they are indulging in hyperbole, and pass the matter with a smile. But numbers of invalids who have once partaken of Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil in combination with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda say they would not be without it for any consideration. And no wonder for in all cases of General Debility or Chronic Coughs, in fact, any pulmonary complaint and consumption it is worth its weight in gold. [illegible]-w36-1y

☞ Business Men, Hotel-Keepers, Lodging-House Keepers, and every one with an article to sell, or a want to supply, should ADVERTISE in the REVIEW.

THE DAILY REVIEW FOR NEXT WEEK.

According to our announcement, we have this week published and distributed THREE THOUSAND copies of the WEEKLY REVIEW. The appeal made to the business men of Peterborough to seize such an excellent opportunity of bringing their goods under the notice of the large population comprised in the old Newcastle district, has been responded to in a manner which so far exceeded our most sanguine expectations, as to necessitate the refusal of of more than one advertisement, notwithstanding that we had added a supplement for the occasion.

The liberality and enterprise on the part of our patrons, and the proof which it affords of the estimation in which both editions of the REVIEW are held by our merchants and manufacturers as an advertising medium, nerves us to make every legitimate effort to give them even more than we promised when soliciting their patronage.

To this end, and in view of the orders already received, we have decided to issue the DAILY EVENING REVIEW in A DOUBLE SHEET FORM during the three days of the Exhibition, and trust that those who have neglected to test the value of printers' ink in our great weekly issue, or who were disappointed in getting their advertisements into the same, wil hand in their copy for the coming week as soon as possible.

As already announced, we have secured extra and efficient editorial assistance to overtake the work of the week, and render the DAILY EVENING REVIEW replete with the fullest and latest reports of exhibition and local events, which, combined with its extensive telegraphic despatches received each day up to the hour of going to press, will make it in every respect A REAL LIVE NEWSPAPER, and NOT A MERE ADVERTISING SHEET issued for the occasion.

During the whole of the Exhibition week the Daily Review will be sold for ONE CENT per copy, and in order to secure its widest distribution, and the greatest advantage to our patrons, an additional staff of carrier boys will be engaged for the purpose of distributing it thoroughly throughout the town and Ashburnham, and on the Exhibition grounds, and arrangements have been made for its sale on all morning trains arriving in Peterborough from Millbrook on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The number of copies thus issued each day will be very large, and fully adequate to the demand, and this is all that is desirable, as a paper that is bought is always read, while those distributed gratitously are seldom considered worthy of more than a passing glance—if even that.

For the accommodation of our citizens who are not already subscribers, and who may desire to have it regularly delivered to them during the week—especially if they are entertaining friends—we will deliver the Daily regularly for the whole week for the sum of FIVE CENTS, by their leaving their orders, accompanied by the cash, at the office of publication.

As OUR WEEKLY for the 3rd of October will contain the earliest complete List of Prizes awarded at the Central Exhibition, it will undoubtedly prove an unusually good medium for advertisements, which those who missed the last issue, or who have only ordered their advertisements in once in the Weekly, will do well to take advantage of. To prevent disappointment, and enable us to do full justice to their orders, they should however be sent in early.

THE GATLING MINE.

Annual Meeting of Shareholders—Election of Directors.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Gatling Gold and Silver Mining Company was held in Belleville, on Thursday afternoon, and was attended by the largest stockholders holding proxies for a great many others.

We understand arrangements are being made for working this mine, and that there is every reason to believe that the valuable industry of gold mining in North Hastings will at an early date be developed.

The surface indications of mineral wealth in the northern part of our county are very great, and we think that some of the surplus capital of our large commercial centres, might find much more profitable investment in mining as a business, not as a speculation, than in bank and other stocks, and the country at large would be vastly more benefitted.

The following Directors were elected:—Geo. D. Dickson, Belleville; H. T. Strickland, Peterborough; Gen. J. M. Tuttle, DesMoines, Iowa; W. J. Gatling, Belleville; John Burnham, M.P., Peterborough; John Thomas, Indianapolis, Ind.; Wm. Sutherland, Belleville.

M. Dickson was elected President; Mr. Strickland, Vice-President, and Mr. Sutherland, Secretary.—Belleville Intelligencer.

IRELAND.

The Earl of Dufferin, Her Majesty's Ambassador at the Court of St. Petersburg, has arrived at his seat, Clandeboye, County Down.

The Government have issued a Commission upon the sanitary state of Dublin, consisting of Mr. Rawlinson and Dr. M'Cabe, of the Local Government Board.

The export of Irish cattle is again on the increase, there having been 14,527 beasts and 29,000 sheep sent across the Channel in one week, together with nearly 4,000 swine and 1,000 horses.

A Limerick farmer who had introduced machinery into his hay field has been attacked by three men who wore armed with pistols and had blackened faces, and was warned that if he did not abandon the use of machinery his life would be taken.

The Commissioners of Dublin Police have compelled a police constable to resign, and lowered in rank a sergeant of their force for having arrested Mr. Taylor, a temperance lecturer, on a charge of drunkenness, it having been proved that he was perfectly sober at the time.

A mendicant named Mallon, who has long preyed on the charitable people of Waterford, and evidently to some purpose, was on Sept. 1st arrested for assault. He had on his person £41 in gold and bank notes, a Saving's Bank book with $80 to his credit, and deposit receipts for £250. As the man whom he had assaulted is in rather a critical condition, Mallon was remanded.

A WORD IN SEASON.

We are close upon one of the great changes of climate, when extra precautions are rendered necessary for the preservation of health. This subject—of paramount importance to every one—is too generally regarded with unthinking indifference or positive neglect. The climate of our country, varying from one extreme to another, may be called, upon the whole, a healthy one, and while we can not boast, within the borders of Canada, the sunny quarters which southern latitudes offer to the invalid, yet due precautions are all that are requisite for uninterrupted physical well-being. Too often when winter is approaching, the admonitions we receive of the fact are unheeded until colds, more or less severe—often culminating in chronic and incurable disease—are contracted, and regret is bitterly felt at that lack of foresight which, by violating nature's law, has brought its swift and sure penalty. Strange as it must appear on reflecting to every thinking mind, no subject having so important a bearing on us, not alone physically, but in our mental condition, affecting our lives here and our fitness for a higher and a future existence, is, as a rule, positively overlooked until disease steps in, compelling attention to our neglected duty. Education here is lamentably defficient, and while the experience of the most thoughtful people of antiquity and modern civilization in its higher forms in America and Europe all attest the importance of physical culture, yet physiology and hygiene, when taught at all, occupy but an inferior place in the curriculum of study. Much, very much of this is no doubt due to that mistaken conception of religious duty which has blighted the progress of true Christianity, and through which, for many centuries, the privations and even abuse of the body were esteemed as a virtue. The passions, excess of which, ending in vice, were regarded as the result of corrupt physical natures; fastings, lashings, and even maiming were resorted to in the vain hope of reaching, by such aid, a perfection that only distorted imaginations could picture. Thus the body, instead of being held equally with the mind and spirit as a gift from the same beneficent Creator, was rather regarded as continually acting in opposition to his will. Such, for many ages, in modified forms, was the general idea in regard to it. Naturally, therefore, epidemics or disease were viewed as special punishments sent by the Divine Being upon offending nations or individuals, but slowly, and with the advance of knowledge, it became apparent that health and disease were subject to regular laws, just as completely as the return of the seasons or the motions of the spheres. The revolution was long in coming, and may be said not yet to be fully perfected, but the past quarter of a century has witnessed an astonishing progress. The attention of Governments and of private individuals has been given to the enquiry of the causes regulating individual and personal health, and the good which has resulted has been immense. Much remains yet to be learned, and of what has been learned, much has to be applied, and while advice upon other subjects is generally unheeded, we would warn our readers that it is within the power of each of them to increase his happiness, of which health is the most necessary ingredient, by watchfulness of his daily habits—in attention to diet, and especially at the present time, to meet the sudden atmospheric change by the early adoption of warmer clothing. The keen observation of the Duke of Wellington taught him to encounter the changeable climate of Great Britain by donning apparel suitable for each day as it came. While such an amount of attention may be unnecessary, the principle is a sound one, and no doubt did much to protract the physical and mental powers of the Iron Duke to an extreme age. We therefore urge upon our readers the duty of attending to themselves in this regard, calculated as it is to increase the comfort and usefulness of the individual, and to make no inconsiderable addition to the aggregate of human happiness.

CHEERING EVIDENCE.

The Ottawa Free Press, which is not prepossessed in favour of anything under the present administration, gives the following account of the outlook of the lumber trade:—

"Among the interests which are experiencing a very decided revival—and that wholly irrespective of the operations of the N. P.—is the one in which this city and the Ottawa Valley are most deeply concerned. We allude to the lumber interest. For years some of our largest mills have been lying idle; others have been working short time, and up to quite a recent period it seemed doubtful whether some of the latter would not close down. Now we learn that the prospect has not only become more promising, but the cheering information is vouchsafed that mills which have been idle, and which have been on the market for years without finding purchasers, are likely to be again in motion. More, that Ottawa is likely to become more important as a lumber manufacturing centre than it has ever been—thanks to the English buyers having awoke to the inconvenience and cost of importing square timber when the manfactured article can be sent to them in quantities as required at all seasons, and the services of middlemen in this country and in England entirely dispensed with. From what we learn, the mills now lying idle will shortly be employed in turning out dimension lumber for direct shipment to England. This will be advantageous not only to the importer but to the lumberers, for not only while preposterous cove dues of Quebec be permanently got rid of, but the bank interest which have exhausted many fortunes will disappear from the lumbering calculations. One of the most successful lumber kings whose mills have been shut down for the past two years is now advertising for fifty thousand saw logs—a pretty sure indication that Ottawa is about to become once again the busy hive of an industry peculiarly her own. Added to which there are signs of a business revival among our merchants, which gives promise of the speedy setting in of a new era of prosperity. These results, when they are fully realized, will undoubtedly be seized hold of by the Ministerial press as affording proof of wise and beneficial tariff legislation."

REFUTATION!

I DENY the statement contained in the circular issued by Mr. Henry Owens, that he has commenced proceedings in Chancery to restrain me from infringing on his rights, by making and selling the Cone Pump and its connections. No such proceedings have been commenced to my knowledge.

I Deny and always denied that the alleged Patent is of any value. For over five years Mr. Powell and Mr. Owens, who claims under him, have shown their want of belief in the validity of the alleged Patent, as they have never, during all that time, taken any legal steps to assert their pretended rights, although a number of pump makers as well as myself have been making these pumps and although Mr. Owens and Mr. Powell know that my solicitors have for long been instructed to defend any legal proceedings they or either of them might take to establish the validity of the alleged Patent.

I Deny that the 23rd Section of Canada Patent Act is to the effect represented in the circular referred to, and any interested may satisfy themselves of the correctness of my denial by referring to the section for themselves.

I Assert that the said circular is issued for the purpose of damaging my business as a manufacturer of pumps, and at my expense increasing the business of Mr. Owens. Had it been otherwise, Mr. Owens has had ample time to establish his patent in an honorable and straightforward way through the Court of Chancery, which he has not done.

I Assert that I have commenced AN ACTION against Mr. Owens in the Court of Common Pleas for $2,000 for the purpose of recovering against him damages for the injury said circular is intended to do to my business as a pump maker.

I Assert that all wanting GOOD PUMPS can be well and cheaply suited by me, and that I AM PREPARED TO STAND BETWEEN THEM AND ANY PRETENDED CLAIMS OF MR. OWENS.

Notice to Contractors.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the Secretary of Public Works, and endorsed "Tenders for Canal and Lock at St. Anne," will be received at this office until the arrival of the Eastern and Western mails on FRIDAY the 10th DAY OF OCTOBER next, for the construction of a Lock and the formation of approaches to it on the landward side of the present lock at St. Anne.

A map of the locality, together with plans and specifications of the works to be done, can be seen at this office and at the Resident Engineer's office, at St. Anne, on and after SATURDAY the 27th DAY OF SEPTEMBER next, at either of which places printed forms of Tender can be obtained.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and—in the case of firms, except there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation and residence of each member of the same; and further, an accepted Bank cheque for the sum of $2000 must accompany the tender, which sum shall be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the works, at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

For the due fulfilment of the contract, satisfactory security will be required by the deposit of money to the amount of five per cent. on the bulk sum of the contract; of which the sum sent in with the Tender will be considered a part.

Ninety per cent only of the progress estimates will be paid until the completion of the work.

To each Tender must be attached the actual signatures of two responsible and solvent persons, residents of the Dominion, willing to become sureties for the carrying out of these conditions, as well as the due performance of the works embraced in the contract.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
F. BRAUN,
Secretary.

"SOMEBODY'S MOTHER."

The woman was old and ragged and gray,
And bent with the chill of the winter's day;
The streets were white with a recent snow,
And the woman's feet with age were slow.

Down the street, with laughter and shout,
Glad in the freedom of "school let out,"
Came happy boys like a flock of sheep,
Hailing the snow, piled white and deep,
Past the woman, so old and gray,
Hastened the children on their way.

None offered a helping hand to her,
So weak, so timid, afraid to stir,
Lest the carriage wheels or the horses' feet
Should trample her down in the slippery street.

At last came out of the merry troop,
The gayest boy of all the group;
He paused beside her, and whispered low,
"I'll help you across if you wish to go!"

Her aged hand on his strong, young arm
She placed, and so, without hurt or harm,
He guided her trembling feet along,
Proud that his own were firm and strong;
Then back again to his friends he went,
His young heart happy and well content.

"She's 'Somebody's Mother,' boys, you know,
For all she is aged, and poor, and slow,
And some one, some time may lend a hand
To help my mother—you understand—
If even she's poor, and old, and gray,
And her own dear boy is far away!"

"Somebody's Mother" bowed low her head
In her home that night, and the prayer she said
Was "God be kind to that noble boy,
Who is Somebody's Son, and pride, and joy."

ANECDOTES OF DOCTORS.

A good story is told of Sir Richard Jebb, who was once paid three guineas by a nobleman from whom he had a right to expect five. The doctor dropped the coins on the carpet, when a servant picked them up and restored them. But Sir Richard, instead of walking off, continued his search on the carpet.

"Are all the guineas found?" asked his lordship, looking round.

"There must be two still on the floor," was Sir Richard's answer, "for I have only three."

The hint of course was taken, and the right sum made up.

Another physician, who had been accustomed to receive a three-guinea fee from an old lady patient, received one day only two, and had recourse to one part of Sir Richard's edifice, and assuming that the third guinea had been dropped, through his carelessness, looked about on the floor for it. The result, however, was rather disappointing.

"Nay, Nay," said the old lady with a smile; "you are not in fault. It is I who dropped it."

Though there are numerous instances of large sums being received by doctors for successful treatment of their patients, it is rarely that they reap substantial benefit, beyond their ordinary fees, in cases of failure; instances, however, are known.

A story is told of a French lady who put herself into the hands of a surgeon to be bled; the operator used his lancet so clumsily that instead of a vein, he cut an artery. This mishap eventually caused the death of the lady. With a mixture of humanity and irony, she made a will in which she bequeathed a life-annuity of eight hundred livres to the surgeon on condition "that he never again bled anybody as long as he lived."

A Polish princess, about a hundred years ago, who lost her life in similar circumstances, had the following clause inserted in her will: "Convinced of the injury that my unfortunate accident will occasion to the unhappy surgeon who is the cause of my death, I bequeath to him a life-annuity of two hundred ducats, secured by my estate, and forgive his mistake from my heart. I wish this may indemnify him for the discredit which my sorrowful catastrophe will bring upon him."

On one occasion the famous Dr. Abernethy was forced to own that he had the worst of it. The story runs thus. He was sent for one day in great haste by an innkeeper, whose wife had, in a quarrel, scratched his face with her nails to such an extent that the poor man was bleeding and much disfigured. Abernethy thought this an opportunity not to be lost for admonishing the offender, and said, "Madam, are you not ashamed of yourself to treat your husband thus—the husband who is the head of all—your head, in fact?"

"Well, doctor," fiercely returned the virago, "and may I not scratch my own head?"

A gentleman once asked Abernethy if he thought the moderate use of snuff would "injure the brain."

"No, sir," was the doctor's prompt reply; "for no man with a single ounce of brains would ever think of taking snuff."

Patients doubtless often amuse by their idiosyncrasies the medical men they consult. According to Dean Ramsay, Dr. Gregory—"of immortal Mixture memory"—used to tell a story of an old Highland chieftain, intended to show how such Celtic potentates were once held to be superior to all the usual consideration which affect ordinary mortals. The doctor, after due examination, had in his usual decided and blunt manner pronounced the liver of the Highlander to be at fault, and to be the cause of his ill health. His patient, who could not but consider this as taking a great liberty with a Highland chieftain, roared out: "And what business is it of yours whether I have a liver or not?"

We are also indebted to the dean's Reminiscences for the two following stories:—

"An old lady about seventy years of age sent for her medical attendant to consult him about a sore throat, which had troubled her for some days. The doctor, decked out with the now prevailing fashion, a moustache and flowing beard, was ushered into her room. The old lady—after exchanging the usual civilities, described her complaint to the worthy son of Æsculapius.

"'Well,' said he, 'do you know, Mrs. Macfarlane. I used to be much troubled with the very same kind of sore throat; but ever since I allowed my mustache and beard to grow, I have never been troubled with it.'

"'A-weel, a-weel,' said the old lady, dryly, 'that may be the case; but ye maun prescribe some other method for me to get quit o' the sair throat; for ye ken, doctor, I canna adopt that cure.'"

"A servant of an old maiden lady, a patient of Dr. Pool, formerly of Edinburg, was under orders to go to the doctor every morning to report the state of her health, how she had slept etc., with strict injunctions always to prefix, 'with her compliments.' At length one morning the girl brought this extraordinary message: 'Miss S——'s compliments, and she died last night at eight o'clock!'"

We will bring our gossip to an end with a story illustrating the varying degrees of feeling, regulated by the state of his health, with which a patient may be said to regard his medical adviser. It is related of Bouvart, a French physician, that one morning as he entered the chamber of a certain marquis whom he had attended through a very dangerous illness, he was addressed by his noble patient thus: "Good-day to you, Mr. Bouvart. I feel quite in spirits, and think my fever has left me."

"I am sure it has," replied Bouvart, dryly. "The very first expression you used convinced me of it."

"Pray explain yourself," said the marquis.

"Nothing is easier," was the doctor's reply. "In the first days of your illness, when your life was in danger, I was your 'dearest friend;' as you began to get better, I was your 'good Bouvart;' and now I am 'Mr. Bouvart.' Depend upon it you are quite recovered."—Harper's Weekly.

THE EARL AND HIS COACHMAN.

The father of a late Earl of Pembroke had many good qualities, but always persisted inflexible in his own opinion, which, as well as his conduct, was often very singular. His lordship thought of an ingenious expedient to prevent the complaints of those about him, and this was to feign himself deaf; and thus under pretence of hearing very imperfectly, he would always form his own answers, not by what was said so him, but by what he desired to have said.

Among other servants was one who had lived with him from a child, and served him with great fidelity in several capacities, till at length he became coachman. This man by degrees got a habit of drinking, for which his lady often desired he might be dismissed. My lord always answered, "Yes, indeed, John is an excellent servant."

"I say," replied the lady, "that he is continually drunk, and therefore desires he may be turned off."

"Ay," said his lordship, "he has lived with me from a child, and, as you say, a trifle of wages should not part us."

John, however, one evening, as he was driving from Kensington, overturned his lady in Hyde Park. Though not much hurt, yet when she came home she began to rattle the earl.

"Here," says she, "is that John, so drunk, that he can scarcely stand: he has overturned the coach, and if he is not discharged he will one day break our necks."

"Ay," says my lord, "is poor John sick? Alas, I am sorry for him."

"I am complaining," says my lady, "that he is drunk, and has overturned me."

"Ay," replied my lord, "to be sure he has behaved very well, and shall have proper advice."

My lady, finding it useless to remonstrate, went away in a passion; and the earl, having ordered John into his presence, addressed him vern coolly in these terms: "John, you know that I have a regard for you, and as long as you behave well you shall always be taken care of in my family. My lady tells me you are taken ill, and indeed I see that you can hardly stand: go to bed, and I will take care that you have proper advice."

John, being thus dismissed, was carried to bed, where, by his lordship's order, a large blister was put on his head, another between his shoulders, and sixteen ounces of blood taken from his arm. John found himself next morning in a woeful condition, and was soon acquainted with the whole process and the reasons on which it was made. He had no remedy but to submit, for he would rather have endured ten blisters than lose his place. His lordship sent very formally twice a day to know how he did, and frequently congratulated his lady upon John's recovery, whom he directed to be fed only with water-gruel, and to have no company but an old woman who acted as his nurse.

In about a week, John having constantly sent word that he was well, his lordship thought fit to understand the messenger, and said he was extremely glad to hear the fever had quite left him, and desired to see him. When John came in, "Well, John" says his lordship, "I hope this bout is over."

"Ah, my lord," says John, "I humbly ask your lordship's pardon, and I promise never to commit the same fault again."

"Ay, ay," replied my lord, "you say right; nobody can prevent sickness, and if you should be ill again, John, I shall see it, though perhaps you would not complain; and I promise you that you shall have always the same advice and the same attendance that you have had now."

"Thank your lordship," says John, "I hope there will be no need."

"So do I," says the earl; "but as long as you you perform your duty to me, John, I will do mine to you, never fear."

John then withdrew, and so dreaded the discipline he had undergone that he never was known to be drunk again.

SCOTLAND.

A SOLDIER from Hamilton Barracks has been sent for sixty days to prison for having with a knife stabbed three milch cows.

IN view of the approaching visit of the Prince of Wales to Abergeldie, for deer stalking, the house and grounds are being renovated.

THE family seat at Inverary, having now been completely restored, its occupancy by the ducal establishment is resumed after an interval of close upon two years.

THE Musselburgh authorities have now taken the final steps for procuring a supply of water to the burgh before the termination of the present year, at at a cost of over £8,000.

A SCENE of great novelty and excitement was witnessed at Wick on the 4th September. Early in the forenoon a large shoal of herrings approached the harbor mouth, and swarmed into the harbour and to the back of the north and south quays.

MORE than a week has elapsed since Colonel Bourne disappeared at Inverary, having, as it is believed, fallen over a precipice into a mountain stream while out fishing alone in Glenfyne. A most laborious search has been made for the body, but as yet without success.

STEPS are about to be taken to pull down the old chapel adjacent to the old Collegiate Church of Tain, and situated within the burying ground. This old chapel is one of the most ancient relics of the district. It seems to have been built at a very early date, some say about the year 1300.

As Mr. Macdonald, Culcraggie, was out some days ago, having a day's shooting near the Dibidale forest, his attention was attracted by a black object far away up in the sky, which proved to be a raven. He soon brought him down, when the bird proved to be one of enormous size, measuring from tip to tip 4 feet 6 inches, and having claws almost worthy of an eagle.

MISCELLANEOUS.

IT is now announced from London that Mr. Lantry is about to commence a suit against the journal which first put about an unfounded story of his intention to bring an action against his wife and the Prince of Wales in the matrimonial courts.

A MAN was found dead at Newpoint, Ind., with a bullet in his head. A hint at the manner of his death was given by the evidence of an interrupted game of poker. In his hand were four kings, while four queens lay near by, having probably been dropped by his exasperated antagonist and murderer.

THE POET LAUREATE.—What is a name worth? A good deal apparently in the case of Alfred Tennyson, who is so fully alive to the magic charm of his patronymic that he has declined to become the heir of certain estates in Lincolnshire rather than exchange it for that of Turner. The Laureate's elder brother inherited Greaby Hall and some neighboring farms many years back, and for the sake of £1,000 or £2,000 a year which they yielded he entirely dropped the Tennyson and became the Rev. Charles Turner, a name which stands on the title page of his book of sonnets. He died a few days ago leaving no issue, and his wife followed him to the grave within a few weeks. The next heir is the Laureate, but he will not accept the condition which rigorously enforces the entire suppression of the Tennyson. Doubtless there will be found a brother or a nephew if not a son, willing to forgo the the prestige attached to the family name for the sake of a comfortable inheritance, but the succession is still, I believe, unsettled.

Commercial.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

SATURDAY, Sept. 27.—The market this morning was large and an animated one. The farm and truck waggons extended around the entire square, and were all well filled. Potatoes were abundance, and sold at 50 @ 55c. per bag, some fine lots, however, were sold at 60c. per bag. we do not, in consequence, change our quotations. Onions were in better supply, and we have to note a change in quotations; reds, fine and large at 75cts @ $1.00 per bushel; yellows, several fine lots were selling at 80c @ $1.00; whites, for pickling, $2.00. Turnips, Swedes were selling at 15 @ 20c per bushel. Tomatoes, not so plenty, and higher prices were paid, and $1.00 per bushel ruled. Cabbages, plenty, at 3 @ 5c per head. Apples, King Pippins, at 50 @ 75c per bag; fall pippins, 60c per bag; one lot of fine large cooking apples at $2.00 per barrel; Lawrences at $2.50 per barrel; Beauty of Kent at $2.25 per barrel. Pears, $1.50 @ $1.60 per bushel. Plums, plenty, at 40cts per pail. Chickens, dressed, at 25 @ 30c; live, at 25c, per pair. Turkeys, dressed, at $1.00 for 15 to 17 lbs each. Geese, dressed, at 50c each. Mutton, at 5 @ 6cts. Butter, in full supply, at 12 @ 14cts. Orders are being taken for putting down at 13 @ 15c. Eggs plenty, at quotations. Honey in the comb at 15c per lb. Hay has been plenty to-day and $8.00 has been barely maintained. There is no demand for shipment.

The Heated Term—Look Out.

DON'T SIT ON THE GRASS.

The most stubborn case of Dysentery which is nothing more nor less than inflammation of the rectum, produced not unfrequently by sitting on the grass—may be cured by that most efficient cathartic, Castor Oil. Its soothing and healing properties are wonderful, but its nauseating effects make it impossible for the patient to retain it. To SCOTT & BOWNE, the public are indebted for an EMULSION OF CASTOR OIL that is not only palatable, but is pronounced by thousands who are using it, absolutely agreeable to the palate. No family can afford to be without it through the heated term. Price 25 cents. d58-w36-1m

THE

Great Cause of Human Misery

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife: pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

THE SOLARGRAPH WATCH!

☞ONLY $1.00☜

A perfect Time-keeper, Hunting-Case, and HEAVY PLATED CHAIN, latest style. We warrant it for five years to denote time as accurately as a $100 Chronometer Watch, and will give the exact time in any part of the world. It also contains a FIRST-CLASS COMPASS, worth alone the price we charge for the Time-keeper. For Men, Boys, Mechanics, School Teachers, Travellers, and Farmers it is indispensible. They are as good as a high-priced watch, and in many cases more reliable. Boys, think of it! A Hunting-Case Watch and Chain for $1.00. The SOLARGRAPH WATCH is used by the Principal of the Somerville High School, and is being fast introduced into all the schools through the United States, and is destined to become the most useful Time-keeper ever invented. The SOLAGRAPH WATCH received a Medal at the Mechanics' Fair, at Boston, in 1878.

This is no toy, but is made on scientific principals, and every one warranted to be accurate and reliable. We have made the price very low simply to introduce them at once, after which the price will be raised.

The SOLOGRAPH WATCH AND CHAIN is put up in a neat outside case, and sent by mail to any address for $1.00. We have made the price so low, please send two stamps if convenient to help pay postage. Address plainly,

LOCAL NEWS

Trent Valley Canal.

A public meeting of the inhabitants of Bobcaygeon has been called for next Monday evening, to consider the propriety of memorializing the Government to construct the Trent Valley Canal.

Curling Rink Company.

The general annual meeting of the Curling and Skating Rink Company for the election of Directors and other business has been announced to take place at the Huffman House at eight o'clock on Tuesday evening, October 7.

Missionary Sermon.

The Rev. Dr. Hodgkin, Mission Secretary to the Toronto Diocesan Board, will preach in St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, to-morrow evening. The service will commence at 7 p.m. Collection in aid of the Mission Fund.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are increasing south-easterly to south-westerly winds; cloudy weather, with rain possible, thunder in some localities. The weather has been cloudy, with wind south-easterly, most of the day.

Farm Stock Sale.

On Tuesday Sept. 30th, Mr. Chas. Stapleton will hold a credit sale of farm Stock, implements, household furniture &c., the property of John Tarlington on his premises at Lakehurst, being lot 8, in the 13 Con. of the township of Harvey, at 12 o'clock. This sale is without reserve. There will be a sheriff's sale at the same time and place.

Detention of the Mails.

The mails were one and a half hours behind time to-day, owing to the delay on the Grand Trunk. Some express freight designed for Peterborough was, owing to the confusion at Port Hope, carried beyond, and will not reach Peterborough until the night train. The Globes were among the freight thus carried forward, or were not received on board at Toronto. They will also arrive by the night train.

A Mistake.

It is a mistake to think that anything of interest to the public, or a portion of the public, ought to be inserted in a newspaper free of charge. The ladies are highly interested, they can buy cheap silks, yet Hall, Innes & Co., and Munro & Alexander have to pay a good many dollars for the privilge of telling them. Many ladies are now interested to know that Miss Semple will have a grand millinery opening than they were to learn that Cetewayo, the Zulu King, had been captured, yet the REVIEW charges Miss Semple several dollars to have the former fact announced, while it paid a fair price to the telegraph company for the latter item, and inserted it in a prominent place on the first page. Still nobody will contend that the REVIEW wrongs Miss Semple in the transaction with her.

Tramp About.

A few days since a tramp applied for something to eat at a house a short distance from town, when the servant girl directed him to the kitchen door. He refused saying he was no kitchen tramp. The servant not feeling safe on account of the absence of the men folks called for the mistress of the house, to whom he made the same remark. The courageous lady returned to her room up stairs where she slipped her husband's revolver into her pocket ready for use, and then returned to the door where the tramp informed her that "she nedn't bring any broom handles around to frighten him." The lady therefore raised the revolver and pointed it at the tramp saying "I will see what you are afraid of." The tramp did not wait to know whether she would fire or not; but made a hasty exit. Tramps had better beware how they approach ladies who may be unprotected by the male members of the family or a funeral may result.

HARVEST HOME FESTIVAL.

An Eloquent Sermon—Tasteful and Appropriate Decorations.

The first thanksgiving services of this nature ever held in Peterborough or vicinity took place in St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, yesterday, September 26th. Divine service was held in the Church at 10 a.m., and 7.30 p.m. The morning service consisted of the litany and Holy Communion, the number of communicants being about thirty. In the evening the attendance was very large, about three hundred being present. The Incumbent was assisted by the Rev. W. E. Cooper, of Trinity College School, Port Hope. The services commenced by the congregation singing hymn 382 (Ancient and Modern), followed by Evening Prayer—the form used being that sanctioned by the Bishop of Toronto. Mr. Cooper read the lessons which, together with the psalms, were special and exceedingly appropriate. At the conclusion of evening prayer the Rev. Mr. Cooper ascended the pulpit, and delivered a most interesting and eloquent sermon, based on Deut. xvi., 11. He referred at some length to the services of this nature which, by the command of the Almighty, were observed in the Jewish Church, and observed that in the present age we Christians should be at least as thankful for our inestimable blessings as were the chosen people of God. He contrasted the condition of the Mother Country at the present time with our more favoured lot, and called on the people to joy and rejoice before God in the spirit of true devotion and Christian thankfulness, and to let this Harvest Festival be to them something more than a mere name. He bade them examine carefully their own hearts and lives, spoke of the prevalent sins of the day, and asked them to remember that often God punished men and nations, by withholding the blessings of the harvest because of their fearful iniquities and transgressions. The discourse was a very able one, and was attentively listened to thoroughout. At the close, the Rector invited the congregation to join in singing "Te Deum," as a solemn act of thanksgiving, and a fitting conclusion of the joyous services of the day. A liberal collection was then taken up in aid of the Organ Fund. The church was very tastefully and beautifully decorated with specimens of the ripened grains, fruits and flowers, and showed clearly that many loving hands have been hard at work for many days before to beautify the sanctuary of God. Windows, arches, pulpit and lecturn, were all prettily wreathed with grain, interspersed with flowers and berries; devices showing the ancient monogram were most ingeniously arrayed over the doors of the vestry and organ chamber, while round the channel arch ran the words: "Thou crownest the year with thy goodness," the letters being formed by ears of wheat and the berries of the Mountain Ash. Fruits of all kinds were arrayed with much care in the windows, and the altar was simply beautiful with flowers and grapes and wheat arrayed in silver vases. The font to be appreciated must be seen, as it is completely beyond our descriptive powers. Indeed the entire work evinces more than ordinary taste, care and skill, and as all is to be left on the walls for a few weeks, we hope our readers will take advantage of the seats being free to go and behold the church for themselves. There is little doubt but that services so appropriate, so necessary, and so happily inaugurated will become a yearly custom with the good people of St. Luke's, and we trust in many other churches also.

The Exhibition Booths.

The Committee for some reason or another, have been unable to let the booths on the grounds as usual. They are, however, determined to have one that will give a good square meal at a reasonable price if they have to run it themselves, and to this end have already commenced the erection of the booth, so as to have it ready for occupation when required.

The Tickets for the Central.

In order to avoid the usual crowding at the ticket offices and gates on the Exhibition grounds, the Committee have arranged for the sale of tickets at the stores of Messrs. Wilson & Davis and Messrs. Thomas Menzies and J. I. Davidson. Messrs. Wilson & Davis will also have charge of the sale of tickets in the neighborhood of the Exhibition gates.

Sneak Theft.

A short time since, Mrs. Wilson, living on the Burleigh road, in the township of Burleigh, left her home with her children to procure some berries. While she was absent, some person entered the house and took from a drawer three dollars, leaving one dollar and a note, saying that they would "leave her one dollar to begin on." After piling the chairs up in the centre of the room, the thief left without further molestation. He seemed to be very modest in taking the three dollars and leaving one for Mrs. Wilson "to begin on."

The Grain Market.

The grain market to-day has assumed a more steady tone than any day during the week. Wheat has been the bone of contention, but now that the buyers have discovered the speculative nature of the rise of last week, they begin to quiet down to a steady market, and the price may be quoted at $1 for both Spring and Fall, although some lots have been sold up to $1.04. It is impossible to tell what may be next week's rate. Most of the buyers predict a downward tendency, and Monday may see a break below $1. We do not think the market will rule below $1 so soon. There is a strong effort among the bulls to raise the price in Chicago and New York. This movement, however, may not be successful. We do not change our quotations to-day, believing that they will rule the market on Monday. Barley is hardly able to maintain quotations, and we were [illegible] to drop our figures from 55 cents [illegible] would be hardly fair, as there are [illegible] lots to come in that are very fine, [illegible] likely to command that figure. Oats have taken an upward tendency, and 30 cents has been paid to-day for large lots. Some middlings were parcelled out at 33 cents, but this cannot be said to be a quotable figure. Rye is coming in very slowly and [illegible] has been paid to-day for some fair lots. Peas are now coming forward, and are readily taken at our own quotations. The receipts of wheat this week will [illegible] foot up over [illegible] bushels.

SIR A. GALT ON THE TARIFF.

Sir Alexander Galt has been giving the people in England an account of our new tariff at variance with that given by the Globe. Whoever represents anything differently from the Globe must be a deliberate liar at all events, and will probably turn out to be a thief. Sir Alexander presented the case to an English audience exactly in the proper way. The English were possessed by the language of the Globe and other anti-national organs here with the belief that we have been laying on taxes which were not needed for revenue, with the special object of keeping out their goods. This impression Sir A. Galt corrects by assuring his audience, in the first place, not a cent of taxation has been laid on beyond what was needed to bring our revenue up to the level with the expenditure; and in the second place, care has been taken to consider English interests as much as possible. These are the only things with which the people on the other side of the water are concerned. What the effect of our fiscal legislation may be on our internal interests, in the way of protection or in any other way, is no business of theirs. We do not inquire into the effects of their fiscal policy or their own industries, or call them to account because their system differs from ours. If, indeed, there are any British capitalists who are selfish enough to wish that Canadian manufactures should remain depressed, of course they will not be pleased with anything tending in an opposite direction. But sympathy with their wishes can hardly be expected from a patriotic Canadian like Sir Alexander Galt.—Toronto Telegram.

A Bee Master.

The Prince of Wales, who manifested so much interest in the honey recently exhibited at Kilburn Show, has been presented with an American beehive. To Mr. Hoge, who explained the method of operating the hive, the Prince expressed an opinion that the stories recorded of Mr. Wildman's command over bees must, to a great extent, have been mythical; but Mr. Hoge assured His Royal Highness that he could demonstrate him that they were quite possible, and acting upon his assertions, he moved his hand about for a little while among the swarm of live bees, which he had with him, when they began to cluster about his right hand, assuming the shape and appearence of a huge bunch of grapes. He then worked amongst the bees with his left hand, and at the word of command they began to shift and settle upon it; then placing a little tube made of wire gauze between his teeth, the bees began to accumulate about his face, and hung like a long beard from his chin. He next coaxed the bees back into the hive.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1879.

CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

MONTREAL.

Special Telegram to the Review, Sept. 29.

CATTLE FOR BELGIUM.—The steamship Harwart leaves to-morrow with a cargo of cattle for Antwerp, being the first direct shipment from this port.

QUEBEC.

Special Telegram to the Review, Sept. 29.

DRILLING STUDENTS.—It is said that five military instructors for the Province of Quebec are to be appointed to drill students in schools and colleges. Several sergeants and gunners of B Battery have made application, but before being appointed they will be required to pass an examination. During their term of office these instructors are to be attached to B Battery. The course of instruction will be a month for each institution.

LUCAN, ONT.

Special Telegram to the Review, Sept. 29.

DAMAGE BY LIGHTNING.—Yesterday afternoon the barns and stables belonging to T. Coursey on the third concession of Biddulph, were struck by lightning and totally consumed, together with a large quantity of grain. The loss is $3,000. Mr. Kent's house, on the third concession of Biddulph, was struck by lightning, the shock throwing the beds and furniture from one end of the room to another. The fire was subdued. Several waggons and farming implements in different parts of Biddulph were struck and destroyed.

From the Morning Papers.

WINNIPEG.

EMIGRANT PARTY.—A party of one hundred and fifty emigrants, in charge of R. W. Prittie, arrived here on Friday, all well.

INTERNATIONAL SHOW.—As a result of the International show lately held at Emerson, the banner has been awarded to Dakota for general display of farm products. A premium was awarded to Manitoba for her wheat. Minnesota has been complimented for her extensive display of grain. Samples of wheat had been exhibited from many different points.

OTTAWA.

THE PACIFIC RAILWAY.—Mr. Sandford Fleming has received important despatches by telegraph from Edmonton, respecting the Rocky Mountain and Peace River explorations. The explorers entered the country, some by the River Fraser, others by the River Skeena, and passed through the mountains by the Pine River and Peace River passes. The reports are dated Fort Dunvegan, September 2nd, and Edmonton, Sept. 23rd. All were well at these dates.

QUEBEC.

THE INDIANS.—Dr. Antonie Belleau has returned from Betsiamits where he was sent by the government to attend the sick Indians in that district. During his stay amongst them, out of 350 whom he found in ill health, 15 adults and 40 children have died. Now the Indians are all in very fair health and are preparing for another hunting expedition.

FATHER POINT

ENGLISH MAIL.—The Allan steamship Polynesian, with the English mail, arrived at nine o'clock on Sunday morning.

THE YELLOW FEVER.

By Telegraph to the Review.

SANITARY PRECAUTIONS.

MEMPHIS, Sept. 29.—As soon as the weather is cold enough all vaults and cesspools will be emptied, filled up with dry earth and sewers and earth drains substituted.

QUARANTINE STRICTER.

MEMPHIS, 10 a.m., Sept. 29.—The development of several cases of fever in the county adjacent, all of which were traced to infection from Memphis, has caused the rules governing the quarantine to be drawn tighter. Hereafter no one will be permitted to enter or leave the city without a special permit. One new case is reported.

COBOURG.

SUSPICIOUS FIRES.—The Port Hope Guide says, an inquest into the causes of the late fires is surely in order. Four fires within as many days indicates incendiarism, and a rigid enquiry might the means of solving the mystery. Cobourg may yet have the honour of unearthing a fire-bug that will rival the one lately developed at Listowel.

AFTERNOON TELEGRAMS

Press Despatches to the Review.

CABLE.

IRISH RENT AGITATION.

LONDON, Sep. 29.—Large meetings on the land question were held yesterday at Ennis, Castlebar and Tullow. At the latter place Hon. Charles Parnell made a long address.

MARCH ON MERV ABANDONED.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says Gen. Lomakin has been ordered to abandon his march on Merv. It is believed that the expedition will menace Herat through Dereljag.

THE EMPRESS OF RUSSIA.

The Empress of Russia will pass the winter at Cannes, under the advice of her medical advisers.

THE GREEK QUESTION.

The Marquis of Salisbury has assured M. Waddington that England is endeavoring to induce the Porte to definitely cede Janina to Greece.

A TURKISH ASSURANCE.

Turkey has assused the Powers who signed the Treaty of Berlin that Turkey does not intend sending troops to Eastern Roumelia.

HANLAN AND ELLIOTT.

The London Sportsman denies the report that Elliott challenged Hanlan purposely to row at the same time as Hanlan is engaged to row a match against Courtney.

LEGITIMIST BANQUETS.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—There will be Legitimist banquets to-day at Dijon, Marseilles, Parpignan, Montauban and Chambord, in honor of the birthday of the Count de Chambord, the Legitimist pretender.

RETURNED COMMUNISTS.

A transport with four hundred and fifty Communists arrived at Brest.

AN OPPOSITION FAILURE.

LONDON, Sep. 29.—The mass meeting on Saturday in Hyde Park, to denounce the incapacity of the Government, and to demand an appeal to the country, proved a failure. The attendance was meagre, and no prominent leaders were present.

POOR HOP CROP.

The hop crop is the smallest since that of 1860. Considerable importation is probable. The continental crops are good.

SINGLE SCULL RACE.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The single scull race between Higgins and Boyd, for £400 to-day, over the Thames Championship course, was easily won by Boyd.

FRENCH COTTON TRADE.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—A Committee of the Rouen Cotton Factory overseers urges the President of the Tariff Committee to expedite the commissioner's labors. They state not a quarter of their production finds a market. Their stock is increasing alarmingly and wages have fallen 25 per cent. Unless there is some change soon the industry will come to a complete standstill.

AMERICAN.

D. D. SPENCER.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—A prominent lawyer lately returned from Europe, reports seeing in Strasburg the late President of the defunct State Savings Bank, D. D. Spencer, living in poverty and anxious to return to vindicate himself.

INCREASE IN FREIGHT.

The roads leading east from this city have done an immense freight business for the past week, the excess over the previous week amounting to 12,898 tons, the largest increase for one week made in several years. The cause of the increase was the fight between the Bulls and Bears in the grain trade at Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York.

STRANGE BIRTH-PLACE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Ann Ryan gave birth to a girl child at early mass in St. Bernard's Church, West 14th Street, yesterday. She was taken to an hospital.

RAISING WAGES.

The Cigar Packers yesterday adopted resolutions complaining of low wages, and pledging all present to endeavor to draw into the Union of this city all outsiders, to raise prices and render them uniform.

FUNERAL CARRIAGES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Father Hennessy, of Jersey City Heights, refused to open the church doors to a funeral yesterday because the Bishop's order, limiting the number of carriages to a dozen, had been violated. Some carriages were driven off and the church was then opened.

THE O'LEARY BELT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The following are the entries for the O'Leary Belt:—Jos. Allen, Renfrew, Mass.; John Henry Betirman, Jersey City; Charles Boyle, Montreal; E. Braun, Asbury Park, N. J.; T. Briody, Greenpoint, L. I.; John Albert Broadgeate, Toronto; Henry "Blower" Brown, England; Michael M. Costello, Fishkill; R. Cromwell, San Francisco; P. Crossland, England; B. Curran, New York; E. Davis, Ireland; J. J. Dickinson, Philadelphia; J. P. Dushane, Newcastle, Pa.; Walter Eckersall, Chicago; Frank Leonardson Edwards, New York City; Alfred Elson, West Meriden, Conn.; Christian Faber, Newark; Patrick Fitzgerald, New York; C. Fox, Austin, Ill.; H. Howard, Glencove, L.I.; Martin Kemmever, Lockhaven, Pa.; James Mahoney, New York; J. McLeary, Scotland; John Perkins, Brooklyn; Albert Pierce, New York; Saml. P. Russel, Chicago; Timothy Spellacy, Millerstown, Pa.; Wm. Tait, New York; and Cyrenus Walker, Buffalo. Of these men, Howard was winner of the long distance match at Brooklyn; Broidy has been in several races; Crossland was a competitor in the first Astley belt match; Faber is regarded as "Blower" Brown's most formidable opponent. He has walked in former tournaments. Edwards holds the champion belt of California; McLeary figured in the first of the Astley belt matches. Brown is in fine condition, and will try to beat Rowell's score.

BUSINESS REVIVAL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The Times devotes a page to the business prospects. It says that extended inquiries among the leading dealers in many branches of commerce were met in every case by most encouraging answers, both as to opening fall trade and as to the promise of a steady and healthy increase of business. A long era of commercial and industrial prosperity is confidently predicted.

TREATIES WITH CHINA.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The Herald's Washington despatch says it is understood that Minister Seward has newly completed the modification of the Cushing and Burlingame treaties. Important features of which are intended to discourage the importation of the lower classes of Chinamen and affording them the guarantees of the Government in any part of the United States, while our citizens are only permitted to frequent a few of the principal parts of China. The treaty modifications are intended to especially promote trade, and not emigration, and to place the merchants of each country on a commercial equality.

BALLOON ASCENSION.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—Prof. Wise made an ascension in the large balloon, Pathfinder, last evening, will remain in the air as long as the balloon holds out. He will endeavour to remain in the eastern current.

CHURCH DEDICATION.

NOWICH, Conn., Sept. 29.—St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church, which has cost $250,000 was dedicated yesterday with imposing ceremonies.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS

AMERICAN SHEEP.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—In consequence of the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease among 1,300 sheep recently arrived in England, the Privy Council is about to issue an order placing American sheep in the same category with cattle.

AMERICAN.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 27.—A disastrous conflagration this morning destroyed Carter's manufactory, which employs a hundred people, the Eureka House, Fear's oil clothing factory, Low's block, Holly Tree Inn, and several frame structures. Sam Colby, a fireman, was severely injured. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

THE BUFFALO KIDNAPPER.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The young man, Charles E. Schuyler, who figured so prominently in the attempt to abduct the daughter of Mr. Townsend Davis, on Tuesday afternoon, was identified to-day by the governess of one of our prominent citizens as the individual who last week was seen in the company of two children, endeavouring to induce them to walk through the Park with him, and was by him insulted on her taking the children from him. The Buffalo detective agency, who arrested Schuyler, to-day received a telegram from the police authorities of Chicago, identifying him as one who a short time since committed a burglary in that city.

THE CAHILL EXTRADITION CASE.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 27.—The young burglar Jas. Cahill, who it will be remembered was some time since brought from Canada, and claimed by his attorney to have been abducted contrary to the Laws of Nations, was to-day sentenced to the Elmira reformatory. His counsel refused to take any part in his trial, and will appeal the case to the general term. As it is the first case of the kind wherein the question of legality of our courts to try a cause of this nature has arisen in this district, much speculation is rife among the legal fraternity as to what will be the final termination of the case.

NOCTURNAL BALLOON ASCENT.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 27.—Professor John Wise, accompanied by Gen. Burns, the latter of St. Louis National Bank, started on a nocturnal voyage at five o'clock this afternoon. The professor hopes to clearly establish the truth of the theory, long held by certain scientific men, that at a certain distance above the surface of the earth the current of air always flows from the east to west. His attention, of course, will be given to other meteorological investigations. The balloon took a north-west course at a height of about two miles. It started off at a rapid rate towards the eastward, which fairly proves the truthfulness of the theory referred to. A large crowd was present to see the ascent. The balloon will be up all night, and the professor had not the least idea where it will land.

OTTRAGES AT LONG BRANCH.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 27.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon two ruffians knocked down R. D. Bryce, the well-known contractor, on the main street of the village and robbed him of $95. Half an hour later two men attacked Daniel Lawlor on the street in front of his hotel, and choked him to the ground. They attempted to take his pocket-book. Lawlor resisted and overpowered one of his assailants, but while taking him to the lock-up, the robber escaped. No arrests.

THE GREAT WALKING MATCH.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The final and official score of all the contestants for the Astley belt is as follows:—Weston 455, Powell 530, Hassel 500 and 1 lap, Guyon 471, Ennis 450 and 2 laps, Merritt 515, Hart 482 and 4 laps, Krohney 450 and 1 lap, Taylor 250 and 1 lap. The great race has been a greater financial success than even the most sanguine of the managers anticipated. The belt goes back to England, but the record on which it is captured is a most creditable one, and the struggle to keep it here has been hard and well fought. It is estimated the receipts of the walk were $80,000, of which Rowell gets $30,000.

A STARTLING PROJECT.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 27.—A private circular has been issued here by the Trade Assembly to all assemblies in the United States and British North America, setting forth a project for a general strike of all trades, the time to be determined by the trade assemblies, and to take united action for the enforcement of the eight hour law, the abolition of the convict system and child labour. They also propose to organize unions of all trades not now organized, and to appoint an agitation committee to carry out the purposes of the assemblies.

THE LUMBER TRADE.

It is estimated that the lumber production of the Northwestern States will fall fully eight hundred feet below the expected amount, and that in consequence of the inferior quality of the logs cut, the supply of choice lumber to meet the demand will be small. From the 1st of January up to September 19th last, the receipts of lumber in Chicago footed up to 993,597,207 feet as compared with 752,908,682 feet for the corresponding period of 1878, showing an increase for the present year of 240,688,525 feet. Should it be found that the estimates of the decrease in the lumber production of the Northwestern regions are approximately correct, a further increase in the demand for Canadian lumber may be looked for. In Quebec there has been an extensive movement in timber during the past three weeks, and a fairly active trade has transpired in the Ottawa lumber regions. Although no advance in prices has as yet taken place, if the improved demand continues, a rise is very probable.—Montreal Gazette.

Daily Evening Review

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1879.

☛Business Men, Hotel-Keepers, Lodging-House Keepers, and every one with an article to sell, or a want to supply, should ADVERTISE in the REVIEW.

THE "GLOBE" AND THE CURRENCY.

WHILE we sympathize with the Globe when it denounces an irredeemable currency because "it would fluctuate in value according to the state of business," and because "it could not be retired in response to the laws of supply and demand," we must take leave to doubt the wisdom or necessity of adopting the American system of having the circulation secured by the deposit of government securities, which the Globe practically advocates in a recent issue as the only step which can be taken to increase the security of the bank note holder, and to ensure the prompt payment of their notes, even in the event of the suspension of the bank issuing them. No doubt under such a system the circulation is thoroughly secured, but it is an unnecessarily costly mode of securing a desirable object.

This American system, briefly stated, is for the government to supply the banks with currency at the rate of ninety dollars for every hundred dollars of public bonds placed with them as security for the payment of the currency so supplied. The result, therefore, is that the bank receives interest first on the money invested in these bonds; and, secondly, on the circulation thus obtained on the security of the same, the country in the first instance paying the interest directly, and in the second instance indirectly.

Now, there are two questions which we should like to hear the advocates of this system answer. The first is, wherefore should the country pay interest on money twice over? That it does so under such circumstances cannot be disputed; and the second is, why should not the Government's own promises to pay (subject to the same check as to over issues) be just as good as a promise to pay secured by the same Government's promises to pay? Suppose the Globe's last love, (because it is not so very long since it opposed a similar proposition with all its might) were adopted, how would the matter figure out? The Banks, to obtain say $15,000,000 of currency, would have to deposit with the Government, assuming the same ratio were adopted here as in the States, $16,500,000 Dominion bonds, upon which the Dominion would pay them annually, at even five per cent, $825,000 per annum; then the Banks would take and lend the circulation thus obtained to the people at say eight per cent, which would yield them another $1,200,000 per annum, making together $2,025,000 as the annual return upon an investment of sixteen and a half millions—or nearly thirteen per cent—a rather satisfactory arrangement for bank stock holders, but for no one else in the country. In short, it means neither more nor less than that the country should pay the Banks to be allowed the honor of endorsing their notes for them. But even were we to adopt so costly a policy, how much better off would the bill holders be in the event of a panic? Suppose the notes to be presented, as they would be in such an event, to the Government for payment, where are they to get the money—the gold to pay them with? Are they to keep a supply always on hand, or are they to trust to luck? If the first, why not issue the notes themselves and save the commission to the banks; if the latter, then it means that they should throw their own securities on the market just at a time when everything is depressed and thereby intensify the depression and ruin public as well as private credit.

The scheme has worked well (except as regards cost) in the United States, first, because their own people had confidence in the ability of the Government to pay, and secondly, because there a demand for payment (until very recently) has only meant the exchanging of one promise to pay for another, but these are no reasons why it should be introduced into this country, or why it should prove equally satisfactory under different circumstances. Agreeing with the Globe that it is the duty of the Government to regulate the currency, we believe the best, the safest, and the most economical mode of doing so is by the adoption of some such plan as that indicated in the article by the Hon. Robt. Lowe, to which we have already alluded in these columns.

A VALUABLE ACCESSION.

A very valuable class of immigrants have recently been arriving in Canada, and others are likely to follow in numbers which cannot be computed. These are tenant farmers from Great Britain, who in the present state of agricultural depression there and with the inducement offered them to settle in this country, are throwing up their farms and are coming across the Atlantic. These gentlemen, besides the knowledge of agriculture they possess, have the additional recommendation of bringing with them very considerable sums of money. This accession to the capital of the country is a benefit of itself, and in such hands it must conduce greatly to the progress of settlement. The new comers will either purchase old established farms from those who are willing to make new homes for themselves in our more newly acquired territory, or they will themselves be in an exceptionally good position for the effective establishment and working of extensive farms in the prairie regions. Such immigrants will be gladly welcomed among us.

THE EXHIBITION!

Prospects of a Brilliant Show

Sister Town well Represented

Hints to the Visitors.

Features of Each Day's Show.

Royal Weather Promised.

FOR the second time, after a lapse of five years, our enterprising and prosperous town becomes the scene of the Central Exhibition, to which the extensive country known as the Midland District contributes of its best in agriculture, in stock of all kinds, in machinery, in manufactures, and in the arts. As our country grows in population, in wealth, and in intelligence, exhibitions of this nature grow in popular favor. This is only natural when we consider that they afford that opportunity for comparison and competition, which, in every undertaking of life, lie at the basis of progress. They supply in a great degree that absence of a dense population which, in other countries, incite to the greatest endeavors by that attrition of mind and exchange of ideas which a crowded population creates. The present summer and fall have, in Ontario especially, been very fruitful of them, and everywhere they have disseminated broader views, along with a variety of information about our own country and its resources, have stimulated enterprise and encouraged industry. It now falls to our turn to hold one within this municipality, and the indications at present are, that, despite the pressure of hard times, the Central Fair of this year will be a success, creditable to its promoters and contributors. Below we give the latest available information, and from day to day the DAILY REVIEW will supply the public with the completest and most accurate information in regard to it.

Directory to the Grounds.

The ground, upon which the exhibition is being held, is a block of six acres, situated almost in the centre of the town, and is generally known as the old burying ground. Arriving by the Midland Railway, the stranger will proceed east to George street, and thence north, through the business centre, four blocks, when he will be at the corner of the Exhibition Grounds, which lie on the west side of the street. In passing up George street, the visitor will pass the stores of Messrs. J. I. Davidson, Thos. Menzies, and Wilson & Davis, where tickets of admission are on sale, and when they will do well to secure them en route. At the corner of the grounds on George and Murray streets, will be found the Secretary's office, where exhibitors will obtain their tickets, and where the Judges are expected to report themselves on their arrival. Stock, implements, grain, and other heavy articles will be admitted to the grounds at the large gate on Murray street, (i.e., the street running east and west on the south side of the grounds), west of the Drill Shed, while the lighter articles will be admitted direct from Murray street into the Drill Shed. Three admission gates have been provided for visitors, two on the east side of the Drill Shed, and one near the north-east corner of the grounds on George street. At these gates tickets only will be taken.

Within the Walls.

Entering at the exhibitors' gate, west of the Drill Shed, already described, the place for agricultural machinery, etc., will be found on the left hand, while immediately on the right will be found the sheds for Cotswold, Southdown and fat sheep, and in the nor'-west corner those for the pigs. Directly opposite this gate, on the north side of the grounds, are the refreshment and fodder booths, and to the east of these the horse stalls, which extend to George street. Along George street and west along Murray street to the Drill Shed will be found the cattle sheds and those intended for Leicester sheep, while the Poultry Shed will be found attached to the north end of the Drill Shed.

The Officers and Committees

in charge of the exhibition are as follows:—

PRESIDENT.—James Campbell, Esq.

VICE-PRESIDENT.—Col. Deacon, Esq.

TREASURER.—H. J. Toker, Esq.

SECRETARY.—John Carnegie, Esq.

SUPERINTENDENTS.—M. S. Dean, Esq., John Bennett, Esq.

SUPERINTENDENTS OF DEPARTMENTS.—Horses, J. M. Carruthers, Esq. Cattle, Joseph Walton, Esq. Sheep and Pigs, J. Daniel, Esq. Poultry, John McClelland, Esq. Grain and Roots, Thos. E. Bell, Esq. Dairy and Miscellaneous, Alex. Scott, Esq. Horticultural Products, M. Porter, Esq. Garden Vegetables, P. M. Grover, Esq. Implements, H. Lapp, Esq. Domestic Manufactures, John Foote Esq. Ladies' Work and Fine Arts, Messrs. Clementi and Wilmot. Leather Work, Plants and Flowers, Natural History and Miscellaneous, Col. Deacon.

CHIEF CONSTABLE.—Mr. George Johnston.

The Programme.

TUESDAY.—By the rules it is required that everything except live stock shall be on the ground by 1 o'clock, p.m. During the afternoon the arrangements of the articles will be completed, and the judges will be discharging their duties. In the evening the Exhibition in the Drill Shed will be open to the public from 7 to 10 o'clock. The Firemen's band being present.

WEDNESDAY.—The stock will require to be all on the ground by 10 o'clock, a.m., so that the judges in these departments may proceed with their duties. The Exhibition will be open from 9 a.m., to 10 p.m., this day to the public. The Firemen's band will be present during the afternoon and evening. The judges will probably reach the carriage horses during the afternoon.

THURSDAY.—The work of the judges will be completed. The Exhibition will be again open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., when it will be finally closed to the public. The band will be present during the whole of this day.

FRIDAY.—Exhibitors will be at liberty to remove their animals or articles.

The Grounds.

Within the grounds to-day a busy scene is presented. The Committee have a number of men at work levelling off all knolls, erecting additional accommodation for stock, etc., papering and decorating the interior of the main building, grading the trotting ring, and otherwise putting on the finishing touches before the day of opening.

An extensive booth is now in course of construction, capable of seating one hundred at dinner, where also liquid refreshments, cigars, &c., may be had. This is the only one of the kind that will be allowed within the grounds, and will be found a great convenience to visitors, who will thus be saved the necessity of leaving the place for dinner, and paying not only for that at any hotel, but the price of admission again on returning to the show. It might be further added as a recommendation, that the bill of fare will be gotten up and attended to by that well-known and experienced artist, Monsieur Geo. Joubert.

Among the Exhibitors.

Mr. Peter Hamilton is placing several of his agricultural machines on the ground, he having a large space alloted to him at the extreme western side. No doubt his exhibit, from his large experience and facilities for manufacturing will be of great interest to farmers.

An engine from the works of Mr. W. Hamilton on Reid street will supply the motive power necessary to test the actual capacity of machinery.

Mr. Tobias Fitzgerald is putting up a stand in which to show specimens of his skill in the carriage building line. He also intends to exhibit an elegant hearse, superior to any ever brought here, or indeed to any now in use in the city of Toronto.

Messrs. Murray & Firth show one of their celebrated windmills, which are at once ornamental and useful. In this age of steam, the air has almost been lost sight of as a motor, but it cannot be forgotten that, unlike the engine, cost after the first outlay is dispensed with, and the uses to which it might be put are many, especially in domestic concerns where its occasional assistance only would be required. The one on the grounds drives a pump, it can drive a churn, or work a saw, while as yet the patentee does not claim it will sew on buttons, sweep out parlors or wash dishes, the saving of aching arms and backs it could effect would be great.

Mr. Geo. Taylor has one of his pumps on the ground, which will supply the stock with water, and has also fitted up another on the north side, where, during the exhibition he will be on hand to discuss the vexed question of pumps with all comers, and show the superiority of his own.

The Poultry Association, as we might expect, from admirers of that elegant bird whose talent for early rising is so well known, are thus soon upon the grounds, with a great variety of coops situate at the north end of the main building.

We might mention here (as we should not at another time, have the occasion to do so) that Ex-Councillor Baptie had a handsome collection of 27 fowl entered for the show, but at the last moment, they were purchased by telegraph for a fancier in Toronto and ordered to be shipped at once. To give an idea of their value—one pair—of Buff (not buffer) Cochins brought $12.00. We congratulate Mr. Baptie on his brief but brilliant experience in a business which surely must be far more profitable than one in which he dreads a bonussed rival.

The Main Building.

Inside the Drill Shed much has yet to be done to-day, but the committee are acting upon the principle that many hands make light work, and are fast bringing order out of chaos. Exhibitors are running to and fro, each anxious to secure the very best spot for his own particular exhibit, and consequently the gentlemen upon whose shoulders devolves the duty of reconciling these conflicting terms, have no light and easy duty.

The Secretary's Office.

Last though not least, the Secretary has taken possession of his office on the grounds, and will give his attention to business connected with the show.

The Hotels

of Peterborough will be found able to afford ample accommodation at reasonable rates to all who may desire to remain over night, and for further particulars of which we refer our readers to our advertising columns.

The Weather.

As we go to press the clerk of the weather sends us notice that the glorious sunshine of this afternoon, than which nothing could be finer, is to be continued during the show, a decided improvement on what has been called heretofore "show weather."

Worth its Weight in Gold.

When we hear anybody say that such and such a thing is worth its weight in gold we think they are indulging in hyperbole, and pass the matter with a smile. But numbers of invalids who have once partaken of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL in combination with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA say they would not be without it for any consideration. And no wonder for in all cases of General Debility or Chronic Coughs, in fact, any pulmonary complaint and consumption it is worth its weight in gold. d53-w36-1m

REFUTATION!

I DENY the statement contained in the circular issued by Mr. Henry Owens, that he has commenced proceedings in Chancery to restrain me from infringing on his rights, by making and selling the Cane Pump and its connections. No such proceedings have been commenced to my knowledge.

I DENY and always denied that the alleged Patent is of any value. For over five years Mr. Powell and Mr. Owens, who claims under him, have shown their want of belief in the validity of the alleged Patent, as they have never, during all that time, taken any legal steps to assert their pretended rights, although a number of pump makers as well as myself have been making these pumps—and although Mr. Owens and Mr. Powell know that my solicitors have for long been instructed to defend any legal proceedings they or either of them might take to establish the validity of the alleged Patent.

I DENY that the 23rd Section of Canada Patent Act is to the effect represented in the circular referred to, and any interested may satisfy themselves of the correctness of my denial by referring to the section for themselves.

I ASSERT that the said circular is issued for the purpose of damaging my business as a manufacturer of pumps, and at my expense increasing the business of Mr. Owens. Had it been otherwise, Mr. Owens has had ample time to establish his patent in an honorable and straightforward way through the Court of Chancery, which he has not done.

I ASSERT that I have commenced AN ACTION against Mr. Owens in the Court of Common Pleas for $2,000 for the purpose of recovering against him damages for the injury said circular is intended to do to my business as a pump maker.

I ASSERT that all wanting GOOD PUMPS can be well and cheaply suited by me, and that I AM PREPARED TO STAND BETWEEN THEM AND ANY PRETENDED CLAIMS OF MR. OWENS.

Notice to Contractors.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the Secretary of Public Works, and endorsed "Tenders for Canal and Lock at St. Anne," will be received at this office until the arrival of the Eastern and Western mails on FRIDAY THE 10th DAY OF OCTOBER next, for the construction of a Lock and the formation of approaches to it on the landward side of the present lock at St. Anne.

A map of the locality, together with plans and specifications of the works to be done, can be seen at this office and at the Resident Engineer's office, at St. Anne, on and after SATURDAY THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER next, at either of which places printed forms of Tender can be obtained.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and—in the case of firms, except there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation and residence of each member of the same; and further, an accepted Bank cheque for the sum of $2000 must accompany the tender, which sum shall be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the works, at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

For the due fulfilment of the contract, satisfactory security will be required by the deposit of money to the amount of five per cent. on the bulk sum of the contract; of which the sum sent in with the Tender will be considered a part.

Ninety per cent only of the progress estimates will be paid until the completion of the work.

To each Tender must be attached the actual signatures of two responsible and solvent persons, residents of the Dominion, willing to become sureties for the carrying out of these conditions, as well as the due performance of the works embraced in the contract.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,

F. BRAUN,
Secretary.

THE QUEEN AND THE EMPRESS.

Two women—with sad faces
  And eyes made dim by tears
That oft have fallen mournfully
  For the sorrows of the years,—
Two women meet together,
  In pensive sisterhood,
For both have bent to take a crown,
  The crown of widowhood.

No women of the people
  Have happier been than they,
When the sunshine of another's love
  Lighted the summer day;
No women of the people
  Have felt a deeper woe,
However hard their lot has been,
  Than these Queen-widows know.

They both have worn upon their brows
  The royal crown of state.
They both have been light-hearted
  And both felt desolate;
They both have heard the thrilling sound
  Of a nation's glad acclaim;
And both have wept, as women weep,
  At the utterance of a name.

But one, though her great treasure
  Is in the Heaven above,
Dwells in her own dear country
  All girt about with love:
And all her people bless her,
  And sons and daughters left
Console and cheer the mother-heart
  Not utterly bereft.

The other is an exile.
  Disconsolate and sad,
No children and grandchildren
  Shall ever make her glad:
She mourns to-day an only son,
  And all the world grows dim.
She bore the loss of throne and state,
  But her heart must break for him.

Shall not Victoria succour
  The lonely exiled one?
Herself, in depths of sorrow
  The right to soothe has won;
So the women weep together,
  And the healing of their tears
Perchance shall make both stronger
  For the sorrows of the years.

Two prayers go up to Heaven
  From England's hearts to-day,
All men and women swell the cry
  And children speed its way,
"God give the Empress comfort
  In this o'erwhelming scene;
And God for ever bless and guard
  Our pitiful good Queen."

THE DOMINION EXHIBITION.

OTTAWA, Sept. 25.—There was another vast crowd of people in the exhibition grounds this afternoon, estimated in round figures at 30,000. The previous day the paid admissions were 28,500. The principal feature of course was the visit of His Excellency, the Governor-General, and Her Royal Highness, the Princess Louise, who, accompanied by the suite, arrived shortly after three o'clock. They were met by the members of the Council of the Ontario Arts and Agricultural Association in a carriage, and driven to the band stand in the centre of the horse ring, where a few distinguished guests had preceded them. After their Excellencies had taken up their position there was a general review of the prize animals, commencing with the stallions, and followed in turn by carriage and saddle horses, hunters, over hurdles, cattle and oddities, the latter embracing donkeys, Shetland ponies, &c., &c. The jumping over hurdles appeared to excite the greatest interest. The display of stock was really grand, and in conversation with some of those around, Her Royal Highness showed that she had some knowledge in this regard. While the display was going on their Excellencies conversed with Governors Bishop and Garcelon, and also with the Minister of Agriculture and President Wilmot. When Their Excellencies left the stand those around set up a cheer, but when the crowd outside was reached the people appeared to be dumb with amazement, or else had their mouths too much open with astonishment to even raise a respectable cheer. They got over this after a while, however, and then the cheering was lusty enough to suit the most ardent Britisher.

Before returning home their Excellencies paid a visit to the poultry hall. They appeared all through to be well pleased with what they saw. The exhibition, it might be said, is, as regards horticultural products, live stock and agricultural implements, an unqualified success, and superior to anything of the kind ever before seen in Canada. The industrial part of the Exhibition has not been maintained, however, and the display of machinery (excepting agricultural) and of manufactures is not very good.

To-night witnessed the so-called procession of Terribles, and thousands of people lined the principal streets for the purpose of witnessing it. It was a disgraceful fiasco, one van, occupied by three demons, a cavalcade of half a dozen motley figures, two advertising waggons, three or four trade representations, and about thirty howling boys constituted the attraction. A more indignant crowd it would be hard to find.

PAY YOUR DEBTS AT ONCE.

For years thousands of our farmers have been harrassed by heavy burdens of indebtedness, the interest on which alone has been a grievous annual tax upon their resources. Not a few have been forced to abandon to their creditors the farms in the improvement of which many of the best years of their lives were laboriously expended. Thousands of others are still threatened with a like disaster. Crops nearly everywhere this year are good. Owing to a very unusually wide extent of misfortune to foreign farmers, the prices for farm products here leave a fair margin of profit to those who have raised them. Farmers, therefore, will have more money this year than they have been accustomed to handle lately—probably more than they will handle for some time to come, for we can hardly expect a repetition of this year's disasters to foreign crops, and it may be our own turn to experience such a misfortune next year.

In view, therefore, of the oppression of indebtedness in the past, and of the anxiety and sorrow it has brought upon so many homesteads throughout the country, what better use can be made of whatever money each indebted farmer can spare from the proceeds of his harvest this year, than to promptly employ it to free himself from the load that for years has been an affliction and a menace to himself and those dear to him?

Earnestly, therefore, do we urge all our friends who may be in debt to get rid of it at once. Now is the acceptable time for doing so. However urgent may be, in your opinion, the desirability of expending your money in other ways, there is none which will bring you and yours more lasting satisfaction and advantage than by using it to clear your homestead of indebtedness with its persistent tax and trouble. You can do so now, wholly or in part. Providence alone knows when you will be able to do so if this opportunity passes by unimproved.—Rural New Yorker.

Interesting Wills.

Doctors Commons of London can console itself for the loss of the Emperor Napoleon's will by the possession of that of another hero, Wellington. The Iron Duke's schedule of his last wishes is filed with the wills of Sir Anthony Vandyke, Inigo Jones, Sir Isaac Newton, Samuel Johnson, Charles Dickens and William Shakespeare, the last consisting of three folio sheets, with the poet's signature to each sheet, and comprising the much discussed bequest of "the second best bed" to his wife.

ENGLAND.

THE Lady Margaret Hall, one of the halls founded in Oxford for students attending the lectures of the Association for the Higher Education of Women, will be opened in October.

THE claimant, "Sir Roger," who has been for some time sick in the convict prison at Portsmouth, is now convalescent, and will shortly be put upon out-door labor, which is more congenial to his constitution than that of indoor.

AT the laying of the foundation stone of a new chapel in England, some ardent revivalists, after depositing in the stone a Bible, the coins of the realm, and all that sort of thing, added the sheet of tinfoil whereon was phonographically printed "Hold the Fort," in Mr. Sankey's own voice.

THE Italian Government have ordered 8 more 100-ton guns to be made by Sir W. Armstrong at Elswick. These enormous weapons are to be breech-loaders. They are intended for the armament of the Italio and the Lepanto; the eight 100-ton muzzle loaders already supplied being destined for the Dandolo and the Duilio.

THE meals in the English public schools have been the subject of a long correspondence in the Times. Parents, who pay from £120 to £200 per annum for their boys, complain that the food is bad and the cooking execrable. It is replied that the boys are fastidious; but boys are fastidious not from affectation but from instinct. A suggestion appears that a committee of the elder boys in each school should take the thing in hand and supervise the culinary department as a club committee do.

The Heated Term—Look Out.

DON'T SIT ON THE GRASS.

The most stubborn case of Dysentery which is nothing more nor less than inflammation of the rectum, produced not unfrequently by sitting on the grass—may be cured by that most efficient cathartic, Castor Oil. Its soothing and healing properties are wonderful, but its nauseating effects make it impossible for the patient to retain it. To Scott & Bowne, the public are indebted for an EMULSION OF CASTOR OIL that is not only palatable, but is pronounced by thousands who are using it, absolutely agreeable to the palate. No family can afford to be without it through the heated term. Price 25 cents. d58-w36-1m

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This preparation stands peerless as a remedy for all summer complaints. Have you diarrhœa? It will positively cure you. Have you cholera morbus? It will positively cure you. Have you colic or cramps in the stomach? It will positively cure you. Is your stomach sour? It will positively cure you. Are you going on a sea voyage? Be sure and take a bottle of the Strawberry in your haversack, for use in sea-sickness, vomiting, and other irritations of the stomach and bowels; it will positively cure you. Every one speaks highly of it. "I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—G. W. EARL, St. Catharines. "I would advise any one suffering from summer complaints to give Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry a fair trial."—CARMAN M. GOULD, M. D., Castleton. "Dr. Fowler's extract of Wild Strawberry gives perfect satisfaction."—THOMAS DOUGLAS, Cambray. "I can recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with confidence."—Judge S. S. PECK, Minden. "My customers bear high testimony to the virtues of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—T. STEVENSON, Orangeville. For sale by all dealers. See advertisement in another column. w39-d70-2w

Humbug Exposed

Welcome News!

IT having come to our knowledge that certain travellers for Paper Bags have been offering to sell to Peterborough merchants at various percentages lower than our quotations, in the hope of damaging our business in this Department, we have determined to make the following

STANDING OFFER

NAMELY:—

☞ We will sell our Paper Bags CHEAPER than the very best bona fide offer made to any Merchant in Peterborough, FREE of Freight or other Charges. ☜

Our trade in Paper Bags and Wrapping Papers has gradually grown to an extent which has made it hardly worth the while for travellers to come to Peterborough. And the result has been to make them jealous of our success and annoyed at their loss of sales.

Retain your future orders for us. We are bound to "Hold the Fort!"

THE

Great Cause of Human Misery

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife: pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

LOCAL NEWS

POLICE COURT.

THE LANE NUISANCE.

MONDAY, Sept. 29.—At the Police Court this morning the case of McDonald vs. Dunsford, enlarged from the 25th Sept., came up for a hearing. After some conversation among the property owners, at the suggestion of the Magistrate the case was enlarged until the 23rd of October, to give the several owners an opportunity to petition the Council to take charge of the lane as a thoroughfare, to have a sewer built and the street graded for the proper drainage of all the lots between Water and Queen Streets.

The Wheat Market.

There has been no excitement in the wheat market to-day. The receipts have been light, $1.05 has been paid for both fall and spring.

Restaurant.

Mr. W. H. Chamberlain has been preparing his well known restaurant for the increased business that he is sure to do during the Central Exhibition. He has opened the adjoining premises so as to be ready for any crowd.

An Efficient Judge.

We notice that Mr. Robert Romaine has been acting as one of the three judges in the steam fire engine competition, at the Dominion Exhibition at Ottawa.

Toronto and Ottawa Railway.

Mr. W. H. Scott, M. P. P., has gone to Ottawa city, for the purpose of forwarding the the Toronto and Ottawa Railway by-law, the voting on which takes place on the 7th of October.

Handsome Fruit.

Some very handsome twenty ounce apples were exhibited at Bailey & Co's, on Saturday afternoon, which attracted a number of people to inspect them. They also opened up some of the largest and finest quinces we have ever seen displayed in this part of the country.

Walking Match.

A walking match is to take place this evening at the Skating Rink for $25.00 a side. Jas. H. Kane, of Peterborough has accepted the challenge of Angus Anderson, of Toronto to walk a two hour square heel-and-toe race. The walking will commence at 8.30.

Farm Stock and Lumber for Sale.

The horses, cattle, implements and lumber of Mr. Jas. Dickson, miller, of Keene, will be sold at public auction on the premises, on Tuesday October 7th at 11 o'clock. Mr. Charles Stapleton, auctioneer, will conduct the sale. See large bills for particulars.

Foot-ball Match.

The Foot-ball Club have played several practice games during the afternoon of Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week. All of them were very interesting, and considerable improvement is shown. These games afford great amusement as well as being beneficial to the health.

Peterborough on Saturday.

The streets of Peterborough were thronged with people nearly the whole of the day, on Saturday. A large business was done by the dry goods, hardware, grocery and boot and shoe houses. The day was a lovely one, and everybody seemed to be in good humor. The farmer got good prices for his produce, and he took home with him such articles as his family needed.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are, fresh to brisk, south-westerly to westerly winds; cloudy to partly cloudy, continued warm weather with showers. A thunder shower with lightning passed over Peterborough last night at 10 o'clock. It was of short duration, and the shower passed over the town later with considerable rain. To-day has been warm and pleasant with the wind south-westerly.

Fall of a Ceiling.

This morning one of the centre peices of the ceiling at Messrs. Ormond & Walsh's broke away and fell to the floor, crushing the gas pendent and globes in its way. Fortunatuly no one was under it at the time.

Peterborough Talent.

Mr. Ormiston Dixon, ventriloquist, of this town, is starring it with Bird's New Orleans Minstrel Troupe, now on their sixth annual tour. Last week they appeared in Gardner, Me., Keene, New Hampshire, Bellows Falls, Vt., and other places in the New England States. The company is one of the best ever organized, and their business this season thus far is reported as having been good. Mr. Dixon has been well received, and is becoming a favorite with the people wherever he appears. His friends in Peterborough wish him success.

The Watertown Fire Insurance Company.

At the late fire on Dublin Street, Mr. Finch Miller had several blankets destroyed, while protecting the dwelling house, which was saved. The Watertown Fire Insurance Company of Watertown, N. Y., W. A. King, agent, who have a risk upon the buildings, have paid Mr. Miller for the loss of the blankets. This is a proper appreciation of a service that will, through such liberal recognition, induce others to exert themselves in attempting to save property.

The Toronto Exhibition and Peterborough.

At the late exhibition at Toronto, Messrs. Cowan & Co., of Galt, exhibited a new combination double-surface planer, matcher and moulding machine, with patent revolving bed and beader. This newly-improved combination machine is the first one turned out by that firm, and had been sold to Messrs. T. & W. McKee, of this town, but was borrowed for the exhibition. This new and valuable piece of machinery is on its way to Peterborough, and it will soon be in operation at the Messrs. McKee's new furniture factory, on Dickson's raceway. This establishment has also a combination gauge lathe, for turning chair backs and legs, and other equally valuable appliances for turning out a fine quality of furniture of every variety of style and pattern, and they are by the use of these new and important improvements, enabled to supply the furniture trade at prices unequalled for cheapness. A large number of hands are now employed by this firm, and as soon as this new machine is up they expect to increase their force. It is the purpose of these gentlemen to employ such force, and turn out such work, as will enable them to establish a furniture manufactory that will be known far and wide as one of the most important industries of the Dominion. Read their advertisement in the WEEKLY REVIEW for particulars.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

RETAINING TROOPS.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The Indian Government in view of the condition of affairs in Afghanistan, have requested permission to retain three regiments, which had been ordered to England

THE AMEER IN CAMP.

SIMLA, Sept. 28.—The Viceroy sent the following despatch to London to day:—Gen. Baker received a letter from the Afghan commander-in-chief yesterday at Kushi, asking whether he would receive him and the Ameer's heir-apparent in camp. The General replied in the affirmative. An hour later a message came from the Ameer, Yakoob Khan, himself, asking General Baker to receive him. The General responded, saying he would meet the Ameer a mile from camp. The Ameer, his son, and father-in-law and General Damud Shah, who was reported killed during the Cabul outbreak, with a suite of forty-five persons and an escort of 200 men, arrived at Kushi on the same day.

STATE OF ANARCHY.

Cabul is in a state of anarchy. The gates of the city are closed. A number of Guilzais are in [illegible] General Roberts reached Kushi to-day.

By Telegram to the Review.

THE AMEER'S INSINCERITY.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The Times points out that the fact of Daoud Shah being alive and at the British camp confirms the suspicions of the Ameer's insincerity, as he reported that Daoud had been killed while endeavouring to quiet the rebels.

THE AMEER WITH OUR TROOPS.

SIMLA, Sept. 29.—Many persons regard the Ameer's arrival in the British camp as an astute move to foster the belief that he is innocent of complicity in the murder of the British Envoy. On the other hand, high officials express confidence in his entire innocence. The advance of the British force continues, and the Ameer accompanies the troops. It is expected that the column will arrive before Cabul on Wednesday. Resistance is unlikely.

FRAUD PUNISHED

A Fenelon Falls Store-Keeper Sent to Penitentiary for two Years.

LINDSAY, Sept. 27.—The Victoria Fall Assizes finished to-day. Chief Justice Wilson passed sentence on one Dewart, a store-keeper in Fenelon Falls, charged with fraud. Some time ago Dewart got a brother-in-law named Rutherford to endorse his paper to a considerable amount. The notes were paid with the exception of two representing $450, to clear which Dewart proposed that Rutherford should mortage his farm for that sum in a company of which Dewart was agent, and with the proceeds take up the paper. Dewart was anxious to have these notes paid, as he said he would then be able to get a further credit of $1,000. Rutherford consented to make the mortgage and gave Dewart an order on the Loan Company for the $450, it being expressly stipulated that Dewart should apply the money to the retirement of the notes when they came due. About the time the notes matured, Rutherford died, and soon after his widow was sued for the amount which had been endorsed by her husband, and which Dewart had received the mortgage money to pay off, but which he failed to pay. The widow found that she had to pay the two notes as well as the costs of the suit, and that her farm was mortgaged for $450—in all, that she was in debt to the extent of $1,400, for not one cent of which neither herself nor her husband had ever received any return whatever, having entered into the transaction solely for Dewart's accommodation. It was further brought out in evidence that Dewart had designedly mal-appropriated the money received from the Loan Company and used it to his own advantage. The Judge said that Dewart's intelligence rather increased than diminished the enormity of the crime, and he accordingly sentenced him to two years in the Kingston Penitentiary.—Globe.

The Magneticon

THE CELEBRATED

English Magnetic Appliances

For the Cure of Disease.

THESE APPLIANCES are at once a direct assistance and safeguard, as they not only possess strong curative properties, but are also a most valuable preventive; by their invigorating and vitalizing influence constantly averting much of the liability to disease or suffering, and daily adding to the strength and vigor of the constitution. Thus, the various appliances may be used with immediate and permanent benefit by the strongest man, or the most delicate invalid or child. They comprise

Throat and Lung Invigorators

For all diseases and weaknesses of the Throat and Lungs, and affections of the Chest generally.

Ladies' and Gents' Belts.

For any general weakness of the Constitution; Indigestion and all other difficulties of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, etc., Lumbago or Weak Back, Internal weakness of any kind, Constipation, Physical or Nervous Exhaustion, etc., etc.

The Ladies' Support and Accouchment Belts are of incalculable benefit, averting the Nervous prostration from which thousands of ladies suffer so intensely. The use of these Belts is more particularly referred to by correspondence or consultation.

Spine Bands.

For Spinal Weakness or Injury, Neuralgia, and al Nervous affections, Sleeplessness, Paralysis, Headache, etc.

Knee Caps, Anklets, Wristlets, Soles, and various other Appliances.

For Rheumatism of any kind, in any part of the body or limbs, Cramps, Numbness, or nervous Sensations in the Hands, Wrists, etc., Weakness of any of the Joints, either from Injury or from Constitutional causes; Defective Circulation, causing Coldness of Hands and Feet, Chilblains, etc., and for any part of the body where there is any Functional or Nervous derangement, or want of vigorous healthy action.

Price from $1 to $10. Consultations Free.

The Magneticon appliances are manufactured only by Messrs. Wetton & Co., of London and Cheltenham, England; Edinburgh and Glasgow, Scotland; Dublin, Ireland; and Toronto, Canada.

Illustrated Pamphlets, containing Price Lists, Testimonials and all information are supplied free on application, or sent by post to any address. The appliances are also sent by Post or Express, to any address, on receipt of price.

CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

QUEBEC.

Special Telegram to the Review, Sept. 30.

For England.—H.R.H. the Princess Louise will leave for England on the 18th of October. Special arrangements will be made for her accommodation on board the Sarmatian, in which berths have been secured.

The Legislative Council sat this morning from 11 to 12 with closed doors, evidently afraid of the crowd who sought admittance, but which was very orderly and quiet. A strong force of the city police being on guard in and around the building. No exceptions were made at the doors, even reporters being excluded. It is learned, however, that the reply from the Lieut.-Governor to the last address from the Council was read, simply acknowledging the receipt, after which Mr. Starnes moved the second reading of the Supply Bill. Mr. DeBoucherville moved instead the adjournment to the 29th of October, which was carrried. All kinds of rumors are current, but no further facts are known. As the Lieut.-Governor will not return till to-morrow night, a dissolution cannot yet be asked by the Government.

From the Morning Papers.

OTTAWA.

Small Gate Receipts.—There is a good deal of surprise at the small amount collected at the gates during the exhibition. A local paper says:—"The gate receipts appear to be altogether disproportionate to the attendance. It is stated that the gate-keepers in many instances collected money from people who never passed through the turnstiles, and that no record was kept of this at all. It is also stated that exhibitors' tickets, good for one admission only, were used throughout the week, having never been taken up. It is hard to say how much truth there is in these reports, but there is evidently just cause for enquiry.

THE YELLOW FEVER.

By Telegram to the Review.

LIBERAL AID.

Memphis, Sept. 30.—The subscriptions to the Howard's Association yesterday reached $1,200.

DESTROYED BY FUMIGATION.

Captain Berkshire's house, while being fumigated on Saturday, caught fire and was destroyed. One new case is reported at Concordia.

The Plain English Branches.

The Board of Education is out with a call for $3,558,200 for public school purposes next year, with an accompaning warning that the sum total in the year succeeding will be a round million. Taxpayers would not complain of these heavy estimates if they had some assurance that the money was economically applied. At present there is a widespread conviction, and one which we believe to be well founded, that half a million at least could be saved if the great army of three thousand teachers (not a few of whom are said to owe their places to political favoritism) were judiciously reduced and the Normal School not rid of altogether. People who desire to have their children taught Greek, Latin and Hebrew, with music and other ornamental accomplishments, should have an opportunity to do so at their own expense. The taxpayers have borne the burden long enough. The whole thing is a flagrant perversion of what was the original purpose in the matter of public instruction. We must go back to the plain English branches, and refund to the city treasurer a million or so that is now taken out of it for mere fancy work for the benefit of the few.

The Heated Term—Look Out.

DON'T SIT ON THE GRASS.

The most stubborn case of Dysentery which is nothing more nor less than inflammation of the rectum, produced not unfrequently by sitting on the grass—may be cured by that most efficient cathartic, Castor Oil. Its soothing and healing properties are wonderful, but its nauseating effects make it impossible for the patient to retain it. To Scott & Bowne, the public are indebted for an Emulsion of Castor Oil that is not only palatable, but is pronounced by thousands who are using it, absolutely agreeable to the palate. No family can afford to be without it through the heated term. Price 25 cents. d53-w26-1m

TRAINING FROM AN OPPONENT.

London, Sept. 30.—Boyd, who defeated Higgins so easily yesterday, has adopted the American style of rowing, and has Hanlan's method to perfection. He has employed Hanlan's old trainer, and will probably become the Canadian's great antagonist.

CATTLE DISEASE IN RUSSIA.

Berlin, Sept. 30.—The rinderpest is ravaging in Russia and Poland. Further precautions have been taken to prevent its introduction into Germany.

THE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA.

Vienna, Sept. 30.—It is reported that the Emperor of Russia is suffering from mental fatigue, and is daily getting worse.

THE RUSSIAN EMBASSY.

London, Sept. 30.—Schouvaloff will quit the Russian Embassy in London at the end of October.

AMERICAN.

A BANKRUPT CITY.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 30.—Peter Gorlet, who holds the bonds on which the city of Elizabeth has failed to pay interest, has applied for the appointment of a receiver for that city.

OIL WELLS IN PERU.

Titusville, Sept. 30.—F. Prentice, a prominent oil operator, has gone to Peru to develop the wonderful oil deposits found there. He pays a royalty to Peru and expects to make a million dollars a year.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 30.—The trial of the Rev. Mr. Haydon, for the alleged murder of Mary Stannard, begins on Oct. 7.

DIVORCE SUIT.

Hartford, Sept. 30.—The suit of Mrs. J. B. R. Walker, for divorce, comes up to-day. She alleges that he deceived her concerning her step-daughter's habits, which proved to be bad. She also alleges cruelty and adultery.

ARCTIC EXPLORATION.

New York, Sept. 30.—The Herald publishes a letter announcing the arrival of the Jeannette at St. Lawrence Bay, Behring Strait. A Tchonchie Chief made a statement which leads to the conclusion that Nordenskjold has got out as reported. The prospects are favourable for an open winter.

A TERRIBLE OUTRAGE.

Troy, Sept. 30.—The inquest in the case of Mary Jenks, who was terribly outraged at West Stephentown recently, was held yesterday. Stephen Sweet was found guilty and was arrested.

THE TRIUMPHANT PEDESTRIANS.

New York, Sept. 30.—Rowell says he will certainly take the belt back to England and contest for it there. It is now stated that Weston was arrested three times while on the track on attachments for debt. This made him despondent. His winnings cannot be seized, as they belong to his wife, she having paid his entrance fees and expenses. Merritt's friends have determined to make a grand entry with him into Bridgeport on Thursday. They have chartered a steamboat. He will be accompanied by his late competitors.

A STRANGE WILL CASE.

New York, Sept. 30.—Col. F. H. Ellis, brother of Mrs. Dorsey, the lady who left her estate to Jefferson Davis, informed a reporter yesterday that Major Walker a nephew of Mrs. Dorsey had challenged Ellis to a duel. Ellis says he has declined to fight the latter. He says that the revelations that will be made in the contest over Mrs. Dorsey's will, will not redound to Davis's credit. He charges that Mrs. Dorsey's death was caused by an unnecessary surgical operation which she was persuaded to undergo.

THE ASTLEY BELT.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 30.—O'Leary says he will challenge Rowell, but if he wins back the belt and is again challenged, he will resign it without a contest.

ROBBING THE MAILS.

Cincinnati, Sept. 30.—A. R. Sayers, route agent of the Kentucky Central Railway for a number of years has been arrested for robbing the mails.

PROPERLY PUNISHED.

New York, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Martin, of Spottswood, N. J., pleaded guilty yesterday to an indictment charging her with horse-whipping a man who had defamed her daughter. She was discharged.

A LIVELY STOCK EXCHANGE.

New York, Sept. 30.—Yesterday's business at the stock exchange was the largest on record, being larger than the day of 446,000 shares, which immediately preceeded the panic of 1876. The sales were 769,100 shares.

STRIKE ENDED.

The striking employees in Weber's piano manufactory, numbering 300, resumed work yesterday, and left the question of increased wages to their employers.

OFFICIAL CHANGES.

New York, Sept. 30.—The Sun's Washington despatch says that Evarts may take the English mission, and Fenton the Secretaryship of State.

DELUDED EMIGRANTS.

A number of half starved Russian emigrants arrived from Brazil yesterday. They had been induced by the Brazilian Government to emigrate, but could not make a living there. They want to go west.

THE LEATHER MARKET.

New York, Sept. 30.—The leather market is experiencing a "boom" such has not been witnessed in a long time. Purchasers for both home and export acconnt are very heavy. One cent per pound would be an underestimate of the advance in prices.

HANLAN-COURTNEY RACE.

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 30.—It is officially announced that the Hanlan-Courtney race will positively occur on October 16th.

PAYING A FINE.

New York, Sept. 30.—Jacob Wood was fined $10 in the Police Court yesterday. He passed a $5 counterfeit bill on the National State Bank of Troy upon the Justice and disappeared.

INCREDULOUS OPERATIVES.

London, Sept. 29.—In regard to the causes of the depression in trade, it is stated that during the past fortnight a large firm of agents in Lancashire have taken more orders for American cloth for India than they have in the same period received in connection with all the English firms which they commercially represent. Some cloth is shipped direct from the States and other orders are sent via Liverpool. Yet the operatives will not deliver in foreign competition. In addition to the mills already closed, one of the largest Preston mills will be closed in a few days if trade does not mend, and others announce an intention to do likewise during the next three months.

AMERICAN INTRIGUES IN JAPAN.

Berlin, Sept. 29.—The National Zeitung, a journal not recognized in any proper sense as expressing the ideas of the German Government, but not unfrequently used by it for its own purposes, in a leading article, referring to the controversy betwen Germany and Japan, concerning the affair of the steamer Hesperia, asserts that the United States Government has adopted a policy of inciting the Governments of Japan and China to act against the interests of Europeans in those countries and elsewhere, and that the purpose of General Grant in his recent visit to Pekin and Tokio was to intrigue for that object. This intelligence is received at the United States Embassy here and in well informed American circles with amusement and contempt.

PUNISHING REFRACTORY PAPERS.

London, Sept. 29.—It is believed that the Russian censor intends to punish refractory newspapers by forbidding them to receive advertisements.

STORM IN ITALY.

Rome, Sept. 29.—A terrific storm has occurred in Southern Italy. A training ship was driven ashore at Maranto and many of the railroad bridges were destroyed.

GREECE AND TURKEY ARMING.

London, Sept. 29.—A Constantinople correspondent telegraphs that it is thought an understanding between Greece and Turkey is impossible. Warlike preparations are progressing on both sides. It is supposed Austria is obstructing the efforts for an understanding, and in the event of hostilities would occupy Macedonia. Prince Lobanoff is the bearer of a project for an alliance between Russia and Turkey. It is rumoured Russia is willing to renounce 800,000,000 francs of the war indemnity and give back some of the former Provinces of Turkey in Asia.

THE MERV EXPEDITION.

London, Sept. 29.—The following has been received from St. Petersburg, giving the Russian account of the battle at Geok-Tope between the Russian expeditionary forces and the Tekke Turcomans. Intelligence has been received from Beurma that during a reconnoissance near Geok-Teppe on the 28th August the Russians encountered large masses of Tekke Turcomans, strongly entrenched, who made a desperate resistance. The Russians for six hours cannonaded the position occupied by 30,000 Tekke Turcomans. In the evening the Russians obtained possession of the outer entrenchments, and at night the enemy fled, losing several thousands. The Russians lost seven officers and 187 soldiers killed; 16 officers and 234 soldiers wounded. This is the same battle reported in a despatch from Simla on the 23rd instant. That despatch stated the Russians were defeated with a loss of 700 killed, and were falling back on Beurma.

A CARGO OF COTTON ON FIRE.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 29.—The cotton on the steamar New Natchez took fire to-day creating great excitement among the passengers. The crew threw overboard 300 bales of burning cotton. The vessel was slightly damaged. The damage to the cargo is estimated at $30,000.

DOUBLE MURDER IN DETROIT.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29.—A terrible bloody and mysterious tragedy was enacted near this place last night, resulting in the death of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morris. The circumstances of the affair point to it as one of the most mysterious of the kind ever heard of here-about. Mr. Morris' body was found on the steps of his house dressed only in his night clothes, deceased having evidently been shot. Mrs. Morris' body was discovered in a closet opening off a bedroom in the house. She, too, had been shot, and was stone dead. Mr. Morris' trousers were found in a barn, and it was seen that one of his horses was missing. Mr. and Mrs. Morris were young people of means and high standing in the community. The first knowledge of the horrible crime was when the hired girl found Morris' dead body on the rear step leading to the house. She gave the alarm, and on examination it was found that he had been shot through the neck and breast. Mrs. Morris was found sitting in the bedroom closet, where she had fled after receiving her death wounds. She sat on the floor with her back to the wall of the closet with a revolver in her hand and four bullet holes in her breast. The murderer escaped on the back of one of Mr. Morris' horses, but nothing else was stolen. There is as yet no clue to the murderers.

A STRANGE SUICIDE.

Patterson, N. J., Sept. 29.—On Friday night Hugh Baxter, of Morriston arrived at Bunns' hotel. During the night he appeared insane and was placed in jail for medical examination. Last evening he hung himself. Nearly $500, arrears pension, were found in his pocket.

"Mrs."—A woman who opened a small millinery store in the western part of Detroit engaged a painter to paint her a sign. When it came home the other day, she saw that it read, "Mrss. Blank," etc., and she called out, "You have an extra 's' in 'Mrs.,' and you must paint the sign over again." The painter saw the error, but he didn't want the job of correcting it and he replied, "Madam, haven't you had two husbands?" "Yes sir." "You were Mrs. when you lost the first?" "I was." "And do you think a woman can go on marrying for ever and not lengthen out her title? 'Mrs.' means a married woman or a widow. 'Mrss.' means a woman who has been married twice, and is young enough to marry again; and only yesterday a rich old 'coon was in our shop and said if he had any idea that you were heart free, he'd come up—" "Oh, well, you can nail up the sign!' she interrupted; and it is there to-day.

Worth its Weight in Gold.

When we hear anybody say that such and such a thing is worth its weight in gold we think they are indulging in hyperbole, and pass the matter with a smile. But numbers of invalids who have once partaken of Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil in combination with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda say they would not be without it for any consideration. And no wonder for in all cases of General Debility or Chronic Coughs, in fact, any pulmonary complaint and consumption it is worth its weight in gold. d53-w26-1m

THE BRITISH GRAIN TRADE.

The Mark Lane Express, in its weekly review of the British grain trade, says:—"The weather has been mostly dull and gloomy, with a close and damp atmosphere, unfavourably affecting the new wheat, although not seriously impeding harvesting operations. Much grain has been carted and stacked under conditions which render sprouting and loss of condition almost inevitable. In Scotland the agricultural situation is gloomy. The fields are still quite green in the uplands, and as the season is too far advanced for any hope of sunshine, the chances of grain maturing properly are reduced to a minimum. Bad as our harvests have been since 1876, it must be admitted that the present season's yield will be by far the worst. There has been a material revival of trade in foreign wheat, and the upward movement anticipated a fortnight since has made a fair start in the advance of 2s per quarter, which has been well maintained throughout the week, and the prevalence of speculative transactions affords proofs that there are not wanting those who consider the recent improvement the first step to a materially enhanced range of values. Millers, too, have shown a decided inclination to add to their stocks, so that a healthy activity has pervaded the grain trade throughout the United Kingdom. Flour has shared the advance to the extent of 1s per sack and bbl. Feeding stuffs are held with increased firmness. The arrivals at ports of call during the past week have been small. Wheat off-coast met with a good inquiry, and prices advanced 1s 6d to 2s, but the limited choice has restricted business. Maize was also in good demand, and prices advanced 1s 6d. There has been a very extensive business done in wheat for shipment at rapidly improving prices, and the closing sales indicate an advance of 2s on the week, with a continued strong demand. Maize is 1s to 1s 6d dearer. Barley is steady, with an upward tendency. The sale of English wheat last week amounted to 13,214 qrs at 47s 4d per qr, against 60,456 qrs at 43s 2d per qr during the same week last year. The imports into the United Kingdom for the week ending September 13 were 1,513,129 cwts of wheat and 174,115 cwts of flour."

COLONISING NOVA ZEMBLA.

Russia's experiment of colonising Nova Zembla is spoken of by the Archangel Press as likely to prove a success. Capt. Tyagin, who visited the island last autumn, with his wife and family, expressely to see whether the rigours of an Arctic winter could be supported by settlers, has returned to Archangel this summer with encouraging accounts of the place. Of course, he found his residence upon the island somewhat dull and dreary, but this is no drawback in the opinion of the people of the White Sea Coast, as, to them, anything approaching liveliness in the desolate region they inhabit is a matter of rare occurrence. His little party was not distressed by cold, food was found in plenty, and none of the members suffered from the scorbutic complaints which whalers allege are common to the island. During his stay in Nova Zembla his family was increased by a son, the first person probably ever born in such high and inauspicious latitudes. Capt, Tyagin contemplates returning to his settlement next month, taking with him a large number of Samoyede families on board a sloop of war. A second settlement will at the same time be founded on the opposite side of the island, where a port of call is projected for vessels engaged in the trade between Europe and Siberia. Towards the formation of these two colonies the Russian Government has devoted the sum of 50,000 roubles, and has further offered, as an inducement to settlers, to remit the taxation on all persons proceeding to the island for a period of fifty years. Perhaps political as well as commercial motives have inspired this generous offer, as the Government is known to be jealous of the influence which Scandinavia exerts in the Arctic seas. Forty years ago as many as 140 Russian sailing vessels visited Nova Zembla annually, and Norwegian whalers were rarely encountered on the northern coast. Last year the total number did not exceed ten, and none of these were of large dimensions. Partly from want of enterprise and other causes, the fishing industries of the Arctic region have passed into the hands of Sweden and Norway, and Russia is now desirous of colonising Nova Zembla and subsidising the shipbuilding trade of the White Sea to get them back again into her own possession.

Home Manufactures.

That it was not the policy of the late Government to confine their purchases to Canada when Canadians could furnish the goods on equal good terms, is shown by their extraordinary heavy importations of railway material, even foreign turntables (which could have been purchased at home at lower prices for an equally good article) having been hauled through the streets of St. John while the election campaign was going on? The policy of the present Government is entirely different. The Railway department has been instructed to buy at home all that it possibly can; and we have seen that iron bridges, instead of being imported, have been made at home; turntables, such as were imported by the Mackenzie Government have been manufactured at home, with very satisfactory results. For instance: turntables equal in every respect to those imported by the Telegraph's friends from Philadelphia, and costing $1,200 to $1,500 were ordered by the present Government from Haslehurst & Co., costing only $800 each. Since it was known that turntables could be made at home, the Western Counties Railway have ordered five of them from Haselhurst & Co., and the Eastern Extension Company are also wanting the homemade article. Instead of importing iron bridges from Phœnixville the present Government have had them made at home, and in a first-class manner, by Messrs. Fleming & Sons—and their work stand in the valley near the I. C. Railway station at St. John, to speak for itself. In fact the foolish, reckless and unpatriotic expenditures of public money for foreign made articles, which can be produced at home have practically ceased under the present Government.—St. John, N. B., Sun.

An Interesting Heirloom.

When Mary Queen of Scots was a prisoner in the Castle of Lochburn in the winter and early spring of 1568, she drew young George Douglas, the stripling brother of William Douglas, the Governor of Lockburn, into her favour for the purpose of effecting her escape. The youth was won completely. On the evening of the 2nd of May, 1568, the keeper and his family being at table, George seized the keys and fled across the lake with the royal prisoner. For this romantic allegiance Queen Mary presented to George Douglas a lock of her hair. Now it so came about that as time rolled on, this lock—of a silken texture and beautiful pale auburn—was found among some old papers at "Wishhw," one of the estates of the Douglas family. And as time again passed when the late John Carroll Brent visited the late Mrs. Catherine Pye Douglas, of Rose Hall, Scotland, a relative, she showed him the lock, and, dying seven years later, in 1847, bequeathed it to him. At the death of John Carroll Brent it fell into the possession of his sister, Miss C. D. Brent, of Washington, D. C., who is now at Bedford Springs, and who herself kindly told the Lynchburg News of last Thursday all about the relic.

THE DOMINION EXHIBITION.

OTTAWA, Sep. 27.—Last evening the ceremony of presenting the medals won during the Dominion Exhibition took place in the Senate Chamber, admission to which was secured by ticket. There was an immense crowd of persons present. The medallists occupied seats just outside the bar. Shortly before seven o'clock Their Excellencies and suite arrived. They were escorted from Government House by the Dragoon Guards, and as they entered the Chamber the band of the Governor-General's Foot Guards played the National Anthem. A few minutes after the work of presentation began.

The Manitoba exhibits will be moved to London to-night and afterwards shown in Hamilton and Toronto. Some thirty or forty diplomas have been awarded to exhibitors from that province. Some of the poorer specimens of roots, &c., will be given to the city poor and not removed. After the exhibitions are over the rest of the exhibition will be given to railway companies, etc., for advertising purposes.

From the Morning Papers.

BARRIE.

MURDER TRIAL.—At the fall assizes the first case was that of Chester Munroe, charged with murder. From the evidence given on Friday it appears that on the evening of the 20th of June the prisoner, Chester Munroe, and his wife were on their way home from Mansfield, when the deceased, Thomas Cook, overtook them and said he would go to their house and have some tea. While Mrs. Munroe was pouring out the tea, Cook put his hand on her breast. The prisoner told him that was enough of that work, that he was welcome to his tea, but must keep his hands to himself. Deceased wanted to know where he had his hands. Munroe said you know yourself that they were on my wife's breast. Cook sprang up from the table and said, "It is a d——d lie." His fists were clenched, and he looked as if he meant to fight. He was told to stand back, but he still advanced with his right hand drawn back as if to strike a blow. It was then that the prisoner took down a double-barrelled gun and shot Cook, as he (the prisoner) says, in self-defence. After having committed the deed, Munroe went and told Cook's father, who had the body removed to his own house. The prisoner then left for Rosemont to give himself up. After counsel for the defence and the Crown had been heard, His Lordship summed up. At one o'clock the jury retired, and returned at 2.40 p. m., with a verdict of "guilty," Silence prevailed. His Lordship addressing the prisoner, asked him if he had anything to say why the sentence of the Court should not be passed on him. Prisoner said he was not guilty of murder; what he had done was only in self-protection; he did not intend to shoot the deceased, but the cuff of his coat caught in the trigger and the gun went off. His Lordship said, had he made this statement at the proper time, when before the Corner, it might have led to a different verdict, but His Lordship was afraid this was an after-thought on the part of the prisoner. The jury had added to their verdict a strong recommendation to mercy. For his own part, he His Lordship, could not hold out any hope of mercy, but he would forward the recommendation to the Executive. The Judge then sentenced him to be hanged on the 17th of October.

LOOK TO YOUR MILK CANS.

It may not be generally known that cans that are not kept thoroughly clean are liable to impart to the milk a dangerous fermentive poison. Very recently a case occurred in London where a family suffered an attack of sickness and purging immediately after partaking of the usual morning's milk. A physician was called in, who traced the causes of the attack to the dirty cans from which the milk had been taken. Dr. Muter, in his report of the case, says that the milk delivered to him was in the can in which it came, and a larger amount of the same milk which had been boiled was likewise submitted. From the latter he made a careful search for poisons, but with a negative result. On opening the can he was struck by the foul smell which emanated from it, and on putting the milk under the microscope he found nothing which indicated disease, but noticed some bodies which appeared to be fungoid cells. He then turned his attention to the can, and found that the smell, although partly communicated to the milk, really existed chiefly in that vessel. On washing the can he obtained decided appearances of fungoid growths, and some bacteria adhering to the joints, which were entirely filled by a mass of decomposing milk constituents. He at once concluded that the milk had been rendered poisonous by being placed in this dirty can, and he reported accordingly. His conclusion is that a poison, probably of a fungoid nature, can form in milk vessels when they have had the milk hardening in them, and are only given a slight perfunctory rinse.

We think that selling skim milk, or milk adulterated with water is a virtue as compared with selling milk brought to our doors in dirty cans. We are not in favor of increasing the class of public officers known as inspectors, but a rigid official examination of the milk cans brought into our cities, made at frequent but irregular periods, we think, would be eminently salutary. Cans on their return from the cities should always undergo a thorough scouring before being again filled. It is a poor excuse for the farmer that his cans are kept so long on the road that he has no time to clean them. They should be bright, and shine both inside and outside every time they leave the dairy farm.—American Dairyman.

HIS RECOMMENDATION.

Some time since a Detroit merchant was in want of a clerk, and he advertised the fact. Among the numerous applicants who sent in a recommendation was a young man who had shortly before received a letter from the old man to the effect that any further visits to his house on the part of the young man could not be permitted, and that Mary's future husband was already selected. In his haste and excitement he forwarded this note in place of a recommendation from a mercantile house, and upon discovering his mistake he called upon the merchant to secure his missive.

"Ah," said the merchant, as the young man entered, "you can begin here to-morrow. I was about to write to you."

"That—that letter—" began the young man but the merchant interrupted.

"Best recommend in the world. Old Blank and I have been enemies for 46 years. Any one he is down on I always employ, in order to aggravate him. Come right along, I'll give you a position in the front of the store where the old curmudgeon must see you every time he passes, and if you want to make up faces at him I'll pay the costs."

Thus we are able to furnish another illustration that sunshine may come out of despair.

Coal Oil for the Curculio.

One of our members, R. O'Hara, Chatham, writes that he placed an open basin of coal oil in one of his plum trees last spring. He now notices the fact that the fruit on all the trees except this one is destroyed by curculio. On this tree a few were injured in the middle of July, after he had removed the basin of oil.—Canadian Horticulturist.

THE GRAIN TRADE.

So long as the American continent remains an important part of the granary of the world, and so long as England remains the chief consumer of breadstuffs in the world, so long will the means of transport from the great wheat-fields of this continent prove a matter of paramount importance to the producer, the transporter and the consumer. To give some slight idea of the immense importance of this question to the producer, and through them to every class of the community, we may mention that a reduction of one single cent per bushel on the grain received at the port of New York during the year 1878, would foot up to no less than $1,286,137! With such an astonishing fact as this before us, and the statement put forth by so excellent an authority as the Scientific American, that even now the carrying facilities afforded by the existing railways leading into New York are alone unequal to the task at present imposed upon them, and that were it not for the check afforded by the water routes, the chief of which is the Erie canal, the rates of freight would be enormously higher, we can form some idea of what vast importance this question of transport is to both the Western States, and our own Nor'-West, to the localities along or through which it may pass, and to the seaports which are rivals for a trade, the transferance of which from barges and cars to the sea-going vessels alone involves the expenditure of millions of dollars.

That the water routes between the west and the east must even be looked to as important factors in the grain trade, is evident from the figures given in the article in the Scientific American, to which we have already referred. Not only is the Erie Canal worth many times its cost to the Western States, simply as a means of checking the exorbitant demands of railway pools, but, it was alone the means of bringing to New York within a few bushel of as many bushels as all the railways combined during the year 1878, thus proving that instead of being a thing of the past, a canal labouring under even the many disadvantages which the Erie unquestionably does, can and does successfully compete with the railways for their grain trade of the west, and not only does it do all this, but the moment the water route opens in the Spring it is the means of causing freight from Chicago to New York to drop from twenty to twenty-five cents a bushel down to eight and nine cents. Now, we ask, with such facts before us, is it not time that Canada took up and completed the Trent Valley Canal? We believe it to be susceptible of indisputable proof that when completed it would have in many respects the advantage of the Erie as a competitor for the trade coming off the great lakes. It is the shortest both in time and mileage. By it the dangerous and costly navigation of the St. Clair and Lake Erie is completely avoided; throughout at least five-sixths of the route from Georgian Bay to Montreal, the barges can be towed with as great facility and by as powerful tugs as on the Hudson, where a single one tows "fifty-six or more canal boats." While its construction would benefit every farmer and lumberman in the province west of Kingston by enhancing the value of their products, by decreasing the cost of getting them to market, and develop the numerous resources of a large area of country lying in the very heart of Ontario. Assuming that the Trent Valley were built and that it only carried to market fifty million bushels of grain per annum at a cost of five cents per bushel for handling at Georgian Bay, transport through the canal and handling at Montreal, it would add $2,500,000 per annum to the earning power of the country—$2,500,000, which is now spent in the neighbouring Republic. Is such a sum, as an annual expenditure for all time to come, of no importance to us, not only locally, but as a Dominion. We hold that it is; and that it is the duty of the present Government to at once take action—the more particularly as so great a boon can be obtained for an outlay that will not much, if at all, exceed a sum equal to the future annual expenditure which it would cause within the country.

THE EXHIBITION!

A Splendid Day for Opening.

Lovely Show Weather.

Exhibits Rapidly Pouring In.

Earnest Hard Work.

The Agricultural Machinery.

Full List of Entries.

As predicted yesterday in the REVIEW, Tuesday opened bright and promising. The November weather we had of late been encountering, was changed as if by magic to a sunny August day, cheering by its radiant influence, the hearts of intending exhibitors and of those who hope by the influx of people and the impetus to business, to reap a golden harvest from the exhibition

At an early hour machinery and stock were being rapidly brought forward, and the grounds were the theatre of great activity. In this bustling age, time is of the greatest value, and certainly little was lost by exhibitors in getting their goods into shape for the opening. As the stock does not show until the second day, and the almost limitless variety of articles in the Main Building prevents details being completed as easily as with larger articles. We shall first notice the display of Agricultural Machinery.

As we should expect to see in a town like Peterborough, situated in a fine agricultural district, this great and increasing industry has its thriving representatives here as well as calling attention from many outside firms, chiefly from the west, who by agents and other means freely compete with our local manufacturers. All the makers of this class of implements carrying on their works here, three in number, have exhibits on the ground, while no less than ten firms from a distance are also represented.

Chief among the exhibitors in this line is MR PETER HAMILTON, who carries on in a greatly extended scale, the business founded many years years ago (by his father, at the old stand on George street. Mr. Hamilton is one of the largest employers of labor in Peterborough, and has pushed his business far beyond our own locality, having firmly established his reputation by the quality of his work. His display is very large, and covers nearly all the ground by which at the present day the mechanical arts assist agriculture. It includes a "Humming-Bird" Mower, a machine which under a variety of names is manufactured all over Canada, a proof in itself of its merits, and one that gives weight to the claim that no complaints are ever heard about it. There is also a "Midland Harvest Reaper," improved, which rakes off at every fourth rake. A handsomely finished threshing machine "Louise," is the attractive centre piece of the display. Its appearance is creditable to the workmen employed on it—the usual hands in the shop. It is finished in walnut and ash, painted and varnished in excellent taste, and while it may be said that this extra labour does not improve its utility, it certainly is a recommendation of work when great taste is exhibited, as it indicates the presence of accuracy and carefulness in the other portions of it. His exhibit also includes a Grain Crusher, by which farmers can do their own grinding, a Hand and Power Straw Cutter, a Pea Thresher and Straw Cutter combined, which cuts the straw and threshes at once, awarded a prize at the Centennial, a Horse Power Sawing Machine, with 8 and 10 horse power, a broadcast Seeder and Drill, a 10 and 12 hoe broadcast Seeder, a gang plow and iron plows with steel mould boards.

J. WHYTE & Co.—This old established firm has always made a special feature of ploughs and consequently have the largest and handsomest display of them on the grounds. They include iron beam and all-iron ploughs. They exhibit their "Celebrated White's Patent Plow" which has a diamond steel mould-board. The mould-boards used by this firm are imported from Pittsburgh, Penna, at a much higher cost than English ones, as they are of better quality. They are shaped and tempered here by the firm themselves, who claim superiority for their hardness. The firm also exhibit a "Hanlan" reaper which like the champion is mighty hard to beat, an Empire Fanning Mill, Cultivators and Rollers.

MOWRY & FORSYTH, whose works are in Ashburnham, are also exhibitors to some extent. They show a Threshing Machine complete with horse power, a Wood Sawing Machine, a Turnip Slicer, which at one fourth the cost of other machines will cut about a bushel per minute. They also show a Churn to be worked by canine muscle. Messrs. Mowry & Forsyth made no special preparation and their goods consequently are just the same as those turned out every week.

There are several agents here for companies at a distance who show specimens.

GEO. A. MORRISON, representing L. Cossitt & Son, Guelph, has here a Cossitt Single Reaper, a Gang Plough, Turnip Seed Drill, Lawn Mower, and a No. 40 Chilled Mould-board Plough with wheel and skimmer attached.

WM. GRAHAM, agent for Harris, Son & Co., Guelph, shows a Self Dumping Reaper, a Kirby Mower and Reaper; for the Mason Manufacturing Co., a Cultivator, and Sulky Hay Rake, &c., and for J. G. Cockshutt, a Broadcast Seeder and Cultivator, and Seeder and Drill.

HENRY OWENS.—In addition to the manufacture of Pumps, Mr. Owens has the agency for the Toronto Mower and Reaper Co., and exhibits a "Toronto" Mower, a "Maxwell Reaper," a Buckeye Seeder and Drill.

THOMSON & WILLIAMS Manufacturing Company, of Stratford, Ont., show "The Johnson Wrought Iron Harvester," with gear trip and folding table. This is the only machine having the first named improvement. It has also the additional merits of two separate speeds. There is as well a No. 2 Combined Reaper and Mower, "Continental No. 1 Single Reaper," patented October 9, 1877. This firm have shown at many exhibitions this summer, and won 6 diplomas, 2 medals, $60 in money, and prizes at Toronto.

GURNEY, RUSSEL & Co. of Dundas, Ont., show a single reaper, the "Harvest Queen," a "Planet Mower," which has a large drive wheel enabling it to pass over uneven ground and furrows easier than the usual one, as the makers claim. This machine has also the Johnson five arm Rake attached. The workmanship on these machines is superior, and they have been exhibited at all the leading shows in the Province.

The JOSEPH HALL Manufacturing Company, of Oshawa, Mr. William Hall, agent, have on the grounds a Threshing Machine on trucks, which embodies several late improvements. There is a grain saving beater behind, as well as a cylinder to prevent grain going out into the straw. The shoe has been lengthened four inches, and a fan placed above, the object of which is to blow the light chaff off and allow the clear grain to fall through the sieve. They have also a mounted horse power for the above, an under shot Clover Mill, which threshes and chaffs simultaneously, a couple of Reapers and one Mower, with steel frames and malleable castings. The agent states that the Company have made 1,500 Champion Reapers and 200 Threshers.

Competition among makers of of these machines is keen, hence the large display, which proves the rapid progress of mechanical and agricultural skill. Makers and agents all claim special features and superior merits for their goods, and to decide between them places upon farmers who intend to buy, a task which Solomon himself, could he revisit the glimpses of the moon, and drop in at the great Central Exhibition, would shrink with diffidence.

Steam Engines.

WM. HAMILTON has two engines on the ground, with King's patent boiler, which will put the machinery in the Agricultural Department in motion.

Canvas Tents.

MESSRS. I. ROBINSON & Co. have erected upon the grounds two canvas tents of their own manufacture, one of the military or bell-shaped pattern, and the square tent. Campers-out may, under the shelter of these, defy the rain storms which in summer or the fall are about the greatest trial that keen hunters and fishermen have to endure on our back lakes.

The Judges at Work.

As we go to press only a few decisions have been rendered by the judges, who are now in the Main Buildings, and these we reserve until to-morrow, when the greater portion will have been made.

Visitors in Town.

Already a large number of visitors have arrived in town and our streets present a lively appearance. To-morrow being the leading day we expect a large influx of visitors from a distance. The weather still promises well and nature seems willing to assist art by giving the Exhibition a couple more such days as this.

To-Night.

The Main Building will be open from 7 to 10 p.m., and as it will probably be less crowded than to-morrow or Thursday evening, those who wish to avoid a great crush will do well to go. The Firemens Band will add the charms of music to the occasion.

Directory to the Grounds.

The ground, upon which the exhibition is being held, is a block of six acres, situated almost in the centre of the town, and is generally known as the old burying ground. Arriving by the Midland Railway, the stranger will proceed east to George street, and thence north, through the business centre, four blocks, when he will be at the corner of the Exhibition Grounds, which lie on the west side of the street. In passing up George street, the visitor will pass the stores of Messrs. J. I. Davidson, Thos. Menzies, and Wilson & Davis, where tickets of admission are on sale, and when they will do well to secure them en route. At the corner of the grounds on George and Murray streets, will be found the Secretary's office, where exhibitors will obtain their tickets, and where the Judges are expected to report themselves on their arrival. Stock, implements, grain, and other heavy articles will be admitted to the grounds at the large gate on Murray street, (i.e., the street running east and west on the south side of the grounds), west of the Drill Shed, while the lighter articles will be admitted direct from Murray street into the Drill Shed. Three admission gates have been provided for visitors, two on the east side of the Drill Shed, and one near the north-east corner of the grounds on George street. At these gates tickets only will be taken.

Within the Walls.

Entering at the exhibitors gate, west of the Drill Shed, already described, the place for agricultural machinery, etc., will be found on the left hand, while immediately on the right will be found the sheds for Cotswold, Southdown and fat sheep, and in the nor'-west corner those for the pigs. Directly opposite this gate, on the north side of the grounds, are the refreshment and fodder booths, and to the east of these the horse stalls, which extend to George street. Along George street and west along Murray street to the Drill Shed will be found the cattle sheds and those intended for Leicester sheep, while the Poultry Shed will be found attached to the north end of the Drill Shed.

The Officers and Committees

in charge of the exhibition are as follows:—

PRESIDENT.—James Campbell, Esq.
VICE-PRESIDENT.—Col. Deacon, Esq.
TREASURER.—E. J. Toker, Esq.
SECRETARY.—John Carnegie, Esq.
SUPERINTENDENTS.—M. S. Dean, Esq., John Bennett, Esq.

Ladies' Work and Fine Arts, Messrs. Clementi and Wilmot. Leather Work, Plants and Flowers, Natural History and Miscellaneous, Col. Deacon.

CHIEF CONSTABLE.—Mr. George Johnston.

The Programme.

WEDNESDAY.—The stock will require to be all on the ground by 10 o'clock, a.m., so that the judges in these departments may proceed with their duties. The Exhibition will be open from 9 a.m., to 10 p.m., this day to the public. The Firemen's band will be present during the afternoon and evening. The judges will probably reach the carriage horses during the afternoon.

THURSDAY.—The work of the judges will be completed. The Exhibition will be again open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., when it will be finally closed to the public. The band will be present during the whole of this day.

FRIDAY.—Exhibitors will be at liberty to remove their animals or articles.

Special Offer.

Be sure to leave your order for the WEEKLY REVIEW for 1880 either at the office of publication, at the Exhibition Secretary's office, or with Mr. Harry Stapleton, or Mr. A. Borrowman, before you go home.

REFUTATION!

I DENY the statement contained in the circular issued by Mr. Henry Owens, that he has commenced proceedings in Chancery to restrain me from infringing on his rights, by making and selling the Cone Pump and its connections. No such proceedings have been commenced to my knowledge.

I DENY and always denied that the alleged Patent is of any value. For over five years Mr. Powell and Mr. Owens, who claims under him, have shown their want of belief in the validity of the alleged Patent, as they have never, during all that time, taken any legal steps to assert their pretended rights, although a number of pump makers as well as myself have been making these pumps—and although Mr. Owens and Mr. Powell know that my solicitors have for long been instructed to defend any legal proceedings they or either of them might take to establish the validity of the alleged Patent.

I DENY that the 23rd Section of Canada Patent Act is to the effect represented in the circular referred to, and any interested may satisfy themselves of the correctness of my denial by referring to the section for themselves.

I ASSERT that the said circular is issued for the purpose of damaging my business as a manufacturer of pumps, and at my expense increasing the business of Mr. Owens. Had it been otherwise, Mr. Owens has had ample time to establish his patent in an honorable and straightforward way through the Court of Chancery, which he has not done.

I ASSERT that I have commenced AN ACTION against Mr. Owens in the Court of Common Pleas for $2,000 for the purpose of recovering against him damages for the injury said circular is intended to do to my business as a pump maker.

I ASSERT that all wanting GOOD PUMPS can be well and cheaply suited by me, and that I AM PREPARED TO STAND BETWEEN THEM AND ANY PRETENDED CLAIMS OF MR. OWENS.

WINCHESTER TRAGEDY.

TRIAL OF C. BROWN FOR MURDERING HIS FATHER AND SISTER.

Sentenced for Execution—The Defence Plea of Insanity His Lordship's Sentence—

The trial of Clark Brown for the murder of his father and sister at the village of West Winchester, on the 2nd Sept., was begun to-day before Mr. Justice Cameron. The Hon. R. W. Scott, Q. C., and Mr. Dingwall appeared for the Crown, and Messrs. Frank Tyrrel, of Morrisburg, and Henry McDonald, of Conwall, defended. The court room was densely crowded. When the prisoner appeared in the dock he was calm and self-possessed. Thomas Brown, an uncle of the prisoner, was called upon by the jury, but was excused by the Court. Mr. Scott, Q.C., opened the case, pressing upon the jury the gravity of the duty imposed upon them, and expected them to approach the discharge of it with minds entirely free from prejudice. He dwelt at some length upon the fact that the defence about to be set up was one of insanity, a defence which he said it was the custom of counsel to set up in cases where the facts showed a crime of such flagrant heinousness as to leave no other defence open. Mr. Scott proceeded to detail the circumstances of the family in which the tragedy occurred, and all the incidents of the evening upon which the murder was committed. He claimed that the repeated confessions of the prisoner and his reiterated recital of all the minutia of the murder proved beyond doubt that the killing had been the act of the prisoner, and that no doubt as to that could prevail in the minds of the jury. Mr. Scott spoke for about forty minutes, his address being calm and unimpassioned, and the prisoner remaining unmoved during its delivery. William Lang, who lives about one hundred rods from the scene of the murder, testified that on the night of the murder about nine o'clock he heard scuffling and blows and the screaming of female voices. After a few moments he heard a cry of murder, and having armed himself ran over to Brown's house. Witness described the position in which the two bodies were lying when he got there, the situation and dress of Clark Brown and his mother. The latter said the poor boy had gone out of his head. Witness asked prisoner who had done the deed, and prisoner described the man who he said had done it.

Evidence was given by the Crown in reference to the prisoner's arrest, the proceedings before the Coroners, and the prisoner's voluntary confession to them, all of which was made public at the time of the inquest.

The witnesses called by the prisoner's counsel were all medical gentlemen. The defence was that the prisoner committed the act while insane. Evidence was offered to show that while in gaol in Cornwall the prisoner had had temporary fits of insanity, and to support this contention two or three causes were assigned why he had become inflicted with insanity, viz., that he had taken poison once, by which his head was affected, and that he had been guilty of self-abuse and excess of self-indulgence.

Relative to the second assigned cause of the prisoner's insanity (self-abuse), Dr. Clark said that when he first visited the prisoner and saw his face he taxed him immediately with being guilty of the practise, and the prisoner did not deny it.

Other medical gentlemen gave similar evidence and agreed with Dr. Clark that such practices sent more people to the asylum than anything else.

THE ADDRESSES AND THE CHARGE TO THE JURY.

Mr. McDonald addressed the jury for the prisoner, telling them that from the evidence laid before them they might reasonably and fairly either find that the prisoner committed the crime, but committed it while temporarily insane, or they might find him not guilty with a rider for mercy attached to their verdict.

THE VERDICT.

The jury retired, and after an absence of twenty minutes returned a verdict of guilty.

The over-crowded Court room became ominously silent when the crier commanded silence while His Lordship pronounced on the prisoner

THE SENTENCE OF DEATH.

His Lordship,—Clark Brown!

The prisoner remained seated with his head hung down.

His Lordship.—Clark Brown! stand up.

The prisoner slowly rose, but almost immediately sank into his former attitude.

His Lordship.—Have you anything to say why the judgement of the Court and the sentence of death should not be passed upon you for the murder and felony of which you have been convicted?

The prisoner muttered in reply, "No," his voice being almost inaudible.

His Lordship then said:—You have placed me, in common with the jury who have had to investigate your case, in a very painful position. I shall not say much with a view of harrowing up your feelings in the painful situation in which you are at present placed. I am told you have expressed contrition and sorrow for the act—most cruel and wanton act—of which you have been guilty. I sincerely hope that repentance is sincere; that it is not simulated. I cannot hold out any hope whatever to you that the sentence which the law compels me to pass, the only sentence I am permitted to pass, will not be carried into action. Perhaps the annals of crime in this or any other country have never been stained with a blacker crime than that which you committed. I see that you are overcome. Your time on earth will be short. I can hold out to you not the least hope of extenuation. The sentence and judgment of the Court upon you, Clark Brown, is that you be taken hence to the gaol, on Friday the 31st of October, you to be hanged by the neck till you be dead, and may God have mercy upon your soul.

His Lordship in addressing these remarks to the unfortunate prisoner appeared to feel deeply the awfulness of his duty and the solemnity of the whole situation. The verdict and sentence of death were received by the people in court as a matter of course, and the prisoner himself seemed to be to a certain extent relieved when the proceedings terminated and he was taken down stairs. Although the jury remained out some twenty minutes, their verdict, they say, was decided within five. They spent the remaining fifteen minutes in smoking their pipes, as some of them were a little squeamish at rendering so grave a verdict in so short a time as five minutes. Although the case has come to an end, discussion of the tragic affair has not ceased, and possibly will not cease until some explanation can be given for the commission of so foul a murder. The only motive that the Crown Counsel could suggest as actuating the prisoner to take the blood of his family was a knowledge of the fact that the property was already heavily mortgaged, and that if things went on in the future as they had done in the past his inheritance would be getting smaller and smaller, and that the sooner he got it the better. This motive he, however, acknowledged was a very weak one, and the whole question of motive he almost despaired of altogether, saying that some secret influence must have operated on his mind, of which they were all ignorant. It is expected that the prisoner Brown will throw some further light on the tragic event before he expiates his crime on the scaffold.

THE DAILY EVENING REVIEW is delivered to subscribers for ten cents a week.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

FORCES CONCENTRATED.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—An Ali Kehyl correspondent reports that Gen. Baker's forces will shortly be concentrated in the Lirgar Valley for a rapid advance on Cabul.

A DOCTOR WOUNDED.

An Allahabad special says it is expected that Cabul will be entered on 5th October. Resistance is doubtful, as the rebels lack leaders. Gen. Roberts and party have been fired on, and a doctor was severely wounded. A force sent to assist lost five men.

THE AFGHAN'S FIGHTING.

SIMLA, Sept. 29.—A force under Gen. Hughes has arrived at Shakir Kafu, half way to Khelat i Ghilzai. The Governor of the latter place has written expressing joy at the approach of the British, but is reported stirring up the tribes to go to Cabul and join in the war. It is reported there has been a fight at Maemana between the Ameer's Cabul and Herat regiments. The former were beaten and have gone back.

VENGEANCE FOR TREACHERY.

Sir Frederick Roberts has received instructions to issue a manifesto to the Afghan people that the British army advances on Cabul to avenge the treachery to the British envoy; that peacable inhabitants will not be molested, but if opposition is offered, those persons with arms in their hands will be treated as enemies. Non-combatants, women and children, are advised to withdraw.

THE CHOLERA.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The Viceroy of India telegraphs that cholera is prevalent only on the route from Rowul Pindee to Jamrood. There has been a few cases of cholera at Ali Musjid, but that place and Lundi Khotal are now quite free from the disease. As the troops advance beyond Jamrood they lose the cholera influence.

ENGAGEMENT WITH HILL TRIBES.

A despatch from Simla says a small party of British troops proceeding to Shutargarden had a sharp fight with some of the hill tribes.

By Telegram to the Review.

STILL ADVANCING.

SIMLA, Sept. 30.—A telegram from Shutargarden of the 27th September, states that Gen. Roberts had arrived. His party were fired at by a large party of Mongols near Jagathaua. Five Sikhs were killed, but the Mongols were repulsed with loss. The latest news from Cabul states that all is quiet. Dakka was occupied without opposition yesterday.

A FALSE CHARGE.

Rev. Father McCarthy's horse ran away in Newark yesterday, and collided with a carriage. Father McCarthy was arrested on the charge of drunkenness, but was released by the justice, who said the prisoner was not drunk. The Irish and German Catholics are much excited, and denounce the police most vehemently. Father McCarthy had just risen from a sick-bed.

The Wheat Market.

There is no change to note to-day. The receipts have been heavier than yesterday, but not up to the receipts of last Tuesday. About 3,000 bushels will constitute the receipts thus far. The market was steady all the morning at $1.05. This afternoon there was considerable skirmishing and in the excitement that followed $1.10 and $1.12 was paid, and it is understood upon the market as we go to press that $1.10 will be paid to-morrow. Barley has come in more plentiful to-day at 55c. Some choice lots went at 60c., which is the top of the market.

THE
Great Cause of Human Misery

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.
☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' succesful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

A Newbrunswicker's Impressions of the Toronto Exhibition.

The St. John, N.S. Sun says:—One of our young merchants having just returned from a tour of the Upper Provinces (including a visit to Niagara Falls, Toronto, Ottawa and other points of interest), a representative of the Sun, desirsirous of securing the result of his observations of the Ontario Exhibition, interviewed him last night with the following result:—

Reporter: What features of the Exhibition struck you as the most remarkable?

MR. A.: The great improvement in tweeds, woollens, and other cloths and in yarns. Immense strides have been made in this direction of late years, sufficient to astonish those who have not kept the run of these goods. Their iron castings are also superior. There has been great improvement in stoves, especially self-feeders for halls and cook-stoves. The castings are very smooth; formerly they were not; and the styles are now elegant. There was a fine display of the better kinds of crockeryware—from Quebec Province, I think. There was a fine display of wood-working machinery and mill machinery, especially for flour mills. The exhibit of mill saws was the finest ever made in Canada.

Reporter: What about their agricultural exhibits?

Mr. A.: The most noticeable feature was their wheat, of which there was a splendid display. The exhibit of bread in loaves showed what their wheat was capable of producing—the whitest, best bread imaginable. The oats were poor—black oats, not equal to our own. I saw no buckwheat or buckwheat meal—I did not expect to find any. There was not a hay press on the grounds, as far as I could discover. The show of potatoes, turnips, etc., was not as good as could be shown at a New Brunswick County Fair, and their garden stuff was not as good as either Clark of Fredricton or Robertson of Grand Lake or the market gardners about St. John can produce.

Reporter: Did it strike you that we could hold our own with them in cattle rising?

Mr. A.: I am confident that we have a superior cattle grazing country, and that we have nothing to fear in this direction.—By the way, they made a good display of preserved meats such as spiced tongue, pic-nic meats, etc. They had a combination of ham, tongue and chicken in the form of a bologna, which is a favourite relish.

FALL WORK IN THE GARDEN.

The season for out-of-door gardening is now nearly over; there still remains, however, some little work that should be attended to before cold weather comes. If not already done, it is now high time to plant bulbs of Lilies, Hyacinths, Tulips, Snowdrops, Narcissus, etc. Every member of our society should have at least a couple of Lilies. To have these beautiful flowers to perfection, dig the soil out of the bed or border to the depth of eighteen inches, and fill the hole with a compost of peat, manure and leaf mould about a foot deep; the remaining six inches may be rich garden soil mixed with peat. The bulbs of strong growing Lilies should be planted about four or five inches deep; for the weaker sorts three inches deep will do. The White Lily—Liliam candidum, L. longiflorum and L. tigrinum, the Tiger-spotted Lily, are the most common. They are hardy, but they will flower better next year if they are covered with manure during the winter.

Hyacinths should be planned now. Set the bulds about eight inches apart and two inches below the surface. The ground should be enriched with well-rotted manure and finely pulverized. Plant also some in pots, soak the soil with water and set them away in a cellar in a cool place for five or six weeks. At the end of this time the bulks will have formed roots, and they can be transferred to the room or greenhouse where they will flower.

The pots may also be set in a pit in the ground and covered up with soil. This will keep the soil in the pots moist and the temperature even—the most favorable conditions for the formation of roots.

Tulips are planted like Hyacinths, only closer and not so deep. For winter flowering, three or bulbs may be set in a pot large enough to hold one Hyacinth.

Now is also the time to sow seeds of apples, pears, grapes, peaches, plums, etc. All kinds of nuts can now be sown also. Sow all these seeds in drills about nine inches apart and regulate the depth that each is to be buried by its size; the smaller ones are to be covered but little, the larger ones more. Cover the bed during the winter with long manure. After everything is cleared off the gardens, the ground should be spaded but not raked and lay in this condition over winter. This fall spading should never be neglected; on stiff, clayey soils especially, it is very beneficient.

BENEFITS FROM FAIRS.

The benefits that are to be derived from a well conducted agricultural fair—the horse racing being omitted—can hardy be overestimated, and yet a large majority of our farmers fail to work for its success. In fact, we often find that the principal part of the stock, etc., etc., on exhibition is placed there by persons who are not distinctly farmers, while the management, as well as most of the heavy work, develops upon the same class.

This is not as it should be. The average farmer should also "put his shoulder to the wheel," thus making our fairs still more beneficial. Our duty is poorly done if we only attend the fair for a day, or perhaps half a day, criticising all that has been done because it was not done differently, and explaining how we could have shown better stock, finer fruit, larger vegetables, etc., etc. A better way is to bring along samples of all things worth showing, and to place them on exhibition. Attend the fair with your family—for wife and children like to see fine things as well as yourself. Urge your neighbors to attend also, and when there, praise whatever you can, and where you cannot praise, keep silent.

SELF-DEFENCE.

Says the Montreal Star:—The Reform papers keep harping away at the "N. P." They write as if Canadians accepted the N. P. from choice and not from necessity. No one knows better than the Reformers that the majority of Canadian protectionists are free traders in theory. They want free trade with the United States, but the United States will not have free trade with them. It is not a matter of choice but a matter of necessity that Canada has adopted the protectionist programme. But our Reform [illegible] lose [illegible] of this when they [illegible] opposite side. Sir A. T. Galt [illegible] that Canada had not [illegible] herself by protective tariffs; and the Reform [illegible] when it said that "protection to native industries had become a fixed principle of Canadian policy." There is no "fixed principle" about it. Canadians were forced to adopt protection or starve. It is a choice of two evils—bread without butter or no butter at all. To talk of fixed principles may look philosophical, but it is not accurate. Protecting our native industries is simply locking the stable door before the horse is gone, or it is like a practical illustration of an injunction of "Man, mind thyself!"

RESULTS OF A REVIVAL.

A Converted Husband Runs Away with the Converted Wife of an Unrepentant Sinner.

Not very long ago a Gospel tent was pitched in a village not a hundred miles from Newmarket. The preachers were zealous; their labours were successful; and they had the gratification of finding that a genuine revival of religion had begun. The revival spread. It took hold of stragglers; it excited the village; it even emptied the churches. One minister had the misery of finding that his entire congregation had been swept into the gospel tent on the revival wave. The church was empty for several Sundays, and while the revivalists were preaching to crowded and enthusiastic houses, the minister was looking to empty benches. His sorrow, however, had mingled with it one drop of joy. The excitement could not continue forever. It must subside, and when it did subside, people would return to the even tenor of their ways, no doubt wiser and better than ever. Presently the agitation did begin to flag and people went back to church and to business as before. Many, however, continued in the good path into which the revivalists had assisted to put them. Among these few were a lady and a gentleman—both married, but not to each other. The lady was "another's" and the gentleman was, well, some one else's. But the "another" to whom the lady was married and the "some one else" with whom the gentleman had been, by legal process, made one, were among the few who resisted the simple eloquence of revivalist preachers. In other words, they were unconverted—and worse still, unrepentant. Their respective better halves endeavored to persuade them to forsake their wicked ways, but without success. What were the good two to do? They could not conscientiously live with their wicked partners. It was their duty to shun even the appearance of evil. Accidentally they discovered a liking for one another They told their loves, and determined to desert the individuals they had sworn to love and obey if the said individuals did not desert their evil courses. The latter desertion did not take place, so the former was resorted to, and the couple left the village. They have not been heard of since, and the unrepentant but deserted husband and wife are searching anxiously for the converted but eloped wife and husband.—Mail.

THAT FAILURE.

The journals which are crying out that the Ministers who went to England have failed, know exactly nothing about whether they have or not. But suppose they have failed, are the Ministers therefore to be blamed for it? There can be no doubt that they tried to succeed, and if they have not we are at least no worse off than before they made the effort. Mr. Mackenzie also failed in England with the Pacific Railway scheme, but his efforts looked very much as if that was what he desired. He advertised in some newspapers in Great Britain for tenders for the building of the line on certain terms, but nobody whatever paid any attention to him. The present Ministers went over there, had personal interviews with capitalists, explained the scheme to them, and gave them all the information in their power, with what definite result, if any, we have yet to learn. That at all events was the way to succeed if success was possible. If success is impossible the Ministers are not to be blamed for it. If capitalists are asked to embark their means in a project and they refuse to do so, the man who asks them cannot in justice be held responsible for the refusal. He may be blameworthy for the manner in which he made the request, and that part of the Ministers' work in England is quite fairly open to criticism, but we have not been told of any false steps made by them in that respect, and they are not responsible for anything more than this. The truth, of course, is that the journals which are proclaiming the failure are in total ignorance of whether there has been a failure or not. Sir John has a way of biding his time in making announcements, and the fact of the whole Opposition crying out that he has failed would not hurry him a single hour. We shall know in good time what the result of the mission to England is, and what the plans of the Ministry are in regard to the building of the road. Those who wish to know the truth will wait for that time to come. Those who wish to know what the Opposition press would like the facts to be may examine their assertions of what they are. —Hamilton Spectator.

Value of an Autograph.

Once upon a time, when Dumas Pere was short of cash, he wrote to a certain millionaire, asking for the loan of some money for a few months. The letter was an extremely characteristic one, and ended with a charming little rondeau, half jest, half seriousness. Indeed it was such a clever production that the banker sagely concluded that its author was not to be trusted with money, and promptly and curtly declined to make the proposed investment. At dinner that night several of the banker's guests happened to be discussing a recent sale of autographs and mentioned the almost fabulous prices brought by familiar notes of, Hugo, Lamartine, Guizot and Gautier. "Do you mean to tell me," said the millionaire, "that things of that sort have any value—money value?" "Certainly they have," replied one of his guests, who was a collector; "a good autograph, such as I have mentioned, is worth its weight in bank bills any day." "How much is this worth?" said the banker, taking Dumas's letter from his pocket. "I'll give you a hundred francs for it this instant," said the collector, with enthusiasm, after reading it. "Done!" said the banker; and, with a pitying smile, he pocketed the money for the letter to which a few hours before he had returned a contemptuous refusal.

A Nation Ruined by A Spider.

Spiders crawling more abundantly and conspicuously than usual upon the indoor walls of our houses foretell the near approach of rain, but the following anecdote intimates that some of their habits are the equally certain indication of frost being at hand. Quartermaster Disjonval, seeking to beguile the tedium of his prison hours at Utrecht, has studied attentively the habits of the spider; and eight years of imprisonment had given him leisure to be well versed in its ways. In December of 1794 the French army, on whose success his restoration to liberty depended, was in Holland, and victory seemed certain if the frost, then of unprecedented severity, continued. The Dutch envoys had failed to negotiate a peace, and Holland was despairing, when the frost suddenly broke. The Dutch were now exulting, and the French Generals prepared to retreat, but the spider warned Disjonval that the thaw would be of short duration, and he knew that this weather monitor never deceived. He contrived to communicate with the army of his countrymen and its generals, who duly estimated his character, relied upon his assurance that within a few days the waters would again be passable by troops. They delayed their retreat. Within twelve days the frost had returned—the French arm triumphed, Disjonval was liberated, and a spider had brought down ruin on the Dutch nation.

CORPULENCE AS A LIFE PRESERVER.

The Rev. Father Labelle Falls out of a Canoe —His Swim for Shore.

The Rev. Father Labelle, the popular cure of St. Jerome, has had a second adventure, which the Herald describes as follows :—

The Rev. Father Labelle, the popular and liberal-minded cure of St. Jerome, has had some amusing and sometimes perilous adventures during his pastorate in that scattered northern parish. Not the least amusing or venturous is that which has just reached this city. A short time since, at a meeting in aid of the scheme for the colonization of the Ottawa Valley by the poor French-speaking residents of Montreal, a benevolent gentleman presented the cure with $500, with which to erect a church in one of the recently formed parishes, La Conception, situated one hundred and eight miles from this city. The cure was returning from a visit to this parish, and decided to have a day's fishing on a lake leading into the Riviere aux Bleuets—Blueberry River. He keenly entered into the sport. The fishing was good, and he was just in the act of shipping a huge maskinonge when the canoe in which he and his habitant guide were seated toppled over and precipitated them into the water. The canoe immediately righted. The habitant was the first to rise to the surface, and seizing hold of the head of the canoe with a death like grip which caused his fingers to pierce right through the bark, he steadied himself and looked eagerly around for the cure. He had not long to wait, for almost immediately the head of the canoe went down and the centre went up, then wobbled on one side, and lo the Cure was swimming before him, somewhat short of breath, but otherwise uninjured. "Oh my dear, Mr. Cure." exclaimed the habitant, "seize hold of the canoe, and save myself." "Keep hold of it yourself," cheerfully replied the Cure. "I can swim ; you remain there till I get some assistance," and forthwith he slowly proceeded to shore, summoned the aid of some settlers near by and rescued his guide from his unpleasant position. Cure Labelle believes that there is a bright side to everything but sin, and that corpulency, through sometimes inconvenient, proves of service to a man of active habits, and who has a knowledge of the art of swimming, should he chance to upset a canoe beyond the reach of assistance. In his presbytery at St. Jerome there hangs a finely executed engraving, taken from an illustrated journal, of his adventure last spring at the carrying away of the bridges at Riviere le Diable, where he escaped death by the courage of two habitants who were riding with him.

RELIGION AND PORRIDGE.

When we made an excursion in Southern Utah not long ago, writes a recent tourist, we were hospitably entertained by the Mormon bishop at Richfield. He was a Scotchman, and had been brought up a rigid Presbyterian. "Ah well," said he, "they think ill of me at home for changing my religion ; but there is my brother Aleck, who took it most to heart. He was on his way last year to California, and turned off the road a bit to see me, and to try and bring me back into the fold. When he got there he spent the whole evening lecturing me, and then went to bed. In the morning I gave him the best breakfast the country would afford—coffee and rolls, trout, beef and venison steak, and such like. Poor Aleck ! he looked all over the table, and then turned upon me his sorrowful face, blurting out, "Oh, Jamie, mon! Jamie, mon ! did I ever think it would come to this? I could hae forgien ye a' yer poleegamy, but hae ye gien up yer parritch ?"

An Aristocrat's Exclusiveness.

The stuck-up exclusiveness of some of these English noblemen is positively refreshing. The other morning while Lord Loftus was breakfasting at the palace, a solemn-looking chap across the table suspended operations on his section of broiled rubber, and ejaculated, "Lord !" The English stanger supposed the sad man was about to say grace, but instead of that the latter repeated inquiringly, "Lord ?" "Are you addressing me, sir ?" enquired the new Colonial Governor. "I am, Lord; I want to make a little business proposition to you. I've started about the red-hottest little watering place in the whole State, up in Sonoma county. Everything way up. Sulphur spring, bowling alley, pianna in the parlor—everything. All I want is to advertise it a little. Now I notice you Lord fellers are first-rate cards for hotels. S'posin' you come up and spend a few days at my lay out. You can stay a square month if you like, and it shan't cost you a cent—'ceptin' for drinks, if you are much on the imbibe. What yer say ?" "Well, by Jove !" said his Lordship, putting up his eye-glass. "I know it's a square-toed, liberal offer, but I'm givin' you the straight tip. All you'll have to do will be help carve, and mebbe sing a little with the ladies, and play billiards with the boys. If there's a hop we'll make you floor manager and"— But the purse-proud autocrat had ordered the rest of his meal sent to his room, and walked frigidly out. These airy English never had any chap about a speculation, and that's a fact.—San Francisco Post.

MISCELLANEOUS.

An English paper records a singular occurrence. A batch of race horses were galloping at exercise at Curragh, when, on reaching the crest of a ridge, they met the 7th Dragoon Guards, charging up the opposite slope. A violent collision ensued between the racers and the front rank of dragoons, and one of the troop horses was killed.

Commander Cameron, of the British Navy, says that the Morse system of telegraphy, as far as it depends on the length of sounds, has long been in use in Africa. He has found tribes that by stationing drummers at intervals, carry intelligence for miles with great rapidity, the beats of the drum being made in accordance with a previous arrangement of signals.

There is a great scandal in Austria which is creating a profound sensation. A tailor named Joseph Schwarz, condemned as an incendiary, declared to the judges after his trial that Count Waitslaw, who was found dead twenty years ago in the woods, did not commit suicide, as was alleged at the time, but was killed by himself and a companion at the instigation of a noble, who was jealous of his attentions to a lady. Some of the highest nobility have already been summoned to answer for the crime.

Marriages ought to be pretty plentiful here this year, as statistics show, more clearly prehaps than anything else, that there is a constant relation between the number of marriages and the character of the harvest—abundent crops, frequently pairings ; harvest scanty, weddings few.

Which of our fairs did it ? What ? Why offered a premium for the best device for irrigating purposes and misspelt the word, "irritating," whereupon a hen-pecked farmer straightway entered his wife for that premium.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

It is particularly requested that subscribers not receiving the Review regularly will at once make the fact known at this Office, in order that all cause of complaint may be removed as speedily as possible.

A YOUNG WOMAN OF CULTURE.

(From Scribner's Monthly.)

Miss Pallas Eudora Von Blurky
She didn't know chicken from turkey ;
High Spanish and Greek she could frequently speak,
But her knowledge of poultry was murky

She could tell the great-uncle of Moses,
And the dates of the Wars of the Roses,
And the reasons of things—why the Indians wore rings
In their red, aboriginal noses !

Why Shakespere was wrong in his grammar,
And the meaning of Emerson's "Brahma."
And she went chipping rocks with a little black box
And a small geological hammer !

She had views upon co-education
And the principal needs of the nation,
And her glasses were blue, and the number she knew
Of the stars in each high constellation.

And she wrote in a handwriting clerky,
And she talked with an emphasis jerky,
And she painted on tiles in the sweetest of styles.
But she didn't know chicken from turkey.

THE EFFECT OF COLORS UPON LIFE.

We all know that the light which comes to us from the sun is compounded of all the colors of the rainbow, that all these colors blended together make the pure light—the light of day.

Experiments have been made to ascertain what is the effect of each of these colors upon both animal and vegetable life. The theory was started some time ago that plants would thrive best in blue light, and that grapes especially, growing in our hot houses, were benefitted by glazing the houses with blue glass, the health and vigor of the vines being greatly improved, and as a consequence their productiveness. These experiments were undertaken in order to test this theory, and see if the different rays of the spectrum had any beneficial effect upon life, and in what degree.

The Journal of Science, published in Toledo, Ohio, an excellent periodical of practical information, says that the result of these investigations seems to shew that animals live longest in the green and red lights, that violet light favors development to a great degree, blue light next, and then yellow light. Plants from which the red light was withheld were no longer able to increase in weight, but took to consuming their own substance, and gradually died. The conclusion seems to be that no one color is sufficient for the best welfare and growth of plants, but that each ray of the spectrum plays its own particular part in the economy of life, and that all the rays are necessary to perfect health and full development.

Thus it is that the investigations of science only reveal the matchless wisdom of the Creator, and shew that He has provided for every necessity of life just that which will best supply the need.

Forestry Association.

Minnesota has a State Forestry Association, which so far accomplished a most praiseworthy work in planting out forest trees all over that fertile, but formerly almost treeless state. In 1876 it was instrumental in seting out 6,792,911 forest trees ; 424,662 rods of roadside and farm fences having been planted out in that year. The whole number of forest trees that had been planted out, and were growing, up to and including 1876, was more than 26,000,000, and the good work is being carried forward. We again suggest that such an association for Canada, or some steps in a like direction, are needed.—Monetary Times.

Worth its Weight in Gold.

When we hear anybody say that such and such a thing is worth its weight in gold we think they are indulging in hyperbole, and pass the matter with a smile. But numbers of invalids who have once partaken of Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil in combination with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda say they would not be without it for any consideration. And no wonder for in all cases of General Debility or Chronic Coughs, in fact, any pulmonary complaint and consumption it is worth its weight in gold. d53-w36-1m

The Heated Term—Look Out.

DON'T SIT ON THE GRASS.

The most stubborn case of Dysentery which is nothing more nor less than inflammation of the rectum, produced not unfrequently by sitting on the grass—may be cured by that most efficient cathartic, Castor Oil. Its soothing and healing properties are wonderful, but its nauseating effects make it impossible for the patient to retain it. To Scott & Bowne, the public are indebted for an Emulsion of Castor Oil that is not only palatable, but is pronounced by thousands who are using it, absolutely agreeable to the palate. No family can afford to be without it through the heated term. Price 25 cents. d53-w36-1m

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This preparation stands peerless as a remedy for all summer complaints. Have you diarrhœa ? It will positively cure you. Have you cholera morbus ? It will positively cure you. Have you colic or cramps in the stomach ? It will positively cure you. Is your stomach sour ? It will positively cure you. Are you going on a sea voyage ? Be sure and take a bottle of the Strawberry in your haversack, for use in sea-sickness, vomiting, and other irritations of the stomach and bowels ; it will positively cure you. Every one speaks highly of it. "I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—G. W. Earl, St. Catharines. "I would advise any one suffering from summer complaints to give Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry a fair trial."—Carman M. Gould, M. D., Castleton. "Dr. Fowler's extract of Wild Strawberry gives perfect satisfaction."—Thomas Douglas, Cambray. "I can recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with confidence."—Judge S. S. Peck, Minden. "My customers bear high testimony to the virtues of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—T. Stevenson, Orangeville. For sale by all dealers. See advertisement in another column. w39-470-2w

Humbug Exposed
Welcome News !

It having come to our knowledge that certain travellers for Paper Bags have been offering to sell to Peterborough merchants at various percentages lower than our quotations, in the hope of damaging our business in this Department, we have determined to make the following

STANDING OFFER
NAMELY :—

☞ We will sell our Paper Bags CHEAPER than the very best bona fide offer made to any Merchant in Peterborough, FREE of Freight or other Charges. ☜

Our trade in Paper Bags and Wrapping Papers has gradually grown to an extent which has made it hardly worth the while for travellers to come to Peterborough. And the result has been to make them jealous of our success and annoyed at their loss of sales.

Retain your future orders for us. We are bound to "Hold the Fort !"

Saint Anne, Ottawa River
Notice to Contractors.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the Secretary of Public Works, and endorsed "Tenders for Canal and Lock at St. Anne," will be received at this office until the arrival of the Eastern and Western mails on FRIDAY the 10th DAY OF OCTOBER next, for the construction of a Lock and the formation of approaches to it on the landward side of the present lock at St. Anne.

A map of the locality, together with plans and specifications of the works to be done, can be seen at this office and at the Resident Engineer's office, at St. Anne, on and after SATURDAY the 27th DAY OF SEPTEMBER next, at either of which places printed forms of Tender can be obtained.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and—in the case of firms, except there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation and residence of each member of the same ; and further, an accepted Bank cheque for the sum of $2000 must accompany the tender, which sum shall be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the works, at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

For the due fulfilment of the contract, satisfactory security will be required by the deposit of money to the amount of five per cent. on the bulk sum of the contract ; of which the sum sent in with the Tender will be considered a part.

Ninety per cent only of the progress estimates will be paid until the completion of the work.

To each Tender must be attached the actual signatures of two responsible and solvent persons, residents of the Dominion, willing to become sureties for the carrying out of these conditions, as well as the due performance of the works embraced in the contract.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
F. BRAUN,
Secretary.

LOCAL NEWS

POLICE COURT.

DESERTING FAMILY.

TUESDAY, Sept. 30.—At the Police Court this morning, the case of Mrs. Jane Louise Nugent vs. James Nugent, came up for a hearing. The complainant charges her husband with having deserted her and refusing to support herself and child. The complainant resides near Selwyn, while the defendant resides with his parents in Smith. In addition to her own statement, Mr. Andrew Freeburn, upon being sworn, stated that he had a conversation with the defendant on the 23rd of September, by request of the complainant, and he absolutely refused to support her or to have anything to do with her. The Magistrate gave the defendant an opportunity to refute the charge; but failing to produce any witnesses, he was sent to jail in default of bail.

The Band and the Central Exhibition.

The Peterborough Fire Brigade Band will play the same pieces at the Central Exhibition this evening that were played by the contesting bands at the late exhibition at Toronto.

The Prize List.

If you wish to receive an early and correct copy of the Prize List, leave an order for the WEEKLY REVIEW of October 3rd, which will be sent to you at your post office for 3 cts. Orders therefor may be left at the REVIEW Office, Market Square, George Street, or at the Secretary's office on the grounds.

Wool and Skins.

There is little wool coming in. Mr. Stevenson is now preparing for shipment to Philadelphia some 30,000 pounds. 10,000 pounds have already been baled, and are now being shipped. Sheep and lamb pelts are coming forward, at 40 @ 65 cents, according to month of killing, is being paid. Hides are worth $5 @ $6.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: Fresh southerly to south-westerly winds, partly cloudy, continued warm weather, possibly showers at night. So far the indications are that we are to have pleasant weather in Peterborough for the great Central show which opens to-night.

The Spalding Bay Fire.

The rubbish heap at the burned shingle mill at Spalding's Bay, has been burning ever since the fire. Yesterday it burned up so fiercely as to set fire to the charred frame work of the mill, and the steamer was sent down by the Chief Engineer, when after some three hours work it was almost if not quite extinguished. No more apprehension may be felt from this smouldering fire.

Personal.

An Ottawa report of the Dominion Exhibition contains the following paragraph:—

> "Another gentleman who has done good service is Mr. Robert Romaine, of Peterborough, who, as an expert machinist and inventor, will hold second place to few in Canada. He was one of the judges in the machinery department, and, as a result, the utmost satisfaction was expressed at the decisions. As a rule, it is not easy to give such universal satisfaction in this department."

The Gymnasium.

The Peterborough Gymnasium has been fully reorganized for the fall and winter exercises. The rooms were formally opened last evening at the old Music Hall building. Every effort has been put forth by the manager, Mr. W. A. Sanderson, to make it pleasant and attractive to those who desire to adopt this method of exercising, expanding and strengthening their muscles. The rooms are well lighted and are made very comfortable.

The New Tank.

The new water tank at the corner of Dalhousie and Stewart Streets has been completed, and was tried yesterday afternoon by the steam fire engine, after extinguishing the rubbish fire at Spalding's Bay. It was found that the flow was not what had been expected. The tank will be sunk deeper, until a sufficient supply will be reached. The residents in this part of the town will feel easier when they have water near at hand in case of fire in the neighborhood.

Debating Society.

A meeting of those interested in the formation of a Literary and Debating Society, will be held in Messrs. Scott & Edward's Office, on Thursday evening next, at eight o'clock.

The Cheese Market.

Forty thousand pound of September and October cheese was sold to-day at the sale at 10cts. This is an important sale and the factors will recover their usual buoyancy of spurt after this.

Fine Grapes.

Mr. George Chamberlain has just returned from Charlotte, bringing with him, among other fruit, several baskets of a splendid grape, "Rogers' No. 15," from Tenny's Fruit Firm, North Parma. N.Y. They have a very large and handsome berry, and taste as well as they look.

The Walking Match.

The walking match at the Skating Rink last evening, resulted in success to the Peterborough competitor, James Kane. It was thought that inasmuch as Angus Anderson of Toronto had challenged Mr. Kane he would win the match. This, however, he did not do. Some 300 persons, a large proportion being boys who got into the rink without the little piece of silver required, were present to witness the contest. There was some delay in getting to work. The contestants seemed not to have perfected their arrangements beforehand. It was a quarter to nine o'clock when the start was made, after succeeding in getting Messrs. P. D. Doran and Jas. G. Macdonald to act as judges. The first hour was mostly an easy one for Kane. Anderson seemed to be somewhat out of sorts, he was constantly looking about as if he expected some one and made himself appear very awkwark. They kept well together, Kane leading from 5 to 20 yards with the score standing at the expiration of the first hour 6 miles and 2 laps. The second hour became more exciting when Anderson passed Kane amid a storm of applause, and continued to increase the distance until one and a half laps was made. This lead varied from 1¼ to 1½ laps until within seventeen minutes of the close, when Kane made a start for his antagonist passing him in fine style, and creating a fresh outburst of applause. This advantage Kane kept, gradually gaining until he passed Anderson a second time, thus recovering his loss. He kept at this increased speed until he had gained another lap upon Anderson and passed him the third time, amid storms of applause. During the last two laps Anderson made a desperate effort to pass Kane, but failed, and when time was called Kane was found to have kept his lead by an arm's length, thus winning the match by 1 lap and about 2 feet, having made 12 miles and 2 laps to Anderson's 12 miles and 1 lap. After the announcement was made Anderson went to his quarters looking well used up, while Kane ran like a deer around the track before walking to his quarters.

CAREER OF A FORGER.

U.S. OFFICIAL'S PLUNDER—TREMENDOUS FORGERIES IN TWO HEMISPHERES.

The Forger "Highly Respected."—Supposed to be Dead, but Escapes to California—Victimizing the Banks.

Cable Telegram to the Review.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The man arrested last week for forgery at Glynn, Mills & Co., bankers, has been identified as Mr. Ringold Cooper, formerly of the United States Navy, afterwards a daring and expert forger.

ROBBING HIS GOVERNMENT.

In Washington he forged the names of several paymasters, and by representing himself as paymaster, drew large sums of money. He was arrested, and it was reported that he died in prison, but in reality he went to San Francisco, became a stock broker, and committed tremendous and numerous forgeries and fled.

ENGLISH BANKS VICTIMIZED.

His forgery on Glynn, Mills & Co. was for $20,000, and he would have escaped but for his foolhardiness in returning to their bank and demanding to know what all the talk about a forged check meant. He was promptly arrested, and it then leaked out that he had presented a forged check for £400 on the Bank of England on June 28th. He drove up in a carriage, and sent a boy in with the check. When the boy was questioned, the forger ordered the carriage to drive on, and disappeared. With brazen audacity, Cooper soon afterwards opened an account at the Bank of England, but was not recognized.

HIGHLY RESPECTED.

The detectives found that he had been residing at a beautiful country seat called East Lodge, at Hemmel Hempstead, Hertfordshire. Here he lived in a sumptuous fashion, and hunted and shot with the neighboring gentry, attended church regularly, gave grand dinners, and helped the poor liberally. He was highly respected. He paid frequent visits to London in disguise, and forged the names of his neighbors in Hertfordshire. He stoutly maintained his innocence.

SKETCH OF HIS CAREER.

Cooper was born in Sinyoria, Delaware, he enlisted in the navy in 1861, and after the war he secured an appointment in the Navy Department. He then forged a requisition, purporting to come from Paymaster Spalding, for $175,000. He married a daughter of the Government printer, Defres, and was arrested the day after the ceremony, and sentenced to five years' imprisonment. In 1870 he went to New Orleans, where he married an estimable widow, squandered her fortune and was arrested for forgery but escaped punishment. He fled to San Francisco, where he robbed his business partner of nearly $60,000 and disappeared.

MORE FORGERIES.

Forgeries amounting to £10,000, or £15,000 on American letters of credit were recently committed, Smith, Payne & Co. being the victims. The forgers got a thousand pounds in Bank of England notes from Smith's, and then went to the Bank of England, representing that they were going to South America and wanted gold. The bank people gave them gold and small notes. No clue has been discovered.

THE FALL ASSIZE COURT.

A VERDICT FOR THE ACQUITTAL OF R. N. RODDY RECORDED.

An Architect's Widow Brings an Action Against Thos. Menzies, Esq., and Gets a Verdict in Her Favor—Grand Jurys' Presentment.

Chief Justice Wilson opened the Assize Court on Monday Sept. 29th, at half past one o'clock. T. Hodgins, Q. C., acted in behalf of the Crown.

Besides the member of the local bar, we noticed the Hon. Sidney Smith, Q. C., Hector Cameron, Q. C., C. Francis of Trenton, McLellan and A. L. Colville of Campbellford.

The JUDGE charged the Grand Jury, congratulating them on the absence of cases to be brought before them.

R. N. RODDY, who was bound to appear when called upon, was placed in the box. A jury was sworn, and directed to acquit the prisoner.

BARCHARD VS. MENZIES, was the first case called. This action was brought by the widow of the late Mr. Barchard, Architect, to recover a commission for plans and specifications, and overseeing the erection of defendant's house on George street. D. W. Dumble for plaintiff, Hon. S. Smith, Q.C., and W. H. Moore for defendent. The witnessess were directed to retire.

The plaintiff was called and proved the drawing of the plans, and the receipt of some money. Did not hear the bargain made; her husband told her the commission was to be 5%; he was to get as little as possible until the building was completed, and then to get the balance.

H. W. WATSON called, said,—He painted the house of defendant and considered it one of the best houses in the county, considered it worth $10,000 or $12,000. Understood this from Barchard, saw him make up the amounts of the different bills. Was there three or four months off and on, Barchard was there every day during that time. Barchard was very particular and insisted upon everything being done well. The house was very finely finished. Barchard was there till defendant moved in and gave witness a certificate. Asked defendant how much he was giving Barchard and he said he was giving him 5 per cent. The reason witness asked this was that Barchard was so particular, so witness wanted to know Barchard's authority for looking after him so strictly.

DAVID CARLISLE, sworn,—Said that he did the brick and stone work in the house. Was paid for laying 207,000 bricks. Had not made an estimate of the value of the house, but considered it cost $8,000 to $10,000. Wages were high at the time of building. He paid $2.50 a day for bricklayers. Barchard was there every day, and was very particular. Made witness pull down part of his work, in consequence of a mistake in the plan. Knew of Barchard being engaged as Architect elsewhere, and thought he did his duty towards defendant.

G. MCBURNEY, who did the carpenter work, gave somewhat similar evidence. His bill was over $1,100.

THOS. MENZIES, the defendant, was sworn, and said he engaged Barchard for $50; paid him more than that; paid him $2.50 per week; paid him in full; had stated before the Court of Revision that the house cost $5,500; made this statement after the house was completed; did not swear to it; was not sworn at all; got this from the bills; I am a banker, merchant, foreign exchange broker; cannot tell within $1000 what the house cost; about $8000 or $9000, not more than $9000; will not swear that it did not cost $10,000; I now swear that it did not cost $10,000; kept Barchard's time; do not know where it is; cannot find it now; looked for it; original specifications provided for hardwood finish; I did not change them; I added 14 ft. to kitchen on plan; I also changed chimneys on plan; have known Barchard ever since he came to Peterborough; did not go to see him a short time before his death: saw him while sick; I did not warn him to give no more certificates to workmen; the agreement with Barchard was for $50; afterwards agreed to give him $2.50 per week; found him so dissipated that a couple of glasses of whiskey would buy him, and thought I would buy him first, and so gave him $2.50 per week.

Cross-examined—Q. Did any person make a demand on you before the suit?

A. Mr. Edwards came to see me about it.

Q. Did you get a letter from Mr. Dumble?

A. No, I did not. I never got a letter from you; it is a lie.

The Judge reprimanded witness for his language.

LAFAYETTE CARPENTER, sworn:—Heard Barchard and defendant agree on amount to be paid for plans, &c. The amount to be paid was $50.

Cross-examined—Defendant has a chattel mortgage on my goods. Defendant spoke to me about the conversation about a week ago.

John Cook and a number of other witnesses gave evidence of amounts charged by Barchard for superintending the erection of their buildings.

Verdict for plaintiff for $238.

PRESENTMENT.

The Grand Jury during the preceding case returned with their presentment, congratulating his Lordship, themselves and the public upon the fact that there was no criminal business to be brought before them.

The Judge in reply complimented the county upon the improvements made in and about the Court House. He then discharged the Grand Jury from further attendance.

REVIEWS.

HARPER'S MONTHLY.—The October number of Harper opens with a paper which, with its graphic descriptions and illustrations, takes one to "The skirt of the Alps." "Texas," "The Connemara Hills," and the "Central Park," are the themes of other contributions. Art, pure and applied, is ably treated in the articles on "Fifty Years of American Art," and "Painted Glass in Household Decoration." "The state of the Alcohol Question," is carefully and impartially considered. The serial stories, "White Wings," "Young Mrs. Jardine," and "Mary Anerslev," progress in interest and are worthy of their authors. There are several amusing tales, and a plaintive poem with two striking illustrations. The well-known editorial miscellanies need no praise, being one of the most distinctive and highly valued features of this favourite periodical.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This preparation stands peerless as a remedy for all summer complaints. Have you diarrhœa? It will positively cure you. Have you cholera morbus? It will positively cure you. Have you colic or cramps in the stomach? It will positively cure you. Is your stomach sour? It will positively cure you. Are you going on a sea voyage? Be sure and take a bottle of the Strawberry in your haversack, for use in sea-sickness, vomiting, and other irritations of the stomach and bowels; it will positively cure you. Every one speaks highly of it. "I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—G. W. EARL, St. Catharines. "I would advise any one suffering from summer complaints to give Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry a fair trial."—CARMAN M. GOULD, M. D., Castleton. "Dr. Fowler's extract of Wild Strawberry gives perfect satisfaction."—THOMAS DOUGLAS, Cambray. "I can recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with confidence."—Judge S. S. PECK, Minden. "My customers bear high testimony to the virtues of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—T. STEVENSON, Orangeville. For sale by all dealers. See advertisement in another column. w39-470-2w

LAMBTON MILLS CRIME.

THE FULL PARTICULARS OF THE AWFUL MURDER.

Evidence Taken at the Coroner's Inquest—The Verdict—"Guilty of Murder."

Apart from the character of the crime and its unnatural features, there is not much to form a narrative out of in this tragical event. But there are some particulars of the case that may bear relation here, as they form part of the story, which was not all related by the witnesses who gave evidence at the coroner's inquest. The village of Lambton Mills is composed of a straggling row of houses built along Dundas street, extending for a short distance on the bank of the Humber, and about six miles distant from this city. The persons who make so sad a figure in the story have been unnoticed for any peculiarity. They were born in the vicinity, and have been residents almost continuously ever since. Many of the farmers of Toronto and Chinguacousy townships will yet remember when John Coursey kept a tollgate some distance west of the scene of the murder on Friday last. When he moved into the small house at present owned by his children, who survive him, he added to the consequence of the business by calling it De Coursier's hotel, and the family has been known as De Coursier since that time. The father, John Coursey, was known as a man of some peculiarities of character, genial, but subject to ungovernable fits of passion; and it is related that it was owing to the perturbation following a quarrel with one of his neighbors that he committed suicide some 14 or 15 years ago. The three brothers who remained of this family were not noted for any peculiarity, unless it was that of being subject to sharp fits of passion, and even in this particular the circumstance is only mentioned now that such a tragic result of its operation has occurred. The oldest, Robert, who is now in prison on a charge of murder, is a tall muscular man about 25 years of age; Edward, the victim of his brother's rage, was about 22 years of age, of medium height; Henry, the youngest, is a slight built young man about 19 or 20 years of age. They were all living apart. Robert lived in the house that had once been his father's hotel a small old fashioned building on the side of Dundas street, about 500 yards west of the river, on the top of the hill. The other two brothers were living in the village, but also in separate houses.

There is not far to seek for the apparent cause of the quarrel that led to the fatal ending. It is said there was some difficulty about the share of each in the small property, named above, left them by their father. A more immediate cause seems to be the following:—Over a year ago Robert and Edward engaged in the manufacture of soda-water. It was thought their business was moderately prosperous, but the occasion arose for a quarrel about Robert not doing his share of the work. They agreed to part, Robert giving Edward a note for his share of the business. The note was not paid on maturity, and Edward sued it, recovered a judgment, issued execution, and Robert's goods were to have been sold on Saturday last. The estrangement and quarrels of the brothers were well known by their neighbors, but the bitterness of the sentiments entertained by the elder brother was not dreamed of.

On Friday morning last Robert De Coursier approached the waggon-maker's shop where Edward has been working for some time past, and seated himself on one of the boxes lying about the door; he carried a double-barrelled gun in his hand, and had a powder-flask and shot-belt slung across his shoulder; it was merely supposed he was going out for a day's shooting. He sat about there till between eight and nine o'clock, when he rose and walked off. Edward shortly after left the waggon-shop, with some gearing in his hand, to carry it to the blacksmith's shop to have the work completed; during his absence Robert returned to the waggon-shop, and sat down again in a corner among the boxes and boards lying about. He sat there till about half-past eleven or a quarter to twelve; about this time his brother Edward appeared, returning from the blacksmith's shop; he approached the door of the waggon-shop, when Robert stood up from his place where he had been waiting and deliberately fired at him. Edward fell, and Robert then stepping out from his place, approached to within two yards of the prostrate man and discharged the contents of the second barrel into his body. The wounded man never spoke, and death took place immediately. Robert had walked away towards his own house as soon as he fired the second shot, and was instantly followed by several of the men who had seen the conclusion of the tragedy; they entered the house, and, proceeding upstairs, they found Robert lying on a bed insensible, and froth issuing from his mouth. Dr. Beatty was soon on the spot, and succeeded, by restoratives, in saving the man's life; it was discovered that he had taken a dose of hydrocyanic acid. When he had sufficiently recovered he was arrested and handcuffed, to prevent any attempt to escape or any further attempt upon his life.

There is very little expression of opinion in the neighbourhood. Public sentiment surprised and shocked at the unnatural and deliberate crime, appears to have been thrown out of balance. There is no word heard condoning the crime on any grounds; neither is there any outburst of indignation such as is sometimes uttered on the perpetration of a great crime.

THE INQUEST.

A jury was empanelled by Thos. Beaty, M.D., for 9 o'clock on Saturday morning. The inquest was held in the house occupied by Robert De Coursier. The jury first viewed the body of Edward De Coursier, after which the evidence, as reported, was taken. The accused was still handcuffed, and was subject to short periods of painful emotion during the time the evidence was being taken. He was in the custody of John Ide, County Constable.

The first witness called was George Piggott, waggon-maker, Lambton Mills, who testified as follows:—I was in the shop all morning, from seven to twelve; I saw the deceased; he had been in the shop once, about ten o'clock or a little after, and was in good health and spirits; had no special conversation with him in regard to his business; he said he was going down to the blacksmith shop; I saw him going down the street; I saw him again about a quarter to twelve; he was coming down the street towards the shop; I saw him in front of Mrs. Bryan's place; he was by himself I saw him no more till I heard a gun go off; I then looked out of the window and saw him throw up his hands and fall; as he fell he made an exclamation like "Oh, don't!" and he fell; I saw his brother Robert run over to him; Robert had a gun in his hand; Robert said, "I have got you now, you b———r; I have been waiting now a good while, and I have got you!"; Robert was then within about four or five feet of him when he fired the second shot; I did not see any one fire the first shot; the gun was pointed at the deceased, who was lying on his face; the second shot struck him on the forearm near the elbow, and set his shirt on fire; Robert went up the street, and I went out and told my brother-in-law; I then came back and tried to put out the fire with my hands, but not succeeding I went to the shop and got some water and put it out; deceased was then alive; I do not think he was conscious; he was groaning, he was then carried up by the blacksmith, Mr. Rook, Fred. Chapman, and, I believe, Mr. Ware.

A number of other witnesses were called whose testimony bore conclusive evidence of the prisoner's guilt, after which the jury retired to consider their verdict. In half an hour they brought in the following:—That Robert W. De Coursier, on the 26th day of September, 1879, did feloniously, wilfully, and of his malice aforethought kill and murder his brother, Edward De Coursier.

The Coroner made out his warrant of commitment, and the prisoner was conveyed to gaol.

CLOSING THE EXHIBITION.—The remainder of the exhibits was removed from the exhibition grounds on Saturday afternoon. The fish from Mr. Wilmot's aquaria are to be used in restocking the Ottawa. During the week there was a marked absence of the more serious crimes, and but few robberies were reported. Detective Hodgins and O'Keefe, of Toronto, and Murphy, of Montreal, were on duty during the week. As might have been expected from the great expense incurred, the exhibition has not been a financial success, or rather the attendance, however large, was not sufficient to cover the expenditure. At one o'clock Mayor McIntosh entertained the members of the Council of the Arts and Agricultural Association, the members of the City Council, the Manitoba representatives, and the members of the press at dinner. At two o'clock the horse races took place on Mutchmore Park. They were well attended and everything passed off pleasantly. One of the principal features was a race between members of the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards. The Dominion map has been removed to Hamilton and will be exhibited there.

VOTING on the Toronto and Ottawa Railway by-law takes place on the 7th October. Mr. Scott, M.P.P., has arrived to forward matters.

THE Hon. Mr. Joly, while in the city last week, is said to have reiterated the statement that there would be no coalition.

MR. BEGG, Commissioner in charge of the Dominion Exhibition, was on Saturday presented with a medal by the Council of the Agriculture and Arts Association.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

FLYING FROM CABUL.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A despatch from Simla states that intelligence from Cabul brought by one of the spies of General Roberts reports the capital quiet. The people, anticipating a battle between the British troops and the insurgents on the arrival of the former, are removing their property and secreting it beyond the bounds of the city. All non-combatants are seeking refuge and places of safety among the mountains. The feeling prevails extensively among the peaceful inhabitants that they are in as much danger from the duplicity of the Ameer as from the advance of the British troops.

FROM DAKKA TO CABUL.

Dakka, a point about 50 miles west of Peshawur at the entrance of the Khyber Pass, has been occupied by the British without opposition. From this point to Cabul the road is rugged and narrow, sometimes only seventy and at one spot not more than ten feet wide, with mountains rising abruptly on each side from 1,500 to 5.000 feet in height.

SURREPTITIOUS DEPARTURE.

A Kushi correspondent learns from one of the Ameer's followers that the Ameer left Cabul surreptitiously. His intended departure was kept a strict secret. The Ameer was received by the British with a guard of honor. He appears dejected and careworn.

KILLED BY AN AMBUSCADE.

SIMLA, Oct. 1.—Gen. Roberts telegraphs that he will advance on Cabul to-day. Lieutenant Kinloch on his way to join his regiment fell into an ambuscade and was killed.

The Heated Term—Look Out.

DON'T SIT ON THE GRASS.

The most stubborn case of Dysentery which is nothing more nor less than inflammation of the rectum, produced not unfrequently by sitting on the grass—may be cured by that most efficient cathartic, Castor Oil. Its soothing and healing properties are wonderful, but its nauseating effects make it impossible for the patient to retain it. To SCOTT & BOWNE, the public are indebted for an EMULSION OF CASTOR OIL that is not only palatable, but is pronounced by thousands who are using it, absolutely agreeable to the palate. No family can afford to be without it through the heated term. Price 25 cents. d33-w36-1m

GIGANTIC SPECULATIONS.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—The aggregate stock subscriptions invited for the past three months, exclusive of the Panama canal, amount to 1,680,000,000 francs, and yet new schemes are being published.

STRIKES ENDED.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Notwithstanding the recent award of the arbitrator that the wages of the South Yorkshire Colliers ought not to be reduced, the men are submitting to a 5 per cent reduction. The strike at Binley Collieries, near Sheffield, is fast approaching its end. The employees, numbering 1,100, will speedily resume work.

AMERICAN.

FAILURE OF A "BUCKET SHOP."

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The failure of Todd & Co's "bucket shop" or cheap stock broking establishment yesterday, caused intense excitement among a crowd of customers. One tried to commit suicide by throwing himself down an area. Another asked relief from the police. There is only one large bucket shop now running.

A CHALLENGE DECLINED.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 1.—Emil Sander, local editor of the Volks Freund, challenged a well known physican in this city to a duel. The physican swore out a warrant and Sander disappeared.

CHICAGO RACING GROUND.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Col. J. H. Haverly, to-day purchased a controlling interest in the Chicago Jockey Club stock for $40,000. It is his intention to run the track as a first class racing ground.

STRIKE OF TANNERS.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 1.—The tanners decided to strike to-day for an advance of wages. About 500 tanners and curriers interested in their action will stop work in seven large shops.

A LONG SUIT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—A Washington specials despatch to the Herald says, Tilden will carry his income case up to the supreme court. It may require months or even years for decision.

LARGE REVENUE.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 1.—During September a million and eighty one thousand dollars revenue taxes on distilled spirits was paid in Peoria, the largest sum ever received by the Government for internal revenue tax in one month from a single city.

BUSINESS FAILURES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Twenty-eight failures were reported in this city in September with liabilities $315,000. In Sept. 1878, there were thirty failures with liabilities $4,300,000.

COAL COMBINATION.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—A meeting of coal magnates is announced for this evening, to endeavor to arrange the terms of a combination.

JEROME PARK MEETING.

The fall meeting of the Jockey Club at Jerome Park begins on Thursday. Eleven thousand dollars were received yesterday for betting privileges, which is an extraordinary amount.

AT HIS WIFE'S GRAVE.

Louis W. Edge, a shoe-maker, shot himself dead upon his wife's grave in Cypress Hill Cemetery, East New York, yesterday.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The receipts of Internal Revenue for the first quarter of the current fiscal year show an increase from the tax on sprits of $170,000 over the corresponding period of last year. The reduction of the tobacco tax is a steady loss to the Government of about $700,000 a month. The department officers anticipate a decrease in the receipts of the current year of between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, even though the tax on spirits should continue to increase.

QUIET IN THE SOUTH.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The Tribune says District Attorney Northrop of South Carolina says that matters are remarkably quiet for South Carolina. The Northern sentiment against political violence is making itself respected.

A NEGRO PEDESTRIAN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—A negro named Pierce will be one of the contestants for the O'Leary belt.

A SINGULAR MARRIAGE.

A motion has been made to permit Louis Kulke to marry Mary Malony. Kulke is now awaiting sentence for an outrageous assault on Miss Malony. Both have professed their desire to be married.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 1.—John Frederick Will killed his divorced wife early this morning, stabbing her 15 or 20 times with a tanner's knife. He afterwards fatally shot himself.

INFLUX OF GOLD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The Bothnia from Europe brought $440,000 in gold coin.

SHIPMENTS FROM NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The exports of domestic produce from this port were $8,126,000 for the past week, against $7,064,000 for the corresponding week of last year. Since the commencement of the year, there have been $251,364,000 against $254,486,000 in 1878. Breadstuffs, provisions, cotton and petroleum constitute the bulk of the shipments.

ELECTIONS IN GERMANY.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—The elections to-day and next Tuesday will be the most critical in 30 years. The issue is reduced to the simple personal one, for or against Bismarck. The Liberal cause is hopeless and Bismarck's success is a foregone conclusion.

THE STATE OF IRELAND.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Pall Mall Gazette concedes that the complaints of the Irish tenant farmers are mostly genuine, that they are for the moment unable to pay rent, and that they believe in their right to remain on land in every event. If a general refusal to pay the rent is followed by a wholesale eviction, this will almost certainly be followed by a series of agrarian murders, and unless the Irish Executive is prepared to support the landlords by measures amounting to little less than a military occupation of a large part of the country, the landlords will have to choose between virtually conceding the tenants' claim and giving the signal for the outbreak of something hardly distinguishable from civil war. The anti-rent agitation is only one among other symptoms of the general unrest of Ireland. It should be noted that the old statute which prohibited conventions in Ireland has been repeated. The Times says the disorganizing effects of Parnell's policy would become a really formidable one if it should extend all over Ireland. The Times does not believe it will, "nothing," it says "will tend to paralize the anti-rent projects more effectually than the improvement in the harvest prospects which is reported from the greater part of Ireland."

TURCOMANS AND RUSSIANS.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Despatches from Tchikislar and St. Peterburg give different accounts of the affair. A Tchikislar telegram says there was a severe engagement between the Russian advance guard and the Turcomans. The Russians lost 200 killed. A St. Petersburg telegram says the engagement resulted in the temporary capture of Geok Tep. The expedition will probably return and winter at Tchikislar in consequence of sickness and the scarcity of provisions.

THE SITUATION IN BURMAH.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Advices from Burmah state that Mandalay is quiet. No further demonstrations in opposition to the British have taken place, although King Theebau, in moments of drunken confidence, shows a strong leaning towards a violent aggressive policy.

EXPLOSION OF GUNPOWDER.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A lighter loaded with gunpowder from the powder works at Harburg, in Hanover, which had just started down the River Elbe, and while still near Harburg, suddenly blew up with terrific force. The crew were all killed, and the lighter was completely demolished. The shock caused but slight damage to the town. Harburg is situated on the south branch of the Elbe, and is about five miles from Hamburg. It is a walled town, and has an active trade in gunpowder, sugar and woollen manufactures.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Early to day Geo. Smith, aged 56, arrested for being drunk and disorderly, hung himself with a handkerchief in his cell.

HEAVY DAMAGES.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—The jury case of Emiline Warwell, against E. Boyden, and another for putting up a wrong prescription gave the plaintiff $5,200 damages.

POLYGAMY IN UTAH.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Sept. 29.—The Third District Court for several days has been obtaining a Grand Jury. All Mormons who believe polygamy is a revelation from God and superior to the Act of Congress, have been excluded. Eleven jurors have been obtained. It is expected the present Grand Jury will endeavour to obtain the record of polygamous marriages at the Endowment House.

THE GREEN-EYED MONSTER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—A probable murder, followed by suicide, occurred soon after noon to-day in Christopher street at the home of a German named Henry Von Garitchen. The occupant of the house had come out in the street, when he was met by John Sheehan, who drew a revolver and pointed it at Von Garitchen. Sheehan fired, and the ball penetrated the back of Von Garitchen's neck, causing a fatal wound. As the injured man fell, Sheehan shot himself in the right temple. Von Garitchen was carrien into his own house, and Sheehan taken to the hospital in a dying condition. The fatal quarrel is believed to be the result of jealousy on the part of Sheehan. It was said to-day that Von Garitchen had shown Sheehan's wife many attentions.

LATER—John Sheehan, who shot himself in the head after having shot Henry Von Garitchen this morning, died this evening.

PERILOUS ADVERTISING.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 29.—Considerable uneasiness is felt for the safety of Prof. Wise and George Burr, who went up in a balloon yesterday afternoon from Lindell Park. The balloon was inflated sooner than was expected, and some 20,000 feet of gas had to be taken out to prevent it breaking loose at too early an hour. Notwithstanding all the precautions taken, it is thought by many that the balloon was not in a safe condition. Several parties in the city were to receive communications from the voyagers as soon as they landed, but up to 7 p. m. they had not heard from them. It was rumored that a balloon landed at night near Fort Wayne, Ind., but the report could not be traced to any reliable source.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sep. 30.—It is believed that the balloon, with Wise and Burr, drifted in the same course as the one in which Donaldson ascended. Fears are rife that the two have either fallen into Lake Michigan or met with some accident in the pineries of Michigan. The principal expenses of the trip were paid by a clothier of this city for the purpose of advertising his business. His store was crowded to-day by those anxious to receive tidings of the adventures.

Worth its Weight in Gold.

When we hear anybody say that such and such a thing is worth its weight in gold we think they are indulging in hyperbole, and pass the matter with a smile. But numbers of invalids who have once partaken of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL in combination with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA say they would not be without it for any consideration. And no wonder for in all cases of General Debility or Chronic Coughs, in fact, any pulmonary complaint and consumption it is worth its weight in gold. d53-w36-1tc

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

A Young Girl Leaves Her Home—No Trace of Her to be Found.

A young girl named Martha Philpott, beween 14 and 16 years of age, the daughter of Mr. Richard Philpott, Union, disappeared from her home on Monday afternoon about four o'clock. The St. Thomas Journal says she left a note to the effect that she had been suddenly called away. Search was made as soon as she was missed, and she was traced as far as St. Thomas. She was seen making her way towards the town along with a man, but no further clue has been discovered, either by her friends or by the police. The act is supposed to have been a premediated one, for she asked a married sister to call on her last Sunday, otherwise she might never see her again. The cause of her disappearance is entirely unknown. She had not been crossed in any way, and her parents are not aware that she was dissatisfied with anything; in fact, she was the pet of the family and was the only daughter home. She was not a giddy girl or given to improper associates, and it is believed that she had no money when she left. The family are in great distress over her disappearance, and the mother is almost distracted. She was of small stature, slender build, dark complexion and black eyes and hair. The case recalls the Maggie McVey mystery, which has never yet been solved. It is possible enough that she may be suffering under mental aberration, for about a month ago she was out of her mind, and there may have been a recurrence of the same symptoms.

MY MURDER.

A Telegraph Operator's Story.

(San Francisco, Call.)

After all, we way station telegraph operators are not without our little bit of romance occasionally, and I think I can show that we are not entirely without a certain amount of responsibility; but it is seldom, if ever, recognized, unless one of our number by carelessness suddenly plunges a train into destruction by failing to deliver or understand orders.

The time of which I write was one pleasant afternoon in early Autumn, the 2nd day of September, 1876, and as the occurrence has made a deep and vivid impression on my mind, I cannot forget the day, which was Friday.

At that time I had been an agent and operator on the———railroad a little while over two months. The line was directly through parts of Indiana and Illinois, and some of the stations had no telegraph office, constantly the order distance was somewhat lengthy, and there was but one office between mine and Cowans, 12 miles west.

On this day I was quietly puffing my meerschaum in the little bay window of my office, and wishing for something to relieve the monotony, when the operators at Cowans called the train despatcher and said an engine had sprung her throttle with 140 pounds of steam, and gone east, while the fireman had gone to lunch and the engineer, who was oiling around had not time to get on.

All was as still as death for a minute, when the dispatcher began to call G——, the only office between mine and Cowans; fully five minutes he called him, using the signal "23," which means death, but still no answer, and still the monotonous click of the armature; presently he answered in a dazed, hurried manner, and when asked about the engine, said it had passed there at a fearful rate of speed, at 14 minutes past four, with no person visible.

It was only six miles more to me, and an excursion was on its way west with a heavy load of tired pic-nickers and had actually left a station only eight miles east of me, the first telegraph office, at two minutes past four.

The dispatcher called me furiously, and being at hand and expectant, I answered him immediately, When he said, "Turn your switch and wreck engine No. 11, going east wild," I replied quickly, "I cannot without an indemnity order." And after a hasty consultation with the superintendent, as I afterwards learned, he went ahead with an order, whose unusual form and wording roused many a lazy "brass pounder" from a doze. It was like this:—

"To operator: Wreck wild engine No. 11 at your eastern switch gate to save collision. Company will defend and uphold you.

"D. R. B."

I immediately received my "13" or "understanding," received my "correct at 4.18 p.m.," and turning to look for the engine, when, although the conversation between myself and the dispatcher had consumed but four minutes, I I saw her coming at the grandest rate of speed I ever witnessed, and snatching my order I ran to the switch gate, about 150 feet, and when I had unlocked and thrown the rail the roaring monster was only about 100 feet away. I had my watch in my hand, and stepped quickly back out of harm's way, when at exactly 20 minutes past 4 she went over, and such an unearthly crash I hope I may never see or hear again.

The dirt and stones flew 50 feet in the air, the engine turned clear over and stopped on her side, pushing a splinter of the cab on the whistle and there she lay, a seething, hissing, screeching mass of rubbish.

But above the din and rattle I heard one wild despairing shriek for help, and when I could get close enough to see anything, I found what, had it not been for the face, would never have been recognized as a man, in the crushed and bleeding mass of flesh that lay under one huge driver; but the face was without a scar, and by that was recognized as an escaped madman who it seems had climbed on the engine at Cowans, unobserved, and, pulling the throttle open, had started on a wild, awful ride to the gate of death.

When the excursion train came up, ten minutes later, they said they found me standing by the engine, gazing alternately at the bloody driver and my written order, still tightly clasped in my hand.

I was unconscious of everything, save the fact I had obeyed orders and had thereby taken a life. They say I fainted, but I knew nothing from the instant I discovered that white, bloodless face until four days after, when I awakened apparently out of a dream. My first question was, "Did the excursion get in safe?"

The coroner held an inquest as soon as I could be examined, and the verdict was: "We the jury find that Albert Long came to his death by being crushed beneath a locomotive which was wrecked by J. L. B., an operator on the———railroad, according to the order of D. R. B., his superintendent and superior officer. And we find further that no blame can be attached to said J. L. B., D. R. B., or the railroad company, as the engine was wrecked to save a heavily loaded excursion, and the said Albert Long, being a madman, was on the engine in direct opposition to the company's orders."

I have that order and a copy of the verdict side by side in my diary, where they shall always remain.

Often in my dreams I see an unrecognizable mass of quivering flesh and broken bones beneath the huge driver, and a white unscarred face presents itself to my gaze. A sudden shriek will almost craze me, and I am tempted to go where railroads are unknown, where the hissing and screeching cannot reach me.

THE ALPHABET IN RHYME.

A is the armour Christ bids us to wear;
We learn how to use it in answer to prayer.

B is the battle which we are to figeth
'Gainst Satan and sin, for God and the right.

C is commander of Christ's vailant band;
Though Satan oppose, for Him they will stand.

D is don't do anything wrong,
Look up to Jesus, for Satan is streng.

E is for entering at the straight gate,
Enter it early, 'tis dangerous to wait.

F is for fear ye the Lord and great King,
Pray to Him daily and His praise sing.

G is for gaining the victory at last,
When all the fighting and conflict is past.

H is for hours, oh, how swiftly they go,
Bearing us either to joy or to woe.

I is for idle; be up and at work.
Industrions, too, then no duty shirk.

J is for justice; oh, strive to be just,
Like unto Jesus, who should be your trust.

K is the knowledge in which you should go,
That more and more of our Saviour you'd know.

L is for light, and for life and for love,
These are the best gifts that come from above.

M is for mercy—oh blessed is he,
The merciful man, where'er he should be.

N is for No—oh always obey
The Saviour's injunctions, yea, yea, and nay, nay.

O is obedience, that is the path
That leadeth to mercy, and far, far from wrath.

P is for prayer, a weapon of might,
Without it Christ's children will fall in the fight.

Q is for quarrelling, the turmoil and sin
Made in the world by Satan and sin.

R is for rousing ourselves to the fight,
And also for resting when on comes the night.

S is for searching the scriptures of truth,
Studying them, too, in the days of our youth.

T is for trusting now wholly to God,
And taking to Him ourselves and our load.

U is for useful; 'tis everyone's place
To strive to be useful and ask God for grace.

V is for vile, but you need not be vile;
Just imitate him who never knew guile.

W is for wisdom, oh precious indeed
The gem that God gives if we ask in our need.

X is for expect vast things of the Lord,
In answer to prayer, He's pledged you His word.

Y is for yielding, and also for you:
Yield ye to all that is lovely and true.

Z is for zealous; oh let your heart burn
With zeal for the Lord as a grateful return.

WORKS OF NECESSITY.

When Mr. Hartshorn began business he determined that his works, as well as his family and himself, should rest upon the Lord's-day.

It was not long before the foreman came to say there was something wrong about the machinery, and that it would be necessary to have it repaired upon the coming Sabbath. Mr Hartshorn asked if the work could not be done after hours, or if a night could not be taken for it.

"No, that would be impossible," replied the foreman.

"Then we must use a day. We will have no Sabbath work here," said Mr. Hartshorn.

The foreman looked astonished. "Take a day for it!" he gasped. "Stop the works, and such a press of orders as we have on hand?"

"Certainly, if there is no other way," said Mr. Hastshorn decidedly.

The foreman went off, and somehow another way was found. The works were not stopped, and the repairing was not done on the Sabbath.

In connection with his bleachery, Mr. Hartshorn had something like a mile of shed-room, where the cloth was spread to dry; and when it was not ready to take down on Saturday, several men were needed to look after it during the Sabbath.

"This will not do," said Mr. Hartshorn. "Everybody and everything belonging to me shall rest upon the Lord's-day."

"It can't be helped," said the men. "Thousands of yards of cloth will be mildewed and spoiled if they are not looked after. Any one can see that this is a work of necessity. There is not one week in four when the cloth is all fit to be taken down on Saturday night. And look at the Globe Bleacheries over here. Isn't Deacon Green one of your Sabbath men? Deacon of the Baptist Church—should think he ought to be as particular as anybody; and he'll tell you it is impossible to carry on the bleaching business and not have some looking after it done on a Sabbath now and then."

"We will try it, however," said Mr. Hartshorn. "We won't have any cloth put out later than Thursday if the weather seems doubtful."

It is twenty years since Mr. Hartshorn began work on this plan. His bleachery has propered, and he is a rich man, and to-day stands at the head of his business. And in all these years he had never found Sabbath work to be work of necessity, nor, as I have it from his own lips, that his business has suffered in the end from resting on the Lord's day.—Francis Lee.

A Lady Spy at a Masons' Meeting.

A lady correspondent writes from Manora to the Civil and Military Gazette at Kurrachee:—There is a little building here called Lodge "Endeavor," in which the "Masons" are going to assemble on the 22nd instant. They meet in it every month. Why they call themselves "Masons" I do not know, but I do know, that they are very queer people, and do some very queer things. Their Commander, whom they style Worshipful Master, is our worthy Master-Attendant, Captain Parker. On one occasion when they had assembled in the "temple" I, out of sheer curiosity, I went and stood on one side of the building, where no one could see me, and I can assure you, Mr. Editor, I was very much frightened. I distinctly heard the "Master's" voice called upon his "brethren" (that's the word he used in addressing them) to do something, and shortly afterwards there was a series of knocks as if they were nailing down the lid of a coffin. They were single knocks—nearly two dozen, I think; then there was a short pause, after which double knocks assailed my ears; they were given with redoubled force, and then I heard somebody whisper—"murder her." This was enough for me; my knees trembled violently, and I felt my blood creep again, I assure you. With one powerful effort I recovered myself, and ran back to my "Nest" as fast as I could. There was no sleep for me that night, believe me, and the following day I could hear nothing but knocks all about my room, and the awful words "murder her" rang in my ears. I fancy the sentinel who, I hear, has to stand at the door of their "temple" and watch, must have seen me? Never again shall I approach the "Lodge;" that's certain. I should very much like to know, dear Mr. Editor, why people are allowed to do such terrible things in a quiet place like Manora? And why should such a dear, good man like Captain Parker join them? People say they have some dreadful secrets. No wonder ladies are not permitted to join their fraternity. There can't be any good in their secrets, I am sure. Some insist that there is a great deal of good, but if this be the case, then, to say the least of it, it is very ungracious on their part to exclude ladies from their meetings, though, for my part, I wouldn't join them for all the world.

AMERICAN POLITICS.

Already our cousins over the border, who are nothing if not politicians, are discussing the possible candidates at the next presidential election, which does not take place until November 1880. Ever since the war, issues which it was supposed to have decided have been made the subject of political contests, in State elections with varying results, but in every national one for the highest office in the gift of the people, victory has been with the Republicans. Grant, the successful soldier of the Appomatox was twice elevated to the Presidency, the first time wholly on his military record, and on the second occasion the same feature was the predominating one, a striking proof of the innate admiration of military glory which exists even under enlightened republics. The unusual stretch of power thus accorded to that party, brought, naturally, in its train, neglect of duty and corruption, and, although Grant himself was proven guilty of nothing more than having had dishonest favorities, the feeling was such that in 1876, no one connected with the administration had a chance of nomination by the Republican convention. A comparatively unknown man was selected who had the undoubted advantage of an honest record. With a cabinet containing some very able men, Hayes has, without the possession of any remarkable talent himself, conducted affairs creditably, has always acted with the most respectable wing of his party and while he can not be said to arouse the enthusiasm in his favor that many of his predecessors have done, he has helped to draw together the Republican party which seemed about to split and become an easy prey to the Democrats. At the present time the cruel treatment of negroes in the South by the "bulldozing" whites, compelling thousands of them to flee to Kansas for refuge, has re-aroused Northern antipathies, and fears which time was gently allaying. The old spirit is not dead yet, although testimony of its decay had come up from the Southern States, which was heartily welcomed and believed in at the North, for the dying embers are being fanned into a flame which only determined effort and a strong arm will be able to quench. This confusion and terrorism has strengthened the claims of the Republicans, and many who were ready to believe that the Democrat of the South would give equal justice to the enfranchised negro have had their charitable opinion rudely dispelled. There is then, as a consequence, a demand for a ruler who will see that the negro is protected in the exercise of his voting privileges. For this, the long military experience of Grant, his well-known tenacity of purpose, coupled with a natural reserve that keeps him from committing himself—an error to which the impulsive nature of many American statesmen has made them liable—brings him forward once more. This, and the additional prestige lately gained by the lengthened tour around the world, in which the nations of Europe, the rulers of India, and the people of those vast Asiatic empires of China and Japan rendered him receptions never before accorded to any citizen or sovereign, however distinguished, combine to fasten upon him again the attentions and regard of his own countrymen. Every American, no matter of what political complexion, must have felt pleased and honored at the high marks of regard showered upon Grant, and when once a man is pleased with himself he is apt to be satisfied with his surroundings. The honor thus reflected upon them has in a great measure condoned the mistakes and faults which marred his second term, and at the present time it may be safely asserted that he will receive nomination next summer by the Republicans in convention.

On the other hand, ex-Governor Tilden, with whom, in 1876, much sympathy was felt, from the belief that the Administration had interfered in the just count of the southern vote, has lost that hold upon all independents, and the better portion of his own party, through the clearly-proven fact that he was an accomplice in the attempted bribery, by his own money, and through his own nephew, of members of returning boards. His opponents have made all the use of this in their power, and the leading organ of the Democrats has admitted the same to be true. There are few men, perhaps, who, ambitious to reach an exalted position, with a large fortune at command, and honestly believing that his opponents used both power and money to prevent the people from expressing their honest preference, would possess virtue lofty enough, not also to stoop to meet such opposition by means equally reprehensible. It is, however, a peculiarity of human nature that we condemn severely in another that very fault which we palliate or excuse in ourselves; hence, though Tilden is certainly no worse than the average politician, his offence has probably lost him the elevation to the White House. It is not a little remarkable that, while in the first place, he received the Governorship of the great State of New York as a reward for his labours in ousting the Tweed ring which ruled and robbed for so long the greatest city in the Union, he should himself have resorted to acts which alone kept the "Boss" and his fellow thieves in power. Unhappily such an exhibition has a wide effect in destroying that confidence in each other without which society itself could not exist and governments would be subject to continual revolutions. Tilden aside, there are a host of candidates eager for the distinction, but none of them, Thurman, Hendricks, Bayard, or any other had an equal claim or equal prominence with Tilden until the latter made his grand mistake. The Democrats, too, in the Empire State are already divided, and a party disunited and with leaders in bad odor will have little chance with an opponent united under a popular leader, and aided by the weighty assistance of an army of office-holders.

CAN IT BE POSSIBLE?

CAN it be possible that notwithstanding all the noise we have heard about the Minister of Customs having defrauded the revenue, and cheated the farmers out of the legitimate fruits of a duty on wheat, that a duty has after all been collected thereon? Yet such seems to be the fact, or at least the Globe says that over $26,000 was collected during the month of August alone, as duty upon breadstuffs. When will those fault-finders be content to wait events before branding their political opponents as tricksters, if nothing worse.

THE FLOUR MARKET.

At Montreal the receipts of flour for the week ending Sept. 24th, were 19,932 bbls; and from January 1st to the 24th September, 540,084 bbls., against 650,435 bbls., same time 1878; a decrease of 101,351 bbls. Shipments have been for the week ending Sept. 24th 12,695 bbls. Total shipments from January 1st, 1879, to Sept. 24th, 496,247 bbls., against, 469,279 bbls., same time last year; being an increase of 28,-963 bbls. Receipts of wheat for the week ending Sept. 24th, 474,384 bushels. Total receipts for the year to same date, 7,983,912 bushels, against 5,279,169 bushels in 1878; an increase of 2,704,743 bushels. Shipments same time for the week, 523,233 bushels. Total for the year, 7,-167,157 bushels, against 4,816,957 bushels in 1878; an increase of 2,350,200 bushels.

SOME MOTHERLY HINTS.

"We know not what a day, or hour, or second, may bring forth," Dr. Nelaton said to his class of medical students, "If by accident you should sever the certoid artery, the patient would bleed to death in four minutes, therefore there is no time to be in a hurry."

There are diseases that every mother knows children are subject to, and perhaps "they may have no time to be in a hurry." The plans ought to be laid for certain emergencies in cooler moments. For croup, scarlet fever, cholera-infantum, poisoning, etc. I have found out what to do. Gertie has just come through the scarlet fever. The moment I suspected the cause of her sickness which was not more than half an hour, I went to work. In a few hours when the doctor came, he gave no medicine and said "she was very sick, but her mother was doing all that he could have done." But I will pass on and show how quick a mother's wits need to act by giving a little of my experience.

We live over my husband's store. In one part of it is a wareroom, and in that were paper bags of Paris green prepared in pound quantities to to be ready for customers, but the packages were not tied.

I had a new girl. My faithful one who shares every care, was away on a vacation. In the midst of work one morning, those "jewels of mine" vanished, in what seemed an instant. I started in pursuit, passing through the store. No one was there, and from thence to the wareroom. What was my horror to see Gertie and Fred marching from one end of the room to the other, pouring the Paris-green from the bags as they marched. The room was full of dust, their shoes and clothes were thoroughly powdered with it, neither my husband nor his clerk were to be seen, and customers were coming in besides. I led the children to a retired corner and took off every bit of their clothing but an under chemise, sent the girl to the freight house to call my husband and to the next house for his mother. Another old lady came in her place, and I felt as if she would know just what to do, but she did not—"could not think of a single thing" she said. "Well, Fred must have an emetic," I said for the powder was on his tongue, so I hastily mixed a teaspoonful of mustard, and the same of salt in a tea-cup of water to give him. Just then my husband questioned. "Do you really know what you are doing?" "Yes," I answered, "I know this will empty the stomach of poison or pennies either," and I opened Dr. Chase for reference. In my haste I could not find the place, although my husband said afterward "that I passed it over and over," which proves how much better it is to have knowledge in your head than in books.

"I know it any way," I affirmed, and so we gave him a dose quicker than it takes me to tell of it, and after he vomited we gave him the white of an egg to swallow.

It was a hard ordeal for the little fellow, and I'll not forget his appealing for me to help him, or his hopeless expression when he found that mamma too had turned against him. Perhaps it was not strictly necessary, as there might not have been any poison in his stomach, but I wanted to be on the safe side. What I inhaled gave me an unpleasant feeling in my throat. If one was sure of poison I would advise the same treatment at the earliest moment, besides sending for a physician.

Killed by a Dead Snake.

I will tell you a very curious and melancholy incident that happened on one occasion in a church where I was conducting the service. The windows and doors were of course, all wide open, and through one of those open doors a cobra glided into the church. I did not notice it myself, but several of the congregation did, and were not unreasonably much alarmed. The beadle, a native, was fortunately on the alert, and he managed to procure a tulwar, with which he cut off the creature's head before it had time to do any mischief. Tranquility was restored, and the service proceeded to its close, when many of the congregation went to look at the dead snake as it lay headless on the ground. Among them was a man who, in his curiosity to examine the reptile, put his foot on the head and rolled it toward him; when he instantly uttered a loud exclamation and drew his foot away. By some means or other he had contrived to set in action the muscular apparatus attached to the poison fangs, which had darted violently forward and struck him on the foot. All remedies were useless; in half an hour the poor fellow was a corpse; proving, with a vengeance, the awful virulence of the poison of the cobra de capello!—Chambers's Journal.

REFUTATION!

I DENY the statement contained in the circular issued by Mr. Henry Owens, that he has commenced proceedings in Chancery to restrain me from infringing on his rights, by making and selling the Cone Pump and its connections. No such proceedings have been commenced to my knowledge.

I DENY and always denied that the alleged Patent is of any value. For over five years Mr. Powell and Mr. Owens, who claims under him, have shown their want of belief in the validity of the alleged Patent, as they have never, during all that time, taken any legal steps to assert their pretended rights, although a number of pump makers as well as myself have been making these pumps—and although Mr. Owens and Mr. Powell know that my solicitors have for long been instructed to defend any legal proceedings they or either of them might take to establish the validity of the alleged Patent.

I DENY that the 23rd Section of Canada Patent Act is to the effect represented in the circular referred to, and any interested may satisfy themselves of the correctness of my denial by referring to the section for themselves.

I ASSERT that the said circular is issued for the purpose of damaging my business as a manufacturer of pumps, and at my expense increasing the business of Mr. Owens. Had it been otherwise, Mr. Owens has had ample time to establish his patent in an honorable and straightforward way through the Court of Chancery, which he has not done.

I ASSERT that I have commenced AN ACTION against Mr. Owens in the Court of Common Pleas for $2,000 for the purpose of recovering against him damages for the injury said circular is intended to do to my business as a pump maker.

I ASSERT that all wanting GOOD PUMPS can be well and cheaply suited by me, and that I AM PREPARED TO STAND BETWEEN THEM AND ANY PRETENDED CLAIMS OF MR. OWENS.

THE

Great Cause of Human Misery

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife: pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

THE EXHIBITION!

The Second Day's Proceedings

Crowds of Visitors!

Within the Main Building.

A Grand Display!

Attractive Exhibit of Pottery.

Stoves and Hardware.

A Partial List of the Prizes.

A Financial Success!

Yesterday evening the indications did not promise the continuance of fine weather, foretold in the REVIEW, but to-day opened bright and dry, the great heat of yesterday being somewhat softened by clouds moderating the sun's rays, although at seven o'clock this morning the thermometer stood at 70°—something unusual in Canada on the first of October.

A number of visitors came in yesterday by train, boat and private vehicles, and from an early hour this morning the latter commenced coming in, usually laden with the entire household, so that long before noon our streets were thronged with sight-seers. The handsome appearance of the stores elicited general attraction and the windows dressed for the occasion drew such attention from the gentler sex as clearly proved the descent of Eve's little failing of curiosity, impeding the male pedestrians who courteously waited with patience—an example followed even by our own stony-hearted policemen who forgot for once to utter their authoritative injunction of "move on, please."

After the opening of the main building, which did not take place until 10 a.m., (owing to the Judges being at their work), people commenced to move northward to the scene of the Exhibition. Many had not provided themselves with tickets, and consequently had to turn back to the places where they are for sale—at all the bookstores. Let visitors to-night and to-morrow bear this in mind, and go prepared with tickets and save themselves and the gate-keepers annoyance.

On the Grounds.

To-day in the Agricultural department all were astir. The engine from Mr. Wm. Hamilton's works was driving the threshing, sawing machines grain crusher, fanning mill &c., &c., in the extensive exhibit of Mr. Peter Hamilton. Farmers had thus the advantage of seeing for themselves several of these machines actually at work, and this of itself would enable them to judge more practically of their merits. We might add here to our extended notice of yesterday, that Mr. Hamilton purchases the steel mould boards he uses from English makers, believing them fully better than American goods.

J. WHYTE & Co., who have always given especial attention to ploughs, have been awarded three first prizes on this important department. Mr. Smithson who won the first prize at the recent Dominion Ploughing Match at Cobourg, pronounces the mold-board of "White's Celebrated No. 3," as the nearest perfection in shape he has seen.

GEO. R. SHIELDS has on the ground a heavily built 4 wheel stone lifter, and JOHN MOORE shows Mason's Rock and Stump Extractor, of which he has recently purchased the entire right. This giant machine will handle a weight of 35 tons.

HENRY OWENS has added to his exhibit noticed yesterday a number of his celebrated pumps.

Carriage Makers.

MR. TOBIAS FITZGERALD has the field to himself in this important line, and makes a first-class display. Our other manufacturers give as one reason for not exhibiting, the smallness of the prizes offered, and think it unjust to them that the difference beween awards bestowed in this class, after an exercise of so much mechanical skill and taste as their goods require should be but a small fraction of that given in many classes of the stock department. An elegant hearse, made for Mr. Aaron Comstock of this town, shows to what a height carriage building has arrived here. It can be claimed that in design and finish it could not be surpassed in the Province, and it receives great praise alike from the visitor untrained in such matters, as well as from experienced mechanics. Mr. Fitzgerald also shows a single and top buggy, a democrat, an open buggy, a phæton, and a neat looking, slight yet firmly built Whitney Side Bar, built for R. A. Morrow, Esq. There are also two well made farm wagons with spring seats and movable shelbins. Oak, ash and walnut are used in their construction, which accounts for their superior finish. Specimens of the felloes, spokes, hubs, &c., used by Mr. Fitzgerald are also shown, so that the woods may be judged of in their plain state.

As the animals were not all on the ground at the opening, visitors gave their next attention to the Main Building,

Upon entering which so great was the display in variety and attractiveness, that no regular order of survey seemed to be followed.

Occupying the greater part of the north ends of the building and directly under the band stand, the sewing machine men sat in friendly rivalry, ready to operate on their machines or on the general public. There were four exhibitors, each of whom extolled the merits of his goods with that convincing earnestness and command of language which has become proverbial. No prizes are offered in this department, a neglect which aroused Mr. W. A. King to offer a couple himself in a spirit worthy of his royal name. He therefore offers as prizes, a reduction of $20 in the regular retail price of a Singer or Royal to the first prize takers for 10 lbs of Honey, and 10 lbs fresh butter to become his property. Thus without financial aid from the Directors, Wm. A. King announces that he will "Hold the Fort." Mr King's forte just now is evidently sewing machines. He exhibits a "Williams Singer" and a "Gardner" or "Royal," and has five specimens, one of which attracts special notice by its extra finish.

Mr. B. SHORTLEY shows the Osborn Sewing Machine, at $30, $35, and $40, while the New York Singer Machine Co. Mr. E. BROWN, Agent, have seven of their well-known machines on the stand. They have lately made a new improvement—a loose wheel—which is claimed as a great saving in needles and thread. They guarantee their machines for 10 years.

MR. GERMAN A. MITCHELL has six Wheeler & Wilson's; two for manufacturing and four for general family purposes. They, one of the oldest firms engaged in the sewing machine line, aim at reducing the complexity of their instruments as much as possible. They apply the rotary motion and dispense with the shuttle as well as urging other merits. Mr. Mitchell has a large number of specimens of its work which takes in the finest fabrics to leather, even metal, as lead is shown stitched, an instance of what Yankee smartness has effected.

Passing onward we come to the exhibit of Mr. ADAM HALL, who occupies the remainder of the north end. The Giant T is well known in town and country, having done a thriving business for years past, and still flourishes at the old George street stand. The stoves exhibited by Mr. Hall are from the works of E. & C. Gurney, of Toronto, and include the "New Nor'-West" cook stove, square and extended, while Gurney's "New Granger," an elevated cook stove, shows that the Order has not gone in Canada into this industry, and that old manufacturers are still considerate of their wants. There are also shown wood and coal heaters, the "Countess Base Burner," and "Gurney Franklin Grate," all of which at this time with winter approaching are objects of special interest. The ground edges of these goods have been nickel-plated, adding to their showy appearance. An improvement has been made in stove lids, which are now of two pieces, one fitting into the other, and the under side of the centre perforated, to let the cold air pass through, which prevents cracking. We noticed one omission in this exhibit, viz., "Hall's Camp Stove," but were told that the last one in stock was in use by a hunting party. This now celebrated stove is very light, and can be folded up like a newspaper. It is just the thing to camp out with in summer, as cooking can be done with very little fire, and a cook's nerves, temper and morals are all saved by using it. In the fall also, of a cold night, it can be set up within the camp, which those who have been out in October or November nights could appreciate.

The hardware display of MCKEE & DAVIDSON comes next, and is certainly one of the most attractive features within the Main Building. On the western side they have erected two large show boards, one of which is given to garden and farm implements, all from the works of A. S. Whiting of Oshawa, Scythes, Hay, Manure and Spading forks, bush hooks, hoes &c., &c., in great assortment. The other is occupied with saws, circular, cross-cut, hand, butchers, fret, band, &c., &c., and axes. These goods are all highly finished and are of Canadian make, and altogether are highly creditable to native skill and enterprise. It is important also to remember that these are just the ordinary goods sold from day to day over the counter, and none of them were made specially for show. The firm also have in display a case of builders hardware, locks, butts, bolts, &c., in black, bronze and nickel plate, and a case of pocket and table cutlery forming showy companion pieces to the large goods. The goods are arranged tastely, reflecting credit on the proprietors and their staff.

Next to the hardware comes harness, in which there are two exhibitors, both local.

W. J. DEVLIN, gained first prize for his substantial looking set of farm harness.

T. BILLINGTON shows a gold-plated, rubber-mounted set of carriage harness, which took first prize, and another set in plain and rubber mounting.

The inventive genius of our townsman, Mr. HENRY COX is displayed in the Hand Fire Engine exhibited by him. This engine is supplied with inch and a quarter hose, and can throw a stream from sixty to eighty feet. Its size, strength and capacity combine to make it suitable for general uses. Very often the possession of such an engine on the spot would prevent a serious fire, and for garden purposes it would be most suitable. Mr. Cox has also two Grocer's Revolving Stands, to which the attention of merchants is directed.

MR. D. PENTLAND has near by three organs, two from the works of Wm. Bell & Co., and another made by the Dominion Organ Co., of Bowmanville.

Next to the hardware exhibit are two canoes of superior finish. Mr. J. S. Stephenson, of Ashburnham, took first and Richardson & Grills, Lakefield, second place. Mr. Wm. English did not this year exhibit in this department.

Opposite WILSON & DAVIS call attention by a showily lettered card to their iron bound books, which are warranted to defy the malicious efforts of youth to tear asunder. A specimen is shown suspended with a fifty pound weight attached, and it bears the test well. This young and enterprising firm are doing a constantly increasing trade, due to their energy and industry and the judicious use of printer's ink.

A very attractive display is made by BROWNSCOMBE & GOODFELLOW in pottery. Their exhibit elicits general admiration and many are at first incredulous that we have in Peterborough an establishment capable of getting up such work. A special feature is their flower pots, stands and vases in colors. These are ornamented in relief with figures, and painted very elegantly. A pair of vases finished in imitation of Japanese work are remarkably fine. The same class of goods are shown, plain, and the firm have a large collection in Rockingham ware and plain goods in variety. Skilled labour from the celebrated potteries of Staffordshire is employed by the firm in turning out the above goods, and already the industry here is an important one, which we hope to see extended.

Receipts.

The attendance so far at the Central Fair has been immense. Over 7000 tickets had been sold up to 4 p. m. to-day, and the grand total by the close will fully realize the most sanguine hopes of the Directors.

Directory to the Grounds.

The ground, upon which the exhibition is being held, is a block of six acres, situated almost in the centre of the town, and is generally known as the old burying ground. Arriving by the Midland Railway, the stranger will proceed east to George street. and thence north, through the business centre, four blocks, when he will be at the corner of the Exhibition Grounds, which lie on the west side of the street. In passing up George street, the visitor will pass the stores of Messrs. J. I. Davidson, Thos. Menzies, and Wilson & Davis, where tickets of admission are on sale, and when they will do well to secure them en route. At the corner of the grounds on George and Murray streets, will be found the Secretary's office, where exhibitors will obtain their tickets, and where the Judges are expected to report themselves on their arrival. Stock, implements, grain, and other heavy articles will be admitted to the grounds at the large gate on Murray street, (i.e., the street running east and west on the south side of the grounds), west of the Drill Shed, while the lighter articles will be admitted direct from Murray street into the Drill Shed. Three admission gates have been provided for visitors, two on the east side of the Drill Shed, and one near the north-east corner of the grounds on George street. At these gates tickets only will be taken.

Within the Walls.

Entering at the exhibitors' gate, west of the Drill Shed, already described, the place for agricultural machinery, etc., will be found on the left hand, while immediately on the right will be found the sheds for Cotswold, Southdown and fat sheep, and in the nor'-west corner those for the pigs. Directly opposite this gate, on the north side of the grounds, are the refreshment and fodder booths, and to the east of these the horse stalls, which extend to George street. Along George street and west along Murray street to the Drill Shed will be found the cattle sheds and those intended for Leicester sheep, while the Poultry Shed will be found attached to the north end of the Drill Shed.

The Officers and Committees

in charge of the exhibition are as follows:—

PRESIDENT.—James Campbell, Esq.

VICE-PRESIDENT.—Col. Deacon, Esq.

TREASURER.—E. J. Toker, Esq.

SECRETARY.—John Carnegie, Esq.

SUPERINTENDENTS.—M. S. Dean, Esq., John Bennett, Esq.

Ladies' Work and Fine Arts, Messrs. Clementi and Wilmot. Leather Work, Plants and Flowers, Natural History and Miscellaneous, Col. Deacon.

CHIEF CONSTABLE.—Mr. George Johnston.

The Programme.

THURSDAY.—The work of the judges will be completed. The Exhibition will be again open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., when it will be finally closed to the public. The band will be present during the whole of this day.

FRIDAY.—Exhibitors will be at liberty to remove their animals or articles.

Special Offer.

Be sure to leave your order for the WEEKLY REVIEW for 1880 either at the office of publication, at the Exhibition Secretary's office, or with Mr. Harry Stapleton, or Mr. A. Borrowman, before you go home.

The Magneticon

THE CELEBRATED

English Magnetic Appliances

For the Cure of Disease.

THESE APPLIANCES are at once a direct assistance and safeguard, as they not only possess strong curative properties, but are also a most valuable preventive; by their invigorating and vitalizing influence constantly averting much of the liability to disease or suffering, and daily adding to the strength and vigor of the constitution. Thus, the various appliances may be used with immediate and permanent benefit by the strongest man, or the most delicate invalid or child. They comprise

Throat and Lung Invigorators

For all diseases and weaknesses of the Throat and Lungs, and affections of the Chest generally.

Ladies' and Gents' Belts.

For any general weakness of the Constitution; Indigestion and all other difficulties of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, etc., Lumbago or Weak Back, Internal weakness of any kind, Constipation, Physical or Nervous Exhaustion, etc., etc.

The Ladies' Support and Accouchment Belts are of incalculable benefit, averting the Nervous prostration from which thousands of ladies suffer so intensely. The use of these Belts is more particularly referred to by correspondence or consultation.

Spine Bands.

For Spinal Weakness or Injury, Neuralgia, and all Nervous affections, Sleeplessness, Paralysis, Headache etc.

Knee Caps, Anklets, Wristlets,

Soles, and various other Appliances.

For Rheumatism of any kind, in any part of the body or limbs, Cramps, Numbness, or nervous Sensations in the Hands, Wrists, etc., Weakness of any of the Joints, either from Injury or from Constitutional causes; Defective Circulation, causing Coldness of Hands and Feet, Chillblains, etc., and for any part of the body where there is any Functional or Nervous derangement, or want of vigorous healthy action.

Price from $1 to $10. Consultations Free.

The Magneticon appliances are manufactured only by Messrs. Wetton & Co., of London and Cheltenham, England; Edinburgh and Glasgow, Scotland; Dublin, Ireland; and Toronto, Canada.

Illustrated Pamphlets, containing Price Lists, Testimonials and all information are supplied free on application, or sent by post to any address. The appliances are also sent by Post or Express, to any address, on receipt of price.

FLOWERS IN THE HOUSE.

From Vick's Floral Guide.

Everybody worthy of a home strives to make it pleasant and cheerful. This is a necessity at all seasons of the year but particularly so during the tedious winters and long evenings of the north. Nothing will aid in this desirable work as easily, cheaply and effectually as flowers. They are a constant and yet ever changing source of delight; every day presenting new leaves and buds and blossoms, and new forms of loveliness, and we look and wonder and admire. A little skill and knowledge is necessary for the management of house-plants, and with these, as with all other things, success is necessary to enjoyment. We shall endeavor to give a few suggestions that we hope will make the road to success somewhat easy. Those who have green-houses and gardners, perhaps will not need our counsel. Our hints are designed for the millions who have not these helps, but who love flowers and cultivate a few in the house. Thousands of persons purchase vigorous plants from the green-houses every year, and are pained to see them gradually fade, droop and die. How can this be prevented and plants kept in health and vigor, is the question we wish to discuss. Plants, like ourselves, need AIR, LIGHT, WARMTH, FOOD and DRINK, and if they are furnished these in proper quantities they will live and grow, accidents, of course, excepted. We will say a word or two on each of these points.

PLANT FOOD.—Where good earth is used for potting, plants seldom need any special manure. The best soil for plants is found in old meadows, the corners of fences, &c., where sod has grown a long time. A pile of sod laid up to rot makes excellent potting earth, and if taken from what we call here a chestnut soil, that is, with a good deal of sand, nothing can be better. Many persons think if they can get a little black muck from a swamp they have the perfection of potting soil, while it is the poorest soil that can be procured. About a tablespoonful of guano in a pail of water makes a good fertilizing material, but must be used cautiously, and is not often needed. Manure water, just as good, can be made by putting a little stable manure in a pail of water, and using the liquid.

WATERING.—Keep the earth moderately moist, about as it is observed in the garden in what we call a growing time. Water not too frequently, but thoroughly.

HEAT.—Most of our plants are injured by too much heat. For a general collection of house plants, it is not best to allow the thermometer to be above seventy, and if they could be kept in a room where the thermometer would usually not range much above sixty-five it would be the better. In the night time fifty is high enough. Give a little fresh air every fine day and all the sunlight attainable. An effort should be made to give moisture to the atmosphere, for our own good as well as the health of the plants. This can be done in various ways by evaporating water; But when the plants are in a separate apartment, like a little green-house, it can be done more conveniently and effectually, although this separate apartment be only a bay window, with glass doors, separating it from the living room. In this place water can be used freely, by syringing, &c., and a moist atmosphere preserved. The temperature, with this arrangement, can be kept lower than would be comfortable in the living room, and the plants are saved from dust and many evils which we manage to endure and live, but which generally prove too much for the plants.

AIR AND LIGHT.—Every one knows that a plant grown in the dark is weak and colorless; and if it has plenty of light and little air, while it will have the natural color, it will be slender and sickly. The gardner, therefore, is careful to give his green-houses and hot-beds not only light, but air at every convenient opportunity. In winter, he hails a bright, sunny day with delight. Plants will suffer from a current of cold air just as their owner would, but will be benefitted by an invigorating breath of fresh air. Provide, therefore, for air in some way, especially on pleasant days.

CLEANLINESS.—Cleanliness is a necessary to the health of plants as to animals, and it is therefore, necessary to secure them from dust as much as possible, and also to cleanse the plants frequently by syringing or washing. Even here a little caution is necessary, for while the smooth-leaved plants are benefitted, not only by showering, but even by washing the leaves with a cloth or sponge, the rough-leaved plants, like the Begonia Rex, do not like to have the surface of their leaves frequently moistened. It would, therefore, be well to remove such plants before syringing. Take every precaution, however, to prevent the accumulation of dust upon the plants. The essentials of success in plant culture are suitable soil, air, light, moderate and regular heat, a moist atmosphere, regular and moderate watering, and freedom from dust and foul gas.

In the garden there are usually a few plants that may be taken up and potted. The Ivy, Madeira Vine and Cobœa scandens are graceful climbers, and will bear almost any amount of bad treatment. Tuberoses that have not bloomed in the garden and are showing flower stems may be taken up and potted, and will flower in early winter. A root of the Dicentra will give satisfaction. The Ten-Weeks Stock is also a fine winter bloomer, and can be treated in the same manner. A pot of Mignonette costs but a few cents, and not many expensive plants will afford as much pleasure. Sow the seeds in September or October. It is well to prepare two or three pots. The Sweet Alyssum treated as advised for Mignonette will also please. The Browallia is also an excellent winter flower. A few larger plants are desirable, and the Calla, Dracæna and Begonia are very patient under almost any kind of treatment.

Russia and France.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A Paris correspondence says that Prince Orloff, Russian ambassador at Paris, on returning from attendance upon the Czarewitch and Empress will meet here on October 10th. The Grand Dukes Constantine and Nicholas, the Grand Dukes Alexas and Wadimir, the Grand Duchesses Marie and Christine and Count Schouvalaff. Political gossip will inevitably associate such an assemblage with the rumours of the Rapprochement between France and Spain.

Another Sufferer Cured.—Discharged from the Massachusetts General Hospital as incurable, with inflammatory rheumatism in the shoulders, fingers and feet; suffered fearfully for three years, tried everything; lost all hope. Dr. Giles' Liniment Iodide of Ammonia effected a complete cure. ELLEN SMITH,

FEMININE ATHLETICS.

Parents take but little heed of the muscular education of their girls. In fact, the idea of robust, muscular women is repulsive to most minds. A creature with limp, powerless arms, and wasp-like waist constitutes the popular idea of female beauty; whereas, what we ought to admire is a form unconfined, well knit, "supple as that of a panther," with an arm rounded, white and hard as marble, from the well-strung muscles under the polished skin. All this is very easily attainable. The Greek women of old possessed bodies such as described, and so might we British women of to-day, if only care were taken. We do not need a Spartan system to effect a change; we have the means of attaining health and beautiful strength, almost without altering our mode of life. We can surely all walk. But how seldom do we meet with a woman, or even young girl, who can "do" her five miles without great fatigue. Now, walking is one of the most delightful forms of motion when one has really learnt the art. This can only be done through practice. In order to walk with profit to ourselves, we must begin when young, walk a set distance daily, and at a given uniform pace. The distance must be short at first and gradually increased; the pace, likewise slow first, must quicken day by day, until the desired proficiency is attained. If mothers were careful to have the pedestrian training of their girls begun about the age of twelve, then our eyes would be gladdened with the sight of women moving with grace, dignity, and swiftness along our streets; and wives and sisters could accompany husbands and brothers on delightful walking expeditions, and parties for the same purpose could be organized, as we see parties uniting for a tour by rail or steamer. How charming would be a honeymoon passed in walking through beautiful scenery, under the free sky, in crisp autumn or sweet spring weather. Would it not put expensive and inconvenient Continental wedding-trips out of fashion—as, indeed, they are growing already to be? Another splendid form of exercise is rowing. It is the best thing for developing the arms and chest—a most needful and important development in these days of consumption and asthma. Then there are more purely gymnastic exercises, which ought to form part of the curriculum at every girls' school, whereas at present a few feeble gestures usually represent the "athletics" in vogue. A gymnasium ought to be built in connection with every school, wherein the exercises should be taught by a properly-qualified governess. As nine out of every ten girls are educated at schools or colleges, these valuable institutions ought to begin the great work of female physical development. Let us spend a little more money on the improvement of our children's souls and bodies, and the subsequent benefit of the race, and less on the covering of those poor neglected bodies with rich and costly superfluities.—Good Words.

THE Germantown Telegraph says that "the last new plan for raising wheat is to sow one quart of oats to two of wheat, so that when the frost nips the oats, it falls and acts as a cover or mulch for the wheat. On a trial it is asserted that the crop of wheat was excellent while in an adjoing field where the old mode was followed, it was very poor. The fact is that the former crop of wheat was so well-cultivated, that it proved to be a good crop in spite of the oats, not on account of it. Winter wheat requires no cover; and if it did, it would hardly be benefitted in the result by the oats eating up one-half the fertilization of the soil. We think some account should be taken of what the oat leaves, roots and stems return to the soil.

NATURE'S ECONOMY.

The first principle which we notice in the works of our Creator is a liberal, grand profusion; the second, a wise economy, appearing not only in things which are the greatest, but also among the least. The spider clings to a leaf or a spear of grass, and weaves its old patterns over and over again in the new silk, but the slender tissues are not lost even when shivered and torn; if too much broken to admit of being mended, the spider will eat them, giving his particular illustrations that in the rule of Nature nothing is wasted, and forming his link in the cycle of constant reproduction and change. The lobster changes his shell and stomach every year, but the remains are generally the first morsel to glut his new system—also forming his link in the cycle. The leaf in fading gives back the best part of its substance to the sprig on which it hung. What the tree loses in foliage it nearly gains in wood; as the cast-off shell nourishes the lobster, as the torn web nourishes the spider—another link in the chain.

Then man—when it is remembered that all his limbs, all his organs, all that makes him a man, physically, has been picked up from his plate—that the waste matters and gases of his system have been absorbed by the plants and vegetables upon which he fed—that he has been served up at table many times over—it is seen that he is a mass of vivified viands, an epitome of the universe. He has dined upon himself, he has supped upon himself,—and, in fact, has again and again leaped down his own throat—another link in the chain of reproduction and change.

Dig into the bowels of the earth; drag forth her cannel, her lignite, her bitumen, her anthracite; let the hearth be bright amid the family circle; let the forge of the smith glow with radiant heat. Then watch the thick dark smoke as it escapes lazily up, and spreads itself over the sky like some massive web. But the spider is still eating; millions of green leaves suck in the rich carbon, distilled from the smoke by the atmosphere. Through their innumerable mouths the unwearied old planet swallows up her own workmanship again and again as a tree sucks up the substance of its own cast-off foliage. Ages upon ages past the earth brought forth abundantly, and tangled thickets and forests of gigantic old trees drew their life-juice from her bosom. And now, stretched out broad and deep, we find the same net work of vegetation lying again in her bosom—all changed to bright, shining coal. Here the earth has swallowed what she at first brought forth.—Country Gentleman.

SOMEBODY says "tall men like short women." However, true this may be tall women seldom like men who are "short"—financially.

AN opened letter at the dead letter office read as follows:—"Sevel years is rather long to kort a gal; but ile have you yit, Kate."

A FLORIDA paper has ascertained that a healthy alligator can eat seven negro children in the course of seven hours and not display any symptoms of disquiet.

A NEBRASKA man, on his dying bed, remembered that his wife was smoking some hams, and he said, "Now, Henrietta, don't go whimpering about and forget them hams."

A YOUNG married man, of Montreal, does not believe "a thing of beauty is a joy forever." He says the author of that statement ought to see his pretty wife when she's "got her dander up."

MR. JONES, the other day, found some money in the street. "Ah!" said he, with a knowing look, "papers have been saying that money's tight, but I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't found it in the gutter."

LAURA (with a novel)—"Oh, if this tale were only true, and I were only the heroine!" Kate—"What! with all her persecutions and her misery?" Laura—"Ah! but then, dear, remember she does get a husband after all!"

"WHAT is your business?" asked a judge of a prisoner at the bar. "Well, I s'pose you might call me a locksmith?" "When did you last work at your trade?" "Last night; when I heard a call for the perlice, and I made a bolt for the front door."

A COUNTRY paper tells of a cat which is bringing up two rats along with her own kittens, and thinks she has risen above the prejudices of her race. That cat is no fool, and when those rats get plump and fat she and those kittens will make a most sumptuous dinner of them.

JONES and Brown were talking lately of a young clergyman whose preaching they had heard that day. "What do you think of him?" asked Brown. "I think," said Jones, "he did better two years ago." "Why, he didn't preach then?" "True," said Jones, "that is what I mean."

COURTEOUS VERDICTS.—A coroner's jury, empannelled to ascertain the cause of death of a notorious drunkard, brought in a verdict of "Death by hanging—about a rum-shop." In California a coroner's jury, under similar circumstances, rendered a more courteous verdict: "Accidental death while unpacking a glass."

A YANKEE lecturer on "The sanitary conditions of existence," sternly asked his audience, "Does one woman in fifty fill the lower half of her lungs with air?" and was utterly disconcerted by hearing a squealing voice reply, "I guess if you'd ever heard the voice of your mother-in-law when she was in a rage, you wouldn't ask that question."

A CHICAGO Justice of the Peace called upon a policeman to arrest a number of disorderly boys some time since, when the officer respectfully declined. The squire swore at the officer, when the officer collared the squire and walked him off to gaol. Procuring bail, out rushed the squire as fresh as paint, collared the officer, and walked him off to gaol, where he now languishes.

Notice to Contractors.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the Secretary of Public Works, and endorsed "Tenders for Canal and Lock at St. Anne," will be received at this office until the arrival of the Eastern and Western mails on FRIDAY THE 10th DAY OF OCTOBER next, for the construction of a Lock and the formation of approaches to it on the landward side of the present lock at St. Anne.

A map of the locality, together with plans and specifications of the works to be done, can be seen at this office and at the Resident Engineer's office, at St. Anne, on and after SATURDAY THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER next, at either of which places printed forms of Tender can be obtained.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and—in the case of firms, except there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation and residence of each member of the same; and further, an accepted Bank cheque for the sum of $2000 must accompany the tender, which sum shall be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the works, at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

For the due fulfilment of the contract, satisfactory security will be required by the deposit of money to the amount of five per cent. on the bulk sum of the contract; of which the sum sent in with the Tender will be considered a part.

Ninety per cent only of the progress estimates will be paid until the completion of the work.

To each Tender must be attached the actual signatures of two responsible and solvent persons, residents of the Dominion, willing to become sureties for the carrying out of these conditions, as well as the due performance of the works embraced in the contract.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
F. BRAUN,
Secretary.

LOCAL NEWS

Vital Statistics.

The following births, marriages and deaths have been registered at the office of the Town Clerk during the past month. Births, 10; marriages, 3; deaths, 8.

Flower Bulbs.

A large assortment of Hyacinth flower bulbs have been received at Kempt's drug store, and they are now ready for delivery. Those who love flowers will be glad to know this.

◆

Beautiful Confections.

In Long Brother's window can be seen a specimen of the beautiful work done in confections. There is also displayed a variety of fruit, flowers and exhibits of their handiwork.

◆

Improving.

The boy Goslin, who had his fingers cut nearly off at Brown's shingle mill, is rapidly improving. Dr. Kincaid replaced the fingers without the hope of their reuniting; but they have done so, and are assuming their natural condition.

◆

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: Moderate winds, partly cloudy, continued warm weather. The weather in Peterborough is clear and warm, with light wind.

◆

The Peterborough Market.

WEDNESDAY October 1.—The market this morning was a very poor one. All interest seems to have been centered in the great Central Show now being held at the Agricultural Grounds.

◆

Mails Delayed by a Heavy Train.

The Midland Railway brought to town this morning over 1,500 passengers, the train being nearly two hours behind time. This influx increased the crowds upon our streets visibly. The mails were in consequence of the heavy train delayed for a short time.

◆

An Interesting Lecture.

There is to be an interesting lecture at the George street Methodist Church, on Monday evening, October 13th, by the Rev. J. Smith of Toronto. The subject is to be "Social Talkers.' Mr. Smith is said to be an eloquent lecturer, and no doubt a large audience will greet him on this occasion.

◆

To the West-End Loafers.

We are requested to announce to the young men who congregated at the corner of Donegal and Brock Streets, last evening, using indecent and blasphemous langugage, to the great annoyance of the neighbourhood, that if their conduct is repeated, they will be prosecuted in accordance with the by-laws of the town.

◆

Delicious Fruit.

There is a great attraction to-day at Chamberlain's. His display of grapes beats anything before exhibited. The "Alexander" and "twenty pound" apples are also very fine and attract much attention. Melons, pears, Delaware grapes and delicious partridge, on the first day of the season, fine and fat, are also exhibited.

◆

The Wheat Market.

The Peterborough wheat market has assumed a steadier tone to-day, the excitement of yesterday having subsided and we are able to quote $1.08 for both Spring and Fall wheat. The receipts to-day are heavier. The indications are, that the increased receipts will continue for some time. It is hard to say it higher prices will be reached in this market this fall. Many are of the opinion that the next change will be a decrease.

◆

An Improvement.

Mr. Green has, by his energy and good taste, reclaimed the waste, rough, unsavory land along the river front, in the rear of his property on the Market Square, by cribbing, raising, and levelling the ground. He has set out willow trees along the river bank, and he proposes to lay out the grounds in walks and avenues for promenading, having filled out the hollow as far as Charlotte Street. He has asked the Town Council to afford him an easier entrance to his property, and he is now grading the approach. This is a substantial improvement, and the example might well be followed.

Presentations.

A pleasing affair came off yesterday afternoon at the West Ward School, in the room of Mrs. Hunt, the head teacher. It having become known to the teachers and children that Miss Ellsworth and Miss Brown were about to leave the school; they prepared a surprise for them. When all were assembled, Miss Minnie Cox, stepped forward and addressed Miss Ellsworth as follows:—

"DEAR MISS ELLSWORTH:"

"As you are about leaving us for a new sphere of labor, we, your fellow-teachers and pupils, ask you to accept this locket and vase, as a token of our regards for you, and our high appreciation of your services among us.

"In asking you to accept this present, we do not give it as the reward of your earnest labors, but only as a slight remembrance of the pleasant time we have spent together. With it go the kindest wishes of us all, and an earnest prayer for your future welfare and success."

Miss Aggie Mercer then stepped forward and presented the locket and vase to Miss Ellsworth, who, greatly overcome by the expressions of love and good wishes of her associates and pupils, had some difficulty in expressing her thanks.

As soon as this presentation was completed, Miss Lizzie Rutherford stepped forward and read the following address:—

"DEAR MISS BROWN:"

"Allow us, as your fellow teachers and pupils, to express on this occasion our deep regret at your removal.

"Permit us to offer you this ring and vase as a token of our love; and at the same time to express the wish, that your future life may be fraught with happiness and prosperity.

"Peterborough, Sept. 30, 1879."

Miss Emma Morrow then stepped forward and presented the ring and vase, which were accepted by Miss Brown with a few words of heartfelt thanks.

LACONICS.

—Lovely day for the show.

—George Street crowded all the morning, and in the afternoon the Agricultural Grounds,

—Among the visitors in town to-day, we observe Hon. A. McQuade, M.P. for South Victoria. He is looking hale and hearty.

—The stables and yards, both public and private, are crowded with teams that have brought visitors to the Central Show.

—The stores have been well crowded to-day, whether to purchase or only to look, we cannot say.

THE YELLOW FEVER.

By Telegram to the Review.

MORE VICTIMS.

MEMPHIS, Sep. 30.—At noon seven more cases were reported, and three additional deaths. Sister Agnes, who came from St. Mary's Catholic Hospital at St. Louis, now lies ill. Thomas H. Millburn, President of the German National Bank, has been ill with fever for the past week. He had no physician, being attended by Gen. Smith, acting President of the Howard Association, who reports him convalescing.

TREATED IN QUARANTINE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—There has been thirteen deaths and fifty-six cases of yellow fever treated during the past summer at the quarantine hospital.

ATTEMPTED RIOT.

MEMPHIS, 10 a.m.—No new cases or deaths reported. Four desperate characters were arrested this morning, charged with attemping to incite a riot last night at Campmarks. Several shots were fired at the guards who attempted to arrest the principal leader, M. Whitehead, who escaped.

Daily Evening Review

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1879.

The Blockade.

The tracks at the Midland Station are blocked up with freight and passenger cars.

Hay Upset.

A load of hay was upset yesterday afternoon at the entrance to Cavanagh's yard. It was soon got out of the way.

Strangers in Town.

Over one thousand strangers remained in town over night, and the streets this morning were well patronized in promenading.

Fine Turn-outs.

Many fine single and double teams were driven up and down George Street this morning. They were greatly admired.

Extra Trains.

There are extra trains running frequently during the last few days, bringing in freights and empty cars. These are loaded with grain, lumber, wool &c., for the front.

I. O. O. F.

Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, I. O. O. F., hold a regular meeting this evening at their rooms on George Street, over the Canadian Express Company. Visiting members are invited to attend.

No Accidents.

It is a remarkable circumstance that so few accidents occurred yesterday, while the streets were so crowded with vehicles and pedestrians. What few casualties that occurred were so slight as to be unworthy of note.

Cheese and Fruit Thieves.

Several men and boys were detected yesterday, helping themselves to fruit and cheese at the Drill Shed. The managers of the exhibition had to place constables around to keep these petty thieves' hands off.

Accident at the Agricultural Grounds.

A portion of the shed of the Agricultural Grounds along George Street, yesterday afternoon, broke down with the weight of the crowd of boys and men upon it. There was quite a stampede. No one was hurt. The constables cleared the sheds.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: fresh, south-easterly to south-westerly winds; cloudy, to partly cloudy weather, with rain areas. The morning has been delightful, the afternoon partly cloudy with appearance of rain.

Terrible Accident.

As the heavy train of excursionists was passing Curran's crossing last evening, Mr. Mitchell McIntosh, of Hope, attempted to pass from one platform to another, slipped and fell under the cars, the wheel splitting his head open in such a manner as to leave a portion of the face upon the track. As soon as possible the train was stopped and backed up to the spot when it was discovered that the man was dead. The body was taken on board and conveyed to Millbrook. It is stated by those who saw the accident that in crossing from car to car, he stepped upon the coupling bar, and was thrown off by the motion of the car. It is a sad thing to note so terrible a death amidst the rejoicings of a party who were so full of the pleasures of the day. It cast a gloom over the excursionists and many exclamations of sympathy were herad for the friends of the deceased. It may be well to state, that the cars were literally packed with passengers inside the cars and upon the platforms, and it is scarcely to be wondered at that an accident should occur.

Another Mistake.

It is an egregious mistake to suppose that a live newspaper has any lack of interesting matter with which to fill its columns, and they are wrong who assume that a "puff" for some show, business, or charity helps the publisher out of a dilemma. Suppose the Review had thirty out of its forty columns filled with advertisements and "local notices" of business matters, would it be able to retain its present circulation? People would say "We cannot afford to pay three cents for a paper which contains so little news," and they would drop the Review and take another paper. Some of our patrons will besurprised to learn that every day we receive by telegraph and pay for full twice as much foreign news as gets into the paper; that the forenoon and afternoon despatches have to be curtailed, and at least four days out of the week the instructions to the local staff are to "keep everything down," that is, condense the news as much as possible. Under these circumstances, is it any wonder that we, desiring to make a marketable paper, grudge any room devoted to free local notices, or disguised advertisements, and would greatly prefer to fill the space with good local or foreign news? The idea that because a paper must be issued at a certain hour each day it can just as well as not publish a free notice for the advancement of somebody's business—the additional expense being very small—could be as fairly applied to many other kinds of business. The Midland Railway must run a train to-morrow morning about 7 o'clock. It will cost nothing extra to the Company to take you along, kind reader; go down to the depot, represent your case to the conductor and see if you will get a free ride by virtue of that representation. This is not written in a tone of complaint, but is intended to convey information which it will do nobody any harm to receive.

A MURDEROUS ATTACK.

New York, Oct. 2.—Thos. O. Woodruff, a prominent resident of West Grange, was shot last night by his son-in-law, Anthony Kirnnich, because the former refused to give the latter $50. Kirnnich then committed suicide. Woodruff is not fatally hurt.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS

CABLE.

RATE OF EXCHANGE.

London, Oct. 1.—The exchange on New York has again sunk to the bullion point. It is expected that £100,000 remaining on the market from the Australian consignment will go to America. The bank of France will probably advance the premium one per mill, to check the outflow. This determination is anticipated by large withdrawals from London.

PRUSSIAN AFFAIRS.

Berlin, Oct. 1.—It is reported that Bismarck in the forthcoming session of the Prussian Diet will be represented by the Vice-President of the Prussian Ministry. Field-Marshal Von Moltke has returned to Kolmar from the autumn manœuvres. He went with a view to considering how Upper Alsace and Baden could best be defended in the event of a French invasion.

LABOUR TROUBLES.

London, Oct. 1.—The Oldham cotton spinners refuse to withdraw their notice of a reduction, and decline an interview with the operatives. A strike is probable, owing to the unfavourable reports of the labour market in America. The North Wales State Quarrymen's Union has declined to give further pecuniary assistance to members desiring to emigrate.

EDITORIAL ENCOUNTER.

London, Oct. 1.—A fistic street encounter occurred on Monday in London between Mr. Lawson, of the Daily Telegram, and Mr. Labouchere, of the Truth. Mr. Lawson attacked Mr. Labouchere on account of certain paragraphs in the Truth. Not much damage was done.

BANK DIRECTORS.

Edinburgh, Oct. 1.—Five of the Glasgow Bank Directors convicted of uttering false abstracts of ballance sheets and sentenced to eight months' imprisonment, were released yesterday amid the hootings of a crowd. Other directors convicted of fraud, theft, and embezzlement have still ten months to serve.

MURDER IN NEW YORK.

New York, Oct., 1.—A shocking murder came to light this afternoon in a Rose street tenement house. Peter Balbo, a young Italian labourer, working on the Brooklyn bridge, in a fit of jealousy killed his wife in a most cold-blooded manner. The woman had been dead several hours when discovered. When the officer opened the door he saw the body wrapped in a quilt lying in the bed. She had been despatched in true Italian fashion, stabbed to death with a stiletto. The murderer made sure of his work, the hilt of the dagger being even more bloody than the blade. In a room with the murdered woman was her mother, who kept watch over the blood-stained corpse. As the door was locked, and no key could be found, the mother, the police believe, was present when the crime was committed. The murderer stabbed his unfortunate victim in the throat, inflicting a gastly and fatal wound. He then locked the mother in the room with the corpse of her daughter and made his escape. The police are on the track and will doubtless secure the murderer.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

READY FOR THE ATTACK.

Simla, Oct. 2.—Gen. Roberts' whole expeditionary force is expected to be concentrated for the attack on Cabul by Sunday.

ATTACKED BY INDIANS.

United States Troops Forced to Retreat and to Entrench Themselves.

Milk River, Colorado, Sept 29.—Thornburg's command, being attacked in Bad Canon to-day, a mile south of here, on their march to the Agency, retreated in good order to the waggon-train, where it is now entrenching itself as fast as possible. Thornburg was killed instantly during the retreat, Capt. Payne was wounded slightly, Lieutenant Paddock and Captain Grimes were wounded, not dangerously, 10 enlisted men and a waggon master, Mr. Kinstry were killed. At least 25 men and teamsters were wounded. The command is now very well sheltered. Now and then are heard guns of new hostiles who have just arrived, mules and horses are suffering. The Indians fired grass to burn us out. Every man is digging trenches and hauling out dead mules for a defence for to-morrow. The Indians are expected back at daylight.

By Telegram to the Review.

New York, Oct. 2.—Another report of Thornburgh,s fight with the Utes says that on the Indians opening fire, the advance fell back to the main body, a short distance in the rear. The Command formed in line of battle, and the Indians, numbering 250, made a desperate attack. While the attention of the command was attracted to the front, another body of Indians threw themselves in the rear of the Command, between them and the supply train. To save the train, Thornburgh charged the Indians in the rear, and the command reached the wagon train. In the charge, Thornburgh, while urging his men forward, was shot. After reaching the train the men immediately commenced entrenching under a very heavy fire.

FORMIDABLE FOES.

Rankin, the scout, with despatches for Crook, made the ride of 160 miles on horseback in 24 hours. The Indians are armed with Winchester rifles, and have plenty of ammunition, It is feared that the Utes have formed an alliance with the Araphoes and Snakes, and that a general Indian war will result. Several old officers think it improbable that Merritt will reach Thornburgh's command in time to save it. Gen. Williams has no such fears. It is believed that the Unitahs have gone on the war path with the Utes, and number from 400 to 800. The Utes are divided into the Southern Utes 900, the Lospinos Utes 2100, and the White River Utes 800. It is the latter who are on the war path, but the others are dissatisfied.

DISREGARDING TREATIES.

Prospectors have been urging that Congress should disregard the treaty and obligations, and declare the Ute reservation open to settlement. Seeing that serious consequences would follow the invasion of their domain. Schurz asked Congress for authority to negotiate for a cession to the United States of all the reservation of the Utes. The request was disregarded. The Utes dress like white men, and although surly by nature have been tractible, knowing that it would be impossible to quiet the Indians, so long as the promises to pay for their lands were unfulfilled. The Interior Department appealed to Congress to allow the enlistment of 3,000 Indians as an auxiliary to the army, and to fight the rebellious Indians. This was regarded as absolutely necessary. Of this appeal, Congress took no notice.

CAPT. WILLIAMS vs. R. M. MEREDITH.

Evidence of Complainant—The Defendant was Committed for Trial, but released on his own Bail.

The assault case preferred against Richard M. Meredith, of London, by Capt. C. H. A. Williams, of Port Hope, was heard before P. M. Denison, in the Toronto Police Court, on Tuesday, 30th September. The following account of the proceedings appeared in the Toronto Telegram yesterday evening:—

At to day's session of the Police Court R. M. Meredith, of London was charged with having on the 13th inst. committed an aggravated assault on C. A. Williams, of Port Hope. Mr. A. Boultbee appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Dalton McCarthy appeared for the defence. The complainant stated that on the 13th inst. at the Union Station, he met defendant, who jostled against him; witness turned, whereupon defendant exclaimed (gnashing his teeth), "I want to see you at the back of the station;" when witness refused to go to the back of the station, defendant grabbed him and gave him a drubbing, striking him in the face with his fist six or eight times; witness said his first impulse was to draw his sword and strike, but he changed his mind and exclaimed, "No, I will not strike," but he again changed his mind, and made a blow at defendant with his scabbard; he did not know whether he struck defendant, but the latter rushed in and attempted to gouge his eyes out by clawing him. Just at this moment,' continued the witness, 'I thought it was time to go in, and so I struck him twice, and he, being a poor miserable being, fell down." The fight then became a rough-and-tumble one, which the witness described very fully.

Dr. Thorburn testified as to the nature of the complainant's wounds. This was all the evidence given, the defendant being committed for trial, but released on his own bail.

AGRARIANISM IN IRELAND.

Two Agents Fired at Near Castlebar—One of the Assailants Killed.

London, Oct. 1.—It is reported that in an affray near Castlebar, Ireland, to-day one person was killed on each side.

Second despatch.—The affray near Castlebar, in which two men were reported killed, is believed to be an Agrarian outrage. It is reported four men fired on the Marquis of Sligo's agent. The fire was returned. Accounts are very conflicting. The Marquis of Headfort and his agent have received letters threatening deaths unless rents are reduced.

Dublin, Oct. 1.—Only one man was killed in the affray near Castlebar. The agents, Smith & Son, driving near Mulranny, were fired on. The younger Smith returned the fire, killing one of the assailants. All the assailants were disguised. A fierce struggle ensued. The Smiths, escaping went for the police. When they had returned the body of the killed man had been removed.

Later.—The body of the man killed in the affray near Castlebar was found in the bog. It is that of a militiaman.

THE RED RIVER VALLEY.

The Dalrymple Farm.

The following is an exract from a letter attributed to Mr. Connolly, correspondent of the London Times:—

Farming on a scale unparalleled except in California is prosecuted in the Red River Valley. This dates from the year 1875, when several capitalists bought vast tracks of land there. Mr. B. P. Cheney, of Boston, and Mr. Olliver Dalrymple, of St. Paul, purchased 5,000 acres, of which 3,500 will be under cultivation this spring. Last year they harvested 42,000 bushels of wheat, 6,000 of oats, and 3,000 of barley. The machinery on this farm consists of 40 ploughs, 16 seeders, 40 harrows, 16 harvesters, 3 steam threshing machines, and 3 portable steam engines. As many as a hundred men are employed at the busiest season. Mr. Case has a farm of 6,000. Nearly the whole will be sown with wheat this year. Large though these farms, yet they seem small in comparison with that belonging to Mr. William Dalrymple; it covers 10 square miles. The quantity sown with wheat last year was 20,000 acres; the yield was 250,000 bushels. Seventy-five reaping and binding machines were used to harvest the crop, the work being done at the rate of 1,000 acres a day. This farm is managed on the plan of a factory. It is divided into sections of 2,000 acres, over each of which an overseer is placed; he carries out the orders of Mr. Dalrymple just as a Brigadier-General carries out the orders of the Commander-in-Chief of an army. Comfortable dwellings are provided for the overseers, while there is a boarding-house for the accommodation of the farm laborers. Each section has its granary, stables, machine shop, and engine-house. Indeed, the vast estate is really divided into a number of separate farms, each being complete in itself, and all being subject to a common head. Four hundred and fifty labourers and upwards of 800 horses and mules are employed on this farm; three book-keepers are required to register the accounts; and two cashiers to receive disburse the money. Indeed, the whole arrangements are designed to assimililate the production of grain to the operations of a manufactory. The idyllic side of farming has no place here. The farmer is a capitalist, and the farm laborer is called a "hand" and treated as one. Advocates of spade-husbandry will see nothing to admire in this wholesale method of cultivation the soil, and they will maintain that if this system should grow in favor, the day must arrive when in the United States, as in certain European countries, there will be a permanent and rigid separation between the tillers of the soil and its owners. However, while land continues as plentiful and as easily acquired in the United States as it was during the Middle Ages, when the existing large estates were formed in Europe, the citizens of that country will disregard gloomy forebodings and will continue to lavish their admiration upon a successful capitalist like Mr. Dalrymple. His farm is a common topic of glorification among the citizins of the new North-West, and of admiring envy among the dwellers in less fertile parts of the land.

A correspondent of the Prairie Farmer gives the following particulars of the same farm :—

"Mr. Dalrymple had been a successful farmer in Minnesota, making a fortune of $100,000, which he lost in wheat speculations. When the Northern Pacific railroad was opened he visited the land he now occupies, and decided that it was worth intrinsically $25 per acre. On his representation he induced Messrs. Case and Cheney to furnish the money to locate the land and stock the farm, on condition that when this purchase money had been refunded from the profits Mr. Dalrymple should have a deed of one-third of the property. It only took him three years to get his deed. He now has a half interest in 75,000 acres—25,000 at Casselton and 50,000 thirty miles up the Red River valley at Grandin. There are, this year, in the two sections in crops 20,000 acres, and 5,000 more put under plough this summer to come into crop next year.

"A few figures will give an idea of the vast scale on which this farm is carried on. Mr. Dalrymple is the grand commander-in-chief, and under him are superintendents of sections and overseers of squads of workmen. The farm is divided into sections of 5,000 acres. There is a superintendent to every 5,000 acres. On each section there is a full set of buildings—including houses for workmen—buildings for storing machinery, blacksmith shop, granary, etc.

"They have one span of horses or mules to each 80 acres, and one gang plow, 14 inches cut to every 100 acres; 115 self-binders and 20 threshing machines. In all work, plowing, sowing or harvesting they take a mile square. They employ 400 men for harvesting, which takes about 12 days, and 500 to 600 men in threshing, which occupies about 24 days. For plowing and seeding, men get $20 per month and board. For harvesting, $2 per day and board. There is no scarcity of help, much of it being furnished by those who have taken small claims in the vicinity. The cost of the first crop is $11 per acre, including interest on all expenditures, valuing the land at $5 per acre. Cost of the second crop, $8 per acre. The estimated yield of wheat this season is 23 to 25 bushels per acre, No. 1. This wheat is worth, on the ground, 90 cents per bushel. Every four years the ground is seeded to clover and rests a year."

Untimely Death by the Result of Sin.

A good man, moved by a zeal not tempered by discretion, forgets the laws of health, and works in such a way as to bring upon himself premature diseases of brain or heart, by which he is prostrated long before he reaches the limit of threescore years and ten. "Such a one," it is said, "forgets himself in another sense than Moses did when he lost his self-command, and though we may loosely speak of him as a martyr to the cause in which he laboured, we are compelled to admit that he sinned against those physical laws which, in their own place, are as imperious as the moral code itself, and thus entailed upon himself exclusion from the promised land, while no Pisgah prospect of its nearness supported him in his dying hours. This is especially the temptation of the time in which we live. Amidst the hurry and rush of our modern business, with our railroads and telegraphs, and steam navigation, &c., we are all apt to be borne along with the current. And ever and anon we are startled by hopeless and energetic leader in the very midtime of his days; while in the Church as in the world, men of influence and energy burn themselves out by the intensity of devotion to their work. . . . Such self-assuming toil is not only unnecessary, but it is positively sinful. We have no right to kill ourselves and call it zeal; and perhaps if we were to get at the root of the evil in each case we should find it not in public spirit, but in personal ambition. Such a prodigality of vitality is not sacrifice, but suicide; and it ought to be distinctly understood that overwork is wickedness, the guilt of which will keep us for ever on the eastern side of our Jordan.

AN EXCITING ADVENTURE.

A Sportsman's Encounter With an Elk in the Pembina Mountains.

Mr. Henry Redworth, of Montague, Ont., who is on a sporting tour through the Province, had an exciting encounter recently with an elk in the Pembina Mountains, where he had encamped for a few days. He had walked a short distance from camp, gun on shoulder, when he suddently startled a large elk. It attempted to escape, but a timely shot brought it to the ground, apparently dead, its antlers falling close to a small tree. Mr. Redworth took out his hunting knife and was about to dispatch the animal when it sprang to its feet, and attempted to butt its assailant. Fortunately the tree was in the way, and Mr. Redworth seized the animal's antlers, one on either side of the tree, and attempted to hold them there. A desperate struggle now ensued between the two, but the hunter pluckily held on, despite the fact that he had the skin rubbed off his hands by the elk jerking his head up and down. His call for help resulted in bringing one of his comrades to the rescue, who picked up the gun, and gave the animal the coup de grace. The annimal was a very large one, and Mr. Redworth reckons this encounter as one of his most exciting adventures. —Winnipeg Times.

OUR PUBLIC LANDS.

We believe the time has come when our Provincial Government should take steps to ascertain the exact condition of that species of property which it possesses, known as the "public domain." This "domain" consists of Crown Lands scattered thoroughout the Province. The Government and the people know, indeed, that they possess in common certain millions of acres of land, but we do not believe that any systematic and successful attempt has ever been made to classify these lands or to place before the public such a classification as will supply the details which the United States Government has decided to secure by the aid of its Public Lands Commission.

There are, of course, still in the hands of the Government bodies of land which may be described as "mixed timber and farm lands," but we believe that the bulk of the ungranted lands is composed of blocks of either farm or timber lands. It is well known that in the past, many settlements have been laid out and occupied where no settlers should be, since the land was unfit for settlement and only adapted to lumbering purposes. The result has been that a large body of people are half starved on land from which not "all the wealth of Indies" could succeed in extracting good crops, while the reckless manner in which the timber has been cut away has done no good either to the settler, the mill-owner or the provincial revenues. In the interest, both of the Provincial finances and the people themselves, this waste of labor and timber should stop, and the proper mode of dealing with the matter is by securing a classification of the lands. The Government should make an inventory of its landed estate. It should assign certain lands for settlement—and no other. It should not permit every man to settle where he pleases, without regard to the suitableness of the land for settlement. It should not place settlements in purely lumbering districts. It should, in short, exercise that control which it seems in a large measure to have abandoned to individuals. Here, as in the Western States, the public interests should have precedence over the claims or interests of individuals, and the Province should so handle its public lands as to secure the greatest good to the greatest number. —St. John, N.B., Sun.

AFTERNOON PARTIES.

One of the most sensible of the new departures in social life which have taken place of late years consists of the afternoon receptions which are so fashionable a substitute for the great evening parties which formerly extended beyond midnight.

It is well known that gentlemen always detest these parties, and avoided them whenever it was possible. Thus, many ladies were prohibited from accepting the invitation of their friends to the annual "crush," and many persons were debarred from reciprocating the civilities they had received, by the modern growth in luxury and the necessity of supplying a gorgeous supper far beyond the capacity of their financial and household resources.

Evening parties are now principally confined to Germans and sociables, given by young people to young people, or small musicales and literary re-unions, which have a definite purpose, and for which guests are selected with special reference to their interest in these topics.

The regular weekly or fortnightly receptions of an informal character serve to create a number of social centres, each one of which is a rendezvous for harmonious spirits, but the afternoon "At Home" is the only successor and the most popular substitute for the social necessity which compels persons who go much into society to, at least during the year, bring their friends together, and, by one effort, wipe out many social obligations.

No special entertainment is needed for a "secular" afternoon reception beyond the refreshments, which are served from a table set either in the dining-room or an extension parlour. Sometimes these consist of pickled oysters, salad and small sandwiches, in addition to ices, cakes, biscuits, tea, coffee, and the like. But quite often the first of these are omitted and the table supplied only with the lighter viands.

Invitations during the season are always sent a week or more in advance—three weeks is not too much of a margin where people are very fashionable and the society large—but of course the more formal the invitation the more fine and ceremonious the entertainment is expected to be. Ordinarily the waiter who opens the door directs the guests to the dressing-room, where they lay aside their wraps. The hostess stands inside the drawing-room door and receives each one as they enter. This is the only formality. The guest is then at liberty to look about for friends, accept the invitation of some gentleman to get an ice, or a cup of tea, and in half an hour make her way back to her carriage, or on foot to her home, in time to superintend the wants of her own family, receive a party to dinner, or prepare for the opera, or spend her evening in mending stockings, as circumstances may determine. The duties even of a woman in society are very multifarious, and some of those who are paraded as the most brilliant leaders are the most efficient in the performance of minute details which belong to home and family life.—Demorest's for October.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

I supppse that there is no more general cause of accidents than fire. Accidents by fire have become more numerous since the introduction of coal oil tor lighting—not that the oil is dangerous if properly used, but it is constantly so improperly used. Servants and housewives too, are continually using it for lighting fires—pouring a little on the kindling to make a quick blaze. The flame darts up into the can, and there is an explosion. I have often heard of a person sprinkling powder from a keg upon a slow fire to expedite it. It is needless to say that the fire, leaping, followed the rash hand back to the keg to the destruction of the reckless person and room also. Helen's Hannah had this terrible habit of using kerosene. Helen used to say that she expected every morning to hear a shriek, and see Hannah running about the house all on fire. She got her lesson, however, in an easier fashion. Helen's Tom was ill, and I went to the kitchen to make gruel. Hannah, in her zeal to quicken the cooking, took a bottle wherein was a little kerosene, and sprinkled it on the fire. Not knowing what she was doing, I turned just in time to see the flame dart back into the bottle. Hannah flung it from her, thus sprinkling herself with the flaming oil. Fortunately, there were but a few drops in the bottle. I caught up a bucket, which stood full of water, and dashed it over Hannah, and then catching her by the shoulders pressed her upon the floor on her face, and wrapped the kitchen carpet over her; she was spared other harm than the loss of her apron and her dress-sleeves. The unlucky bottle, breaking on the hearth, consumed the rest of the small quantity of oil without damage. Hannah has been judicious in her use of kerosene ever since. A fruitful cause of lamp explosions is the use of lamps in which the oil has burned very low; or, people do not trim the wicks properly, and red-hot stuff falls from them: others screw a lamp-top on poorly, allowing room for the air to sweep in if the lamp is moved. If lamps are filled too full, or until they run over, there is great danger of an explosion; nor should they ever be filled by lamp or firelight, or near a stove. No housewife should retire for the night untill she has looked after the state of the fires in the house, made sure that no wood or cloth is in a position where it may fall on a stove or fire, and has seen to it that there is a supply of water in the pails. One should not go to bed with pitchers and buckets empty, for no one can know what dangers may call for water before daybreak. The old saw, "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," should be written in every kitchen.

How many fires have originated from the insane practice of preparing kindling for the morning and leaving it over night on the top of the kitchen stove, where fire is yet burning when the family retire? The wood breaks into a flame, falls apart, rolls on the floor; the dry pine boards are soon in a blaze, and the family are presently homeless. Another frequent cause of burned houses is the leaving of a frame of clothes beside the kitchen stove at night to finish drying or airing; some yielding of the floor, puff of wind, the running against the frame of a cat, dog or rat, topples it over, and in a few minutes the burning garments are scattering destruction. Millions of dollars' worth of property have been destroyed by carelessness in taking up and disposing of ashes. Ashes should always be removed in the morning before the fire is lit; this should be an invariable rule. The ashes are then cold and safe. Ashes should never be put in a barn, wood-shed, beside a fence, or by any wooden buildings. Wood ashes will retain a central heat, and communicate fire long after they are supposed to be quite extinct. It is good economy to dig a square ash pit, build a brick wall four feet high about it, and cover it with a slooping roof; if the under side of the roof boards are covered with refuse tin, or with a thick wash of salt and lime, so much the better.

Speaking of fires I am reminded of people's carlessness in the use of matches. They leave matches in closets near chimneys, or in places exposed to a strong sun heat, so that they may be ignited by what is called spontaneous combustion. Matches are left on shelves, in paper boxes, where mice can get among them; they are dropped around the floor, and swept into dusty cracks and corners; a burt match with a red-hot end is dropped into a wood-box, or on a floor covered with matting. People carry matches about in their pockets, and leave them hanging up in a dusty coat, and then wonder why fires are so frequent. When we think of the millions of dollars yearly lost in fires, we must be sure that there is inexcusable carelessness some where. A great fire like that in Chicago or Boston astounds us, but yearly quite as much property is lost in isolated fires. Scattered over all the country one sees the blackened ruins of what were handsome or comfortable farm houses and fine barns. The phrase, "loss covered by insurance," seems to deceive people; "loss transferred by insurance," would would be a truer term, for the loss is a loss, and the dollars burned up are dollars gone, lost entirely out of the general purse. The contributions of the many on insurance policies have saved the one loser from ruin, the loss is spread out more widely, and so is less telt by a single individual; but it is a loss of property just as much as when one reads "no insurance."—From Complete Home.—J. McN. Wright, J. C. McCurdy, Philadelphia.

Presence of Mind (Scene Edinburg.)

I slept in the same room with my mother. One morning I called out much alarmed, "There is lightning!" but my mother said after a moment, "No, it is fire!" and on opening the window shutters I found that the flakes of fire fiying past had made the glass quite hot. The next house but one was on fire and burning fiercely, and the people next door were throwing everything they possessed—even china and glass—out of the windows into the street. We dressed quickly, and my mother sent immedidiately to Trotter, the upholsterer, for four men. We then put our family papers, our silver, &c., into trunks; then my mother said, "Now let us breakfast; it is time enough for us to move our things when the next house takes fire." Of its doing so there was every probability, because casks of turpentine and oil were exploding from time to time in a carriage manufactory at the back of it. The fire was extinguished, and we had only the four men to pay for doing nothing, nor did we sacrifice any of our property like our neighbours, who had completely lost their heads from terror.—Memoirs of Mary Somerville.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This preparation stands peerless as a remedy for all summer complaints. Have you diarrhœa? It will positively cure you. Have you cholera morbus? It will positively cure you. Have you colic or cramps in the stomach? It will positively cure you. Is your stomach sour? It will positively cure you. Are you going on a sea voyage? Be sure and take a bottle of the Strawberry in your haversack, for use in sea-sickness, vomiting, and other irritations of the stomach and bowels; it will positively cure you. Every one speaks highly of it. "I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."—G. W. Earl, St. Catharines. CENTRAL EXHIBITION

Last Day of the Central Show

Glorious Old Weather!

Very Fine Display of Horses.

The Show of Cattle.

The Poultry, Sheep and Swine

The Fine Arts, &c., &c.

The List of Prizes.

The Exhibition grounds were crowded to excess during the afternoon of yesterday, and at night the attendance was extremely large. Lindsay, Cobourg and Port Hope, and the surrounding villages and townships were well represented. The town had a busy appearance, but increased sales was chiefly restricted to the hotels, restaurants and confectioners, who had a thriving trade. The day kept warm, and the demand for light drinks was incessant. At the dining hall on the ground, a 52 gallon keg of cider was dealt out in short time, and the sale might have been easily trebled. Lemonade, pop, ginger ale without the usual adjunct of a "stick", were with the cider, the only liquids sold on the ground. Thoroughout the streets cases of drunkeness were not at all numerous.

This the last day of the show, has opened in a manner equally favourable to sight seeing, and a large attendance is to be expected.

Stock, Horses &c.

Yesterday the horses and stock came in for a large share of attention, but the show in cattle especially was not up to what might reasonably have been expected. There were, however, some choice exhibits in Devons, Durhams and Ayrshire.

In the first mentioned class Mr. S. HARPER of Hamilton Township, showed excellent stock which proves him a successful raiser. He had specimens of all the lines and took six first prizes, three seconds and the herd prize.

JOHN PRATT, of Cobourg, has a good show in Durhams and took the herd and four other first prizes, three second prizes and two in the third class.

Mr. HENRY COLLINS, of North Monaghan, likewise shows several in this class, a two year old bull of his taking second prize, while Mr. J. MCKIBBIN, of Smith was awarded first.

Mr. REDMOND gained first for the one year old.

In Ayrshires, T. GUY & SON, Oshawa are extensive exhibitors. They show a three year old bull which took the first prize at the Ottawa show, and a two year old which got second place. They have also two cows, 2, two year old heifers, two calves, &c. This firm took first place in this class.

Mr. JOHN LUDGATE also showed ten head in the Ayrshires, and took several prizes.

Mr. H. BERTRAM was also an exhibitor, and took first for heifer.

In Grade cattle Mr. HENRY COLLINS took first prize for two year olds, and Mr. J. HALL first for one year olds.

Horses.

In this important department, the show surpassed anything ever before seen here, or at any of the Central Fairs, and in fact, to use the expressive language of one of our local travelled sportsmen, it "lambs" the show at the much lauded Toronto exhibition. Our farmers have for many years past given the attention it certainly deserves to raising good animals, both for heavy farm work, and as drivers, and on any market day the number of shapely well-built horses seen on our streets could not be equalled in any town in Canada. Many of our private citizens and professional men take great pride in their beasts, and will only ride behind fast steppers, so that horseflesh commands a good figure here, when it has a record. Peterboro's well known excellence in this regard drew very many sportsmen and other lovers of the noble animal from a distance to witness the display and on all sides praise was freely accorded.

Among other competent judges on the ground we noticed Mr. John Simpson, of Bobcaygeon, who formerly owned Jack the Barber; Messrs. Staples, W. Greer, W. G. Knowlson, P. M., G. Beattie, J. Beattie, V. S., all of Millbrook; Messrs. Matthew Williams, Robert Reid, the well-known jockey, J. O'Neil, R. J. Winch, all of Cobourg; Messrs. W. Mackie, and Dr. Cesar, V. S. of Port Hope; Messrs. A. Jewett, W. Workman, of Lindsay; J. Glendinning, a former resident here, but now of Newcastle, D. Willoughby, Grafton; R. Grundy, Bethany; Messrs. T. Blewitt, D. Adams, D. Knox, and J. Dinwoodie, of Campbellford; Mr. Young, of Warsaw; S. Wallace, of Lakefield; W. Clark, Omemee; W. Mullins, Norwood; Mr. Porter of Newcastle, who arrived too late to show his black mare in harness, J. Davidson Jr., Esq. Smith, C. O'Leary, N. Monaghan and a number of citizens interested in horses including Dr. Kincaid, C. Stapleton, H. Stapleton, H. Winch, R. A. Morrow, J. Dans, V. S., E. Phelan Jr., behind his diminitive Shetland, A. Sawers owner of Spotted Tail, and many others. The judges had great difficulty in arriving at decisions and called them back twice to the ring. Below will be found the prize winners which will be interesting to those attending.

Sheep.

In sheep the show was better than usual, a number of pens having to be erected to give the additional room required. Cottswold and Leicesters took the lead. In the former Messrs. F. & J. GRAHAME, and JOSEPH REDMOND were the chief exhibitors, in the latter Messrs. A. TAMBLYN, and G. STAPLES took the majority of the prizes. In South Downs, Mr. J. WALTON maintains his old excellence, and carried off no less than five prizes. For fat sheep of any breed, the first prize went to that experienced stock raiser JOSEPH REDMOND.

Swine.

Pork in Canada is used by a great majority of the people, and often for the larger part of the year, so that considerable attention is now paid to breeding in this class, Berkshire and Suffolk being the favorites. The pens are located at the extreme north-west corner, and there are several exhibitors, Mr. JOSEPH REDMOND, of Otonabee, Mr. R. VANCE, Mr. JOHN LUDGATE, Mr. J. WESTINGTON, Mr. DAVIDSON, Mr. GEO. LEE, of Smith, and Mr. DARCY BOULTON, of Cobourg, are all competitors in this department. The awards will be found below.

Poultry.

Peterborough is now the headquarters of a Poultry Association, and as this indicates, there are a number of amateur fanciers here. For our own part, and many will agree with us, fowl of any kind are more interesting when they have shuffled off this mortal coil and are presented to us cold roasted. Leghorn, white, black and brown are shown by several exhibitors. Mr. JAMES BAPTIE taking first in white. In Houdans, Mr. Maxwell Hall takes first place. Many varieties of Hamburgs are shown, F. & J. Graham having the largest stock of these. Black and Spangled Polands are shown by G. Hope, Yorkville, who is an extensive exhibitor in this class. In Cochins, Messrs. J. Saulter, Hope and J. McClelland are contributors; the last name taking first prize for these, as well as for Brahmius, and for lots. Mr. McClelland takes great interest in this pursuit and does much to make this exhibit successful. Mr. HALL shows a pair of aged Bantams, and G. HOPE and W. HALL show varieties. Geese are shown by T. E. BELL and H. COLLINS.

G. STETHEM exhibits Ducks, J. SAULTER the variety called Rouen and J. WALLIS the Muscovy.

Mr. T. E. BELL also exhibits Turkeys.

In pigeons GEORGE HOPE shows no less than 27 varieties, Black Courier, Trumpeters, Fantails, Tumblers, Pouters and others. Mr. Hope deals largely in this class, and his display is very attractive. Mr. A Wilson and Mr. Bell, Smith. are also exhibitors. Mr. J. Wallis shows a pair of Turtle Doves.

Woollens, Etc.

In woollen goods, of which the display is large, the AUBURN WOOLLEN MILLS Co. lead off with an assortment of tweeds, twenty-four pieces being shown, and they have blankets on exhibition. Many visitors expressed surprise that these goods were made here, taking them for imports. Mr. AUGUSTUS SAWYERS is also an extensive exhibitor in blankets. Mr. D. CHAMBERS, of Manvers, shows seven specimens of striped flannel, three of summer tweeds, two of winter, and three of fulled cloth. Mr. Chambers gained first prize for white wool blankets. He has also a number of specimens of woollen yarns.

Horse Blankets are shown by W. TURNBULL (1st prize), G. FITZGERALD and D. CHAMBERS, and Woollen Yarn by a number of farmers or their wives. Mrs. G. PRESTON took second prize for Scotch Plaids, and first prize for Woollen Mitts. Some comfortable looking Rugs are shown by Mrs. J. HARPER. Mrs. JOSEPH MCCLELLAND shows cotton and wool Sheeting and Rag Carpets. In Checked Flannel W. TURNBULL takes first prize, with G. FITZGERALD second.

Fine Arts &c., &c.

The Fine Arts were well represented, showing the quick advance of culture in our new country.

Mr. J. H. MUNDY, of Port Hope, shows in addition to his photographs a Landscape in oil; Miss Garnet and Mr. W. A. Sherwood exhibited several well-done portraits, and in water colors, Rev. V. Clementi had a Landscape and animals, while in sepia drawing the same gentleman displayed two figures. In pencil drawing Miss Garnet showed several; in crayon Miss Carnegie had two of animals; in the same, colored, Messrs. W. Hamilton and W. A. Sherwood exhibited.

J. LITTLE, of Peterborough and J. H. MUNDY of Port Hope, competed in photographs. The work of the former is so well known that description is unnecessary, his photos being very clear and well finished. The first prize was given to Mr. Little's collection; his competitor Mr. Mundy shows also some excellent work in photographs and ambrotypes as well as landscape views. There are also photographs finished in water color, and a well executed portrait in crayon. For photographs finished in water colors, Miss Montsarrat takes first place; for the same finished in oil, Mr. H. J. Lefevre was awarded the prize. A picture of the Peterborough crew in rowing costume is one of Mr. Little's pictures, and the silver cup won by them at Barrie, gives point to it by its presence. In pen and ink drawing, Robinson and Johnson the Ontario Business College, and Mr. J. A. Madison exhibit some vere handsome specimens. Mr. Madison is a most expert artist with the pen, and has placed pictures in ink in the window of the firm of Madison & Green, which we have never seen equalled.

MR. J. M. LUDGATE shows a couple of well executed maps.

We may here also mention a collection of 80 specimens of native woods, named, shown by Mr. A. Watts.

MR. WALLIS shows a couple of inlaid tables, the work certainly of remarkable patience and skill. One of them is composed of 1000 pieces and ten different woods, while the other has 2000 pieces and includes seventeen kinds of wood. Mr. Wallis has also samples of fret work.

MR. J. M. LUDGATE is also an exhibitor of fret work.

The display of wood turning by MR. G. HOBBS, of Port Hope, is worthy of attention. It contains an egg cup stand and housewives stand, all of turned work, in walnut which can be wholly taken apart. The design is very ingenious and the delicate workmanship is creditable to Mr. Hobbs, who exhibits in vegetables, and is by profession a bill-poster in Port Hope.

Mr. H. STRICKLAND exhibits a case of Canadian minerals, proving to the most doubting mind that ours is more than a wooden country after all. A prominent position is given in this collection to ore from the Gatling Gold and Silves Mines, of Marmora, Ont.

MRS. J. BROWN shows a very fine collection of shells and petrified coral.

Mr. J. M. LUDGATE shows 2 cases of native leaves and shells of great interest, and Mr. G. Hope exhibits our native insects and reptiles in a state incapable of mischief.

COL. DEACON, of Lindsay, shows a huge pair of moose antlers, which visitors conclude to be of an extinct animal. There must have been a wide door in the Ark to admit this monarch of the forests.

Mr. J. H. ROPER shows a well gotten-up case of stuffed birds, and Rev. V. Clementi and Geo. Hope also show single specimens.

Ladies' Work.

Besides the work in yarn and flannels noticed yesterday as coming from the deft hands of the gentler sex, there is a large exhibit of finer goods, including toilet sets, slippers, mats, embroidery, cone and bead work, fancy netting, sofa pillows, quilts in great variety, and the thousand and one articles considered necessary by the demands of modern fashion, and to a proper description of which no male reporter would be capable.

The display of ladies' work was behind that of other years, no doubt owing to the new rule followed, which only permits wives, daughters, and other relatives of members from exhibiting, stopping that "free trade" which formerly existed and didn't pay.

The extraordinary demands upon our space to-day render it impossible to give the conclusion of our extensive report of the show, and we therefore leave our fruit, grains, roots and vegetables until to-morrow. Our prize list below, will be found very complete, and may be relied on as accurate.

1879. Hall, Innes & Co. 1879.

Have pleasure in announcing the completion of their Direct Importations, which for Extent, Variety and Value far exceed those of any former Season.

Many of the Lines having been Contracted for, and placed in the Manufacturers' hands early in May, will be found Extra Value. We specially call attention to our Leading Departments, as follows:

THE FANCY DRESS DEPARTMENT.

Is very large, and embraces all the Fashionable Colors and Fabrics in All Wool Homespuns, All Wool Sateens. French Wool Twills, Lustres, Persian Cords, Cross-dyed Sicilians, Costume Cloths, Union and All Wool Tartans, Winceys, &c.

JUST RECEIVED, DIRECT FROM PARIS,

☞ 2 CASES BLACK AND COLORED CASHMERES,

WHICH FOR FINISH, COLOR, AND VALUE CANNOT BE EXCELLED.

HOUSE FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

This is one of our largest Departments, and comprises a full Stock of Bed and Table Linen and Napiery, Brown and Bleached Sheetings, Pillow Cottons in all widths, Cretonnes, Damasks, Repps, Lace Curtains, English and Canadian Blankets, Quilts, Huck and Damask Towels and Towelling, &c., &c.

CARPETS! CARPETS! CARPETS!

Householders and Intending Purchasers should not fail to Call and Inspect this Department, as we can confidently affirm that it is second to none, either in or outside of Cities, for Extent and Variety.

NAIRN'S CELEBRATED ENGLISH FLOOR OIL CLOTH, CUT TO ANY SIZE.

MILLINERY AND MANTLES.

THIS DEPARTMENT IS NOW FULLY OPEN AND REPLETE WITH ALL THE NEWEST DESIGNS IN FRENCH AND ENGLISH PATTERN BONNETS AND HATS.

Daily Evening Review

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1879.

Business Men, Hotel-Keepers, Lodging-House Keepers, and every one with an article to sell, or a want to supply, should ADVERTISE in the REVIEW.

JUST WHAT WE WANT.

OUR readers need not to be told that we are in favour of some arrangement, whereby colonial produce would be given a substantial advantage over similar produce from a foreign country in the British markets, and British manufactures a substancial advantage over similar manufactures from a foreign country in the colonial markets, because we have already several times called attention to the advantages which we believed would inevitably follow the adoption of such a policy. Entertaining such views it is not unnatural that we should note with more than ordinary pleasure, the growth of a public sentiment running in the same direction, particularly in the mother land, as we frequently have the pleasure of doing. The latest and most outspoken utterance of this kind has been that of the Mayor of Sheffield, who in a recent address to the corporation gave utterance to (in our opinion) the following sensible and patriotic sentiments, viz.:—

"Admission of goods on fair terms all around was the soundest free-trading. (Hear, hear.) It was said by several friends: 'But you would not for a moment think of imposing a tax upon the productions of foreign countries. Well, that was exactly what he would do. Supposing that America, which seemed to be the chief party at fault in this matter, continued to be so determined to resist the importation of our goods, it was high time for us to foster our colonial possessions. He would like to have colonial produce imported into this country to a much greater extent than at present. It could be done by imposing a tax upon American merchandise, doing at the same time a vast amount of good to our colonial possessions and bettering ourselves."

These words have the true ring about them, and the man who utters them proves the firmness of his convictions by proposing to tax even the poor man's loaf in the very centre of manufacturing England, evidently realising that it is much more important to provide the working man with money to buy a loaf than to render it nominally cheap, while in reality it is beyond his reach for lack of means to buy it with. It is true that a tax on breadstuffs, for instance, would not benefit the British farmer directly to any great extent, simply as a part of a policy limited to the tight little island itself, but taken as a part of a policy for the Empire—an Empire embracing within its confines every variety of climate and produce under the sun—and as part of a policy to give British looms and forges a sure and certain market in every part of the Empire, it would speedily bring back that prosperity which the country has lost under a jug-handled system of free trade.

In trade, as in other matters, we believe charity begins at home. For years and years past Great Britain has been trying to bring about free trade the world over, by acting upon the principle to the fullest extent—but to what purpose? The trade doors of France, Russia, Germany and America are more closely closed against her manufacturers to-day than ever. The people of the Western States have great pleasure in feeding British operatives, but not a yard of cloth or cotton will take in return for their food. Why not change this suicidal policy? Why not, in the words of the mayor of Sheffield, tell the people of other countries "if the produce of labor in foreign lands was imported into England duty free, the produce of labor in England should be exported into foreign lands also free," and act upon it. Have we not in our own Nor'-West alone vast wheat fields capable of supplying the home market if properly developed, and which when properly developed would in turn give employment to the idle and hungry operatives of the mother land to the mutual advantage of both. We may be enthusiasts, but really the very idea of the adoption of a system of free trade, or as nearly so as financial necessities will permit—between the various parts of the empire, combined with protection against foreign countries, seems to us to open up visions of not only financial prosperity for every part of the empire, but also of a binding together of its every part in bonds which would enable it to stand independent and alone against the rest of the world.

QUEBEC LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

Message from the Lieut.-Governor—The Supplies—Adjournment Until October 27.

QUEBEC, Sept. 30.—On the opening of the House Mr. Starnes presented the following message from the Lieut.-Governor:

GOVERNMENT HOUSE,
Quebec, Sept. 13, 1879.

The Lieutenant-Governor has the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the address voted to him by the Legislative Council on the 11th inst. and which was presented to him by the Hon. Henery Starnes, Speaker of the Council. The Lieutenant-Governor sincerely deplores the critical situation in which the Province of Quebec is placed in consequence of the conflict which has arisen between the two branches of the Legislature, and he ardently hopes harmony may be re-established, so that the Crown may obtain the supplies which are indespensible for the good administration of the public affairs.

(Signed), THEODORE ROBITAILLE.

The Hon. Mr. Starnes then moved that the reply of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor to the Address voted by this House on the 11th instant be taken into consideration, and with the view to meet the ardent desire expressed by His Honor that the crown may obtain the supplies, which are indispensable for the good administration of the public affairs, be it resolved that the Supply Bill passed by the Legislative Assembly during this session be now read for a second time. In support of his motion, Mr. Starnes believed it to be his duty to the Lieut.-Governor, to the House, and to the province to make that motion in order that the result desired by His Honor in his message be arrived at, that the present distress of the Government employees and the public institutions of the province be thereby relieved. He pointed out the uselessness of quoting May or Todd any further on the question, but he must simply remind them that in 1856 Sir John A. Macdonald, John Ross, Tache, Quesnel, Sir George E. Cartier, and Sir Narcisse Belleau were all parties to a protest claiming that withholding the Supplies had always been admitted to be vested by the Constitution under which we live in the representative branch of the Legislature.

Mr. De Boucherville contended that the motion was out of order, and moved that when the House adjourned, it stand adjourned till the 27th of October.

The Hon. Mr. Ross considered the situation was unchanged, and thought the adjournment was the only thing that could be done.

The motion was then carried.

Mr. De Boucherville said he noticed in the newspapers that a member of the Ministry had resigned, and asked if the President of the Council had any information to give on the subject of a successor.

Mr. Starnes replied that the Hon. Mr. Chauveau had handed in his resignation and the Government had accepted it. He had no official information to give, but believed that negotiations were in progress and that before long a successor would be named.

On motion of Mr. Laviolette the Council adjourned.

DISINFECTANTS—HOW TO USE THEM.

The Scientific American says:—The National Board of Health, consisting of a number of our leading physicians and chemical experts, of which Prof. C. F. Chandler is chairman, have issued the following instructions for disinfection, intended especially for the guidance of physicians and nurses in the yellow fever districts, but which are equally applicable in other classes of contagious diseases.

DISINFECTANTS TO BE EMPLOYED.

1. Roll sulphur (brimstone) for fumigation.

2. Sulphate of iron (copperas) dissolved in water in the proportion of one and a half pounds to the gallon; for soil, sewers, &c.

3. Sulphate of zinc and common salt, dissolved together in water in the proportion of four ounces sulphate and two ounces salt to the gallon; for clothing, bed linen, etc.

NOTE.—Carbolic acid is not included in the above list for the following reasons: It is very difficult to determine the quality of the commercial article, and the purchaser can never be certain of securing it of proper strength; it is expensive, when of good quality, and experience has shown that it must be employed in comparatively large quantities to be of any use; it is liable by its strong odor to give a false sense of security.

HOW TO USE DISINFECTANTS.

1. In the Sick Room.—The most available agents are fresh air and cleanliness. The clothing, towels, bed linen, etc., should at once, on removal from the patient, be placed in a pail or tub of the zinc solution, boiling hot if possible, before removal from the room.

All discharges should either be received in vessels containing copperas solution, or, when this is impracticable, should be immediately covered with coppers solution. All vessels used about the patient should be cleansed with the same solution.

Unnecessary furniture—especially that which is stuffed—carpets, and hangings, when possible, should be removed from the room at the outset; otherwise, they should remain for subsequent fumigation and treatment.

2. Fumigation with sulphur is the only practicable method for disinfecting the house. For this purpose the rooms to be disinfected must be vacated. Heavy clothing, blankets, bedding, and other articles which cannot be treated with zinc solution, should be opened and exposed during fumigation, as directed below. Close the rooms as tightly as possible, place the silver in iron pans supported upon bricks, set it on fire by hot coals or with the aid of a spoonful of alcohol, and allow the room to remain closed for twenty-four hours. For a room about ten feet square, at least two pounds of sulphur should be used; for larger rooms, proportionally increased quantities.

3. Premises.—Cellars, yards, stables, gutters, privies, cess-pools, water-closets, drains, sewers, etc., should be frequently and liberally treated with copperas solution. The copperas solution is easily prepared by hanging a basket containing about sixty pounds of copperas in a barrel of water.

4. Body and Bed Clothing, &c.—It is best to burn all articles which have been in contact with persons sick with contagious diseases. Articles too valuable to be destroyed should be treated as follows:—

a. Cotton, linen, flannels, blankets, etc., should be treated with the boiling hot zinc solution, introducing piece by piece, securing thorough wetting, and boiling for at least half an hour.

b. Heavy woollen clothing, silks, furs, stuffed bed covers, beds, and other articles which cannot be treated with the zinc solution, should be hung in the room during fumigation, pockets being turned inside out, and the whole garment thoroughly exposed. Afterward they should be hung in the open air, beaten, and shaken. Pillows, beds, stuffed mattrasses, upholstered furniture, etc., should be cut open, the contents spread out and thoroughly fumigated. Carpets are best fumigated on the floor, but should afterward be removed to the open air and thoroughly beaten.

WHAT SHALL WE EAT?

The following extracts from Mr. Ward's letters which have attracted so much attention in England, are given in the London Christian World:—"Now to the subjects of our daily food. I go to the first meal, and the first article of importance. For breakfast there is nothing like oatmeal porridge, First as to cost, oatmeal—fine, sound Canadian or Scotch—can be bought a fraction under 1½d. per lb. to a fraction over. A pound of oatmeal well boiled for half an hour will make the breakfast for a family of six. Allowing for milk and treacle to eat with it, it is a breakfast at a half penny per head! For adults—hard workers—the pound will make a breakfast for four! Three farthings each!

"'Oatmeal,' says Dr. Cullen, is especially the food of the people of Scotland, and was formerly that of the northern parts of England—countries which have already produced as healthy and as vigorous a race of men as any in Europe.' Sir Francis Mackenzie, Bart., of Glairloch, in 'Hints to Highland Tenants,' narrates that the English contractor for erecting the Crown Bridge, having engaged twenty Highlanders, the English navvies gave them a challenge to test their strength and endurance. The work selected was the excavation of a certain number of cubic yards of earth within a given time. The English had a table laid out of beef and ale; the Scotch had only their plain oatmeal as food and a can of water. At the end of the day the English had not finished, and were, in fact, quite used up; while the Highlanders had done all their task, and moreover were so fresh, that they danced their national strathspey in token of victory.

"A pound of lean beef contains from 11 to 13 ounces of dirty water. Dirty, for it contains excrementitious matter. While a pound of oatmeal contains 1½ oz. to 2 ozs. of clean water. At once, oatmeal contains four-fold the solid matter that lean beef does. The principle item of solid matter in lean beef is gelantie, a material that the human stomach treats as refuse. True, it is, that the great part of the solid part of our bodies is gelatine; but nature will not work up second hand material. Sawdust is identically the same as wood, but what tree ever takes up sawdust as food? What gardener would plant a tree in sawdust to feed upon it?

"Oatmeal makes a good and useful pudding. I ordered one yesterday, that I might eat part of it, and give a practical testimony. It was excellent.

"Take a pint of oatmeal, and one quart of milk. Warm the milk—not boil it—pour it over the oatmeal, and let it soak all night. Put it in a buttered pudding-basin; add a tablespoonful of baking powder and half-a-tablespoonful of salt; stir them in, and tie a cloth, floured over, and boil it two hours. Eat the pudding with about a quarter of a tin of tomatoes, fried ten minutes, with a little butter, flour and salt as a sauce. It is a most relishing and wholesome and nutritious dinner for a family, at a very trifling cost. Tinned tomatoes cost from 7d. to 9d. a tin. They can be fried as above and toasted slices of bread soaked in the gravy as meat, and eat with peas, pudding and potatoes, covered with the rich gravy. Again, there is a dinner perfect as food, meeting all the requirements of the body, and medicine for liver and indigestion as well.

"To return to the oatmeal pudding.

"Supposing lentil or pea-soup to be the first dish, then the oatmeal pudding may figure as a pudding proper; the sauce being custard, or a solution of currant jam, or jelly, or treacle, according to the taste or pocket.

"Egyptian lentils, and whole ones, make the best soup. Wash them well; soak them twenty-four hours. To a gallon of water take ¾ pint of lentils, and about 2 oz. of salt. Boil until all meal is in the liquor. Add water as it boils away. Nothing need be done more. If very particular—as for company—the few skins may be strained out.

"Split-peas can be bought everywhere, at a very low price. In London they should be retailed at 1½d. per pound. At this price they make a very cheap and wholesome soup with vegetables, and flavored with dry mint. When possible, celery should be cut up and put into all soups very freely indeed.

"Every one, child or adult, should have a dinner of cooked celery twice a week. Rheumatic or gouty sufferers three or four times. Cut inch-size; boil in not much water. It is better to add than remove any, as the alkalies are lost. When soft, take new milk, slightly thickened with flour, and flavored with a little nutmeg. Put it into the saucepan to the celery just warm together, and then dish up, with toasted bread round dish, and eat with potatoes. It is a nutritious, pleasant diet, at little cost, and of untold value as a wholesome diet, and equally inestimable for many diseases depending on impure blood.

"Lentils—the Egyptian ones—make a dish of very nutritious food when stewed with an onion or two; then, when nearly, or quite done, and like a very thick soup, add some butter, and give them another turn of heat a few minutes; then eat them as meat with potatoes.

"But the most nutritious and attractive dinner dishes in winter can be made from haricot beans. As food they are the very richest. One pound as a food value fourfold that of lean beef, and yet can be purchased at a fourth or sixth of the price of the lean beef.

"Boil double the quantity required for one day or more. Eat first day part, with potatoes and parsely sauce. Then next day fry what is left with some sage and onions in olive oil until brown. This is a dish unsurpassable in winter for nourishing the body with gratification to the palate. And even cold the beans are delicious—a capital article for a working man to carry with him to work.

"Supposing enough boiled at once for three days, then on the third day fry the beans as above by themselves; then when off the frying-pan put in tomatoes from a tin and fry as previously described. There is sauce for the beans and potatoes choice enough for a king, valuable as supporting health not destroying it, and cheap enough for any working man earning wages to eat.

"There are many other articles of wholesale diet, such as decorticated millet, to be had of Newman & Co., Eastgate, Gloucester, at a penny per pound by the sack, It contains 3 per cent. more muscle-making material than rice, but much less than oatmeal. It makes very good milk-puddings. It is the great food of the Chinese. An incident is given in the Lancet, of a sailor being imprisoned and solely fed on millet—of course not decorticated—as an extra punishment. He ate about three and a half pounds daily. Continued in high health in spite of the monotony of diet and scenes, and left in high health, after for forty-nine days' imprisonment, and weighing nearly two pounds more than when he entered the gaol.—London Christian World.

Worth its Weight in Gold.

When we hear anybody say that such and such a thing is worth its weight in gold we think they are indulging in hyperbole, and pass the matter with a smile. But numbers of invalids who have once partaken of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL in combination with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA say they would not be without it for any consideration. And no wonder for in all cases of General Debility or Chronic Coughs, in fact, any pulmonary complaint and consumption it is worth its weight in gold. d53-w36-1r

REFUTATION!

I DENY the statement contained in the circular issued by Mr. Henry Owens, that he has commenced proceedings in Chancery to restrain me from infringing on his rights, by making and selling the Cone Pump and its connections. No such proceedings have been commenced to my knowledge.

I DENY and always denied that the alleged Patent is of any value. For over five years Mr. Powell and Mr. Owens, who claims under him, have shown their want of belief in the validity of the alleged Patent, as they have never, during all that time, taken any legal steps to assert their pretended rights, although a number of pump makers as well as myself have been making these pumps—and although Mr. Owens and Mr. Powell know that my solicitors have for long been instructed to defend any legal proceedings they or either of them might take to establish the validity of the alleged Patent.

I DENY that the 23rd Section of Canada Patent Act is to the effect represented in the circular referred to, and any interested may satisfy themselves of the correctness of my denial by referring to the section for themselves.

I ASSERT that the said circular is issued for the purpose of damaging my business as a manufacturer of pumps, and at my expense increasing the business of Mr. Owens. Had it been otherwise, Mr. Owens has had ample time to establish his patent in an honorable and straightforward way through the Court of Chancery, which he has not done.

I ASSERT that I have commenced AN ACTION against Mr. Owens in the Court of Common Pleas for $2,000 for the purpose of recovering against him damages for the injury said circular is intended to do to my business as a pump maker.

I ASSERT that all wanting GOOD PUMPS can be well and cheaply suited by me, and that I AM PREPARED TO STAND BETWEEN THEM AND ANY PRETENDED CLAIMS OF MR. OWENS.

THE SOLARGRAPH WATCH!

☞ ONLY $1.00 ☜

A perfect Time-keeper, Hunting-Case, and HEAVY PLATED CHAIN, latest style. We warrant it for five years to denote time as accurately as a $100 Chronometer Watch, and will give the exact time in any part of the world. It also contains a FIRST-CLASS COMPASS, worth alone the price we charge for the Time-keeper. For Men, Boys, Mechanics, School Teachers, Travellers, and Farmers it is indispensible. They are as good as a high-priced watch, and in many cases more reliable. Boys, think of it! A Hunting-Case Watch and Chain for $1.00. The SOLARGRAPH WATCH is used by the Principal of the Somerville High School, and is being fast introduced into all the schools through the United States, and is destined to become the most useful Time-keeper ever invented. The SOLAGRAPH WATCH received a Medal at the Mechanics' Fair, at Boston, in 1878.

This is no toy, but is made on scientific principals, and every one warranted to be accurate and reliable. We have made the price very low simply to introduce them at once, after which the price will be raised.

The SOLOGRAPH WATCH AND CHAIN is put up in a neat outside case, and sent by mail to any address for $1.00. We have made the price so low, please send two stamps if convenient to help pay postage. Address plainly,

THE

Great Cause of Human Misery

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife: pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

The Magneticon

THE CELEBRATED

English Magnetic Appliances

☞ For the Cure of Disease. ☜

THESE APPLIANCES are at once a direct assistance and safeguard, as they not only possess strong curative properties, but are also a most valuable preventive; by their invigorating and vitalizing influence constantly averting much of the liability to disease or suffering, and daily adding to the strength and vigor of the constitution. Thus, the various appliances may be used with immediate and permanent benefit by the strongest man, or the most delicate invalid or child. They comprise

Throat and Lung Invigorators

For all diseases and weaknesses of the Throat and Lungs, and affections of the Chest generally.

Ladies' and Gents' Belts.

For any general weakness of the Constitution; Indigestion and all other difficulties of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, etc., Lumbago or Weak Back, Internal weakness of any kind, Constipation, Physical or Nervous Exhaustion, etc., etc.

The Ladies' Support and Accouchment Belts are of incalculable benefit, averting the Nervous prostration from which thousands of ladies suffer so intensely. The use of these Belts is more particularly referred to by correspondence or consultation.

Spine Bands.

For Spinal Weakness or Injury, Neuralgia, and all Nervous affections, Sleeplessness, Paralysis, Headache etc.

Knee Caps, Anklets, Wristlets,

Soles, and various other Appliances.

For Rheumatism of any kind, in any part of the body or limbs, Cramps, Numbness, or nervous Sensations in the Hands, Wrists, etc., Weakness of any of the Joints, either from Injury or from Constitutional causes; Defective Circulation, causing Coldness of Hands and Feet, Chillblains, etc., and for any part of the body where there is any Functional or Nervous derangement, or want of vigorous healthy action.

Price from $1 to $10. Consultations Free.

The Magneticon appliances are manufactured only by Messrs. Wetton & Co., of London and Cheltenham, England; Edinburgh and Glasgow, Scotland; Dublin, Ireland; and Toronto, Canada.

Illustrated Pamphlets, containing Price Lists, Testimonials and all information are supplied free on application, or sent by post to any address. The appliances are also sent by Post or Express, to any address, on receipt of price.

LOCAL NEWS

POLICE COURT.

DRUNK AND DISORDERLY.

THURSDAY, October 2.—There was very little going on at the Police Court this morning. Very few arrests had been made for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. The first case called was George Oakes, of Omemee, scarcely of age, charged with being drunk and disorderly. He had no money. The Magistrate allowed him to go upon his promising never to be caught (with a bottle) again.

The second case was John Henderson, of Cavan, charged with being drunk. He pleaded guilty to having drank a glass or two. He was allowed to go without a fine, as he had no money.

The third case was John Wilson, of Nassau, a young man 18 years of age, charged with being drunk. He would not disclose where he got the drink. The Magistrate allowed him to go upon his promise never to be caught in such a condition again.

The prisoners may deem themselves very fortunate to get off so cheaply. Another time, the Magistrate informed them, they would not get off so easily.

The Show Weather.

The weather for the show has been all that could be desired. Vast numbers of farmers were in town attending the show.

Loaded Cars.

The 6.25 train, south, last evening, comprising 11 cars, was packed with returning excursionists, who had passed the day in Peterborough visiting the exhibition. It was entertained that there were 12,000 on board.

Heavy Weights.

Four gentlemen went into Mr. Best's store to be weighed this morning, and found that their weights were respectively 272, 215, 206 and 195 pounds, being a total weight of 888 pounds, and an average of 222.

Personal.

We had a call on Wednesday from Mr. Geo. H. Wilson, of the Port Hope Guide, who has been in town taking in our Central Show. Mr. W. M. O'Beirne, the active representative of the Lindsay Post, also dropped in to see us, having been taking notes at the show.

Disturbances from Drink.

The Constables and their assistants were kept busy last night looking after drunk and disorderly individuals. Many rows were started at the different hotels and other localities, but the timely interference of the Constables prevented a serious breach of the peace. Very few arrests were made; but a large number were sent home.

A Disgraceful Fight.

There was a severe fight about 11 o'clock among some half dozen persons at the house on Donegal street, above Brock street. The scene was most disgusting to refined ear. This seems to be a spot for the interferance of the Constables and the Police Court. The neighbours are greatly annoyed night after night with rowdyism in the neighborhood.

The Wheat Market.

The wheat market is steady to-day at $1.08, this price being paid for spring or fall. It is coming in in large quantities. About 3,000 bushels were received yesterday. Heavy shipments are being made from all the warehouses. Barley is coming in and is taken at from 40 to 55cts. The bulk being of good quality, it is bringing 55cts, and this figue may be said to be the rate. Some very fine lots are bringing 60cts, but these are rare.

Chas. Stapleton's Coming Sales.

The following auction sales are advertised to come off at the dates and places mentioned below:—

Saturday, Oct. 4.—Peremtory Sale of Horses, Wagon and Harness, at his Auction Room, on the Market Square. Sale at 11 a.m.

Monday, Oct. 6.—Cash Sale of Household Furniture of Mr. John Fraiser, at his residence on Dublin Street, opposite Baptie's Plaining Mill. Sale at 11 a.m.

Tuesday, Oct. 7.—Important Sale of Horses, Cattle, Implement and Lumber, of Mr. Jas. Dickson, miller, in the Village of Keene. Sale at 11 a.m.

Friday, Oct. 10.—Unreserved and Extensive Sale of Farm Stock, Implements, &c., of Mr. Wm. Wood, on his premises, Lot 15, in Con. 3, Township of South Monaghan, about one-half mile from Bensford P. O. Sale at 10 a.m. sharp. Lunch 12, noon.

Monday, Oct. 13.—Bona-fide Sale of Farm Stock, Implements, &c., of Mr. Michael Holland, on his premises, Lot 3. in 4 Con., Township of Ennismore, about two miles from Mud Lake Bridge. Sale at 11 a.m. Lunch at 12, noon.

Tuesday, Oct. 14.—Special Unreserved Sale of 187,600 feet of Lumber, of Mr. George Strickland, at his Water Mill in the Village of Lakefield. No reserve. Sale at 12.30 sharp. Be in time. Good opportunity for intending purchasers.

Thursday, Oct. 9.—Peremptory Sale of Farm Stock, Implements, &c., on the premises of Richard Martin, Lot 10, east side of Commication Road, Smith. Sale at 11.30. No reserve.

CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

OTTAWA.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 2.

THE LUMBER TRADE.—A well informed lumberman states that there are fully 50,000,000 feet of lumber purchased by foreign dealers in this city, which have not been delivered. Some difficulty is experienced in getting boats owing to the increased demand for transportation. Rates have advanced from twenty-five to fifty cents per thousand.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 3.

Foot Ball.—A Convention of the Dominion Foot Ball Association is to be held here on the 10th of October.

A Skull Cracker.—At the Police Court this morning a man was fined $30 for carrying a skull cracker.

QUEBEC.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 3.

Abduction.—Dr. Casgrain, a dentist of St. Roche, has been arrested on a warrant, charging him with abduction. He left yesterday for St. Thomas with a detective, to answer to the charge. The accused denies the offence, and contends that the case is a matter of blackmail.

The Late Riots.—The investigation into the late riots continues at the Police Court. Evidence has been received against several parties concerned, and a warrant has been issued by the presiding magistrate for the arrest of a defendant accused of shooting with intent to commit murder.

From the Morning Papers.

TORONTO.

The Delegation of Tenant Farmers from the old country will leave here this morning for the West. They will proceed, accompanied by Mr. Lowe, to London, to visit the fair at present being held there. Mr. Donaldson will follow them thither to-morrow, and afterwards go with the party as they visit portions of Ontario. Five of the delegates proceed at once to Manitoba to take personal observations regarding that country, and to enquire specially as to its fitness for the reception of old country immigrants.

The Elevators here are filling, but there is no over-crowding yet. There will be an early demand for vessels out of this port, and in many of the harbors along this side of the lake. If the present rates at the West continue, rates here will have to advance or our shippers will have trouble in persuading vesselmen to carry on this lake.

The Governor-General and Toronto.—The Globe this morning discourages the idea of the Governor-General living here six months in the year, as his presence is needed most of the time at the Capital. It favors frequent visits from him, however.

Infant Suffocated.—During the night of Saturday the infant son (two months old) of William Pritchard, a bricklayer, residing at No. 2 Severn street, at the back of Severn's brewery, Yorkville, was suffocated in bed. The family consists of the father, mother, and an unmarried sister of the latter. The two women slept together on the night in question, and had the child in bed with them, the man occupying another room. On awaking Sunday morning the woman found the child stiff and cold, and, although they immediately applied restoratives, they failed to bring it back to consciousness.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

THE CABUL GARRISON.

Simla, Oct. 2.—Sirdars from Cabul state there are five battalions of infantry and four batteries of artillery in Cabul, or encamped without the walls. Three battalions of infantry with sixteen guns, are pushed in the citadel of Bala Hissar. The battalions are all weak, hav- suffered much from cholera and desertion. It is thought the four Turkestan regiments which returned to Cabul will induce the rest of the troops to fight.

FRIENDLY TRIBES.

Simla, Oct. 3.—General Hughes' brigade reached Khelati Ghilzai on the 30th September, where the Governor furnished them with supplies. The tribes profess friendship, but are bitter against Yakoob Khan.

For all purposes of a Family Medicine, Hagyard's Yellow Oil is at the head of the list. It is used with unprecedented success, both internaly and externally. It cures Sore Throat, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites; relieves, and often cures Asthma.

PRICE OF CHEESE.

Liverpool, Oct. 3.—Cheese is quoted at 46 shillings.

THE LAND QUESTION.

Cork, Oct. 3.—The farmers club is making great preparations for a land meeting on Saturday.

ARCTIC EXPLORATION.

Hammerfest, Norway, Oct. 3.—The Dutch arctic expedition has returned after penetrating as far as Francis Joseph.

STRIKE ENDED.

London, Oct. 3. Most of the cotton operatives at Wigan have have resumed work at the 5 per cent. reduction. It is expected that the rest will return on Monday. All the mills have commenced working.

BONAPARTIST RECONCILIATION.

Paris, Oct. 3.—It is reported that many eminent Bonapartists have arrived in London to effect a reconciliation between the Ex-Empress Eugenie and Prince Jerome Napoleon.

AMERICAN.

TILDEN INTERVIEWED.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The Post to-day publishes an interview with Tilden, in which he denies the statement alleged to have been made by him during a recent interview, disapproving of the policy of the Southern Democrats. He also says that he is not working for a nomination.

MONUMENT TO ANDRE.

New York, Oct. 3.—The monument to Major Andre was erected at Tappan yesterday by Cyrus W. Field, without ceremony.

A SUIT SETTLED.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 3.—The suit of Mrs. Walker for divorce from the Rev. J. B. R. Walker was settled yesterday. Mrs. Walker withdrew the charges of adultery and cruelty, and a divorce was granted.

FATAL QUARREL.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct 3.—Yesterday Wm. Gibson met three citizens on a carouse. They had words with him, and Joe Bacchus cut Gibson fatally. Bacchus fled.

THE REVENUE.

New York, Oct. 3.—The Tribune's Washington special despatch says that while revenue collected has increased over two millions, the cost of collection was $728,000 less in 1879 than in 1878. The revenue from the tax upon banks and bankers, other than the National banks, during the last fiscal year was $3,198,000, a decrease, compared with the previous year, of $293,000. This falling off is attributed to the loss of confidence by depositors in the savings banks. The total decrease of revenue for July and August, compared with the previous year, is $90,000.

THE SPRAGUE TROUBLES.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 3.—Sprague has decided not to recognize Mrs. Sprague's trustee. He will hold canonchet as far as the law allows for his personal benefit, but will surrender to Mrs. Sprague whatever she can prove her own. He denounces Mrs. Sprague's trustee and her lawyers as conspirators, and threatens to bring an action against them. This attitude will prove annoying to Mrs. Sprague who will have to fight both her husband and her trustee, Chaffee, who dislikes her greatly.

KILLED ON THE TRACK.

Bordentown, N. J., Oct. 3.—W. Irwin, of Beverly, aged 76, and deaf, was killed by a train on the Penn. Road this morning while walking on the track.

INFLUX OF GOLD.

New York, Oct. 3.—The Maine, from Europe, to-day brought over a million dollars in gold coin.

STRIKE THREATENED.

St. Louis, Oct. 3.—The trunk makers of this city have decided to demand 15 per cent increase of wages, and if refused to strike on Monday.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS

COMPETING OCEAN LINES.

London, Oct. 2.—A correspondent of the Frank-Furter Zeitung says the addition of four steamers to the Hamburg-American fleet is a practical declaration of war against the freight line projected by the new association of Hamburg capitalists to compete for the business with the United States and West Indies. A severe competition is expected.

AFFAIRS IN PRUSSIA.

Berlin, Oct. 2.—At Leipsic yesterday the Imperial Supreme Court opened. The judiciary reforms throughout the empire came into operation yesterday. The son of Bismark becomes Secretary to Field Marshall Manteufel, the Governor of Alsace-Lorraine. The latter yesterday issued an address on assuming his office. The election return indicates the success of the Conservatives. Herren, Lasker, and Richter, two of Prince Bismark's chief opponents are probably defeated. The North German Gazette replying to an article in the St. Petersburg Golos which declared Russia independent of any attempt to isolate her in Europe, says, "If the Golos wishes to repel only strong and trustworthy friends upon which Russia could count, it is quite probable it may attain that object by continuing in the path upon which it has entered."

THE AGRARIAN OUTRAGE.

Dublin, Oct. 2.—The Agrarian outrage near Castlebar, wherein the agents of the Marquis of Sligo were fired upon, and one of their assailants killed, created great excitement. The Express, Times, and Mail declare it to be the result of political agitation, and say the responsibility for it and for similar acts of violence that may be expected, will rest on the heads of the agitators. The Freeman's Journal says that it would be unjust to charge the outrage on the tenant farmers, and believes the purpose was robbery.

FRENCH WINES.

London, Oct. 2.—From reports received at Paris it is learned that the wine crop in France this year will be a bad one, both as regards quality and quantity. From nearly all parts the reports are unfavourable. It is true there are one or two exceptions, for example in the Midi, the wines of the Detteres, the Narbonnais and the Roussilon premises well, but in the Bordelais, Claret and Maconnais, Bougioyne, Touraine and Champaigne the prospect of a bad crop is general. It is estimated that the total production of wine in France this year will be from forty-five to fifty millions of hectolitres.

BRIGANDS IN ITALY.

London, Oct. 2.—A band of brigands attacked Ricardo station, on the line of the Naples and Rome railway, but were repulsed after an obstinate fight.

AMERICAN.

IMPORT OF GOLD.

New York, Oct. 3.—The steamship France from Havre brought $600,000 in twenty franc pieces.

RAILWAY FREIGHTS.

New York, Oct. 2.—The Joint Executive Committee voted in favor of an advance of east bond rates to the basis of 35 cts. for grain, 40 cents for fourth class freight, and 50 cents for live hogs from Chicago to New York, to take effect on October 13th.

RELIGIOUS REVIVALS.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 2.—A great number of religious revivals occurred in the past two months in the counties around and extending to the neighbouring counties of North Carolina, alike among the whites and blacks. The effect on the moral tone of the community is marked.

TREASURE RECOVERED.

Baltimore, Oct. 2.—In 1878 a box containing $35,000 in bank notes, and another containing $28,000 worth of bonds, were stolen from the National Bank, Baltimore. A young man, while hunting near Woodberry, noticed two men digging about in the woods. They finally drove off without finding anything. The young man and some friends at night dug over the same spot and found the box containing the stolen bonds, but no trace of the other box. In 1845 the Catholic church at Martinsburg, West Va., was robbed of all the altar adornments, including half a dozen heavily plated candelabra. On Monday the candelabra were found by a hunter buried in the woods near Martinsburg.

THE TEXAS CATTLE FEVER.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—The Texas cattle fever is prevailing to some extent at the Union Stock yards here. One man lost 6 head out of a herd of 20, and others have lost several. The disease is very peculiar. It was brought here by Texas cattle, but is not fatal with them. They infect native cattle and it is very fatal to them, but strangely enough they do not transmit to each other. They only take it from Texans and not from each other.

SAD ACCIDENT AT A FAIR.

Adrian, Mich., Oct 2.—A terrible accident occurred on the fair grounds. The new grand stand, filled with people, gave way, killing three persons and injuring large numbers. The greatest excitement prevailed. The attendance at the the fair was very large.

FENELON FALLS.

Embezzlement.—The Dewart case, which was tried at the recent assizes at Lindsay, is thus reported in the Post:—

"The Queen vs. Dewart.—Embezzlement.—Wm. Dewart, of Fenelon Falls, merchant, was arraigned on a charge of larceny and embezzlement and pleaded not guilty. The evidence showed that some time ago Mr. Thos. Rutherford, deceased, endorsed for the prisoner for a considerable amount. The notes were all paid with the exception of two representing $450, to clear which Dewart proposed that Rutherford should mortgage his farm for that sum in a company of which Dewart was agent, and with the proceeds took up the paper. Dewart was anxious to have these notes paid, as he said he would then be able to get a further credit of $1,000. Rutherford consented to make the mortgage and give Dewart an order on the loan company for the $450, it being expressly stipulated that Dewart should apply the money to the retirement of the notes when they became due. About the time the notes matured, Rutherford died, and soon after his widow was sued for the amount which had been endorsed by her husband, and which Dewart had received the mortgage money to pay off, but which he failed to pay. The widow found that she had to pay the two notes as well as the costs of the suit, and that her farm was mortgaged for $450 in all, that she was in debt to the extent of $1,400, for not one cent of which either herself or her husband had ever received any return whatever, having entered into the transaction solely for Dewart's accommodation. It was further brought out in evidence that Dewart had designedly mal-appropriated the money received from the loan company and used it to his own advantage. The defence endeavored to show that Rutherford did not give the money for the express purpose of paying off the notes, but for Dewart to use in his general business. A verdict of guilty on the second charge, that of embezzlement, was returned, and on Saturday morning the prisoner was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary, permission being given, however, to have him remain in gaol for two days to give his counsel time to make arrangements for the payment of the money back to Rutherford, and then lay the case of the prisoner before the privy council with an appeal for commutation of sentence. T. Hodgins, Q. C., for the Crown; D. J. McIntyre for the prisoner."

OTTAWA.

Admiral Inglefield, Commander-in-Chief of the British North American naval forces, arrived in this city, and is the guest of His Excellency the Governor-General at Government House.

Small Receipts.—The Ottawa papers are nonplussed over the smallness of the gate receipts at the Dominion Exhibition, which appear to be altogether disproportionate to the attendance. The whole attendance, according to the official returns, does not appear to represent more than the apparent attendance on Wednesday, the formal opening day. All sorts of rumors are afloat, and an investigation is to be held.

Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise will sail for England on the 18th of October, in company with Lady Sophia Macnamara and the Hon. Mr. Moreton. They will return before the opening of Parliament. It is said His Excellency will visit New York and Boston.

Going to Manitoba.—Hon. Messrs. Bowell and Aikens and Sandford Fleming are to visit Manitoba.

Bonus By-law.—The Toronto and Ottawa railway bonus campaign has fairly commenced, and meetings are to be held nightly until after polling day. On Thursday night a mass meeting was held in the city hall, at which the Mayor presided. Speeches in favour of granting the bonus were made by the chairman, and also by Messrs. P. Baskerville, M.P.P., E. McGillivray W. G. Perley, W. H. Waller, R. W. Cruice, J. K. Stewart, Ald. Starrs, and F. H. Chrysler. Ald. Clancy was the only speaker in opposition. At the close of the meeting a resolution in support of the scheme was carried all but unanimously. It is quite apparent, however, that there will be a vigorous opposition.

A Lamentation.—An imaginative Irishman gave utterance to this lamentation:—"I returned to the hills of my fathers by night and found them in ruins! I cried out aloud, My fathers, where are they? An echo responded, "Is that you, Patrick McCarthy?"

The Fruit Display.

Grains, Roots, & Vegetables.

The Interest Continued.

The Comments of the Day.

Large Gate Receipts.

To-day exhibitors are removing their goods, and the competition is keen as to who will get off the grounds first. The attendance yesterday and last night, as was to be expected, was less than on Wednesday, although a large number visited the Exhibition, especially in the afternoon. We resume our description of exhibits.

Fruit.

The fine fruit display running along the length of the Main Building seemed to contradict the oft-quoted opinion that our latitude is too cold for successful effort here. There was a good showing of grapes, a fruit that recent frosty nights have greatly injured. Messrs. Jas. Best, James Campbell, James Stevenson, and James Wallis show a variety in white and red, all raised in the open air. Mr. Best received the first prize for the best collection. In in-door grapes Mr. Thos. Beall, of Lindsay, took first prize and Mr. J. Hayden first for a collection.

In plums the best twelve egg and best blue were shown by James Wallis, who also showed the best general collection of this fruit. In red plums Mr. James Campbell and in green Mr. M. Porter took the first prizes.

In pears, the famous Bartlett were exhibited by Mr. James Campbell, who for them, for fall pears and for best 4 varieties, took first. Mr. James Edwards, Town Treasurer, was also an exhibitor in this fruit, and received second in the last named class.

In apples, the fruit which popular belief esteems as that for which Eve sold her descendants, there was a very large display, including a large number of varieties. This fruit, one of the hardiest, can be eaten with relish at any season of the year, and hence deserves great attention in Canada, where our summers are so short. For the best collection, 16 varieties, Mr. James Edwards, who has long given special efforts to their culture, bore off the palm. In cooking apples, 4 varieties, Mr. James Campbell received first prize. There was also an extensive exhibit of many kinds, including St. Lawrence, Spitzenberg, Baldwin, Snow, Northern Spy, Russets, Pommegris, Fall and Holland Pippins, Winter Apples, &c., in which the names of Messrs. J. Campbell, G. Fitzgerald, James Edwards, S. Harper, H. Nelson, W. Collins, T. Beale, Lindsay, with several others frequently appear. In crab apples W. Mills showed some very large samples.

The Dairy.

There was a good display of products of the dairy, our district being famous for the cheese and butter marketed here. Butter in prints and firkin was present from many contributors, J. Tindle taking first prize for the former. In firkins of 20lbs Mr. McEvers stood first, and in 56 lb. firkins Mr. W. Graham held the same honourable position. In dairy cheese Mr. Matchet, of Otonabee received the red ticket. In factory cheese the Lakefield factory stood first.

There were also no less than ten exhibitors in home-made bread, Mrs. J. C. Barnard gaining the distinction of first, with Mrs. G. Fitzgerald as second.

In canned fruit, in which the display was limited; for the best collection, Mr. Beale, of Lindsay received first prize, and for the best collection of pickles, Mrs. T. E. Bell, of Smith. Honey in the comb was exhibited by Mrs. J. Fuller and J. Tindle, and maple syrup by Mrs. W. Rutherford and Mrs. J. Hall.

Grain.

The show under this head fell behind former times in extent, though not in quality. Several fine specimens of white and red fall wheat were exhibited, Mr. Geo. Scott and Mr. McFarlane gaining the two firsts. For club wheat Mr. A. Bell, and spring wheat, Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald, an extensive exhibitor, gained the red tickets. In other grains, Mr. A. Scott took first for two bushels of black oats, and Mr. D. E. Boulton for white oats. Peas, barley, corn, beans, timothy and clover seed were also shown of superior grades.

Roots and Garden Vegetables.

Although there were over two hundred and fifty entries under the above headings, a larger display had been looked for, but it can be claimed that the products shown were superior. Excellent potatoes were exhibited by several farmers showing to what a degree the cultivation of potatoes, turnips, carrots, mangold wurtzel, &c., is carried. The early rose and cups shown by Messrs. Irwin, Fitzgerald, Miller and Garbutt would be hard to beat anywhere. Mr. J. Pratt shows in this department mangolds weighing 38 lbs. each—a record he has beaten on a former occasion by 42 pounders.

To garden vegetables there is a constantly growing attention paid by farmers as well as professional gardeners, and the display was good, particularly in beets, cabbage, onions, corn, celery and tomatoes. Mr. Alex. Herbert was one of the leading prize takers, surpassed, however, by that celebrated agriculturist, Mr. Geo. Calvert, of Ops, who "does" the crop reports during the summer for our able contemporary, the Lindsay Post. Mr. George Benton, of this town, carried off the firsts in celery and seconds in cabbage and cauliflower.

Flowers and Plants.

The display of plants and flowers placed at the south-east corner of the main building was not large, and might have been easily extended had but a few more of our citizens contributed portions of the collections adorning their homes and grounds. It is too late to show flowers here at their best, and those on exhibition were confined to a few species.

Mr. Frank Mason, nurseryman, was the chief exhibitor, earning more than one half the prizes bestowed, but in several instances the Judges withheld first prizes, believing a second to fully cover the worth of the entry. In double and single geraniums, for single specimens Mr. Jas. Wallis took first; for best three single and double, Mr. F. Mason was given first, as well as for petunias and verbenas, collections of foliage and window plants. A couple of specimen vases were shown which attracted considerable notice. For these Mrs. James Campbell and Mrs. J. H. Roper came in as first and second respectively. Mrs. C. Ormond exhibited in astors, petunias and verbenas, gaining three second prizes.

Addenda.

Where so much is to be seen, every visitor must expect to overlook something perhaps, equally worthy in itself with much that is noticed, and a second or third visit would be necessary to do it justice.

A couple of yachts, built by Mr. J. H. Webber and Mr. W. Nesbitt, were recommended by the Judges.

White brick and drain tile were shown by Messrs. Carnegie & Urquhart.

A word in our own behalf may be said concerning the superior specimens of book-binding and of plain and ornamental printing, which could not be surpassed by any city office.

In our notice of poultry we omitted mention of a fine pen of brahmas, shown by Mr. I. Dormer, of Ashburnham.

Mr. Peter Hamilton added to his collection on the second day a "Griffith's Improved Fanning Mill," which took first prize over several competitors, and is a machine that gives general satisfaction for simplicity and durability, and as a first-class separator.

Lafayette Carpenter had a number of fruit and other trees on the ground, the merits of which he extolled with his usual volubility.

A bible stand with the scriptures in twenty-five different languages stood outside the main building near the door, and copies in English were offered for sale at cheap rates. If more people had the curiosity to read it in their own tonge it would be a more valuable accomplishment than the ability to translate the words into Rommany or Sanscrit.

The best of order was kept on the ground. Chief Johnson and his specials had an easy time. Only temperance drinks could be had, the first time in Peterborough where this rule was enforced at a show. The example is a good one for other towns to follow.

Our country cousins with the most delightful Arcadian simplicity patrolled the streets in pairs, Joan holding Darby by the hand and whispering in the soft accents of love, or munching the toothsome gingerbread. The golden age may come again.

The question of population is of first importance in Europe to-day as shown by the strong efforts made to work off the surplus by sending them to the unsettled lands of Canada, Australia and the United States, but what shall we do with our women is a question that must force itself on Canadian attention. It is well known that our churches show at least two women to one man, but certainly the difference was greater at the Exhibition just concluded. At least three of the fair sex could be seen for one of the sterner fourth, not half of humanity and how will all this end is the query.

The proprietors of the summer hotel on the grounds cleared themselves. They think that man as a drinking animal is more profitable than in his capacity for absorbing solids.

Printing officers were kept busy yesterday and the day before working off showy cards announcing the gaining of prizes by the gratified exhibitors. As people run to the doctor when sickness comes, so even they who are most neglectful of advertising at all other times, are glad to call in the printer's aid on such an occasion as this.

WILSON & DAVIS had the sale of tickets on the ground, and did their duty in a prompt, business-like manner. The demand was kept up the whole of each day, and the pasteboard and accompanying stamps exchanged hands rapidly. They sold 8,500 tickets altogether.

This surely is not the firm who were said to be unknown at a distance of three feet from their own door, or like Cowper's cottage, "never heard of half a mile from home."

W. J. LARMOUR thinks, with good grounds, that advertising pays, for on Thursday he did twice as much business as on any show day ever before, and on Wednesday four times as much. How is that for high?

The grocery trade was the quietest and hotel business the liveliest this week. On Wednesday 600 persons took dinner at E. Phelan's Hotel. One hotel proprietor raked in $500 on Thursday.

Mr. S. ENGLISH, of Omemee, exhibited one of his celebrated grain cradles, which have for years past kept up their superiority, and are highly spoken of by farmers.

The Band of the Peterborough Fire Brigade, under Prof. Finch Millar, whose success in gaining first prize at the Toronto Exhibition over 11 competitors, is a matter of pride to our citizens, discoursed sweet music each evening, and on Wednesday and Thursday all day. Visitors were highly pleased with the selections chosen and the manner of their playing.

THE GRAND JUNCTION.

The Belleville Intelligencer says:—The regular running of trains on the Grand Junction Railway will commence on Monday next, October 6th. A train will leave Hastings daily for Belleville at 7 a.m., arriving here at 9.30. Returning, will leave Belleville at 3.45 p.m., arriving at Hastings at 6.45. On the North Hastings the hour of departure from Madoc has been changed to 8 a.m., arriving here at 9.30 a.m. Returning, will leave Belleville at 3.45 p.m., reaching Madoc at 5.45. Mr. R. Luttrell, a railroad man of much ability and great experience, who formerly held a high position on the Intercolonial, has been appointed General Superintendent of both roads, and will have his office in the station building, Pinnacle street.

MOB LAW

The threats of a mob do not assist the cause of the Quebec Liberals even in that city, and certainly must injure it through the Province generally. As much argument as you like, gentlemen, but no bludgeons. The bread riots, the ship laborers' riots, the cheering and hissing in the galleries, give Quebec a bad name, which it perhaps does not desire, but threatening members on account of their political convictions—or even tergiversation—will not make matters any better. Any member of Parliament that helps to remedy the present deplorable state of affairs will be doing good. The claqueurs of Quebec should remember that that city is not the whole Province.—Montreal Post.

LINDSAY.

LARGE LUMBER SHIPMENTS.—The Post says that immense quantities of Lumber have lately been passing over the Midland Railway. The Georgian Bay Lumber Co. are shipping about thirty cars per day, and other manufacturers are shipping in proportion. Special trains are kept going almost every hour of the day getting lumber to market.

HALIBURTON.

LUMBERING.—A correspondent of the Post says that lumbermen are arriving for the winter's work, but on account of the uncertainty of the lumber trade, operations will not be carried on as extensively as formerly in this district. Mr. N. Barnhart, manager for Mr. Boyd, arrived here on Wednesday evening with thirty men, who have gone into the woods about twenty-five miles north of here.

HAGYARD'S PECTORAL BALSAM is composed of the most healing balsams and gums. The Balsams, which enter into its composition, were used by the natives when America was first discovered, and are combined with other vegetable tonics, so blended together, that it is a specific for all affections of the throat and lungs. Thousands of bottles are used annually, and it is considered one of the standard preparations of the day.

THE INDIAN WAR.

A Fierce Encounter—The Command in Great Straits, and Their Succour Doubtful—Breaking Faith.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Gen. Sheriden says that if the Utes do not immediately surrender, they will be exterminated. The attack on Thornburgh was the basest treachery which the military officers will resent, if in their power. Thornburgh refused to fire first, and was only following his orders, for the troops are not permitted to arrest Indians on suspicion, or to fire on them until the hostiles have fired. This is in strict accordance with the peace policy of the Interior Department.

RELIEF DOUBTFUL.

RAWLINS, Wyoming, Oct. 3.—Relief cannot reach Thornburgh's command before Sunday or Monday, before which time the survivors must suffer greatly if they are able to retain their position until then. It is not known whether there is water within their lines of defence. If not, they can only obtain a supply at night at great risk.

MARCHING TO DEATH.

The night preceding the battle two Ute chiefs informed Thornburgh that he might visit the agency with five men, but his command would not be allowed to proceed further. They were acting under the impression that the expedition was to remove them south of their reservation. Thornburgh feared another Modoc affair and refused. They were asked by an officer to smoke but they in a contemptuous manner refused. Yet after this and knowing also that the Indians had had war dance at their agency, Thornburgh was obliged to obey his orders and march on to almost certain death. When the Indians were met in force, Thornburgh ordered his men not to fire until the Indians did saying "my orders are positive and if I violate them and survive, a court martial may follow. I feel as though myself and men may be murdered." By this time the Indians had flanked the troops, and uttering the Ute war whoops opened fire. In a fierce engagement there were 14 killed and 34 wounded. Every officer was shot except Lieut. Cherry of the Fifth Cavalry. Two hundred mules were killed.

PREPARING FOR THE FIELD.

LEADVILLE, Colorado, Oct. 3.—The excitement here over the Indian troubles is very great. The Leadville militia are preparing to take the field.

PROMISES UNFULFILLED.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The object of the Interior Department in calling upon the War Department for troops to visit White River was merely to preserve order. There was not the slightest intention to provoke a hostile feeling. It is alleged that for years the Government has utterly failed to honorably meet its obligations to the Utes. Meeker was an upright agent, but he was handicapped by the failure of Congress to appropriate $75,000 due to these Indians. It is also alleged that a mail-carrier named Perkins, who gave up his contract because he could not obtain increased compensation, has been poisoning the minds of the Utes with stories of their hardships, through the Government's failure to keep its promises.

ALLEGED ATTEMPT AT ABORTION.

Excitement at the Village of Springhill—A Minister Accused of the Crime.

One of those melancholy and deplorable events that occasionally throw usually quiet and peaceful localities into the greatest possible ferment of excitement, happened in the pretty little village of Shringhill, in the township of King, a few days ago. The lamentable nature of the circumstances is greatly increased when the respectability of the persons directly involved in it is considered, as well as that of their friends, who undoubtedly feel most deeply the disgrace thus brought upon them. It will also be noticed that the accused person has not the extenuating circumstances of a desire to extricate himself from a difficulty in which he had involved himself. On the contrary, it will be seen that he reduced his nefarious practice to a regular system, and there is no reason to believe that he had any intention of abandoning it, had not circumstances conspired to expose what his unfortunate victim was constrained by threats to keep secret.

UNDER THE GARB OF RELIGION.

It is regretted that during the whole time that the wretch was carrying on his disreputable practices, he chouked his crimes under the garb of religion. His accomplice is a woman long past the bloom of life, and who is said to be the mother of a large and respectable family. It is surprising that she should have forgotten her motherly instincts so far as to lend herself to a scheme which might have resulted disastrously to a young woman's life.

THE UNFORTUNATE GIRL

in the case is about nineteen years of age, is a native of England, and is rather prepossessing in appearance and modest in demeanour. She is an orphan, with out any relatives in this country, and was regarded as an honest industrious girl. About two years and a half ago she engaged as a domestic in her betrayer's house he being a married man. From his first acquaintance with her he treated her with the greatest familiarity, and after a time succeeded in accomplishing her ruin. Fearing that her disgrace would become known to her friends, she threatened to destroy herself. He, however, assured her that she need fear nothing, and to leave the matter in his hands. On the same evening he gave her a bottle of medicine, which he told her to take according to the directions. She refused to accede to his request and he left her. He returned shortly afterwards in company with the elderly woman alluded to, to whom he introduced her with the remark, "She'll convince you little girl." After some conversation with the woman, the girl was persuaded to take the medicine. The medicine had the effect intended, but, at the same time, nearly produced death. A year afterwards the same scene was enacted, the girl being terrified into submission by the threats of her rascally master. The girl used the drugs until they seriously affected her health and then refused altogether to conform to the wishes of the man.

THE SHOCKING STORY

was told by the girl herself to Dr. Langstaff, of Springhill, when he was attending her in her confinement. She informed the doctor that she still had a bottle of the medicine in her trunk. The doctor secured the concoction and sent it to Toronto to be analysed. The matter was reported to Mr. Wood, J. P., and he held an investigation at the village on Saturday, but other than deciding it was a most serious case, was referred to the County Crown Attorney, Mr. Fenton, who, on Saturday, instructed by Mr. J. T. Jones, the high constable of York, to proceed to Springhill and make enquiry. An analytical chemist in the city has the bottle in his possession, and will report the result of his analysis of its contents at an early day.

St. Joseph's Church, on Sixth Avenue, New York, has a large and wealthy congregation; its pastor, the Rev. Father Farrell, a faithful servant, known by his Works, testifies to the wonderful curative properties of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia in inflammatory rheumatism, pains in the joints or loins, for it gives instant relief.

MANHOOD:
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife: pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

A SERENADE.

I sing beneath your lattice, love,
A song of great regard for you;
The moon is getting rather high,
My voice is, too.

The lakelet in deep shadow lies,
Where frogs make such hullabaloo:
I think they sing a trifle hoarse,
And, love, me too.

The blossoms on the pumpkin-vine
Are weeping diamond tears of dew;
'Tis warm; the flowers are wilting fast,
My linen too.

All motionless the ceders stand,
With silent moonbeams slanting through;
The very air is drowsy, love,
And I am, too.

Oh, could I soar on loving wings,
And at your window gently woo!
But then your lattice you would bolt—
So I'll bolt too.

AQUATICS.

HANLAN, COURTNEY, AND THE REFEREE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Mr. Blaikie, the referee in the Hanlan-Courtney match, has received a despatch from Mr. Baldwin, general passenger agent of the Buffalo, Pittsburg and Chautauqua R. R., saying that both men were pleased with the course, and that Hanlan's condition was improving. Mr. Baldwin in his despatch asks if the 16th is suitable to Mr. Blaikie, and the latter has answered that it is. The race will now come off on the 16th of October, weather and water permitting.

HANLAN'S MOVEMENTS.

MAYVILLE, N.Y., Sept. 29.—Hanlan, accompanied by his trainers, took up his quarters at the Chautauqua Lake House, Bemas Point, to-day, and will immediately go into active training. He is improving daily, and expects to be in fine condition by October 16th.

RIVAL SCULLERS ON THE SHORES OF CHAUTAUQUA

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 29.—A National Association Press reporter to-day had an interview with Courtney and Hanlan. The Union Springs sculler is at a farm house on the banks of the lake. He is in splendid condition, although he still complains of feeling a little sick. He had just come in from a short pull on the lake, and looked the very picture of health and robustness. He is very pleased with the water. He said:—"I doubt very much if the race comes off, for the weather will be very cold by the 16th, but if it does and the water is good, I shall beat Hanlan." Frenchy Johnson and his cousin Larmon are his attendants. Hanlan was found at Bemas Point. He appeared to be in good condition, and said he thought he stood a chance of winning, especially if the water should be lumpy. He is well pleased with the climate and the fresh cool breezes which blow across the lake have had a rejuvenating effect on him. The course has not been laid out. Courtney expresses a preference for one portion and Hanlan prefers another.

PLAISTED BEATS GAUDAUR.

ORILLIA, Sept. 29.—Everything was favorable to-day for three-mile single-sculling race between Jacob Gaudaur, of Atherley, and Fredk. A. Plaisted, the widely known United States sculler. The weather was beautiful, and the waters of Lake Couchiching were almost without a ripple. The attendance of spectators was very large, many people flocking in from the surrounding district to see "Jake" as everybody called him, beat the foreigner, as one and all were convinced beforehand he would do. They had heard of his easy victory over Wm. McKen a few weeks ago, and his success in capturing the Queen's Royal Hotel cup at Niagara, and really and conscientiously had come to believe that their youthful friend was another Hanlan. On all hands it was acknowledged that the pair was very evenly matched as far as rowing ability was concerned, and the contest, it appeared to be the universal opinion, would have to be fought out in generalship, a quality in which, as the result proved, the elder oarsman had the advantage. It was half-past four before the men took their stations, and it was five minutes later when they were sent on their journey to an excellent start, Gaudaur, for a wonder, getting rather the best of it. Putting a thirty-eight to the minute stroke he at once forged to the front, and proceeded to make the pace, which was a warm one. Plaisted was very little behind, and it was only the very thinnest streak of daylight could be traced between the two shells as the Atherley man struck his turning buoy. Both rounded well and on straightening out for home Gaudaur was seen to have barely a length to the good. With every sinew strained, the American pulling thirty-five and the Canadian one slower, the pair rowed back to the place of starting. Gaudaur maintained the advantage with which he turned, until within half a mile of his journey's end, and then slowly but surely Plaisted gained on him until within a couple of hundred yards of the goal both were level, and it was anybody's race. Stroke for stroke they row until only thirty or forty yards remain to go, and then the New Englander gathering himself together puts on a magnificent spurt and crosses the line the winner of a good race by a scant half a length, in 21 minutes 20 secs. It was a good contest well rowed out, and both scullers are to be congratulated, the loser equally with the visitor. Unfortunately Gaudaur, when he found himself pushed, steered a little wildly, or the five hundred dollar stake might have found a resting place in his pocket instead of in that of his clever antagonist. Another season and it is safe to predict it will take a mightier than the winner of the present race to defeat the youthful Canadian. Both were loudly cheered on sculling to their boathouses. There was very little betting and in that little Gaudaur had rather the call.

HANLAN AND COURTNEY AT EXERCISE.

JAMESTOWN, N.Y., Sept. 30.—Hanlan took a spin this afternoon of fourteen miles, witnessed by crowds on an excursion steamer and the shore. His training begins on Thursday. The steamers proceeded to Mayville, where Courtney also gave an exhibition. The weather was fine. Both men are in good spirits.

It is officially announced at Rochester, N.Y., that the Hanlan-Courtney race will positively occur on October 18th.

A Blind Man Arrested.

This morning the frequenters of the Police Court were astonished at the spectacle of a blind man, of more than middle age, being led into the cells, and, on enquiry, it was found that the person in question was Daniel Laverty, a livery stable keeper on St. Bennard street, and that he was confined on the charge of being concerned in the theft of a bay stallion, the property of James McBurny, a carter, residing on Lagauchetiere street, on the night of the 27th instant. Edward J. Burnett made a deposition to the effect that yesterday he and Sergt. Lapointe had proceeded to Laverty's stables, and there found the horse. In order to get him out they were compelled to break open the door. Both Daniel Laverty, the proprietor, and his son Robert refused to give any information as to how they were into possession of the stallion, and they came remanded for trial to-morrow.—Montreal Witness.

TORONTO'S SHAME.

The Haunts of Abandoned Characters and the Homes of the Thieves The Dance at McQuarry's.

(From the Mail.)

All large cities have their dens of vice and infamy. Toronto, in this respect, has far outstripped many larger and older places. Within its borders to-day, are contained, so the police aver, more houses of a disreputable character, more "street walkers" than in any other city numbering four times its population. It is only necessary to walk any of the principal thoroughfares after gaslight to make this fact convincing to the most sceptical. Here vice, in all its forms will be met. The flaunting and flashily-dressed courtesan, the young but brazen girl yet in her teens, and the equally youthful girl just setting out in paths of wickedness are encountered everywhere. "Street walkers" who unblushingly jostle respectable people in public thoroughfares, follow their calling unmolested. So leniently have they been treated by those administring the laws of the city that they have become indifferent, and seldom make any special efforts to conceal their object. Girls of very tender years are fast following in the footsteps of their fallen sisters, until to-day, the thoughtful citizen is compelled to halt and ask the question

"WHERE WILL THIS END."

The police state that if the number of professional "street walkers" known to them were publicly announced, the figures would appear incredible. Statistics already place them well up in the hundreds. Their mode of living soon leads to even broader, or at least more open, acts of sin, and becoming crime hardened they end their usually short lives in abject misery. As before stated, to the city's shame, wickedness not alone keeps pace with but runs before the city's commercial progress and advancement. Houses, well-known to the police as disreputable cannot be counted within one hundred. On almost every street in the city they abound—gilded hells to ruin the body and soul of the rising generation. Vice of this order need not alone be looked for in the slums, or quarters occupied by the utterly.

FALLEN AND LOST.

There, assuredly, it can be seen in its utter depravity and in all its loathsomeness. York street in this respect is to Toronto, what Canal street is to Buffalo, Clarke street is to Chicago, and the Bowery to New York. On that thoroughfare, from King to Queen streets are ten known houses of prostitution, kept by abandoned women of the lowest character. In these places robberies are of almost daily occurrence. Within the same mentioned space eight unlicensed groggeries are in full blast, dealing out liquor alike to male and female, old and young. These latter places are looked upon and considered by the police to be even more dangerous than the former, they acting as fuel to the fire by supplying maddening liquor to the depraved classes. Under the disguise of eating houses, are several places equally as bad as either of those mentioned. The motley crew of whites and blacks of both sexes that nightly congregate there, could be taken for samples of the lowest depths to which depraved humanity is capable of falling. To end the list, several assignation houses abut on this thoroughfare.

THIEVES FIND HOMES

in the low places mentioned, and many an unfortunate countryman or stranger, enticed into these dens leave them poorer in purse than they entered. Robberies of this class are seldom reported to the police, as the victim usually submits to the loss rather than that publicity should be given to it. This fact is known to the operators, who ply their callings without fear of arrest. York street can be seen at its worst between eight and twelve o'clock at night. between these hours the street is alive with its wickedness. Young girls and hardened women parade its length. The sound of music and the noise of dancing feet can be heard proceeding from its low dance houses. To protect the public who have occasion to pass along, and also preserve the peace, a double patrol of police has to be nightly placed on this beat from King to Queen streets.

OTHER DENS REQUIRING ATTENTION.

In other parts of the city infamy and vice abound. In the district bounded by Edward street on the north, Queen on the south, the avenue on the west, and Yonge street on the east, there are at least fifty disreputable houses known to the police, Albert, University, Edward and Alice streets contain at least from five to ten each.

WILL THE POLICE MOVE?

All these places being known to the authorities, the question naturally arises, "Why are they not raided and broken up?" In other Canadian cities the authorities put down the evil with a strong hand. Here it has been lightly treated, and it has now assumed such vast proportions that it will require years at least to successfully combat it. Many of the police complain that it is next to impossible to make out a satisfactory or sufficient strong case to convince the police magistrate. Others say that nominal fines, at most, are imposed in case of conviction, which, instead of being preventitives, acts as a premium to further misdeeds in the same direction. In Hamilton, London, and other places the fines imposed on and imprisonment attached to offenders under this head are heavy. The example could be advantageously followed by Toronto, which, in time, could make the same boast as the Forest City, "that a disreputable house does not exist within the municipality." The chief of police should be at once instructed to raid not alone the low dens, but those of a more pretentious character.

BALL AT MCQUARRY'S.

Although McQuarry still languishes in prison, the character of his place of business on York street is being carefully maintained by a chum named Pete, who at one time was supposed to be rather green at his trade, but he is now acknowledged to be an expert at getting up grand entertainments for the "fancy." Last night he gave a select ball, which was patronized by about one hundred and fifty of the vilest of the vile; in fact from the appearance of the guests it was obvious that the concentrated essence of all that was infamous in the city of Toronto was in attendance. The door was carefully guarded by Pete, who collected ten cents a piece from all who entered there, and the stream of visitors who crowded into the house attracted the attention of the police, who experienced some difficulty in preventing curiously inclined pedestrians halting to investigate the nature of the entertainment. It was certainly a study to enter that ball room, situated in the rear of the building. There was an old fiddler doing his utmost to encourage that spirit of hilarity so necessary to maintain the dignity of such an occasion. In front of him engaged in the dance were the outcasts of society; the little girl, young in years but old in iniquity, dancing with the gray-haired culprit just arrived on foot from foreign parts. To the observant reporter the scene was not only painful but disgusting. The lewd jokes of the men as they swung their youthful partners and the cold effrontery of the pert little damsels as they responded to their villainous looking fancy men was almost unbearable. And conspicuous in that crowd were two able-bodied Engineers, actually wearing her Majesty's uniform. Finally these red-coated "gentlemen," either becoming ashamed of themselves or fearing that their whereabouts at that hour of the night might reach the ears of their commanding-officer, slunk off, and wended their way up York street, and thence along Adelaide street on their way homeward. This was about midnight, and just as they departed there were fresh arrivals of depraved visitors, at whose familiar tap the door flew open, and they were ushered into the presence of their bosom friends, then holding high carnival. Sprightly-looking little girls, not yet out of their teens, skipped in and out of this dive, escorted by their companions in crime to the nearest coffee house for refreshments. The excitement on the street about this time was reaching fever heat, and, in order to be prepared for emergencies, the solitary policeman on duty 'chirped," and had soon by his side four able-bodied companions, ready to assist him in case of necessity. It was found necessary to clear the street several times of the crowds who hung around this enchanted rendezvous. At one time it was feared that reinforcements must be sent for, but by the determined efforts of the policemen on duty the excitement was soon abated, and toward one o'clock in the morning the fiddler slipped out and retreated, and quiet was restored within.

RIDE THROUGH A CANYON.

Two adventurous miners recently took a ride through the Big Horn Canyon, in the Yellowstone region, never before traversed by man. Had they been able graphically to describe their adventure, they would have told a tale seldom equalled in thrilling incidents. Wishing to save 200 miles' travel around the mountains, they concluded to try the canyon. With some tools they had in their mining camp they built a frail craft at the bottom of the canyon, having previously taken down their material of red cedar. The boat was made twelve feet long, three feet wide, and upon trial was found to carry its cargo of freight and passengers admirably. So on the morning of the 23rd of July they untied it and pushed into current. The rush of the river, which before starting was almost deafening, was terrible as the boat started on its journey through this unknown gorge. To go back was impossible; to climb the solid limestone walls which rose five hundred feet above their heads, where a narrow streak of light lighted up their course, was not to be entertained as a means of escape; through they must go, trusting to their ability to avoid rocks and to the strength of their craft to run the rapids which they met at every bend of the canyon. The loudest halloo was heard as a whisper. Grottoes, caves, unknown recesses of nature were passed by these hardy navigators. In places flocks of mountain sheep, startled by the appearance of the curiosity rushing by below them, would run along a ledge of rocks, jump from crag to crag, where footing for man would be impossible, and disappear. Evening coming on they attempted to tie up for the night. They worked the boat close to shore, jumped out, and away went the craft, carrying the guns and provisions. With starvation behind them and hardly a foothold before them, their chances of keeping on were doubtful, when they luckily found two logs, which they lashed together with their belts, and again trusting to the river and still more dangerous rocks they set out to search for their boat, which they found two miles below, where it had stopped in an eddy. On the afternoon of the third day, while wondering how much longer the Big Horn Canyon could possibly be, they suddenly shot out into the beautiful Big Horn Valley, with Fort C. F. Smith on their right.

Protection in Australia.

The financial statement of the colony of Victoria, Australia, for the past year shows a deficit of £137,000, and a further deficit of nearly £300,000 is expected on the present year, and to meet the deficiency the Government has introduced a new tariff bill, by which the old customs duties will be increased and new duties levied. The proposed new tariff fixes the duty on apparel, machinery and woollen ware at 25 per cent ad valorem, and increases the 10 per cent and the 15 per cent duties to 20 per cent. In announcing these changes the Treasurer dwelt forcibly upon the advantages to be derived from the protection to home industries which they would afford. It is apparent that in the distant colonies of Australia the principle of protection is making steady progress, New Zealand and Victoria being the most recent converts. Montreal Gazette.

OTTAWA, ONTARIO.
VICTORIA CHEMICAL COMPANY, TORONTO,

Gentlemen,—Confirming my statement a short time ago, as to the satisfactory results from the use of your COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES, I will further add that fresh proofs of the genuine benefits conferred on patients requiring it are constantly coming under my observation; parties to whom I have recommended it, have in a short time, with the deepest thankfulness, acknowledged the relief they have experienced, and in some cases have asserted that it, and it alone, have saved their lives. It gives me much pleasure to assure you that I consider your Syrup, the VICTORIA HYPOPHOSPHITES, the best preparation of any which has come under my notice for Debility and all Pulmonary Complaints, Bronchitis, Coughs, &c., and believing this, I constantly recommend it before every other Compound.

Very truly yours,
H. F. McCARTHY,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

An Inspiration.

When a poet composes a set of verses that stir men's hearts we say he is inspired. So indeed he is. When celebrated students of hygiene, after careful study, gives us a panacea for many of the ills that flesh is heir to, we say they have made a lucky hit. We are wrong, it is equally an inspiration. Debility, bronchical affections, and consumption number their victims by the thousands, but how soon these difficulties could be ameliorated if we only knew it. SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA is the remedy preeminently adapted to such conditions, and if taken long enough is almost sure to effect a cure. It is also perfectly agreeable to the taste.

LOCAL NEWS

Forwarding Flour.

The Otonabee mills at Ashburnham are turning out and shipping 1,000 barrels of flour weekly besides their heavy gristing and town trade.

Lumber Shipments.

James Z. Rogers is shipping from his mill a large amount of bass wood lumber. His teams have been hauling lumber to the Midland Station for several days.

Winter is Coming.

At least so thinks Mr. Austin, because we see he is already laying in a stock of sleighs for the use of the rising generation when the cold days do come.

The People's Temperance Association.

There will be a meeting of the People's Temperance Association at the B. C. Church, Ashburnham, this evening. An interesting programme has been prepared.

Foot Ball.

There is to be a game of foot ball this 4 o'clock p.m., on the cricket ground at Ashburnham, under the Rugby rules. There will be another game to-morrow afternoon at the same hour under the Association rules.

Our Visitors.

A large number of visitors remained over last night, and will spend the day looking about, with a better opportunity for appreciating the beauties of Peterborough. The changing colors of our shade trees add to the beauty of the surroundings.

Car Blockade Raised.

The blockade of loaded cars has again been raised. Last evening another special took a large number of cars laden with lumber, grain, wool and other merchandise over the Midland, mostly for the Grand Trunk, east.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: Moderate to fresh westerly winds, partly cloudy to clear, cooler weather. The above reports suits Peterborough exactly. The weather is charming.

Men off for the Shanties.

This morning Mr. T. Cavanagh shipped per. Midland Railway, via Orillia, 36 men for the Bell Ewart lumbering company, John Brophy, foreman. Their destination is Gravenhurst in the Muskoka region, where they go into the shanties.

More Freight Cars Wanted.

The millers and lumbermen are complaining that they cannot get cars enough to remove their products. This is unfortunate when there is so good a demand for our supplies. It is stated the Grand Trunk cannot furnish any cars, as they require them for their own freights.

Great Lumber Sale.

Chas. Stapleton, auctioneer, will sell by public Auction at the mills of Mr. Geo. W. R. Strickland, Lakefield, on Tuesday Oct. 14th., at 12.30 p.m., a large lot of pine stock, siding and barn sheeting. This will be a good opportunity as the lumber is to be sold without reserve.

Sawdust and Mill Rubbish.

For several days it has been observed that there is a great increase of sawdust and mill rubbish floating down the Otonabee. The attention of many persons is attracted by it as they cross the bridge to Ashburnham. They are commenting upon it, and are asking where is the Inspector.

Appreciation.

In the description of the Central Exhibition given by the reporter of the Lindsay Post, we find the following paragraph :—

> "The Daily Review doubled its dimensions and showed an increase in both advertising patronage and news. Both in appearance and the excellence of its news matter the Review is a model, and we are glad to see it receiving the liberal patronage it deserves."
>
> "The fine exhibit of printing and bookbinding by the Review establishment is deserving of notice."

Awaiting Transportation.

Mr. George Hilliard has a large amount of lumber awaiting cars for shipment. It is stated that there are not half enough vessels on the lake to remove the accumulations at Port Hope. One day last week there were 150 cars loaded with lumber, grain, cattle and other merchandise, accumulated at Port Hope for unloading, and yet Port Hope is not happy.

Good Business.

We have heard from several storekeepers that on Wednesday they did the largest business transacted on any one day for a long time. This shows the benefit that the Central Exhibition, with its crowds of visitors, conferred upon the town in general. It also shows the special benefit to derived from advertising, for those who were thus patronized had themselves been the most liberal patrons of the printers.

The "Boss" Team.

Messrs. Rush & Elliott took first prize for the best pair of carriage horses, 15½ hands hign and under. What are our sports and farmers doing thus to allow a team in daily use before the firm's express waggon to outstrip their best efforts, and leave them thus "behind the lighthouse." They had better call on the owners and get a few points in horse flesh from Mr. Elliott, who, as the decision shows, has a knowledge of equine matters as well as of groceries.

Almost an Accident.

Yesterday afternoon several young men were standing upon the seats of the vehicles on George street, opposite the Agricultural Grounds, looking over the sheds at the display inside. While in this attitude a horse attached to one of the buggies, on which three were standing, started suddenly and they all had a downfall. One young man in his fall caught between the box and the wheel with his leg through the spokes, completely stopping the wheel from revolving, and in this manner was dragged through the dust and dirt some 25 or 30 feet before the horse was stopped. He was not hurt, but was well coated with dirt as were the others who fell outside the wheels.

Collision.

During the exhibition of saddle horses at the show yesterday afternoon, some excitement was created by a collision between one of the saddle horses and the buggy of Mr. John Galvin, who had won the second prize for driving horses. Mr. Galvin should have turned off the track with the other buggies, but failed to do so. We did not learn the name of the young man riding the saddle horse which ran into the buggy. The buggy was badly broken, the axle bent, and the driver thrown out. The saddle horse was rolled over twice, while his rider was thrown forward over the horse's head and the buggy to the ground. It is said he was not hurt, and that he afterwards re-mounted and rode around the ring. Much excitement was created by this mishap, and it was difficult to get at the facts.

The Terible Accident of Wednesday.

Yesterday we noticed the death of Mr. Mitchell McIntosh by falling from the cars of the Midland Railway on Wednesday evening. He was about 25 and is said to have been the son of widowed mother in Edinburgh, Scotland. He had only been two or three years in Canada, and was, at the time of his death, living with Mr. Geo. Maxfield, Lot 13, 1st concession, Cavan. The particulars, as near as can be learned, are, that he was intoxicated, and was ordered out of the car for being noisy and disturbing the passengers. The brakesman who tried to quiet him passed out to attend to his duties, when he was followed by the deceased to the platform which, like the car itself, was crowded with passengers. In attempting to cross, he stepped upon the coupling, which threw him to the track, and he was run over by the wheels of the car. Conductor Reiley, as soon as he was informed of the casualty, had the train backed up to the spot, about one mile below the station, and the body was taken on board. It was conveyed to Millbrook, where Coroner Maxwell, of Port Hope, held an inquest on Thursday. The jury rendered a verdict of "accidental death."

POLICE COURT.

VAGRANCY.

Friday, Oct. 3.—At the Police Court this morning, Constable McGhee laid a complaint against Margaret McCutcheon, charging her with vagrancy. In the evidence it was shown that she slept in barns and woodsheds, wherever she could find an opportunity The Magistrate sentenced her to three months in the county goal at hard labor.

She was given until six o'clock p.m., to leave town or the warrant would be executed.

HOUSE OF ILL-FAME.

Constable McGhee laid a complaint against Jennie Wilson, charging her with keeping a house of ill-fame on Donegall Street. The defendant pleaded not guilty. The constable was not ready to go on, the witnesses not appearing, and the case was enlarged until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

THE FALL ASSIZE COURT.

Gannon vs. Gibb.—An action by a contractor to recover $3,000 for extras in the errection of the Windsor hotel at Campbellford. Being chiefly a question of accounts the case took up two days when a verdict given for the plaintiff for $2,180.62. H. Cameron, Q. C., and E. B. Edwards, counsel, and A. L. Colville, attorney, for plaintiff. The Hon. S. Smith, Q. C., and D. W. Dumble, counsel, and J. McClellan, attorney, for defendant.

Kearns vs. Guthrie.—An action for wages. Verdict for plaintiff for $100, certificate for county court costs and prohibiting defendant setting off costs. G. Edmison for plaintiff, J. F. Dennistoun, Q.C., for defendant.

Sovias vs. Isolated Risk Co.—Verdict for defendant for $417. E. B. Edwards, for plaintiff, J. F. Dennistoun, Q.C., acting for Blake, Kerr, Boyot, counsel for defendant.

That's the Way They Used to Do It.

With a thumb and finger on the nose, a bright silver dime on the table as a bribe, and the Castor Oil bottle in the other hand is the way our mother had to approach us when she was about to attack a severe case of colic that had tied our little intestines in knots. Those days, and that scene, comes no more to us, neither will our little ones ever be obliged to tread in the rough path our parents trod in their childhood. Now we take Scott & Bowne's Palatable Castor Oil as complacently as we do condensed milk, and it is just about as cheap —25 cents a bottle. w41-d80-1m

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Probable Parricide.—A man named Wm. Dugan committed a serious assault upon his father, John Dugan, at St. Stephen, on Wednesday last. One of the chief causes of the outrage was the old one—rum. The injurud man is not expected to recover. He is said to be nearly ninety years of age. He lives a few miles out of the town. The son, who lives in St. James, was on his way home at the time. He was under the influence of liquor, and called at his father's house, where the affray took place. He broke two of his father's ribs, and struck him about the head with a rolling pin. He was arrested.

MANITOBA.

Books Seized by the Custom Officers.—Forty books, which were donated by the United States Government to the public library at Emerson, have been seized by the Canadian Customs authorities at the boundary.

Arrival of the British Commissioners.—Messrs. Read & Pell, the British Imperial Commissioners, and party arrived here on Saturday night, accompanied by the Secretary of the Emigration Board of Minnesota, the reporter of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, the Assistant Manager of the St. Paul and Sioux City Railway, and other Americans travelling in the directors' car. The above named road was decorated with English and American flags, which had been placed at their disposal. The commissioners received every honour, courtesy and attention while passing through the United States, being in the hands of Americans during the whole time. There were no preparations made here to receive them by either the Provincial Government or the city corporation. On their arrival at St. Boniface no conveyance met them, so they walked over to Winnipeg. No members of the Government or the City Council called on them yesterday. The officers of the St. George's Society were the only public body who paid them any attention. Great indignation is freely expressed by the citizens against the authorities, Mr. Hespeler, the immigration agent, alone being excepted. He, in the absence of Messrs. Brydges and McTavish, of the Hudson Bay Company, provided them with saddle horses, and the Commissioners started this morning to Portage La Prairie. The American railroad officials pressed the Commissioners to return with them in their special car, which went back this morning. All the rest of the party went, but the Commissioners declined.

CHAFF.

A Bad Debt.—The owing of a grudge.

There is a man in Peterborough so hard up that he sleeps on tick.

The higher we take a thermometer up a mountain the lower it gets.

It has been ascertained that the man who "held on to the last" was a shoemaker.

The riches which are most apt to take to themselves wing and fly away are ostriches.

What is that which every man living has seen, but never more will see again?—Yesterday.

There is one thing which the most improvident young men are always able to keep and that is late hours.

A schoolmaster said to himself, "I am like a stone—I sharpen a number of blades, but I wear myself out in doing it."

DeQuincey tells an anecdote of a man who, on being threatened with an assault by eighteen tailors, cried out "come on both of you."

"C-c-c-can that p-p-p-parrot talk?" asked a stuttering man of a German. "Ven he don't talk so gooter as you, I schop, by tam, his head off."

A lady once being asked what she thought was a good remedy for bee sting, said she had never found anything better than to keep away from the bees.

The editor of an Illinois paper thinks that fishing, as a general rule, doesn't pay. He says, "We stood it all day in the river last week but caught noting—until we got home."

Why is it that the moment of popping the question is so terrible to young fellows that they so frequently cannot utter a word? Because, just then, they love the fair one beyond expression.

Anything you see, hear, or fancy, all persons, places and things, and whatever has happened since the foundation of the world, can all be expressed by a liquid in general use. What is it? Ink.

A down-east man it was who sat a long time, very attentively musing upon a cane-bottom chair. At length he said, "I wonder what fellow took the trouble to find all them ar' holes and put straws round 'em."

A deformed gentleman, on his arrival at a provincial town, was asked what place he had come from. "Straight from Boston," was the reply. "Then," said the enquirer, you must have got terribly twisted on the road."

"My child," said a stern parent to a lively little girl, "that way you have got of swallowing your food so hastily is a very bad habit, of which you must be broken." "Wouldn't it be better to mend me than to break me, papa?" asked the child.

TORONTO.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 4.

FOUND DROWNED. The body of a man, supposed to be George Hyorns, a traveller, doing business at 4 Exchange Alley, was found this morning in a cistern near the post office. For several days he was in attendance at the Court House as a witness, but has been missed since yesterday afternoon. Deceased was in the habit of drinking, and had been at one time in the inebriate department of the General Hospital. The body was conveyed to the Morgue and an inquest is to be held this evening.

OTTAWA

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 4.

THE ASSESSMENT. The City assessment for the year reaches over ten millions, but it is $757,800 less than for the previous year.

THE LUMBER TRADE.—During the past week several American buyers have been in the city making purchases of lumber. The demand continues good and prices are keeping up. Shipping is brisk and rates to all American points are on the increase.

TORONTO AND OTTAWA RAILWAY.—Another meeting was held last night in Starnes Hall in the interest of the Toronto and Ottawa Railway bonus. The voting takes place on Tuesday next.

AFTERNOON TELEGRAMS

Press Despatches to the Review.

CABLE.

AN EVICTED SHEPHERD.

DUBLIN, Oct. 4.—The son of an evicted shepherd has been arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the outrage near Castlebar.

A POET'S ANNIVERSARY.

CRAIOWA, Oct. 4.—The fiftieth anniversary of the publication of the first work of Joseph Ignatius Kraszewski, the Polish author and poet, was celebrated yesterday. Numerous addresses and and valuable presents were sent to him from France, England, Turkey and America.

AMERICAN.

STARVING BY HUNDREDS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—Capt. Dollard, of the schooner La Nimfa, just arrived from the Arctic Sea reports that owing to the failure of the fisheries on the Siberian coast, the natives starving and many had died. Of a village of 200 inhabitants, but one survived.

THE RESULT OF BIGAMY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Charles Lewis was arrested yesterday for bigamy. He had two wives in different parts of the city. His second wife, on learning the truth, fell fainting, and she now lies in a critical condition.

A FIENDISH OUTRAGE.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4.—Mrs. Cox, living near Sharpsburg, was fiendishly maltreated by Samuel Stride, her cousin, while she was alone at home a few days ago. Her condition is critical.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

BODIE, Cala., Oct. 4.—As a shaft was being lowered in Tioga mine with 9 men on board, the engine escaped from the control of the engineer, and went down to the 500 foot level. One man is now dead, and none of the others are expected to recover.

SWINDLER ARRESTED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Wm. McGrath, who was arrested in Yonkers for claiming to be a wealthy San Francisco citizen, and swindling citizens of Troy, Watertown and other cities, has confessed that his name is Michael Minion. He says that for two years he was an alderman of Boston. He has a wife and 8 children in South Boston. He has served two terms in Massachusetts State Prison.

AN ABSCONDING DEBTOR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—E. H. Hempel, a dealer in millinery goods and trimmed hats on Broome street, has disappeared, leaving $20,000 of uncleared debts.

SUICIDE FROM REVERSES.

F. Loizer, a tobacconist of New York, committed suicide at Brooklyn yesterday. The cause was business reverses.

LOSS OF INSURANCE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Geo. Gage, of Wooster street, attempted to hang himself yesterday, having lost $2000, all his savings, by the failure of the Security Life Insurance Company. He was cut down just in time to save him.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The Herald says the belief is general that the reported coal combination is nothing more than a stock jobbing ring. Some of the coal companies yesterday advanced prices 25 cents a ton.

A DEFAULTING CITY.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 4.—The United States Marshall at Mount Vernon, Ind. levied upon the personal property of the city to satisfy a judgment obtained by the Newark, N. J. Savings Institution, and could find none. Steps were taken to procure a writ of mandamus compelling the city Council to levy a special tax to pay the claim. The citizens determined to abamd on the city Government. At a special meeting of the Council all the members resignations were accepted, leaving the city without any Government whatever.

MINER'S STRIKE.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Oct. 4.—All the miners employed in the Lewis orebeds, near this city, have struck for an advance of wages.

THE MISSING BALLOON.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—A son of Aeronaut Wise, who helped to inflate the balloon, writes that it carried only 75 pounds of balast, and upon this information he thinks it barely possible that it travelled more than 100 miles. He thinks that the party may still be found in the vicinity of Macoupin, Green, Scott, or Marion counties, Illinois.

PERU AND CHILI.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A Valparaiso despatch of Sep. 8th says:—The news of the advance of the Peruvian and Bolivian armies is confirmed. It is reported that the Chilians before evacuating Callao sacked and burned that place. The Chilians have made raids into Bolivia beyond Conchas Blancas, destroying supplies and seizing horses and carts. It is reported that Peru has suspended payment from the Treasury, and prohibited the exportation of silver.

CETEWAYO AT CAPE TOWN.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A despatch from Cape Town says that King Cetewayo has arrived there and has been lodged in the castle as a state prisoner.

AN APPROPRIATE GIFT.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The Admiralty have given instructions for making a handsome piece of furniture from the timbers of the old Arctic exploring ship Resolute for presentation to the widow of the late Henry Grinnell, of New York, who fitted out at his own expense two expeditions for the search after Sir John Franklin.

BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 3.—Discontentment is general in Bosnia and Herzegovnia. The population is unanimous in the dislike of Austrian rule. The Duke of Wurtemburg has demanded reinforcements to suppress the insurrection, which is spreading in Herzegovina.

AMERICAN.

TROUBLE IN SYRIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 3.—A Constantinople despatch states that the situation in Syria is alarming. The Arabs have joined the Kurds to oppose Midhat Pasha's reforms. The Porte has decided to send 40 battalions of regulars to maintain order.

SUCCESSFUL BURGLARY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Early yesterday morning burglars robbed the Yonker's residence of S. P. Lillienthat, the New York tobacconist, of $10.000 worth of diamonds and jewelry.

DEATH FROM POISON.

Col. Geo. Watson, formerly in the confederate service on Jeff. Davis' staff, died suddenly at an hotel in Jersey city yesterday. It is believed from the effects of an overdose of morphine taken while in a despondent mood.

HEAVY PAYMENTS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The Pacific Mail Steamship Company to-day paid $200,000 to the Panama Railway Company on indebtedness contracted prior to the present administration. This makes half a million paid on this account since May.

PRICE OF COAL.

Up to noon neither President Scott, of the Pensylvania Road, or Packer, of the Lehigh Valley, had signed the agreement regulating the production of coal. None of the companies have yet advanced prices.

THE ADRIAN FAIR DISASTER.

ADRIAN, Mich., Oct, 3.—The total number of deaths from the collapse of the grand stand at the fair grounds, yesterday is, thus far, sixteen. The following have died from their injuries since last night's report:—Henry Hart, Secretary of the Michigan State Insurance Company; Aschel Henderson, Willie Hall, a Chinese washerman, Daniel Johnson, Peter Egan, Mr. Hume and Eva Sherrard. The seriously injured number seventy-five, some of whom the physicians say cannot live the day through. The architect of the grand stand is blamed for the disaster. The stand was built unusually light to admit of space for exhibition wagons and carriages underneath. The timbers were simply spiked together, instead of being morticed and braced.

THE MISSING AERONAUTS.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 3.—The conviction now is that Prof. Wise and George Burr, who went away from Lindell Park in a balloon last Saturday afternoon, have perished. A telegram was received from Louisiana, Mo., to-day, the home of Prof. Wise, which says that not a word has been heard from the Professor. Telegrams have been sent in every direction, requesting that notice be sent here of the discovery of any trace of the missing balloon.

ATTEMPTED HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

MADISON, N.J., Oct. 3.—Miss Fannie Hopkins, granddaughter of Judge Lathrop, Receiver of the New Jersey Central Railroad, was driving near Morris Plains, Yesterday, when her carriage was stopped by a man who sprang from the woods and demanded money. Miss Hopkins threw what money she had behind the carriage, and when the highwayman went to pick it up drove away. Miss Hopkins wore valuable jewelry and diamonds, and was scarcely half a mile from where she had been visiting.

DISEASED MEAT IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—Over 10,000 lbs of diseased meat was seized by the health officers to-day at the city markets, it being bruised, tainted, affected with hog cholera, &c. The export regulations are now so strict that none of this sort of meat can be shipped. It is, therefore, bought up by scalpers and sold to the city trade. The health officers are putting a veto on it.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

COMMUNICATIONS CUT.

SIMLA, Oct. 3.—Authentic information has been received here that communication with the British troops was cut off to-day on both sides of the Shutargardan Pass by the tribes. Reinforcements are being sent up the Kurum Valley.

A STAND TO BE MADE.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A despatch from Zargun Shahr says the preponderance of native opinions is that the Afghans will made a stand this side of Cabul. The Ameer is anxious to return to Cabul. The general opinion is that he was allowed to leave on his engagement to arrest the British advance, and he fears the troops will avenge themselves by attacking his palace.

THE INDIAN WAR.

By Telegram to the Review.

RESISTING REMOVAL.

RAWLIN, Wyoming, Oct. 4.—One man, who escaped when the Gordon waggon train was captured, says the Utes told him two days before the Thornburgh fight that they did not intend to molest citizens, but would kill all soldiers who came to remove them from their reservation.

ENCROACHMENT OF WHITES.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—Schurz, in an interview yesterday, said he first heard of the trouble among the Utes on September 18th, while in Wyoming, and hurried to Denver to consult Governor Pitkin, but was assured that no serious trouble was anticipated. The dissatisfaction on the part of the Utes is attributed to their disinclination for work, and to the fear which the repeated encroachment of the whites had inspired, that they were to be driven from their reservations.

THE COLORED FORCE MISSING.

DENVER, Oct. 4.—The whereabouts of Dodge's colored command, which left Hot Sulphur Springs for the agency on Friday is still unknown. The opinion is that the company has been wiped out by the Indians. A telegram from Greeley says a letter from Meeker's family was received on Sunday night, post marked Monday. They say that all are well and safe. No Indians have removed their women and children. This letter was written the day after the fight, and does not agree with the scout's version of affairs at the agency. The opinion is that Meeker and all the agency people are killed.

PACIFIC ORDERS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—It is understood that Schurz will promptly prepare a statement showing that the Indian outbreak was unprovoked as far as the conduct of his department is concerned. Nothing is found in the official records justifying Thornburgh's statement that he could not order an attack without subjecting himself to a court-martial in the event that he should survive the engagement which was sure to follow. Adjutant-General Townsend says that of late years it has been the general order of the department, on sending out special expeditions, to caution the officers against precipitating an engagement with roaming bands of Indians. Thornburgh appears to have acted as a cautious, obedient officer would.

THE CENTRAL EXHIBITION.

THE result of the exhibition just held in this town, must on the whole have proved highly satisfactory to its promoters and our citizens generally. Quite naturally people are apt to look at such gatherings from various standpoints. The primary object of all such exhibitions should be the improvement of our agricultural resources, and the various industries more or less intimately connected therewith, and it is and always will be unfortunate when this one object is not kept steadily in view.

On the present occasion we think we may say our exhibition has been reasonably successful in this respect, and calculated to promote the primary object for which it was held. Much difference of opinion naturally exists as to the decisions of the judges, but this is nothing more than is to be expected, in view of the different tastes and views of different individuals. Indeed we are inclined to think that one of the chief benefits conferred by these exhibitions is that they make men of different minds rub their opinions against one another, as they apparently can alone be made to do through these exhibitions. At one time we were in hopes that the Grange organization would be the means of bringing our farmers together during the long winter evenings, and inducing them to discuss matters pertaining to their profession, but, so far as we are aware, such has not been the result.

So far as our citizens and manufacturers are concerned, we believe the show has been an entire success. It was, combined with the excellent arrangements of the Midland Railway, the means of bringing a large number of people to town, many of whom had never been here before, who must have left more or less money with us. We have heard it estimated that it was the means of circulating at least $30,000 amongst us. This may seem a large sum, but when we remember the large numbers that visited the show grounds, it after all means only a very small average expenditure per head. Certainly from this standpoint it was a grand success, inasmuch as we have reaped the benefit of this increased expenditure without adding a single cent to our taxation.

Financially, thanks especially to the clerk of the weather, the Exhibition has also proved a success, although not so great as some seem to suppose. On referring to the Auditors' report of these Exhibitions, we find that the receipts at the gates have been as follows :—

Peterborough, 1875	$2,186 82
Port Hope, 1876	2,267 60
Lindsay, 1877	2,964 39
Cobourg, 1878	2,252 80
Peterborough, 1879	2,237 42

Showing that, with the exception of the one held at Lindsay, the gate receipts have been remarkably steady. Taking these figures by themselves, and remembering simply the fact that last year the expenditure considerably exceeded the receipts, the reader will be somewhat surprised to learn that the present expenditure promises to be very nearly, if not quite, within the revenue of the year. This we feel safe in saying, although it would be premature to say more until all the accounts have been finally adjusted. Of course, while much of this result is due to the management, it would be most unfair not to point out that the Prize List is much smaller than that at Cobourg, in our opinion without detriment to the Exhibition, Indeed so far as the manufacturers of those implements, for which no prizes were offered, are concerned, we understand that they are much better pleased with this arrangement than to have prizes awarded by incompetent judges. What manufacturers want at these exhibitions is an opportunity to show the farmers their implements, leaving each one to judge of their merits for themselves, and not some paltry money prize, awarded without a thorough test of the merits of their machines. The directors of other societies will find it to their advantage to follow the example set them in this respect by the directors of our association, while the latter can with advantage extend the principle to other implements for which they offered prize money on the present occasion.

THE FALL ASSIZE COURT

McGILL vs. GILMOUR, et al.—An action to recover value of logs alleged to have been taken by the defendants from the plaintiff's limits. Verdict for plaintiff for $2,000.00. D. W. Dumble for plaintiff. C. Francis, of Trenton, for the defendants.

KIDD vs. DUMMER.—An action to recover the possession of a small gore of land in Warsaw, nine feet wide at one end, running to a point at the other, and 30 feet long. The evidence showed that the land had been occupied by plaintiff's consent. Verdict for defendants. E. B. Edwards for plaintiff. J. F. Dennistoun, Q. C., for the defendants.

The court then closed.

THE WEST WINCHESTER MURDER.

Reported Suicide of Clark Brown's Mother —Suspicion Aroused.

OTTAWA, Oct. 3.—It was currently reported in Metcalfe yesterday that the mother of the murderer, Clark Brown, had attempted to take her own life at West Winchester. Much indignation is undoubtedly manifested against this woman in connection with the recent horrible murder. Many residing in the locality openly express their belief that the worst has not seen the light of day. If all that is said to be true, a chapter in crime is soon likely to be written that will be without a parallel in Canadian criminal history.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

Public Meeting in the Town Hall at Bobcaygeon—The Project Favoured.

On Monday evening last a most respectable meeting of the inhabitants of this district was held in the Town Hall, for the purpose of taking steps to impress on the Government the importance of constructing the Trent Valley Canal without delay. C. Fairbairn, Esq., Warden of the County, was called to the chair, and upon opening the business of the meeting commented upon the importance of the work, and stated his conviction that the construction of the canal would do more to popularize the Government, and to add to its fame and reputation, than any other measure which could be devised. He should call on Mr. Boyd to address the meeting, for there was probably no man alive more intimately acquainted with the merits and details of the scheme, he having been its persistent advocate for more than thirty years, and only five years since he formed a company to carry the project into execution, obtained a charter for the company from the Dominion Government, and visited England himself to make an effort to obtain the capital required.

Mr. M. BOYD then addressed the meeting at considerable length. He said that many years had passed since he was first led to consider the importance of the scheme for connecting Lake Huron with the St. Lawrence by means of an inland canal. The scheme was initiated by the Government of that day, and was only abandoned for the reason that it was thought that Balsam Lake could not furnish sufficient water to supply the canal. This idea was formed on sufficient knowledge, for it was now ascertained that the innumerable lakes of the back country formed inexhaustible reservoirs and would furnish all the water required. Every year that had passed had strengthened his conviction that the canal in question was one of the works which sooner or later were bound to be accomplished. The scheme was of more than Provincial importance,—it was of more than Canadian importance,—for it was of the deepest importance to the populations of Europe, who by its means would be furnished with the means of subsistence;—indeed it was he might say, of importance to the highest interests of civilization, for it would become the grain groove of the world, through which the wheat of the fertile, fruitful, and virgin soil of the far west would be poured into the empty granaries of Europe. He had carefully watched the course of events in connection with this canal. He had seen the Suez canal projected and completed, and he now saw the preliminary measures being taken for the opening of a canal through the Isthmus of Panama, but gigantic as were these enterprises they were absolutely dwarfed when compared with the influence which the Trent Valley Canal would exercise on the industry and the happiness of the populations of the old world, and in the extent of the new world in the Nor-west which this canal would open to settlement, and from whence it would draw as freight an increasing stream of wheat to despatch to the ports of Europe. It would really seem that Nature, with marvellous forethought, had prepared a great highway between the vast wheat fields of the Saskatchewan and the hungry populations of the old world. Already Chicago exports more than a hundred millions of bushels of wheat per annum, and our own Nor-west promised at a very early date to be equally productive. It must be remembered that the population of England, and indeed of Europe, was each year increasing, whilst its power of producing food was diminishing. There was therefore a rapidly increasing demand for bread and meat from America, and already the ordinary means of transport were utilized to nearly their full extent. The carrying capacity of the Erie Canal had touched its greatest limit, and increased means of transport and cheaper freights were demanded. This project supplied that demand in the most complete manner, and by its means grain could be carried at a price which placed the wheat of the Saskatchewan on the English market at a figure with which the English farmer could not compete. Water, of all means of transport, was by far the cheapest, and of the various kinds of water conveyance that by means of large barges towed in a long string by cheap but powerful steam tugs, was the best and most economic. The grain of the Saskatchewan and Manitoba on reaching the shore of Lake Superior, would be brought to Georgian Bay by the ordinary means. There it would be put into the Trent Valley barges, and those barges would convey it alongside the ocean borne vessels at Montreal or Quebec. The idea that ships could be taken through inland canals, was simply preposterous. A ship was a costly thing, a large capital being sunk in masts, sails, and rigging. Whilst passing through the canals this capital was idle,—tugs doing the work. It was therefore obvious that a barge, which was a cheap thing, was the vessel for economical canal navigation. Moreover, ships to navigate the ocean with economy had to be large, such as would draw 18 or 20 feet of water, and these ships could neither navigate the lakes, by reason that the lake ports would not admit their draught of water, nor could any canal be constructed of such a depth except at enormous expense. This proposed canal met every requirement, not the least of these being cheapness of construction. The estimated cost of the canal from Trenton, in the Bay of Quinte, at the head of the St. Lawrence, to the Georgian Bay on Lake Huron was under $3,000,000, a sum which was a mere flea-bite when compared with the Imperial importance of the project. The present Government, with a forethought and enterprise which did them credit, were already studying the best means of providing for the gigantic trade which the future would develop in the Nor-West, and this project was one which received their earliest attention. It was most desirable that the people dwelling along the line of the proposed canal should press its importance on the attention of the Government, and he would therefore move the following resolution.

That it is not possible to develop the great North-West Territory until there is a cheap, safe, and expeditious means of transporting the produce of that Territory to tide water, and that as the Trent Valley Canal affords such means of transportation the Government of the Dominion be pressed to undertake the construction of that Canal without delay.

W. Snowdon, Esq., seconded the resolution and in some remarks of a slightly conversational character observed that this project ought to meet with the warmest and most hearty support in Montreal and Quebec. At present the grain trade of the west was through the ports of Boston and New York, and the Welland Canal was simply a work built by Canadian capital to favour American commerce, but if the Trent Valley Canal were opened the grain trade would be revolutionized and it would all go to Montreal and Quebec.

Mr. Councillor Howson, on moving the second resolution, pointed out the great saving in distance which the opening of this canal would effect. From the Straits of Mackinaw to the head of the St. Lawrence by the Welland route was 785 miles, by the Trent Valley route it would be only 550, a saving of 235 miles. The canal was only 200 miles in length, and of this 200 miles 150 are at the present moment navigated by steamboats. This route would have the great advantage of safety, as the lakes through which it passed are generally not more than a mile in width, and therefore no marine insurance would be required. The steam tugs could tow long trains of barges, and the rock bound shores receive no injury from the wash. The resolution he had to move was as follows :—

That a Committee be appointed to act in conjunction with Committees at Trenton, Peterborough, Fenelon, and other places, to take all necessary steps to press the matter on the Government, and to act as delegates when necessary and that Mr. Boyd, Mr. Stewart and Mr. Reed be the Committee.

S. Crabtree, Esq., J. P. in a few well chosen words in which he touched on the great advantages to the Province of Ontario which would follow on the opening of the canal seconded the resolution.

W. B. Read, Esq., Township Treasurer, moved the following resolution :—

That a subscription be entered into to defray the expences of this movement.

The resolution was carried, as was also a very hearty vote of thanks to the Warden for his able conduct in the chair. The meeting, which was very earnest and unanimous, then broke up. —Independent.

OUR LOCAL RAILWAYS.

From the Belleville Intelligencer.

The announcement which we were enabled to make on Saturday, that an arrangement had been concluded with the Grand Trunk Railway Company for the operation of the Grand Junction and Belleville and North Hastings Railways for the term of one year, dating from the 1st of June last, is satisfactory to the extent that the former line is at length to be opened for traffic to Hastings, and that the latter will be operated throughout. We are certainly of the opinion—and a large number of people think with us—that it would have been much more advantageous to this city had the lines in question been operated by an independent company; but the proprietors have decided otherwise. There are, however, some advantages in the arrangement which have been made, and these are that rolling stock sufficient to accommodate the traffic is likely to be furnished, and that the lines will probably be kept more clear of snow than under other circumstances, as the Grand Trunk is well supplied with snow ploughs.

Germane to this subject is the letter from Mr. Bickford, in reply to other communications concerning the matter which have appeared in these columns. From this we learn that public opinion, as expressed by us, has induced the Managing Director to make a slight condescension, namely to have the trains stopped at stations in Huntingdon when any one wishes to get on or off. This is not enough, as no accommodation is provided for the freight traffic, which is of far greater importance than the passenger trade; but Mr. Bickford coolly tells the people that, unless they pass a by-law granting a bonus of $10,000 to the Railway—which amount would be required to pay for "opening stations, "placing the working staff, building grain ware-"houses, putting in sidings, &c.,"—that no facilities for transporting their freight to market will be afforded them. In other words, unless the people of Huntingdon pay for the permanent works which are required to place the railway in a condition to receive, store and handle their traffic, and make a free gift of the same to Mr. Bickford and his associates, the proprietors of the line will do nothing to develope their own business. When it is considered that the amount of subsidy granted to this line by the County of Hastings, the Township of Madoc and the Province of Ontario amounts to $134,000, or $6,090 per mile, and that according to the statement of our correspondent "Ratepayer"—a statement which Mr. Bickford has not disputed—Messrs Bickford and Cowan have made a profit of $34,000 on the operation of completing the road, it does seem that the demand made the Township of Huntington is out of all reason, whilst the attempt to enforce it by the means employed is entirely unjustifiable. The permanent works required to accommodate the traffic ought beyond a doubt to be erected by the proprietors of the railway, because, although they accommodate the public, they are yet certain to be a source of profit to themselves, by increasing the traffic of the road. If the traffic is so small that it will not pay the interest on the erection of warehouses and sheds, the wages of the officials and other necessary expenses, and leave a margin of profit besides, let it be so stated by the Managing Director. If so, then if even only two stations were put in a condition to transact freight business so as to afford accommodation to the people of Hungerford and Rawdon—say Crookston and West Huntingdon—it seems impossible that any loss should accrue; in fact a good return for the investment seems certain. This would be but simple justice, as we are informed that a large portion of land was granted free by Mr. Tulloch at West Huntindon, whereon the station house has been erected, on condition that a freight warehouse was to be built there and kept open for the accommodation of the public. This obligation Mr. Bickford and his associates purchased, along with Mr. Pardee's interest, it is contended, and the matter will, we are informed, be the subject of litigation unless the argument with Mr. Tulloch be carried out. We hope that wise counsels will prevail, and that the necessary work will be done without delay, as we are convinced that the profits of the road which we have reason to believe already reach a respectable figure—would be materially increased, and the value of the property greatly enhanced.

As to the voting of a bonus of $10,000, or any other amount, by the Township of Huntingdon, we believe Messrs. Bickford & Co. must give up all hopes of that. They purchased the road if we are correctly informed—on an agreement to pay all claims standing against it within a given time. This they did not do, but resisted many claims, which the holders were obliged to put into court, and the result was quite naturally the creation of a feeling strongly hostile to the present proprietors. Thus they are themselves chargeable with having aroused the people of Huntingdon against their enterprise.

With nothing but the best of feeling towards the proprietors of the North Hastings Railway, we advise them to cease their policy of discrimination, and to make of their line what it is intended to be, namely an avenue of trade for the whole of the territory through which it passes. The interests of the railway and the country which it serves are identical, and the trade of the tributary territory cannot suffer without the railway's interests suffering to an equal or perhaps a greater degree; for the farmers still have their old outlet for their traffic, from which, under the present exclusive policy, the railway derives no benefit whatever.

CIVIL LIBERTY DEFINED.—This is not the liberty which we can hope, that no grievance ever should arise in the common-wealth; that let no man in this world expect; but when complaints are freely heard, deeply considered, and speedily reformed, then is the utmost bound of civil liberty attained that wise men look for.—John Milton.

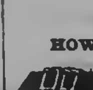
MANHOOD:
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!



WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

"CARRY MY BURDEN."

Carry my burden, oh, my God!
  It seems too much for me,
Although it is no bitter grief
  That drives me thus to Thee;
Only the little cares that spring
From the daily bread's ingathering.

They come so thick, Lord, and so fast,
  The heart is overborne.
There seems no time to be with Thee.
  Noon-tide, nor night, nor morn;
I only seem to live and move
For things I rather hate than love.

Carry my burden, oh, my God!
  Because my strength is small;
The worldlings wonder at my tears—
  Jesus, Thou knowest all;
My fear is, lest these cares of mine
Make me forget that I am Thine.

Carry my burden, oh, my God!
  It seems too much for me
(If the least hope of being Thine
  Should in my bosom be),
That want, or woe, or worldly care,
Should e'er dislodge the triumph there.

"Triumph?" Ah! me, 'tis little such
  This doubt-worn bosom knows;
Tell me, oh, God, is this short life
  The measure of my woes?
Speak with assurance, so will I
Carry earth's burdens till I die.

Carry my burdens, oh, my God!
  Thou knowest them and me;
How I would love Thee if I could,
  And how I long to be
Where care and sorrowing and sin
Vanish as Jesus says, "Come in!"

DYING OF OVERWORK.

The death of the great Boston artist, William Hunt, by his own hand, while suffering from an attack or hypochondria, brought on by close application to his canvas, is a sad reminder of the danger to which professional men are peculiarly exposed in this country. Across the foreheads of many of our best thinkers is plainly written "overworked." Almost the last words of the late Samuel Bowles were these: "I am worked out." Though but fifty-one years of age, he had become an old man by his long continued neglect of rest and sleep.

Young men with unlimited ambition are more apt to be impressed with the biographical accounts of how Choate studied law by the midnight oil, and Schiller wrote under the moon, than with the regular habits of a healthy, rounded manhood like that of Bryant. The economy of time, the gain in working-hours by lengthening the resting hours, the haste that is made slowly and the value of deliberation—these are considerations of no account to the youth whose mind is full of the thrifty New England maxims about early rising, and saving the minutes while the hours take care of themselves. The most inveterate miser in the world is a time-miser. He studies how few minutes it can possibly take to eat a dinner, how quickly he can go from his home to the office, and how little sleep he can allow himself and still live. Life is a continued express train with minute-stops. Rome could easily have been built in a day, he believes, but he is sure to die before the foundations of his Rome is laid.

While slow work is not by any means the best work, very rapid and long-continued work is sure to be sheer folly. The time-miser does not save his time so completely as he imagines. The late Mr. Hunt, of whom it is said that he charmed his friends by an innate kindliness and generosity of disposition, a boyish frankness of speech and loyalty to a high ideal, threw this all away by his eagerness to save time. He was often known to remain in his studio from seven in the morning until seven or eight at night without touching a mouthful of food. He saved a few minutes, but he lost his life. Such penny wisdom and pound foolishness ought to be a warning to all who are overworked, for aside from cutting off one's life the work actually done is not well done. Overwork means excitability, irratibility and kindred mental phenomena, and the work will be equally overstrained and incomplete. All this, one will say, is trite; so it is, and would not be said if Mr. Hunt's death did not sharply point the moral of the old saying, that a bow always bent will soon break. This is a truth yet to be learned by the American people.—Examiner.

GLEANINGS.

A SINGLE fact is worth a ship load of argument.

ANTICIPATION of evil is the death of happiness.

EXEMPLIFYING duty does more than explaining it.

A STRAIGHT line is the shortest in morals, as in geometry.

THE body grows according to what it feeds on, so does the mind.

RELIGION is the best armour that a man can have; but it is the worst cloak.

Do not dwell to long upon your friend's praises; you will end by saying things against him.

THE envious man is made gloomy, not only by his cloud, but by another man's sunshine.

IF a man talks of his fortunes, depend upon it they are not altogether disagreeable to him.

WHAT you keep by you you may change and mend, but words once spoken you never can recall.

THE man who awakes the wondering tremulous passion of a young girl always thinks her affectionate.

MAN blinded by his passions treads upon the border of an abyss, but he would not lead his child there.

IT is a maxim worthy of being written in letters of gold, that there is no method so certain of defeating the plots of wicked men against us as by acting upright.

THE more people do, the more they can do. He that does nothing, renders himself incapable of doing anything. While we are executing our work, we are preparing to execute another.

THE more light admitted to appartments the better for those who occupy them. Light is a necessary to sound health as it is to vegetable life. Exclude it from plants, and the consequences are disastrous.

LOVE of freedom is a prison flower, and we do not learn the full value of liberty until we are imprisoned. The true nature of spring is not appreciated until winter is upon us, and the best May songs are written by the fireside.

WE must distinguish between felicity and prosperity; for prosperity leads often to ambition and ambition to disappointment. The course is then over, and the wheels turn round but once, while the reaction of goodness and happiness is perpetual.

HOW TO CHOOSE A WIFE.—An author recommends a young man, in the choice of a wife, to select her from a bunch, giving as his reason, that when there are many daughters, they improve each other, and from emolution acquire more acomplishments, and know more, and do more, than a single child spoiled by parental fondness. This is a comfort to people blessed with large families.

The kidneys are subject to a variety of dangerous and painful diseases, arising from various causes. By the judicious use of Victoria Buchu and Uva Ursi, these affections may be cured. Bright's disease, diabetes, and all female complaints, are successfully combatted by this popular remedy, which is for sale by all dealers. Price, $1 per bottle.

WINTER WORK ON THE FARM.

In reply to a Massachusetts "country clergyman" who enquires what kind of remunerative work farmers could undertake in winter to "help along," and keep the boys from idling at the store or saloon, the Scientific American sensibly advises that instead of looking about for new occupations, they should give more time and thought to the improvement of their farms. It says:—

Even among the more intelligent New England farmers there is a serious lack of knowledge as to the capabilities of the soil under cultivation, as to the crops that can be made most protable, and the best means of producing such crops, not to speak of the preservation of the fertility of the soil; of means for preventing the ravages of insect pests; of methods of supplementing garden and field crops by the rearing of fine grades of fouls, sheep and other live stock; of augmenting the bulk and variety of the food supply by restocking useless ponds and streams with fish, and so on.

No doubt it would be an immediate benefit to many a poor farmer to be told how, by indoor industry in rough weather, he could add a hundred dollars to his income. Certainly that would be better than to spend the time in idle gossip at the cross-roads store. But the chances are ten to one against the farmer who could so waste his time having a farm so well kept that the same labor would not be worth twice as much if it were applied directly to the clearing up of neglected corners, to repairing fences, out-buildings, tools and machinery, to say nothing of efforts to gain a higher knowledge of the science of farming, to improve the condition of the farm and increase its productive capacity.

It is safe to say there is not a farm in New-England, the value of which could not be advanced—perhaps doubled or trebled—by a few years of intelligent effort. It is certain that not one farm in a thousand is in so perfect a state of cultivation, or its capacity so widely developed, that its products might not be greatly increased in a single year by cultivating in the best way the crops best suited to it and the nearest market, avoiding products for which it is ill-adapted or which can be more cheaply raised elsewhere. Accordingly it may be fairly questioned whether the supplementing of poor farming with some sort of manual labor not related to farm work would not be less profitable than to encourage poor farmers to become intelligent and wisely economical farmers. Trying to complete with skilled labor and machinery by hand work cannot be other than discouraging, even to save otherwise idle time; to do it when the time can be put to better use, more especially when the main business of life demands all of one's time and thought, is certainly not the height of wisdom. Shiftless farming, even when allied to winter thrift, can never accomplish as much as skilful farming fostered by winter study and perennial intelligence and thoughtfulness. New England needs good farmers, rather than any hybrid class of unskilled farmer-mechanics.

And what is true of farm owners is equally true of farm workers. There is no way in which young farm hands can employ their spare time so profitably as in studying to become intelligent farmers. And the best work that can be done for the young people of our rural districts, lies, it seems to us, in the direction of encouraging among them, especially in winter, studies calculated to make their summer work more intelligent and more profitable to themselves and to the community as a whole.

FARM AND GARDEN.

WHEAT AND OATS.—The experiment has been made of sowing oats and wheat together with a view to obtain a winter covering for the wheat. The seed, in the proportion of one part of oats to two parts of wheat, was sown in the fall, and the oats sprang up quickly and were killed by the early frost, the stalks and leaves lying on the ground all winter, keeping the snow from blowing away, and preventing the sun from thawing the frozen ground. In the spring the dead oats made a good top dressing for the growing wheat. The crop of wheat in the following season was reported to be excellent, while wheat on the adjoining land planted in the usual manner was of no value.

SOIL FOR HOUSE PLANTS. Leaf mould is a soil that every plant grower should always have on hand, and those who have none should lose no time in getting some. Go into the woods with a horse and cart, and in some convenient place rake away the leaves and with a shovel scrape up the layer of the black, rich mould, which will be found underneath. When a sufficient quantity has been brought home, it should be placed under a shed, or in a cellar, where it will not be overgrown with weeds. Another soil which is indespensable for pot-plants is the loam formed from decaying sods. To get this, cut sods about two inches deep, from an old pasture, and pile them up in a heap with the grass downward, where they should remain until they are thoroughly decayed. The decomposition may be hastened by turning the heap over occasionally after the first three or four months have passed. Some old, fine-pulverised manure, should also be kept on hand, to mix with the soil for plants that are wanted to grow vigorously. There is still another material which, in nearly all cases, should be mixed in greater or smaller quantities with the soil for hot plants; it is sand. Young plant growers, and some old ones as well, do not realize of what value sand is when rightly used. It may be obtained from sandy river bottoms or creeks that are dry at the present time, or from places where it has been washed together by heavy rains. If it is dug out of a pit it should be washed and exposed to the air for two or three months before it is used.

HOW TO MAKE A HARNESS LAST FOR YEARS. The great point to be observed in the care of harness is keeping the leather soft and pliable. This can be done only by charging it thoroughly with oil and grease, says the Harness Journal, which further adds:—Water is a destroyer of these, but mud and the saline moisture from the animal are even more destructive. Mud, in drying, absorbs the grease and opens the pores of the leather, making it a ready prey to water, while the salty character of the prespiration from the animal injures the leather, stitching and mountings. It therefore follows that to preserve harness the straps sohuld be washed and oiled whenever they have been moistened by sweat or soiled by mud. To do this effectually the straps should be unbuckled and detached, then washed with a little water and brown soap, then coated with a mixture of neatsfoot oil and be allowed to remain undisturbed until the water is dried out, then thoroughly rubbed with a woollen rag; the rubbing is important, as it is, in addition to removing the surplus oil and grease, tends to close the pores and gives a finish to the leather. In hanging harness care should be taken to allow all straps to hang their full length; bridles, pads, saddles and collars should be hung upon forms the shape of each. Light is essential to the care of leather, and when the harness closet is dark the door should be left open at least half of the time during each day. All closets should be ventilated, and when possible they should be well lighted. To clean plated mounting use a chamois with a little trip oil or rotten stone, but they should be scoured as little as possible. Rubber covered goods are cleansed in the same way. Leather covered needs to be well brushed and rubbed with a woollen rag. If a harness is thoroughly cleansed twice a year, and when unduly exposed, treated as we have recommended, the leather will retain its softness and strength for many years.

CHAFF.

A FORTUNE-HUNTER, being in a ball-room, heard a gentleman giving an account of the death of a rich old widow. "Died yesterday in her eighty-ninth year," said the narrator. "What a pity!" exclaimed the fortune-hunter, "What a fine match she would have made two days ago."

A FIVE-YEAR-OLD, who was hungry one night just at bed-time, but didn't wish to ask directly for something to eat, put it in this way: "Mother, are little children who are starved to death happy after they die?" A good big slice of bread and butter was the answer.

Two women recently went to market to sell their eggs; the one who had most said to the other, "Give me one of your eggs, and then I shall have double the number you have." "No," said the other; "give me one of yours and then we shall be equal." How many eggs had each? Seven and five.

A PRACTICAL REMEDY FOR EARTHQUAKES.—Several shocks of earthquake having been felt at Jazebergen, Hungary, the authorities came to the conclusion that they were occasioned by the horrid profanity of the people; and so profane speech was interdicted on penalty of one pound for every oath, and twently blows with a stick besides.

THE other day, says a New York paper, we noticed the following warning stuck up in a ferry-boat:—"Passengers are prohibited from leaving the boat till made fast to the bridge." As we drove on, after reaching the shore, we came to a bridge over a small stream, and learned from a conspicuous placard that "Persons must not cross this bridge while in motion."

AN Ohio gawkey saw, for the first time, a school girl going through some of her gymnastic exercises for the amusement of the little ones at home. After gazing at her with looks of interest and commiseration for a while, he asked a boy near by "if that gal had fits!" "No," replied the lad, contemptuously, "that's gymnastics." "Oh, 'tis hey?" said the verdant, "how long has she had 'em!"

WOULDN'T BE FOOLED.—Several conceited young men were assembled at a street corner, when a poor Dutchman approached. One of them said to his companion, "Boys, I'm going to have some fun; just watch me fool this Dutchy." He went up to the Dutchman, to whom he said, "Mein Herr, don't you want to buy a dog?" The person thus addressed quickly responded, "Ya-a-a, I just vant to buy a leetle puppy about your size? Are you for sale?"

OTTAWA, ONTARIO.
VICTORIA CHEMICAL COMPANY, TORONTO,

Gentlemen,—Confirming my statement a short time ago, as to the satisfactory results from the use of your COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES, I will further add that fresh proofs of the genuine benefits conferred on patients requiring it are constantly coming under my observation; parties to whom I have recommended it, have in a short time, with the deepest thankfulness, acknowledged the relief they have experienced, and in some cases have asserted that it, and it alone, have saved their lives. It gives me much pleasure to assure you that I consider your Syrup, the VICTORIA HYPOPHOSPHITES, the best preparation of any which has come under my notice for Debility and all Pulmonary Complaints, Bronchitis, Coughs, &c., and believing this, I constantly recommend it before every other Compound.

Very truly yours,
H. F. McCARTHY,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

An Inspiration.

When a poet composes a set of verses that stir men's hearts we say he is inspired. So indeed he is. When celebrated students of hygiene, after careful study, gives us a panacea for many of the ills that flesh is heir to, we say they have made a lucky hit. We are wrong, it is equally an inspiration. Debility, bronchical affections, and consumption number their victims by the thousands, but how soon these difficulties could be ameliorated if we only knew it. SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA is the remedy preemiently adapted to such conditions, and if taken long enough is almost sure to effect a cure. It is also perfectly agreeable to the taste. w41-d80-1m

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

SATURDAY, Oct. 4. The market to-day was a fine one, and very large. There was not so great a variety as heretofore The supply, however, was greater than the demand for some articles. There were a goodly number of buyers, and the market may be said to have been a lively one. Apples were abundant, and prices ranged rather wildly. Inferior apples and even some good grades were sold as low as 40c. per bag, while very choice fruit brought as high as 70c. per bag. For the ordinary or fair run, 50c. @ 60c. may be quoted. Russets, small, were sold at 40c. per bushel. Fine apples by the barrel were offering at $1.75 @ $2.00. There were some fine lots of pears at 40c. @ 60c. per bushel. Grapes 5c. per pound. Potatoes were not so plenty as on previous market days, yet the price varied considerably, some lots selling as low as 50c. per bag. Onions, red, 25c. per stem, or 60c. @ 80c. per bushel; white, 50c. per stem, or $2.00 per bushel. Soanes had a fine display of cauliflowers, selling from 5c. @ 15c. per head. There was one head of cabbage, weighing 16½ pounds, brought 25c. Others of good size sold at 40c. @ 50c. per doz. Brussel's sprats 5c. per stem. Tomatoes were more plentiful, but the season is getting late. What were offered to-day were very fine at $1.00 per bushel. Butter and eggs nominal. Ducks scarce at 40c. to 55c. per pair. Chickens scarce, with no change to note. Veal, lamb and mutton at quotations, and plenty. One lot of butternuts was freely taken at 50c. per bag. Hay in fair supply at quoted rates. One lot of young pigs was sold at $2.00 each.

Daily Evening Review

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1879.

LOCAL NEWS

Fresh Arrival.

The Midland Railway brought a large number of cases of dry goods to Mr. T. Bradburn to-day.

◆

Almost a Runaway.

A double team with a load of lumber attempted to run away on Simcoe street, but the horses found the load too heavy to carry.

◆

Lumber to the Front.

Another extra train left Peterborough to-day with lumber. There is an increased demand for cars for lumber shipments, as also for flour.

◆

The Show all Gone.

Everything has been removed from the Agricultural Grounds and Drill Shed, and they have assumed their usual appearance.

◆

Personal.

We notice Mr. M. Flannigan, City Clerk of Kingston, is in town on a short visit to his friends here.

◆

Busy Streets.

The business portion of the town is well filled this afternoon with farm teams, making it seem more like a holiday. The stores are well patronized.

◆

Another Special.

There was another special train up last night with freight cars, and a large number of loaded cars were hauled to Port Hope. Additional cars were brought up this morning, and they are all loading with flour and grain.

◆

Not Left Town.

Mrs. McCutcheon, who was arrested for vagrancy, and was given until last night to leave town, was seen upon the streets this morning. The Constable is looking for her, with a commitment to the county jail for three months.

◆

Auction Sale of Household Furniture.

The ladies of Peterborough are requested not to forget the great sale of household furniture at the house of Mr. John Fraser, on Dublin Street, on Monday, Oct. 6th, at one o'clock p.m. Chas. Stapleton, Auctioneer.

◆

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: moderate to fresh, south-westerly winds; generally clearing weather. The weather in Peterborough to-day has been clear and warm with the wind south-westerly.

◆

Personal.

We are glad to see that Mr. Eugene Clementi Smith had so far recovered as to be able to come into Peterborough yesterday morning. He is still in delicate health, but we hope this fine bracing weather, together with change of scenery, will now restore him to his usual vigour.

◆

The Garden Thieves.

Messrs. James Stevenson, James Edwards, and others have suffered during the week from the depredations of thieves, who are just now paying special attention to grapes and other fruit. Between them and jack frost the loss occasioned has been extensive.

◆

Peterborough Ploughs.

Mr. Jas. Whyte took a large number of orders for the firm's celebrated ploughs from farmers at a distance, Haldimand, Alnwick, and other places. This shows the reputation Peterborough has abroad as a manufacturing centre, in the important department of agricultural implements.

◆

Seeking Release from Prison.

Sam. Williams, who is serving a three years sentence for burglary in this town, is having a petition circulated for his release. He has served about two years. Six months of his sentence was remitted by Lord Dufferin for good behaviour, and now his mother is earnestly at work, hoping to effect his release.

◆

Spalding's Bay Fire.

The rubbish heap in Spalding's Bay set on fire at the time the Brown's shingle mill was burned, is still burning. The steam fire engine has three times been called upon to extinguish the fire and every time it has broken out afresh. There is no doubt but that it will smoulder until every vestige of the heap to the water edge is gone. No damage is now to be apprehended.

The School Board.

This august body which has had some decidedly lively meetings lately, is divided within itself, and according to the best authority it can not be expected to stand. The Committee of Appointments have in several instances recently undertaken to speak for the whole Board, and made appointments without its sanction, at which many independent members take umbrage, and we think justly.

◆

E. Courtney.

Mr. E. Courtney, on Water Street, near Simcoe, has a full assortment of household furniture, which he is selling at lower prices than ever before. His specialties in bureaus, stands, tables, bedsteads, &c., are his own make. He has a factory of his own on Rogers' mill race with all necessary appliances for making furniture up cheaply. See his advertisement in the WEEKLY REVIEW.

◆

Grain Market.

The grain market to-day is steady. Higher prices were paid for 2 or 3 loads, over which there was some skirmishing, but we can safely quote the market as steady at $1.08 for both spring and fall. The receipts for the week have been about 20,000 bushels, while shipments have exceeded this amount. Barley has been coming in more plentifully during the last few days. Receipts are estimated at about 8,000 bushels. We quote barley at 40 @ 55 cents, although one or two loads of exceptionally fine grain brought 58 cents. This, however, cannot be called a quotable figure. Oats are nominal at 28 @ 30 cents, only a few lots in to-day. Rye we quote at 48 @ 50 cents. There is very little to come in, and sales are equally light. The quotation for peas is nominal. One lot of beans, very fine, white, sold at $1.00 per bushel.

◆

Fun on the Railroad.

We clip the following from the Lowell Daily Times:

"The passengers in the rear car on an Albany train yesterday were greatly mystified and amused by the apparent efforts of a barking puppy to get out of a basket carried by one of their number, and completely astonished was the brakeman who opened the basket to find it contained, not dog, but peaches. Then began a search for the "purp," who might be heard first in one part of the car, and then in another. Suddenly a cat appeared to join in the sport, and a pitched battle between feline and canine was then heard, yet where they were no one could ascertain. Soon an old lady was heard to scream, "Oh, Lord, I'm bit! I'm bit!" and as the passengers rose from their seats bound to unravel the mystery, a sad-faced young man passed forward to the smoking car to enjoy a cigar and the joke he had played—for he was Dixon, the ventriloquist of the New Orleans Minstrel Show, on his way to Boston."

Mr. Dixon's friends in Peterborough will be glad to hear of the success he is meeting with in the States.

LONDON, ONT.

A SENTINEL'S DUTY.—Private Bond, of the 7th Batt., the sentryman who was fined for assaulting Chief of Police Williams at the Vice-Regal reception, by refusing to let him pass without a ticket of admission, appeared in Court on Friday and entered into bonds to prosecute the appeal of which he gave notice. Col. Walker appeared and gave bail for Bond's appearance. There is a good deal of feeling stirred up about the case, the members of the battery thinking Bond had been hashly dealt with by the civil powers. A member of the battalion writes a letter saying the men will not go on duty again if they are to be fined for obeying the orders of their superior officers. The battalion has taken the subject up in earnest.

BOBCAYGEON.

THE BRIDGE.—The Independent says:—The contractors for the new bridge are making excellent progress. They are quarrying stone [illegible], and have laid down a line of railway to the quarry. Horses are entirely dispensed with in the building of the bridge. A sidewalk is to be added to the bridge, the sidewalk having been omitted in the original plans. To supply the deficiency a meting of the Village Council was held on Monday, when a resolution was passed the effect of which will be to procure the sidewalk so much needed. Mr. Wm. Kennedy has been appointed to represent the two Counties in the supervision of the work of construction.

NEW SLIDE. The slide in the dam, which includes the fish ladder, has become rotten with old age. The superintendent of the Trent Works, T. Belcher, Esq., is about to have them both renewed. Mr. Kennedy has received instructions in the matter.

COBOURG.

NEW CAR SHOPS.—The Sentinel says that Mr. Crossen has commenced the erection of larger and more convenient shops in which to manufacture cars. Just outside of the station yard, west end, a large brick foundry and moulding shop has been erected, 70 x 50; and this will speedily be followed by the building of a blacksmith shop, 85 x 35, and a machine shop, 60 x 35, all brick. Their contiguity to the G.T.R. track will save a large annual expense for cartage, &c. We believe that it is also his attention to put up a building about 150 feet long for passenger cars.

HORSE STOLEN.—On Sunday night a bright bay horse was stolen from the field adjoining Mr. Higgin's house on King Street. Mr. Higgins had some trace of the thief along the Grafton road, but although he went after him he could find no further trace of him.

A FINE HOUSE.—Colonel Chamblis' new residence is progressing rapidly, and will be one of the finest houses in town when completed.

WILD RICE.—The rice is very plentiful on Rice Lake. A large quantity is being shipped to the U. S., and smaller quantities to England and France.

IRELAND.

A BOY named Hanratty having fallen into the river which flows from Lough Ramar, was in imminent danger of being drowned, when a woman named Lawlor sprang into the water, and succeeded in bringing him to shore before life was extinct. At once medical aid was procured, and the boy in a short time recovered.

That's the Way They Used to Do It.
With a thumb and finger on the nose, a bright silver dime on the table as a bribe, and the Castor Oil bottle in the other hand is the way our mother had to approach us when she was about to attack a severe case of colic that had tied our little intestines in knots. Those days, and that scene, comes no more to us, neither will our little ones ever be obliged to tread in the rough path our parents trod in their childhood. Now we take SCOTT & BOWNE'S PALATABLE CASTOR OIL as complacently as we do condensed milk, and it is just about as cheap—25 cents a bottle. w41-d89 1m

CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

THE RAILWAY BONUS.

Grand Trunk Opposition—A Sharp Contest Anticipated but Success Probable.

Special Telegram to the Review.

OTTAWA, Oct. 6.—The city is placarded with French and English placards against the by-law. This is Grand Trunk inspiration and the effect is against them. Nearly all the leading men, firms and property owners are favorable. A sharp contest is expected, but the friends of the railway are sanguine of success.

U. S. CATTLE.—An extra of the Canada Gazette, published to-day contains an order in Council further prohibiting the introduction into the Provinces of Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island, of cattle from the United States. No time is specified.

TORONTO.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 6.

A LIBEL SUIT.—At noon to-day the case was called of Col. Stollery against the Globe, in which the plaintiff claims $10,000 damages for libel. The plaintiff's case merely consisted of putting in the libel leaving the defendants to prove it true. The Globe charged Col. Stollery with misappropriating the funds of the regiment granted by the Government. It stated that he received $800 from the Militia Department, $500 of which he spent on the regiment and appropriated the balance for his own purposes.

COBOURG.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 6.

THE ASSIZES.—The Fall assizes for the counties of Northumberland and Durham, commenced here to-day, Chief Justice Wilson presiding. Thos. Hodgins Q. C., is conducting the Crown business. The docket, both criminal and civil, is very light.

From the Morning Papers.

WINNIPEG.

PROPOSED BANQUET.—At a meeting of Conservatives, held here on Friday, it was resolved to tender Hon. Messrs. Bowell and Aikins, the Dominion Cabinet Ministers, a banquet on Friday next.

OTTAWA.

THE RAILWAY BONUS.—A meeting was held in By-ward market-hall on Saturday, for the purpose of discussing the Toronto and Ottawa railway bonus by-law, voting on which takes place on Tuesday. A show of hands taken at the close was in favour of the by-law. The contest promises to be a bitter one, and the city has been placarded with every description of argument against the by-law.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

DELAY URGED IN VAIN.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The third regiment of Sikhs and the 21st Punjaub native infantry hold a strongly entrenched position in the Shutargardan Pass. The Ameer strongly urges Sir Fred. Roberts to delay his advance on Cabul, as he fears the Afghan troops will sack Balahizzar on the approach of the British, especially as he believes only one of his regiments is trustworthy. General Roberts will not act upon the Ameer's representations. General Gough, with a detachment of Guides, the 9th Regiment, and four mountain guns, has arrived at Bazawal. He is promised every assistance from the Governor of Jellalabad.

AVENGING MURDER.

An expedition under command of General Tytler, consisting of several regiments, is about to be sent to avenge the murder of Lieut. Kinloch by marauding tribes.

THE ADVANCE ON CABUL.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A despatch from Kushi says the British troops are within fifteen miles of Cabul. A cavalry reconnaissance has been made towards Cabul. Communications with the Shutargardan have been re-opened. An expedition is organizing to punish the hill tribes very severely. The Governor of Jellalabad has submitted to the English.

For all purposes of a Family Medicine, HAGYARD'S YELLOW OIL is at the head of the list. It is used with unprecedented success, both internally and externally. It cures Sore Throat, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites; relieves, and often cures Asthma.

AFTERNOON TELEGRAMS

Press Despatches to the Review.

CABLE.

THE IRISH RENT QUESTION.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Four county meetings were held yesterday on the rent question; at Cork, where nearly 20,000 people assembled; at Maryborough, Queen's County, which attracted 14,000; at Drumore, Galway, attended by 15,000; and at Ballinrobe, in Mayo. The most noteworthy feature was the general absence of the priests, except at Maryborough, where speeches were made by two priests. During the speeches cries of "Shoot the landlords," "give them an ounce of lead" were heard. Two tenants of the Meath estate of the Marquis of Headfert, whose agents as well as the Marquis had received letters on Tuesday last threatening their death, unless their rents were reduced, have been privately cautioned against attending meeting of tenants this week to be held for the purpose of sympthizing with Marquis and expressing their loyalty to his family. At Ballinrobe Davill, an ex-Fenian prisoner, insisted that the late outrage at Castlebar was not agrarian. It's object was manifestly robbery and he denounced the younger Smith as murderer.

INTERNATIONAL SIGNALS.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The following countries have signified their acquiescence to the new international code of ocean and river signals:—France, Germany, Russia, the United States, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Belgium, Denmark, Sweden, Netherlands, Austro-Hungary, Greece, and Chili. The new rules come into use in September 1880.

BURMESE CLAIMS.

SIMLA, Oct. 6.—The king of Burmah has not withdrawn his claim to the Eastern Karnne. If he has occupied the territory, a force will doubtless be sent in the cold season to expel his troops.

IMPORT OF GOLD.

MANCHESTER, Oct. 6.—The Labrador, from Hrvre, on Saturday took 15 million of francs in gold for New York.

"PAROLE" A FAVORITE.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Lorillard's Parole has been supported perhaps for more money than any other horse in the contest for the Czarewitch stakes to-morrow.

RUSSIA SHOWING ITS HAND.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Russian press makes a fresh outburst against England and Germany. The St. Petersburg Novve Vermya says that sooner or later a war of life and death with England is inevitable. The only question now is, which is the most available route to Hindoostan.

FARM COMPETITION.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Duke of Beaufort writes that it is impossible to compete with American wheat production. He advises the British farmers to raise cattle.

FAMINE IN CASHMERE.

SIMLA, Oct. 6.—Revolting details of the sufferings of the famine stricken people still come from Cashmere. It is hoped that the worst is now over. The relief measures have been miserably managed, and the loss of life has been terrible.

FRANCO-AMERICAN TARIFF.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—At a meeting yesterday in favor of the Franco-American Treaty of Commerce a letter from the Minister of Commerce was read regretting that official duties precluded his taking an active part in the work, which had all his sympathy. Fernada Wood expressed his opinion that the United States are ready to reform their tariff.

HOLYWELL STREET IN FLAMES.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—A large fire is raging in Holywell street, Strand. It broke out in No. 49, occupied by Carigan, a hatter, which, with No. 50, occupied by Leno, a printer, and other shops on the opposite side are already gutted. The buildings of the entire street are in danger.

A SECRET PRESS.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 6.—The police have discovered workmen secretly printing interdicted pamphlet.

AMERICAN.

A CHURCH DEBT.

JERSEY CITY, Oct. 6.—Bergen Baptist Church, of which Vosburg, charged with wife-poisoning, was formerly pastor, yesterday raised its church debt, amounting to $35,000. Ex-Mayor Seidler subscribed half the amount.

MURDEROUS ASSAULTS.

HEMPSTEAD, L.I., Oct. 6.—Isaiah Stevenson, a colored man, cut a horrible gash in his wife's throat with a razor yesterday, and then fled. When he was followed by an officer, he drew the razor across his own throat. He may recover, but his wife's condition is critical. The cause was jealousy.

A TERRIBLE DEATH.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—George Arthur Gardiner, a nephew by marriage of Prescott, the historian, died at Brooklyn on the 27th September, after two weeks of indescribable suffering, caused by arsenical poison placed by a dentist in one of his teeth to kill an aching nerve. His head almost literally rotted from his body before death ended his sufferings.

COLD-BLOODED MURDER.

WHITEWRIGHT, Texas, Oct. 6.—On Thursday, 8 miles south of this place, some unknown white men surrounded the house of the Watsons, a colored family, consisting of the mother, a boy of 18 and a girl of 9 years. They called them to the door, and shot them down in cold blood. The authorities are working to bring the murderers to justice.

A POET'S DAUGHTER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The eldest of the three daughters of the poet Saxe, was buried in Greenwood cemetery yesterday afternoon.

PROTECTION TO IMMIGRANTS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The recent statements calling attention to the alleged ill-treatment of steerage passengers by the officers of the Cunard line of steamers, have set a foot an investigation. The Secretary of the Trearury directed the collector at New York to investigate the subject. It is quite probable that the Secretary will ask for legislation for the protection of immigrants.

INFLUX OF GOLD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The City of Berlin from Liverpool brought $350,000 in gold.

THE PRESIDENT'S RETURN.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The President is expected to return immediately after the Ohio election.

AN INFERNAL MACHINE.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—An explosion occurred this morning in the law office of Robt. Parrish, by which a lad was severely injured. It was the work of an infernal machine fixed up in a drawer of Parish's desk with parlor matches, sand paper and two horse pistols.

GREAT WALKING MATCH.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The score for the walking match at noon was:—Allen, 50 miles; Behrman, 30; Boyle, 51; Bram, 41; Broady, 48; Brondgast, 56; Brown, 32; Costello, 37, Crossland, 52; Curran, 58; Davis, 21; Dickinson, 38; Dillon, 48; Dugan, 32; Dushane, 12; Ekersall, 37; Edwards, 47; Elson, 53; Faber, 59; Fitzgerald, 57; Fox, 58; Howard, 49; Kemmer, 46; McKee, 37; McHearn, 49; McHeary, 54; Mahoney, 52; Murphy, 60; Perkins, 47; Pierce, 46; Russell, 50; Spellacy, 52; Tait, 58; Walker, 55. The interest in the walk seems to be confined mainly to a crowd of boys and young men, and the general opinion is that the present match is simply a money making affair. Most of the contestants look haggard, and probably there will not be very many on the track on Saturday night. Fitzgerald's tremendous run of fifty miles excited much comment. He only rested a few moments. "Blower" Brown tried to keep up, but took sick at 5 this morning. He left the track with only 23 miles to his credit, and did not appear again until half-past ten. Quite an excitement was caused shortly after 6, when Cromwell, the Indian scout, after finishing 25 miles, went to his apartment. There was at once a row and the managers and police ran in to see what was the matter. It was rumored that he found an objectionable person there. Cromwell, in a great passion, withdrew entirely from the race. Boyle, the Montreal Snow Shoe champion runner, is going at a fine, steady gait.

PROFITABLE STOCK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The Post says that of 2,500,000 shares and stock sold at the Stock Exchange last week, only one quarter pay dividends.

SOUTH AMERICAN AFFAIRS.

PANAMA, Sept. 27.—The Chilian troops are to advance if necessary, but unless the Chilians make a descent upon the Peruvian coast probably nothing will be done by land. A further issue of fifty million dollars of paper money to meet deficits in the empty Treasury of Peru is announced. The Peruvians will not submit to taxation, but are willing to receive a debased currency. Advices from Columbia state that General Wilches, President of the State of Santander, has quelled the Communist riots which have desolated the beautiful city of Bucorman. The killed are confined principally to respectable foreign merchants, only one native merchant losing his life. Some faithful servants shared the fate of their masters. The German consul, Schraeder, escaped, but his partner, Mr. Golkel was murdered. The capture of Colasas, the leader of the mob is expected. He will probably give as an excuse for his atrocities that he was in revolution against the state Government. The recent violent outbreaks are salutary warnings that interior points in this country are not safe for foreigners. From the ports of the State of Magdalena and Bolivia a most important increase is noted in the export with the United States. The aggregate showed in 1878 an advance of $1,283,000. Guesemar Blanco's movements in Paris are exciting remark. It is reported that he has contracted for iron clads and war material in Europe, and will make war on Columbia. Gen. Ibanry, the Minister of Columbia is deputed to receive De Lessops in the name of Columbia.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS

CABLE.

THE IRISH LAND QUESTION.

CORK, Oct 5.—Fifteen thousand people were present at the land meeting to-day. Mr. Shaw, M. P. for the County and one of the Home Rule leaders, extrolled Mr. Gladstone's Land Act. He declared that those who worked the soil should own it, and the landlords should be fairly bought out. Mr. Parnell, Home Ruler member for Meath, declared the tenants required no Acts of Parliament. They should rely on passive physical resistance to unjust demands. So long as Englishmen governed Ireland, they would resort to robbery and oppression. Col. Colthurst, Sir Joseph McKenna, and Patrick Smythe, other Home Rule members of Parliament, also made speeches.

AUSTRIAN AFFAIRS.

VIENNA, Oct. 5.—The Emperor Francis Joseph is expected to return from the country on the sixth. He will then formally accept Count Andrassy's resignation as Minister of Foreign Affairs, and instal Baron Haymerle as his successor. Andrassy will immediately leave Vienna for his country seat.

THE FRANCO AMERICAN TREATY.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—A great meeting was held in the Champ Elysees circus to-day to consider the proposed commercial treaty with America. M. Girard wrote sympathizing with the movement, and Mr. Fernando Wood and Leon Chotteau delivered speeches in favor of the treaty. Resolutions were passed calling on France to respond to America's wishes and conclude a treaty.

INSULT TO A RUSSIAN CONSUL.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Some fanatics publicly insulted the Russian Consul at Salonica and the Musulman population became very excited. The troops were called out and maintained order.

AMERICAN.

DEVASTATION IN MINNESOTA.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 4.—Prairie fires destructive to property and life are reported almost daily from points north-west of here. Fires are raging terrible between the lower city and valley city, Dakota Territory. For 80 to 100 miles all is a black desolate waste. The hay and straw stacks in every direction are destroyed. Along the railway, ties left for future use are burning. No efforts to extinguish the fires are of any avail. Several hundred tons of hay have been destroyed and some farm buildings. A man was burned to death along the prairie. At Granite Falls, Minn., the fires are raging furiously. Much farm property has been destroyed. An old lady was overtaken by the flames that destroyed her homestead, and dangerously burned. The aggregate loss from these fires will be very great.

STRUCK BY A CYCLONE.

VASSAR, Mich., Oct. 4.—A cyclone, accompanied by heavy rain, passed over the county fair ground at Matronsville, Tuscalo county this afternoon, doing great damage. One tent where the tables were set for 100 persons, was blown down, overturning the stove and a large reservoir of boiling water, severely scalding six ladies, one of whom, with an infant a few months old, probably fatally. In the main ball the exhibits were considerably injured by rain. One firm exhibiting quite a large stock of silks reports a total loss.

THE RAILWAY BONUS.

THE by-law for granting a bonus to the Toronto & Ottawa Railway is to be voted upon to-morrow in Ottawa. At the public meetings that have been held, it has been manifest that public opinion is strongly in favor of the railway, and if the people of the capital were left to decide the question for themselves there could be no doubt of the result—they would grant the required assistance to an enterprise which they so much desire to see carried out. It is evident however that there is bitter opposition and a lavish expenditure of money from outside. A rival road is, we fear, prepared as at Toronto to use the most unscrupulous means to ward off competition. This very anxiety to maintain the present monopoly should be a strong argument in favour of a second trunk line from the west to our sea ports.

BOWMANVILLE.

SMOTHERED IN GRAIN.—While a vessel was being loaded with barley at the wharf here on Saturday, some boys went up to the third story of the elevator and amused themselves by jumping into a bin, from which the grain was running by means of a spout down to the ground floor. One boy, about 11 years of age, named Terry, jumped into the hollow formed over the hole of the spout, and being unable to climb out, was drawn under the grain and smothered. Attempts were made to rescue him, but this was found to be impossible, and several hundred bushels had to be run out on the floor before he could be reached, taking about two hours and a half. The bin is twenty-five feet deep, and the boy was about ten feet under the grain and standing straight up when found. Life was quite extinct.

BENEVOLENCE OF NEWSPAPER MEN.

A Friendly "Crack" on Free Local Notices—Church Socials and Temperance Meetings.

We want to have a little friendly "crack" with the people who feel competent to instruct the benighted newspaper man upon the proper definition of the word "news." Naturally one would suppose that the man who is trained to the business of making newspapers is the better qualified to discriminate between news items and advertisements, but practically there are hundreds of honest and honorable people, ladies and gentlemen, in various walks of life, who are sure that the newspaper men have never been properly instructed upon this important subject. These good people think that anything which the subscribers to the paper are anxious to read, ought to be gladly accepted by the publisher and inserted in the paper without money and without price. Especially should any item referring to a benevolent or religious enterprise be freely published; "it helps fill up the paper," the people want to read it, and "it is just as good as any other news." The people who entertain these ideas must not be confounded with the "beats" who were mentioned in the last paragraph; they do not mean to do anything unfair, they are not stingy nor dishonest, but they honestly entertain wrong ideas—if we entertain correct ones. The first step in the path of error is the supposition that the receipts from circulation—that is, the money paid by subscribers and the newsboys—are the chief source of revenue to the publisher, and that the money received from advertisers is a minor item, a sort of extra profit which the publisher pockets. That is quite a mistake. The Spectator gets more money from advertisers than from subscribers, and as the profits on a year's business are by no means equal to half the receipts, it follows that if the advertising was done for nothing the subscribers could not have as good a paper as they have now for the same money—the editorial and local staffs would have to be reduced, less money could be paid for telegrams and there would have to be a general curtailment all around. The publishers of a newspaper feel justified in taking money for any accommodation they render to a patron. They buy the news of the day from telegraph companies, from correspondents, and from reporters; they hire printers to set the type; they buy paper, ink and presses, and they hire editorial writers to comment upon topics of interest. The result of their labours is the newspaper, which they sell to the public. A portion of the space is reserved for advertisers, who pay for the privilege of making their communications to the public. Nobody would advertise in a newspaper if he could accomplish the end he has in view more cheaply another way. If it was cheaper to send out circulars, or hire men to walk about and deliver the communications by word of mouth, newspaper advertising would be unknown. When, therefore, anybody uses the columns of a newspaper to communicate with the public about his own business, it must be presumed that he does so for his advantage. The publisher has no particular interest in the communication or its results; he is simply the medium or carrier, and has a right to charge a fair price for his services in that capacity. Let us see how these ideas are warped in practice. A church, a temperance lodge, or some other organization is about to get up an entertainment for the purpose of replenishing a depleted treasury. An active member of the committee conceives the idea that it would be a good plan to have a notice of the coming entertainment inserted in the newspaper. The society is "too poor to advertise," the object is a good one, so the publisher can hardly refuse to make a "local" of the entertainment. How does the thing work? A regular paid-for notice or advertisement of the entertainment might cost anywhere from 50 cents to $5 according to the space occupied. Admission to the entertainment costs 25 cents. Suppose the 50 cent notice brings 20 people who would not have attended otherwise the church or lodge takes in $5, of which $4.50 is clear profit after paying expenses. If only three persons come, the capital expenditure is replaced and 50 per cent. profit is realized, if only one person comes, the loss is only 25 cents, and what lady or gentleman would care to place himself under an obligation to a stranger for the sake of saving 25 cents? A church which has just cleared $4.00 as the result of an investment in printer's ink is an object of charity indeed if it begrudges the printer his well-earned 50 cents. The goodness or badness of the object has nothing to do with the case. Publishers are semi-human, and like some other bipeds have their preferences and affinities with regard to churches. The publisher who happens to be a Presbyterian does not care any more personally about the success or failure of an Episcopal bazaar than an Episcopalian baker cares for the result of a Presbyterian social. Each of these men places his quarter on the plate in his own church on a Sunday morning and performs his other denominational duties, among which may be the giving of a garden party or a social at his residence during the year for the benefit of some church fund. The baker comes to the publisher and says: "make an item about the social at my house next Friday, so that I can get a crowd and help our church; the object is a good one, but we are too poor to advertise." Of course the publisher consents and next week he approaches the baker with "Give me a dollar's worth of buns to feed the people at the social which I am about to give for our church." Does he make any such request? No, and if he did the baker would laugh in his face. The man who gives a social pays the baker for buns; he foots the bills for fruit and oysters and flowers, without a murmur, but when it comes to the notice in the newspaper which has drawn far more people than the flavor of the oysters or the odor of the flowers he thinks himself entitled to claim it as a gratuity. That can only be because he has never given the subject proper consideration.

Take next the case of meetings at which no admission fee is collected, but which some one desires should be well attended. How common it is to send in "local" notices to be inserted "as news items," because "nobody is going to make any money out of the meeting." Stop a moment. Somebody wants to have the meeting well attended, and if there were no newspapers, it would be necessary for that person to write, or have printed, say, 50 circulars, which, placed in 50 cheap envelopes and stamped with 50 one cent stamps, would cost from $1 to $2 to deliver. That amount would have to be paid out of the pocket of an individual or out of the society's funds. The use of the newspaper prevents that greater outlay. Supposing the circulars and delivery would cost $1.50, while the legitimate use of the newspaper would save $1, is it right that the society should gobble up the printer's 50 cents as well, making him a compulsory subscriber to that extent several times a year? He cares no more for the progress of one of these societies than any other citizen. He and his family subscribe like other people to the various worthy objects of charity when applications are made from door to door, yet because he owns a newspaper instead of a bakery or a butcher shop he is expected to expend on benevolent objects about $2,000 a year more than any other man employing an equal income, and he is supposed to feel an interest in all denominations, all societies—everything, in fact, from a protracted meeting to a horse race. The men he employs will never agree to take their pay in votes of thanks, smiles, good wishes, or even prayers, but insist upon the regular receipt of legal tender.—Hamilton Spectator.

INDIAN WAR.

By Telegraph to the Review.

A GENERAL MASSACRE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Special despatches concerning the Ute outbreak report that there were twenty-one white people south of Thornburgh's battle field, exclusive of the agent Meeker and his family. Lowry, who was at the agency on the 27th, was informed by the Indians who escorted him off the reservation, that they intended to kill the Meekers and all the whites on the reservation on the 28th, and that they did kill them on that day is considered certain. It is asserted that the Indians are in a condition to give Merritt battle. The Bannocks, Snakes, Arapahoes, and Shoshone Indians are becoming uneasy and are leaving their reservations in small parties.

A FATAL MISTAKE.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Fears are entertained that the despatch from the agent at Los Pines, announcing the massacre of Agent Meeker, and that Payne's command is without water, is true. The opinion is expressed by army officers that it was a mistake to send Thornburgh with so small a command on an errand, the very nature of which would excite the bitterest feelings among the Utes.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Col. Hatch telegraphs via Fort Leavenworth, Kas., to Gen. Sheridan's headquarters here:—"Morrow came up with Victoria and his band on the 28th Sept., near Ojocatienti, and so far after two days, reports having inflicted severe punishment on the Indians, capturing 60 horses and mules, including twelve or more of Hooker's horses. Victoria was in an almost inaccessible country, and was well fortified, but Morrow dislodged him. Morrow continues the fight. I am sending the Apaches just enlisted, also a company of 60 cavalry, and two companies from Stannton to him, and now have no doubt of the final result. I can now attend to the Ute country."

A LUDICROUS BLUNDER.

A correspondent of the Daily Telegraph at Maritzburg writes:—"The bishop of Natal happened to have been paying a visit to Durban, and was returning by the ordinary public conveyance that usually arrives an hour or so before the post-cart by which Lord Chelmsford was travelling. The omnibus was later than usual, and before it had arrived it was already growing dusk. The crowd with ropes waited patiently, and at last a vehicle was seen coming down the road from Durban. 'Here it is!' was the cry, and a general rush was made toward it. Naturally the driver pulled up, and an eager citizen, putting his head in at the window of the conveyance, said 'We are going to drag you into town in another carriage, my lord.' 'Thank you very much,' replied a voice from within; while, in another moment, a tall, white-haired figure was seen bowing gracefully in recognition of the intended honor. 'Its the bishop!' cried a horified voice from the blackground; and so, in truth, it was Dr. Colenso, who was thoroughly enjoying the mistake, and the consternation which followed on its being discovered. The intending carriage-pullers scattered in all directions, not without, I am ashamed to say, a dropping fire of groans and hisses as the omnibus moved on."

SCOTLAND.

THE Clyde Floating Swimming Bath Company, Greenock, reports that 16,200 persons have availed themselves of the baths during the summer.

ON the 7th Sept., what is generally known as a "flower service" was held in Christ Church, Falkirk. The bouquets numbered 100, and were sent the following day to the Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh.

A LARGE herring whale, upwards of 50 feet long, ran ashore on the north side of the Auskerry Island on the 7th Sept., and was killed by the lighthouse keepers, who are the only inhabitants on the island.

Two young gentlemen, brothers of the name of May, and members of the Brixton Bicycle Club, have arrived at Wick on bicycles from London. The journey from London occupied ten and a-half days.

THE foundation-stone of a new lunatic hospital for Dundee was laid on the 17th Sept., with Masonic ceremony. When finished, it will accommodate 3000 paupers and 70 private patients, and will cost £40,000.

THE sum of £112 10s. 8d. has been obtained for the funds of the Western Infirmary Glasgow through the kindness of John Elder & Co. in allowing the steamship Orient to be open for inspection for two days.

ON the 8th Sept., the cairn erected on Craig-Gowan in commemoration of the Duke of Connaught's marriage was "inaugurated" in the presence of the Queen, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and Princess Beatrice.

THE triumphal arch erected in the grounds of the Marquis of Lothian, near Dalhousie, on the occasion of the visit of King George the Fourth in 1822, is being removed. It is to be re-erected as an entrance gate to the carriage drive leading from the Dalhousie Road to Newbattle Abbey.

THE monument in memory of the late Dr. James Bryce, erected to mark the spot where he fell in the Lass of Inverfarigag, has just been completed. The memorial stone is opposite the spot where he fell. A picturesque crag at the base of a steep hill forms the background; birch trees and ferns of great variety clothe the steep; and a stone slab, intended to serve as a seat, is placed in front, where travellers may rest and contemplate the scene of the catastrophe.

ANOTHER valuable addition has just been made to the Linlithgow Palace Museum in the shape of a turning vane, the gift of Provost Dawson. The vane, which stood on the top of St. Michael's Church five centuries ago, was made of copper, and represented a hen and chickens dispersed on the points below, said to have been the favorite motto of James III. The chickens have now, however, disappeared, but the "hen" is in a wonderful good state of preservation. It is fully two feet in length, and has been shot through with a bullet at some time or other.

MR ADAM JAMIESON, J.P., died at Newton-Stewart on the 13th September. He was born in the town, and during the "three score years and ten" in which he lived in it, he was never more than a week out of it at one time. Mr. Jamieson was joint-agent with Mr. M'Cutcheon for the City of Glasgow Bank in Newton-Stewart, and had retired years ago with an annuity from the directors. He had amassed ample means to keep him in his declining years, but had invested nearly his all in the City Bank shares, and the calls made by the liquidators stripped him of everything.

QUESTIONS FOR SELF-EXAMINATION.

Therefore if any man be in Christ He is a new creature, &c.—2 Cor, v. 17.

Can I by God's Spirit say,
Old things now are pass'd away,
Though once blind I now can see,
All things are made new to me,
Does God's love my soul so fill
I with joy perform His will;
This constraining motive, He Gave His Son to die for me.

Poor and blind, and naked, do
I myself as helpless view,
Trusting my whole soul upon
What my Lord for me has done,
Seeking by His grace to show
More to righteousness I grow,
This my pray'r, 'Lord make Thou me
What Thou dost delight to see.'

When I meet with grave offence,
Does a deep abiding sense
Of divine forgiveness, so
Fill me that I can bestow
Pard'ning love, and seek to live
Ever good for ill to give?
Loving all as Christ lov'd me,
More and more will like Him be.

Cloth'd with sweet humility,
Does His spirit dwell in me?
Does His all consoling power
Comfort me in trial's hour?
Not repining knowing He
Good will all things work for me,
Does he teach me so that I
Abba Father child-like cry.

Does my words and acts each day
Christian graces more display,
Truthful, upright, just and kind,
Do I show I have Christ's mind?
Faithful in all things I do
To each trust and promise true,
Conscious when God doth bestow
Precious gifts the more I owe.

Do I God's own Word more prize,
Is he lovely in mine eyes?
So that I each day adore
His perfections more and more,
Brought to know redeeming love,
Do I think of Him above
All things else, and love to tell,
Beauties of Immanuel.

A JUNGLE SCENE.

Ten o'clock of a burning summer morning. Ten o'clock in an Indian jungle. A tangle of rich green vines, and many large-leaved shrubs and bushes, feathery palms, and the quaint huldoo, with its superb drooping branches, making heavy masses of shade. Velvety undergrowth of long, rich grass, strangely crushed and beaten down, as if by some struggle, or as if some heavy body had lain there. The tree trunks are worn and polished near the ground, as if by the whetting of a cat's claws; but what a gigantic cat! The sun is drooping down in golden flecks and patches through the interlacing boughs. On the right is a tree loaded with white, waxy blossoms, whose heavy sweetness fills the whole warm air. On the left, another tree, the semal, with its red, cup-shaped blossoms flaming among its glossy leaves. In the centre a saul tree, whose trunk was cleft while young, and which now stands apart in two well-defined trunks. There is no cry of cockatoo or gay paroquet, no noisy chatter of nimble black monkeys running along the boughs. Everywhere a death-like quiet reigns. Everywhere the air quivers with heat, and the sky burns blue and intense. Everywhere is that strange crushed look to the grass, and that polished look to the tree trunks. What does it mean? Every Indian sportsman knows. Thus enclosed bit of jungle is a lair. Just before the cleft tree, lying along in splendid length in the rich warm grass, is a royal tigress. Her tawny golden sides marked with black velvet bands swell slowly in and out, and her tail sweeps from side to side with a slow motion, making the grass rustle under its weight; her noble head is drawn back slightly between her shoulders; she does not move it; her great velvety forepaws rest lightly before her; her mouth is slightly open, showing a gleam of strong white teeth: her cat-like whiskers move softly back and forward; her great grey-green eyes look steadily, with an intense level gaze, at one spot; their pupils are narrowed to mere black lines. At what are those wonderful glittering eyes looking? On the other other side of the liar is a man, whose smooth young face is browned by the fierce kisses of the Indian sun—a tall, slight fellow, in full hunting gear. One hand pushes back the bushes the other is unslinging his rifle. He stands utterly still, his dark magnetic eyes fixed full on those of the royal beast. The only sound that breaks the stillness of the warm, shady lair is the switch of the tigress's tail to and fro in the long jungle grass, and the strange, low, purring noise that comes from the brute's half-open lips. For a few long moments the silence continues; man and beast gaze, each fascinated by the other, then a strange thing happens. The tigress begins to move her head and shoulders easily from side to side; she stirs and thrills all down her superb strength; her great green eyes open and close in an odd dazzled way. The man's eyes never flinch. The tigress trembles, half rises, draws back, rises, turns, and, with a splendid velvety tread, winds slowly off through the grass, crushing it under her softly cushioned feet, and leaving behind her a winding path. Once or twice she pauses and looks back, half turning; then she goes on with her voluptuous, sinuous motion until the long grass and undergrowth hide her, and the man stands alone in silence in the Indian jungle.—Scribner's Monthly.

DRESSED POULTRY.

As the season for dressed poultry draws near it may not be amiss to make a few suggestions as to the best methods of preparing them for market, having in view more particularly those intended for shipment to Europe. In the United States the business has acquired considerable proportions, and this has been promoted by the care taken in dressing and packing. In Canada shippers have sustained heavy losses owing to want of proper attention in this respect, and, as in the butter trade, our dealers have been obliged to compete at a disadvantage with our American neighbors.

In fattening poultry give them all they can eat. Corn is preferable, as poultry fattened on it is more yellow and better than that fed on any other grain, remembering that not only is every additional pound gained thus paid for, but by improving the quality the market value is increased from 25 to 50 per cent.

In killing and dressing it should be borne in mind that food in the crop not only injuries the appearance, but is liable to sour, and purchasers object to paying for this worse than useless weight: the fowl should, therefore, be kept from food about twenty-four hours before killing. All poultry, but especially turkeys, should be killed by bleeding in the neck and picked while the body is warm, but in no case should the poultry be scalded. Pluck dry, leave tail and wing feathers on, but do not draw the intestines; wrap the head in brown paper, tuck it under the wing and tie a piece of string round the body, but be careful in plucking not to break the skin, as a little damp weather would else cause them to mildew.

Poultry should be entirely cold, but not frozen before being packed, as, if packed with the animal heat in, it will be almost sure to spoil. The different qualities should be carefully sorted, and those of same quality packed together. Old gobblers should never be packed with No. 1 qualities. The packing boxes should be lined with clean paper, never with straw, and the birds should never be wrapped singly in paper. They should be packed as closely as possible, backs upward, about twenty in a box, and the box should be so full that when the covers are nailed down there can be no possibility of the contents shifting. The average quality should be shown at the top, as any attempted deception in this respect, or in the gross weight and correct tare, will have the effect of injuring the reputation of the shipper's mark. The gross weight and tare should be carefully marked on the cover, full advices and invoice sent by mail immediately after the goods have been shipped. The latter part of October and the beginning of November constitute the principal export season in this market, and better results should be had from those shipped by the later steamers at this port, as they are less likely to spoil than if sent over long rail routes. Packages should be sent so as to reach Montreal by the middle of the week, that arrangements may be made for immediate shipment. If these instructions are carefully attended to the losses of last season are not likely to be again incurred, the farmer, the shipper and the exporter will share the benefit, and another not unimportant industry be created in the country.

The preparation of poultry for the United States markets is somewhat different from that required in this city. Boston shippers require them clean picked and drawn, with the head off, the neckbone removed, and the neck stripped of the blood. But these are subject to duty while undressed poultry go duty free.

The season last year opened at 7 to 8 cts. per pound for turkeys and 3 to 5 cts. per pound for geese and chickens. As the price in England depends somewhat on that of dairy products, it is not likely that much higher rates will be obtained the present season. Our English customers will buy them if they can be had as cheap as beef or mutton.—Journal of Commerce.

To widen the circle of his sensibilities, and to discover the wisest means for making the sensibilities of use in the world, are the two great aims, though perhaps not directly realized, of the philosophic liver.

IN these lives of ours, tender little acts, do more to bind hearts together, than great deeds or heroic words, since the first are like the dear daily bread that some can live without, the latter occasional feasts—beautiful and memorable, but not possible to all.

HABIT uniformly and constantly strengthens all our active exertions. Whatever we do often we become more and more apt to do. A snuff-taker begins with a pinch of snuff per day, and ends with a pound or two every month. Swearing begins with anger; it ends with mingling itself with ordinary conversation. Such-like instances are often common notoriety to need that they be abduced; but the tendency to do the thing is every day increasing, the pleasure resulting from it is by the blunted sensibility of the bodily organ, diminished and the desire is irresistible, though the gratification is nothing.

The kidneys are subject to a variety of dangerous and painful diseases, arising from various causes. By the judicious use of VICTORIA BUCHU and UVA URSI, these affections may be cured. Immigrants for Texas.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The steamship on Friday from Bremen brought 220 immigrants, chiefly from Prussia and the Russian provinces bordering on that country. They are going to Texas, where there are several German colonies. They sailed yesterday for Galveston. Some of the older men bring money and intend to buy land at $5 an acre. The majority of the immigrants have but little money, and will become farm laborers. They have been earning thirty cents a day, or, when working by the year, $40 for a year's work. The hope of working for one dollar and fifty cents or more per day elates them.

Strikers Yielding.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 6.—The strikers today asked to be allowed to return to work in a body and to be paid weekly instead of monthly. Both requests were refused.

VICTORIA CHEMICAL COMPANY, TORONTO,

Gentlemen,—Confirming my statement a short time ago, as to the satisfactory results from the use of your COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES, I will further add that fresh proofs of the genuine benefits conferred on patients requiring it are constantly coming under my observation; parties to whom I have recommended it, have in a short time, with the deepest thankfulness, acknowledged the relief they have experienced, and in some cases have asserted that it, and it alone, have saved their lives. It gives me much pleasure to assure you that I consider your Syrup, the VICTORIA HYPOPHOSPHITES, the best preparation of any which has come under my notice for Debility and all Pulmonary Complaints, Bronchitis, Coughs, &c., and believing this, I constantly recommend it before every other Compound.

Very truly yours,

An Inspiration.

When a poet composes a set of verses that stir men's hearts we say he is inspired. So indeed he is. When celebrated students of hygiene, after careful study, gives us a panacea for many of the ills that flesh is heir to, we say they have made a lucky hit. We are wrong, it is equally an inspiration. Debility, bronchical affections, and consumption number their victims by the thousands, but how soon these difficulties could be ameliorated if we only knew it. SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA is the remedy preemiently adapted to such conditions, and if taken long enough is almost sure to effect a cure. It is also perfectly agreeable to the taste. w41-d80-1m

That's the Way They Used to Do It.

With a thumb and finger on the nose, a bright silver dime on the table as a bribe, and the Castor Oil bottle in the other hand is the way our mother had to approach us when she was about to attack a severe case of colic that had tied our little intestines in knots. Those days, and that scene, comes no more to us, neither will our little ones ever be obliged to tread in the rough path our parents trod in their childhood. Now we take SCOTT & BOWNE'S PALATABLE CASTOR OIL as complacently as we do condensed milk, and it is just about as cheap 25 cents a bottle. w41-d80-1m

LOCAL NEWS

I. O. G. T.

Peterborough Temple, No. 340, I.O.G.T., will meet this evening as usual at their rooms on Water street. A full and interesting programme is announced. All Good Templars are invited.

◆

Fresh Arrivals.

Fresh arrivals of teas, sugars and sundry groceries at Rush & Elliott's this morning. A busy Monday morning is a sure busy week. This no doubt will prove the case at this enterprising house.

◆

Peterborough Rifle Association.

There will be special meeting of the Peterborough Rifle Association held this evening in the orderly room of the Drill Shed, at 7 o'clock for the purpose of making arrangements for the annual rifle matches.

◆

Reduction of Rates.

A despatch has been receiv. .t the office of the Montreal Telegraph Company, giving notice of a reduction of their rates to twenty cents for ten words. Telegraphing is getting so cheap, now that it will come into more general use than heret fore.

◆

The Roman Catholic School Ground.

The Rev. Mr. Lynch has purchased the lumber put up around the Roman Catholic School ground lately for the purpose of the Central Exhibition, and is having it removed for a building which is contemplated.

◆

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: South-westerly to south-easterly winds, cloudy to partly cloudy, continued warm weather. The weather in Peterborough is warm, morning clear, with wind from the east.

◆

Another Big Fish.

On Friday last Mr. J. D. Collins caught, in Lovesick Lake, and sent home, a maskinonge weighing 42 pounds. About the same time he caught one weighing 23 pounds. The first-named weight is, we believe, the heaviest this season.

◆

The Midland Freights.

There are several cars loading this (Monday) morning, with wheat, barley, flour and lumber for the front. The heavy receipts of wheat for the last two or three weeks require all the cars that can be spared by the Grand Trunk and the Midland is running them up as fast as they arrive at Port Hope. All the Midland cars are employed in shipping flour, barley and lumber. Twelve box cars are now loading at Peterborough besides the platform cars.

◆

Peterborough Foot Ball Club.

A team has not yet been chosen for the match with the Trinity College School, Port Hope, for Saturday the 11th., in consequence of the small attendance at the practices. As a position on the team depends upon the play this week, the committee would impress on the members of the club the necessity for regular attendance at the practices upon the cricket ground every afternoon.

A Message.

Yesterday Mr. Andrew Fawcett, while out in a canoe, found a small glass ounce bottle, which had drifted into Yenow's Creek, on the Ashburnham side of the Little Lake. The bottle contained a paper, on which was written the following:—

"$100 Reward. Burleigh, 1879. To the finder of this note:—Where you find this make a search for my body. J. DONOGHUE. $1.00 for you."

On the back of the paper is also written:—

"I belong to the town of Nowhere. J. DONOGHUE, aged 77."

It is not likely that anyone will get the reward for finding the body of "J. Donoghue" in that locality.

Valuable Farm Property for Sale.

On Saturday next, Oct. 11th, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at the Stewart House, Mr. C. Stapleton will sell at public auction the valuable farm owned and occupied by Mr. Wm. Rowse, being the east half of lot 22 in the 15th Concession of the Township of Otonabee. This valuable farm contains 49 acres, highly cultivated and is only 4 miles from Peterborough. There are farm houses and sheds belonging to the same. This property is to be put up at a starting bid of $2,200. For further particulars see large bills now out or information will be given by Messrs. Poussette & Roger.

The Song of a Vigouwous Young Man.

I'm fond of vigouwous exawcise,
Of wowing in a boat;
And I can pull against a stweam.
With any taw afloat.
And when the wataw's vewy wough,
I wow with all my might;
And Dulciana, Wuby, Smyyth,
Wegawds me with delight.

The woason why I wow so well,
My fwiends and twainaw say
Is quite because "I'm up to snuff."
And know the pwappaw way.
Now this is wewy wong, because
I hate that howwid stuff;
And Dulci, Wuby, knows I shave,
But that I nevaw snuff.

What, nevaw? Oh! get out—wediculous! Try a sea foam at Mr. Brousseau's hair-dressing and shaving saloon, Simcoe street, nearly opposite Phelan's Hotel, and see how that will effect your nerves. It one of the most delightful and refreshing tonics for this warm weather. Braces you up, and makes you feel as fresh as if you had taken as long a sleep as Rip Van Winkle.

◆

Wheat and Barley.

Early this morning barley began arriving in large quantities, and was mostly taken at 55cts. Some lots sold up to 58c. This figure, however, is no indication of the quotations. Wheat is not coming in very plentifully to-day. During the morning $1.08 was paid, and it was thought the price would remain the same all day, but at 11 o'clock some of the buyers commenced competing, and it was run up to $1.12 @ $1.13, without any legitimate reason for it. It was stated upon the street that $1.15 was being paid, but we could not trace this to any authentic source; $1.12 has been paid for nearly all that came in up to 3 o'clock. It is impossible to give a fair quotation when buyers allow themselves to become excited, and attempt to run one another off the market. The organization of a "Corn Exchange," would be beneficial to all parties. There would then be no such scenes as are enacted on the market from day to day. The elevator system would greatly facilitate the business.

CETEWAYO IN CAPTIVITY.

The Bearing and Sayings of the Zulu King—A Fine Specimen of a Savage.

A NOBLE SAVAGE.

CAPETOWN, Sept. 18.—Cetewayo is an exceptionally fine specimen of a noble savage. He is big, black, fifty years of age, nearly six feet high, well proportionated, good-natured, with a broad, open face, of the Zulu type, dressed in European clothes, in which he does not seem uncomfortable. He was accompanied hither by four of his wives, four followers, and a little girl. The King gave very little trouble on the way down, except occasionally becoming sulky, and demanded an entire ox roasted for his daily meal. In Simon's Bay, on board the Boadicea, he saw soldiers at drill, and expressed wonder and admiration, remarking:—"Oh, I was only born yesterday. I am a mere baby. I never should have fought against such good men as the English, who intend to take away my country and govern it so much better than I could. They shot us to make us Christians, I ask pardon for shooting back at them."

ASKING PARDON.

In an interview between the Premier of the Cape Government and Cetewayo, the latter said "I was a child of the British Government," my father. "The English came to chastise me for wrong-doing. I caught the stick with which he wished to beat me and broke it. I did wrong to fight him, and am punished. I am no longer a King. The English are a great people. They will not kill those who fought with them. I hope the great Queen will pardon me and allow me to return to my country, and give me a place and permit me to build a kraal."

A ROYAL REQUEST.

When informed that the Government intended to treat him with consideration in view of his valour and previous distinction, and the English officials desired to supply him with everything necessary for his comfort, Cetewayo asked for ten more of his wives to be sent for at once. It is not probable the request will be granted.

JOHN DUNN'S REWARD.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—John Dunn, the Scotchman who was for a long time one of King Cetewayo's principal advisers, has been appointed chief of one of the most important districts in Zululand, including a section near Natal. One of the first acts of Mr. Dunn was to issue an order forbidding any missionaries to settle in his district.

SOCIALIST UP TO A CERTAIN POINT.

I was travelling in a department of the south, after the revolution of February in France. I met one day the Mayor of a village, proprietor of a metairie.

"Sir," said he to me, "what do they mean down here at Paris by that word 'communism'? It is some sluggish business, is it not? So, at least, our curate says."

"It is a system of partition," replied I, "invented once on a time by a dreamer."

"What did he dream?"

"That the man who had a million should share it with the commune."

His eyes brightened. "Not a bad dream either," said he.

"But further," I resumed, "that the man who has 100,000 francs should abandon the half to his neighbor."

"Well, he would still have enough with the other half."

"Then, the man who has 50,000 francs should come down to 25,000 francs, through a spirit of fraternity,"

The face of the Mayor assumed a thoughtful tinge.

"That may still do."

"Lastly, that the man who possess 25,000 francs———"

"Twenty-five thousand francs," he interrupted, springing up with a bound, "that's the value of my farm; let him who would have a vine stock belonging to it, come and seek it. He will see how I will receive him at the end of my musket."

BULBS IN THE HOUSE.

(From Vick's Floral Guide.)

By the exercise of a little taste a world of pleasure can be derived from the cultivation of bulbs in the house, as they can be used in almost innumerable ways. Hyacinths, Narcissus and crocuses may be grown in glasses of water. Pot culture, for general use, however however, is quite pretty, and a little more natural. The Duc Van Thol Tulips are excellent for pots; indeed, many of the early varieties are suitable for house culture. A very pretty arrangement is to plant a variety of bulbs in in baskets or boxes. Any one can secure such a box without any cost, and it can be made ornamental by attaching a few sticks or pieces of bark to the front and sides. Fill the box with sandy soil, and if a little moss broken up finely is mixed with the soil it will keep it from becoming packed or heavy from frequent watering. The box can then be planted with bulbs, all of one kind or different kinds—always planting those that grow the hightest in the center, and the low growing kinds on the edges.

Another very good plan is to have a box, similar to the one described, as a kind of little nursery or reserve. Fill it almost entirely with broken up moss, with a very little sandy soil. Plant this with Crocuses, Hycinths, &c., and keep it in any convient, pretty cool room where it will not freeze. As fast as the plants come into flower you can take them up and place them in glasses of water, and thus keep up a supply for the parlor or sitting room for a long time. If preferred, these bulbs, when in flower, can be placed in pots or baskets filled with damp moss. In fact, they can be used in almost any way desired, and will be found to produce to the greatest satisfaction, furnishing flowers for a long time. If placed in moss, it must be kept constantly moist or the flowers will suffer.

Bulbs, when flowered in the house, should be kept in as moderately cool a room as possible. If placed in a living room, which is kept at the usual temperature of such rooms, from 70 to 75 degrees, they will bloom too early, and the flowers will soon fade. A good arrangement is to keep them in the parlor, or some spare room, not frequently used, and which is usually kept pretty. They will then mature slowly and keep in perfection a long time. A few may be brought into the sitting room, placed on the dining table occasionally, or may be even taken to church, for special occasions, when floral decorations may be needed, and returned to their places as soon as possible. In this way a bulb can be made to do long service. Nearly all failures, I think, result from keeping plants in too dry an atmosphere and too high a temperature.

TIME OF BLOOMING.—We are often asked when Hyacinths will bloom; can we have flowers by Christmas? The request often accompanying orders is, send me the early kinds, so that I can soon have flowers. Now, the truth is, there is but a week or two of difference between the time of flowering of the early and late sorts, and none except the little White Roman will bloom by the holidays, with, perhaps, an exceptional case. The Hyacinth needs a long season of rest, and does not become anxious to grow until about the first of December, and this desire increases as time advances. A Hyacinth planted the first of November will go along moderately, and will take nearly three months in blooming. The same bulb, if kept out of the ground, in a cool and moist place, so that vitality is not weakened, and planted in January, will flower in thirty or forty days. It is always best, however, to get the bulbs in earth as soon as possible in the Autumn, and we have noticed that those kept in earth over the summer, flower the earliest.

CARE OF BULBS AFTER FLOWERING.—When bulbs have been flowered in water, they should as soon as the flowers begin to fade, be removed and planted in earth, where they will get a little nourishment for the future good of the bulb. Even then the bulb is much weakened.

HAGYARD'S PECTORAL BALSAM is composed of the most healing balsams and gums. The Balsams, which enter into its composition, were used by the natives when America was first discovered, and are combined with other vegetable tonics, so blended together, that it is a specific for all affections of the throat and lungs. Thousands of bottles are used annually, and it is considered one of the standard preparations of the day.

CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

SOUTH MOUNTAIN.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 7.

FIRE.—The outbuildings belonging to John Thompson, Pleasant Valley, have been completely destroyed by fire. The loss is $2,000.

LACHINE.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 7.

RUNNING THE RAPIDS.—"Big John," one of the Caughnawagas, accompanied by two gentlemen from Montreal and a resident of this town, left here at eight o'clock to run the Lachine rapids in a small boat.

LAKEFIELD.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 7.

THE RECENT DROWNING ACCIDENT.—The adjourned inquest on the death of Miss Clara Strickland was brought to a conclusion last night. The Council Chamber was crowded until nearly midnight by persons anxious to hear the evidence given. A large number of witnesses were examined by the coroner, Dr. Bell, and the room was cleared for the jury about midnight. They returned a verdict of "accidental drowning."

TORONTO.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 7.

A LIBEL CASE.—In the Stollery case this morning the argument of counsel was heard. Mr. Bethune being for the Globe and Mr. Bigelow for the plaintiff. Shortly after noon the case was given to the jury who were out about half an hour, Stollery then returned into court with a verdict for the defendant's, the Globe Printing Company.

MANITOBA SHOW.—The Exhibition of the Manitoba exhibits was formally opened in the St. Lawrence Hall yesterday, with speeches from the mayor and others.

SABBATH SCHOOL CONVENTION.—The annual convention of the Sabbath Schools of Canada commences at half-past two this afternoon in St. James' Square Presbyterian Church, and will last till Thursday evening.

From the Morning Papers.

OTTAWA.

THE HON. J. H. POPE is acting as Minister of Customs during the absence of the Hon. Mr. Bowell, and the Hon. Mr. Langevin as Secretary of State during the absence of the Hon. Mr. Aikens.

NARROW ESCAPE OF THE VICE-REGAL PARTY. While returning home from the trip to the Chats Rapids on Thursday evening the steamer Aylmer, having on board the vice-regal party, had a narrow escape from being cut in two by a Union Forwarding Company's steamer, which crossed her bow. The steamer, it is said, displayed no lights. The matter has been reported to the Marine Department, and an investigation will in all probability take place.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS apartments present a rather demoralized appearance to-day, and one calculated to remind a person of "house-cleaning." The House of Commons Chamber has been stripped of all its furnishings, and the water is still dropping on the bare floors. The members' desks, chairs, &c., are crowded into the corridors, while the carpeting is receiving an airing on the grounds in front of the building. Everything will be at once straightened up.

THE HON. MR. LETELLIER arrived here last night, and is staying with his son-in-law, Mr. R. E. O'Connor He will remain here a week or ten days.

THE ENQUIRY into the deficiency in the Dominion Exhibition receipts is being actively prosecuted.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENTS.—The Department and Canals and that of Public Works have been definitely constituted. Mr. Trudeau has been appointed Deputy Minister of the former and Mr. Baillarge, an eminent engineer, Deputy of the latter; Mr. St. Onge Chapleau has been appointed Secretary of the Public Works Department; Mr. Braun has been appointed Secretary of the Department of Railways and Canals. The other officers appointed are equally well qualified.

OUTBREAK OF SMALL-POX.—A good deal of excitement has been created in Hull by an announcement that 200 cases of small-pox exist in that city. No precautions have been as yet taken to prevent the spread of the disease. The Separate Schools have closed for several weeks. The public schools will probably follow in the course of a few days.

For all purposes of a Family Medicine, HAGYARD'S YELLOW OIL is at the head of the list. It is used with unprecedented success, both internally and externally. It cures Sore Throat, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites; relieves, and often cures Asthma.

AFTERNOON TELEGRAMS

PRICE OF CHEESE.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 7.—Cheese is quoted at 48 shillings.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Cooper, the American forger, was committed for trial yesterday.

ARCTIC EXPLORATION.

A Copenhagen correspondent says that Denmark proposes to start an Arctic expedition from Greenland. An attempt will be made to reach the North Pole gradually by means of a series of stations.

A TEMPERANCE LECTURER.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—John B. Gough, the celebrated temperance lecturer, sailed for New York to-day.

EXCEEDING THE ESTIMATES.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 7.—The revenue for the present fiscal year exceeds the estimates by forty million roubles.

ITALIAN BRIGANDS.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Five brigands attempted to seize the railway station between Rome and Naples an hour before the train, with the Italian Minister of Public Works upon it, was expected to pass. The attempt was frustrated.

ACCIDENT AT RACES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 7.—During the races yesterday two stands fell, injuring seventy persons.

BETTER TRADE PROSPECTS.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Two mills at Preston, which have been closed for some time, have recommenced operations. The manufacturers are more hopeful; cotton is decreasing in price; there is a prospect of large arrivals and of a better selling margin for manufactured goods. In East Lancashire the prospect is more hopeful. Last week shipments of pig iron from Cleveland have been unprecedented, the average being 5,500 tons daily. This is caused by the demand for the United States, 6,000 having been shipped direct from Middlesborough to American ports.

AMERICAN.

A WIDOW'S APPOINTMENT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—A Washington special despatch to the Tribune says that Mrs. Gilmer, wife of the victim of the Chisholm massacre, has been given an appointment in the War Department. She has arranged for the prosecution of her husband's murderers.

SHOT WHILE DRINKING.

YONKERS, Oct. 7.—Thomas J. Brownlee and George Windman on Sunday drank freely, and Brownlee shot Windman fatally. Brownlee claims that the shooting was an accident.

OFFICIAL PLEASURE TRIPS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—A Washington special despatch to the Sun charges Assistant Post-Master-General Tyner and other post office officials with making extended pleasure excursions at the Government's expense.

THE SANDWICH ISLANDS TREATY.

The Times says that Assistant Secretary French, after examining the Sandwich Islands Treaty, believes it should be abrogated, as it is of no benefit to this country.

DEATH FROM TOOTH DRAWING.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Wm. Kidd, a barge captain, called on Dr. Skinner, a dentist, to extract a bleeding tooth. When the tooth was extracted, blood rushed forth, It continued bleeding until death resulted last night. Skinner is the dentist who sued Beecher for dental fees.

BROOKLYN THEATRE RE-OPENED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Brooklyn theatre, rebuilt on the old site, where so many lives were lost nearly three years ago, was opened last night under the name of the Haverly & Brooklyn Theatre. Clara Morris appeared in Don Pratt's new version of "Jane Shore."

A FATAL SHOT.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 7.—Thos. Decamp, the son of a prominent merchant, shot a hackman named Jackson yesterday morning. It is probable that the wound will be fatal.

MATRICIDE.

CHITTENANGO, Oct. 7.—The coroner's jury have decided that Mrs. Barnard, who died recently, was poisoned by her daughter and son-in-law. They are in jail.

A SPACIOUS PLEASURE GROUND.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—A company with a capital of $2,000,000 has purchased a 33 acre pleasure ground in the north part of the city and is quietly erecting a conservatory and zoological garden on a large scale.

PRODUCTION OF COAL.

The officers of the leading companies saw yesterday that there was little hope that the attempt to restrict the production of coal would be successful.

AN HISTORICAL PAINTER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Wm. H. Powell, the historical painter, died yesterday. He painted the picture of "Desota discovering the Mississippi," in the rotunda of the capitol at Washington.

DROWNED IN A PAIL.

Mrs. James Hennessy, of Elizabeth, placed her 5 month old baby on its cot yesterday and went out. The baby rolled off, fell into a pail of water and was drowned.

RECIPROCITY WITH FRANCE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—A Washington special report to the World says the State Department treats the proposed French Reciprocity Treaty very lightly. So far it is only a private enterprise.

STAND FROM UNDER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—An editorial in the Herald under the caption of "Danger Signals in Wall Street," says:—"We advise everybody to keep out of the street just now. It is a good time to stand from under."

TWO MOLLIE MAGUIRES.

SUNBURY, Pa., Oct. 7.—Peter McManns and John O'Neil, Mollie Maguires, are to be hanged on Thursday. McManns is expected to make a confession exculpating O'Neil. Another appeal to the Governor for O'Neil's pardon will be made.

GREAT WALKING MATCH.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The three favorites are Murphy, Faber, and Curran. Murphy is doing some splendid work. The colored man, Pierce, is walking well, but does very little running.

EMBARKATION FROM BURMAH.

MANDALAY, Oct. 7.—The British resident with his clerks and the Madras guards walked yesterday from the residency, through Main street to the steamer unmolested. The people were much surprised. Notice was given to the British subjects of the intended embarkation. All was quiet.

ADAMS FOR GOVERNOR.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—At the Democratic Convention John Quincy Adams was nominated for Governor by acclamation.

ATTEMPT ON A BANK.

WINCHENDON, Mass., Oct. 7.—Albert Perry, who sleeps in the First National and Savings Bank, was aroused early this morning by burglars. He fired at them and was shot in the arm. The burglars escaped.

STRIKE ENDING.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 7.—The miners of the New Central Coal Co. go to work to-morrow at the price demanded by the strikers. All the other companies will soon start.

FOREST FIRES.

NORWOOD, N.Y., Oct. 7.—The fires are still spreading in the Louisville swamps, and the wind is carrying the flames towards Massena. Large quantities of wood, considerable machinery for cutting wood, with several barns near Madrid, were destroyed. The fire spread for miles, and the people are removing their hay and other produce. The air is filled with a dense smoke. There are no signs of rain.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS

CABLE.

STRIKE OF CARPENTERS.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Ten thousand house carpenters struck work to-day.

POLITICS IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—A great Liberal demonstration took place at Liverpool to-day. Sir William Harcourt, member of Parliament, spoke and violently denounced the Government. It is believed that Parliament will assemble as soon as Cabul is occupied by the British troops.

AMERICAN.

POISON IN COMMUNION BREAD.

MAYFIELD, Ky., Oct. 6.—Startling news comes from Farmington, this county, that fifteen persons, who participated in a meeting of the old Baptists' association at that place, had been dangerously poisoned by the communion bread being accidently mixed with rat poison. The doctors were summoned and the church was at once converted into a hospital. The services were afterwards continued under the neighboring trees, and at last accounts the poisoned people were doing well. None it is thought will die.

A STILT RACE.

How the Men and Women Amuse Themselves at Arcachon.

From the French of Charles Mouselet.

I remember particularly a certain stilt race, one of the oddest races that I ever saw. Six men and four women were "entered," as the horsey men would say. At Arcachon the women share the exercises of the men. There were then on the beach of the Eyrac ten tchankas. In the patois of the Landes, which one might be tempted to confound with the Japanese or Chinese idioms, a tchanka is a person mounted on stilts, and sec tchanka means to mount on stilts. These ten tchankas had all the same traditional costume, without distinction of sex, that is to say, a beret on the head, a mantle of wool over the shoulders, a buttoned doublet, bare feet, and the legs enveloped in a camano or fleece, fixed by red garters. Their stilts raised them five or six feet from the ground. A pole served them as a third point of support. Seen from a distance they looked like gigantic grasshoppers. The tchanka however, is seen to perfection on the bare lands, motionless and fixed like a solitary triangle at sunset, or else when he leans against a pine tree, silently knitting stockings and guarding a black and lean flock. Stern and mute in the midst of the crowd which was examining them with curiosity, their thoughts were concentrated solely on the race that they were about to dispute. The prize was not much. The victor won twenty francs. But twenty francs in the eyes of the tchanka represents a fortune. Soon, at a signal given by the president of the fete they all ten sprang over the bench, howling and yelling. If it had not been for their immense strides, which pass imagination, you might have thought that you were present at an Arabian fantasia. Their evolutions were the same, accomplished with the same rapidity, in conditions which touched upon the impossible, and on ground where the stilt sunk in a foot at each step, Their mantles streaming in the wind, like those of Arabian cavaliers, they ran and pivoted round as deftly as if they had been on foot. The women were by no means inferior to the men; one of them, in fact, came in second, and they were only to be distinguished by their more piercing cries. This race was followed by some private exercises performed by the tchankas in order to provoke the generosity of the spectators. They jumped, they sat down and rose up again, and they picked up as they ran pieces of money that were thrown to them. This spectacle was not the least extraordinary. Bouncing forward at full speed, the man was suddenly seen to stop, the stilts bent, fell, as it were, to pieces, then something was seen moving between three pieces of wood, like the body of a spider in the middle of its long legs. The whole preformance was done with lightning rapidity, the stilts rose again, and the man reappeared on the top of them and resumed his course.

PETERBOROUGH "REVIEW."—During the days of the Central Exhibition this paper was enlarged to double its usual size, and the business men of the town patronized it well. The citizens of our sister town should appreciate their daily paper, for the REVIEW is well conducted.—Lindsay Warder.

THE GLOBE AND THE N. P.

The Globe of Saturday last contains one of its characteristic articles anent "the N. P. and farmers' prices," in which it quotes figures almost by the column to prove that the imposition of an import duty on wheat, barley and oats has been the means of decreasing the value of these grains for the purposes of exportation. The facts (?) by which this statement is sought to be sustained are as unique as they are little to the point. To sustain its position the Globe quotes the figures payable at various times for these grains in the Toronto markets, and institutes certain comparisons between Toronto and Chicago prices for the same purpose. but does not venture to quote and compare the figures paid at the same time in Toronto and Liverpool, which might be, to some extent, to the purpose. We do not think that even the eel-like capacity of the Globe, for attacking the N. P. will enable it to dispute that, when we have wheat to export, it is the Liverpool, not the Chicago market, which rules Canadian prices, and that, under these circumstances, whether the Canadian farmer is getting a relatively higher or lower price now than last year, depends upon the relative cost of transporting it hence to Liverpool. How, then, has the N.P. enhanced the cost of transport? We venture to assert that it has not done so, and that if the margin between the quotations of the two markets to-day is greater than it was a year ago, that difference is attributable to other causes, It is true, and we are glad of it, that freights are higher than they were a year ago, but how comes this? The number of sea-going vessels arriving at Montreal is larger this year than last, but owing to our good crop and other causes, the amount of freight is still larger, as compared with last year, and as a consequence, ship-owners are enabled to ask and obtain better prices. This is the only way in which the cost of transport has been increased between the two countries, and if the Globe thinks well to charge this result to the N.P., we have not the slightest objection. Good crops and plenty of work all around is what the country has been praying for. That we have got the good crops, and that the demand for labour is increasing, will be thankfully acknowledged, and not carped at or regretted by any except the discontented politicians about the Globe office, whose sole business seems to be to find fault with the powers that be unless fortune smiles but on themselves. We trust we are not so foolish, (if it is nothing worse), as to entertain the opinion that the general improvement that is taking place in our affairs as a country is attributable solely to the N.P, or the present Dominion Government, but at the same time we do believe that the decision of the electors last September, and the adoption of the N. P. are elements which are contributing to increased prosperity. The Gods help those that help themselves.

Theorize, and assert, and distort facts and circumstances as much as the Globe will, the great fact stands indisputably that the people did last September enter upon a policy of helping themselves, instead of being mere flys-on-the-wheel, and that under that policy increased prosperity is, perhaps slowly but surely being secured. That is the great point which concerns the people, from Rideau Hall down to the smallest shanty in the land, and from British Columbia to Prince Edward Island—the Globe and its coterie to the contrary notwithstanding.

A STRANGE BOAST.

The Montreal Evening Post says:—

"We wonder if Mr. Joly's friends could manage to prevail upon him to try and forget that unfortunate casting vote. He seems to think it an honor that by this Speaker's vote he was enabled to govern the Province of Quebec for more than half a year. It was not he who governed after all, in the strict sense of the word, but Mr. Turcotte, the Speaker. Suppose Mr. Turcotte died, or hurt his toe, or got tongue-tied, what would have happened? Or, suppose he became displeased with the Premier's conduct; or suppose any one of the little accidents which happen to even the best of politicans befel Mr. Turcotte. There are a good many men not pretending to half the sanctity and probity of the Hon. Mr. Joly, who would not consent to retain office at the vote of the Speaker, or if perchance they did, would remain profoundly silent in reference to it at a political meeting."

CANADA MACHINES IN AUSTRALIA.

(From the Bathurst Free Press.)

All American reaping machines are now manufactured in the United States, as was popularly supposed by farmers some years ago. The IXL Combined Reaper and Mower is a Canadian implement, first brought to Australia and shown at the International Exhibition, Sydney, in 1877, by Mr. William Fleming, who, by the way, has since settled in Sydney as an importer of Agricultural implements, at the Canada Depot, Clarence street. Its excellence as an agricultural implement has been demonstrated in the cornfields and hay paddocks of New South Wales; and there are those who do not hesitate to say that it includes the main features of the invention of the Rev. Patrick Bell.

Turning to threshing machines, it is now seventy years since another ingenious son of Caledonia—Andrew Meikle, a mechanic—invented a threshing machine so perfect that its essential features are retained unaltered to the present day. It is just problematical whether the celebrated Fire Proof Champion Steam Threshing Engine, manufactured by the Waterous Engine Works Co., of Brantford, Canada, now at the Canadian depot, is not indebted to the genius of Meikle, for some of its fundamental parts. However, it must be admitted that it is a wonderful improvement, and that the inventive faculty of the American has largely contributed to the manufacture of labor saving contrivances. This last addition to the farming implements of Australia cannot fail to be appreciated, nor fail to be conductive to stimulate the industry of agriculture. Among other advantages, it overcomes all the serious objections to using steam power for threshing—the greatest which may be mentioned—danger of fire. Another great objection is removed; the reduction of the weight of the engine to an ordinary load for one pair of horses. The Grain-saver Thresher, which is given by the 'Fire Proof Champion,' is another stride in lessening the cost of grain to the agriculturist. It is not more than one half the weight of the ordinary steam thresher, and is capable of taking through the same quantity of straw, leaving the grain ready for market!

We shall be glad to see this implement in the corn field of Australia. In Great Britain it has been satisfactorily established that grain can be threshed and dressed by well constructed steam propelled machinery, at one-fourth the cost of threshing by horse power, and dressing by hand farmers. Such is the improvement in this direction, within the last few years, in the old country, that steam engines can be easily accommodated to the work required to be done, so as to supersede all other methods of threshing, where there are extensive farms.

"In the best examples of 6-horse power stationary engines and threshing machinery," says the authority above quoted, "as found in the Lothians, fifty quarters of grain, taking the average of wheat, barley, and oats, are threshed, dressed, and sacked up ready for market in a day of ten hours, with a consumption of 7½ cwt. of good coals, and a gross expenditure for wages, value or horse labor, fuel, and wear and tear of machinery, of ninepence per quarter."

This is something like three-half-pence the bushel! When will such a feat be accomplished in Australia? The man who makes two blades of grass grow where only one before existed, has been reckoned a benefactor of his race, but the importer, wheather it be for his own gain, or otherwise, who introduces labor-saving implements to these colonies, which will make farming pay, is worthy of our thanks and patronage! The exigencies of the labor market in New South Wales, in harvest time, is such that unless recourse is had to such implements, in many places the industy must be abandoned. This will be regarded as a national calamity."

INDIANS AS FARMERS.

A practical demonstration in civilizing hostile Indians is seen at Fort Keogh, as reported by a gentleman just returned from the Yellowstone. About two years ago General Miles captured, in battle, 150 warriors of the Sioux, Cheyenne and Bannock tribes. These were taken to Keogh. By way of experiment, a plat of seven acres of land was set apart for them, and an officer and private detailed to instruct the Indians in the mystery of gradening. Strange as it may seem, from the generally believed characteristics of the Indians, they entered into the scheme with zeal, and planted and tended crops of potatoes and other vegetables with diligence and care. The result was a bountiful harvest. A number of ponies captured with the Indians were exchanged for cows, and some hogs were procured, and our informant states that these hitherto hostile Indians are now developing into excellent husbandmen. This year they have a garden of fifteen acres, which our reporter enthusiastically says is as fine a garden as can be found in the country. The Indians have no tools, and could hardly be prevailed upon to use them it they had them. They cultivate the potatoes with their hands, raking the dirt around the potato hills and pulling up the weeds with their fingers. It is not an uncommon thing for these Indian gardners to work in the soil with their hands until their fingers are bleeding. They are happy and contented, and draw no rations from the Government. They are much interested in their work and pleased with their success, and express no desire to return to hostile camps.—Chicago Evening Journal.

TRANSPLANTING.

BY P. E. BUCKE, OTTAWA, ONT.

With regard to transplanting trees, there are hardly any, from the currant and gooseberry to the large forest tree, that are not greatly benfitted by being taken out of the ground, the roots pruned and re-set one or two years before they leave the nursery. If this method was more generally adopted by our nurserymen there would be fewer failures when trees were permanently planted. The planter would also find that the trees would not receive so great a check in its growth, and would come to bearing maturity a year or two earlier. Any one who understood what be was about would gladly give an advance price for such trees, as the roots would be more fibrous.

Any nurseman who would adopt this plan with a portion of his stock, and advertise the difference in the cost of trees so transplanted and those not so treated, would add a valuable feature to his catalogue. It is obvious that the reason why trees make so little growth the first year after they have been set, is not so much the removal as the loss of their feeding roots, which have to be replaced before the tree can make a start to grow again; and there is no reason why this check should not take place before the intending planter procures the trees as well as afterwards. It is well known that Evergreens are moved twice and mostly three times, and there is no reason why deciduous trees should not be similarly treated. Young orchards or shade trees will resist almost any drought, especially if mulched; and thus by setting trees sure to grow, time, labor and money may be saved with a little forethought and precaution. Everyone knows the reason why young trees are more successfully moved than old ones is because they have proportionately more fibrous roots left attached to them after they are taken up.

Those who have lived in a town where there is a taste for decorating the streets with forest trees, can scarcely help having noticed the number that die and have to be replaced. As a rule this misfortune is caused by getting trees direct from the woods and setting them along the streets without any previous root-pruning or any other preparation. The wonder is that so many grow—that they do not all die. I have tried several experiments in this branch of forestry, and have been so successful that perhaps my personal experience may not be uninteresting. Several years ago, whilst discussing the matter of growing trees with a friend one autumn day, as we were passing through a sugar bush, he said: "I would advise your trying to grow some of these seedling maples, they will take little room, and I think you will find it a success." So as we walked along together we pulled up with our hands seventy-five little fellows a foot or eight inches high. These I carried home, and having pruned the roots, planted them in a trench thirty-five feet long, where they stood a couple of years, at which time I had a nice lot of young trees four feet high. Two years more gave me nice thrifty saplings as thick as my thumb and eight feet high. Of course during this time I pruned off all side shoots, and I found that even those that were crooked soon grew as straight as a rush. This spring I set out along the roadside as pretty a lot of clean looking young trees as I ever saw. The year previous to getting the maples, I obtained some nuts of the butternut; these I planted, and have also transplanted a couple of times, and many are now ten and twelve feet high; these are set intermediate with the maples, and make a most desirable looking lot of shade trees, and leafed out as if they had never been moved.

There is, however, this objection to the butternut: it puts out its leaves late in the spring, and drops them early in autumn. But the nuts are valuable when young as a pickle, and when older, boys, and some men, like them to eat. The leaf is very feathery, and has a graceful appearance not unlike the Palm. Further west and south I would recommend the sweet chestnut; its leaves resemble the beech, but are of a darker green, and more glossy, and the nut has a certain market value.

IT is announced that the regal golden crown which Pope Leo. XIII. sent last spring to King Menelik of Shoa—a monarch who has always been friendly to missionaries—has never arrived at its destination. Its bearer, Captain Martini, the explorer, was attacked by a hostile tribe on his journey to Shoa, and was deprived of both King Menelik's golden crown and the accompanying pontificial brief.

THE SAME OLD STORY.

She read until she could not see—
"Ivanhoe" o'er weary?
Then dropped the book upon her knee,
And said her life was dreary.
"From day to day I still must tread
The same old round of duty—
Of darning socks and baking bread,
Without one glimpse of beauty.
From week to week my landmarks are:
A sermon dull on Sunday;
On Friday night The Plumville Star;
The weekly wash on Monday.
And oh! there's never a line of grace,
And never a hint of glory."
She sighed and lengthened her pretty face—
"It's always the same old story."

She dried her eyes and curled her hair.
And went to the conference meeting—
From the garden gate to the vestry stair
The self same words repeating.
At last the final hymn was sung,
And all the prayers were ended,
When one from the doorway crowd among
Her homeward steps attended.
They left at length the village street,
And sprang the low wall over,
To cross through Captain Peaselee's wheat
And Deacon Bascombe's clover.
The moon seemed shining overhead
To flood their path with glory;
They whispered low, but what they said
Was—only the same old story!

A LAWYER'S FIRST CASE.

A few years ago, a talented young lawyer, of a western city, whose name is not Smith, and whose briefs have been like angel's visits, was delighted by finding in his office a richly-dressed lady, who announced her desire to employ him professionally. With a beaming smile, that could hardly be restrained from bursting into a full blown laugh, the young Blackstone handed the lady a cushioned arm-chair, and assured her that he was "entirely and devotedly at her service."

Seating herself in the proffered chair, the lady ungloved a small, white hand, that literally glistened with diamonds, and applied a scented handkerchief to her lips, blushed, and casting her eyes upon the floor said:—

"My business is very particular—it is—pardon me sir, but you will not betray me?"

"Betray you? Not for the world, Madam. You can confide in me with the same reliance as in a priest at the confessional."

"The fact is—I want—that is, I have been unfortunate in my marriage relations."

The eyes of the lawyer glistened with pleasure, and, drawing his chair close to the side of the lady, remarked:—

"I see—I see—you want a divorce. I am just the man to get it for you. I am perfectly au fait in matters of this kind, although I never had a case in court. How long have you been married?"

"Nine years."

"Nine years! You must have been very young when you entered that blissful—I mean wretched state."

"I was a mere child—a foolish, inexperienced school girl. A doting mother placed me in the arms of a man old enough to be my father; but he was rich, and for two or three years I did not know the difference I was as happy as though my husband had been twenty years younger. But association with other married women opened my eyes, and I became wretched. I pined for—well, for a heart that was more congenial with my own. A man of your age, now, would have suited me better."

"Exactly so?" exclaimed the lawyer, rubbing his hands and twisting his incipient moustache. "But your sufferings will soon terminate; I will get you a divorce, and then—"

"O dear me!—and then—but I must not be too sanguine. My husband is very rich, and he will never permit me to get a divorce if he can help it."

"Madam you don't know the law—its majesty—its glorious certainty—its magnanimity. Consider yourself divorced and rest easy."

"Well sir, how shall I proceed?"

"Let me see—in the first place, give me a statement of your grievances."

"That would take a whole week. You can imagine what a woman like me must suffer with such a husband."

"Yes, yes—cruel and barbarous treatment—condition intolerable—neglect, and all that sort of thing. I will just jot down a few of the items. Your name is—"

"Mrs. ——. You must know my husband."

"What, the merchant? He's rich as Crœsus."

"Yes he's rich; but I don't care for that—I want a divorce."

The lawyer wrote down a sketch of the lady's matrimonial infelicities, and again assured her that he would have no difficulty in procuring a divorce, with at least $10,000 alimony.

"How much are you going to charge me for making me so happy?" asked the lady.

"Well, I ought to charge you a thousand dollars, but, out of consideration for your sufferings, I will only take a retainer of one hundred dollars, and when it is accomplished, you will increase it to five hundred dollars."

"That is extremely reasonable. I have no change about me no. O yes, here is a check for two hundred dollars that my husband gave me to go shopping. I will only want half of it today. Will you get it cashed for me?"

"It is after bank hours, but the check is all right. I will give you one hundred for your shopping, and keep the check."

The lawyer had that day received a remittance of one hundred dollars from his father, and handed it over to the lady, and, placing his check in his pocket book, bowed his client to the door. He was excessively happy at his good fortune. and that night dreamed of angelic clients, sensational divorce cases, and a huge pile of one hundred dollar bills.

The next morning he went to the bank to get his check cashed, and was thunderstruck when the teller informed him that the name of Mr.——was forged! Indignant at the thought that his fair client had been guilty of so base a crime as forging her husband's name he hurried to the store of Mr.——, with the intention of exposing the lady. He was still more astonished when Mr.—— informed him that he was a widower, and had not been blessed with a wife for more than ten years.

Young Blackstone was seized with a fit of melancholy, which still afflicts him; for all his efforts to find the fair swindler have proved unavailing. He has come to the conclusion to have nothing to do with divorce cases, and has written to his father to send him another $100 bill to replace the one he gave his client for a bogus check.

Died from the Bite of an Insect.

This morning a resident of the Tanneries, named Robert Duffin, fifty-two years of age, died from the bite of an insect received last Sunday. The unfortunate man then felt a sharp sting in one of his arms, but whether it came from a fly or not he was unable to detect. He rolled up his sleeve and perceived that the bite was a poisonous one and soon sent for a doctor, who did not however apprehend any serious result. The arm, however, began to swell and the effect of the poison to be felt on the system, whereupon the physician was sent for again. He cut out the part where the insect had stung the unfortunate man, but the operation came too late, and he died, as already stated this morning. A somewhat similar case, it will be remembered, resulting in the death of a young man bitten by a fly while out driving, occurred in this city about two years ago.—Montreal Witness Oct. 2.

NAPOLEON THE III. GUILTLESS OF THE BOULOGNE EAGLE.

The Boulogne expedition——the eagle, 1840. It was getting late, and still the prince (Louis Napoleon) had not arrived. Count Persigny began to surmise, like myself, that something very serious had prevented the prince from starting from London at the appointed time. We were deliberating on what should be done in the emergency, when Col. Parquin, a cavalry officer, an old friend of the prince, and of the whole family, came to me and said, "I want to go on shore to buy a few good cigars. Those we have on board are detestable. I cannot smoke them." "Go on shore? My orders, Colonel, are not to allow any one to leave the steamer on any pretext whatever." "Do you mean to say that I am to be kept a prisoner here?" "What I do mean is that I cannot comply with your request, because I am bound to carry out the wishes, or rather orders, of the prince." The colonel made an appeal to Count Persigny, who, like myself, told him that it was impossible to comply with his demand. The wrath of the colonel was extreme. There was danger in this outburst of anger. I consulted Persigny on the advisability of allowing the colonel to go on shore, on the distinct understanding that he should be accompanied by me and Charles Thelin, the faithful valet of the prince. Persigny assented to the idea, and the colonel and I got into the boat. Thelin was with us. As we were walking to the cigar shop, the colonel remarked a boy seated on a log of wood, feeding an eagle with shreds of meat. The eagle had a chain fastened to one of its claws, with which it was secured. The colonel turned twice to look at it, but went on without uttering a word. On our way back to the boat, we saw that the boy had left the spot, and had gone within two yards of the landing-place we had to go through. The colonel went to him and, looking at the eagle, said to the boy, "Estil a vendre?" The boy, not understanding a word of it, turned to me and said "I do not understand the gentleman." I guessed immediately what the colonel meant doing, and said, "My dear colonel, I hope you do not intend to buy that eagle? For God's sake do not thing of such a thing? We have other affairs to think of." "Why not? I will have it. Ask him what he wants for it." "I will not. Ask Thelin what he thinks of it." "I do not care for anybody's opinion," said he; "I will have it." "Combien-veux-tu?" The boy shrugged his shoulders. At last the colonel asked in broken English, "How mooch?" "One pound," answered the boy. He ordered the boy to put the eagle in the boat, and then Thelin and I jumped into the boat and rowed to the steamer. On arriving on board, the eagle was fastened to the mainmast by the boy, and from that moment it was never taken notice of, until it was discovered and seized by the authorities at Boulogne, who took it to the museum, from which it fled next day, owing to some carelessness on the part of the men who had it in charge. Such is the real, unvarnished statement of the Boulogne Eagle, on which so much has been said, written, and ever believed in by all parties, whether friends or foes. Is it not most extraordinary that a fact which had been witnessed by upward of sixty people on board the steamer, and contradicted a great many times, should have been allowed to go the round of every country, and left to cast ridicule on the prince, who never saw or knew anything of the eagle on board the City of Edinburgh! How many events recorded in history are to be put on a par with that of the Boulogne Eagle!—Count Orsi, in Fraser's Magazine.

MEDICAL AND SCIENTIFIC.

Sure Cure for Carbuncles.—It is said that the oil that exudes from orange-peel when bent between the fingers will check the progress of carbuncles in their incipient stage.

Soda in Cooking.—There has been much said by good common-sense people, as well as by physicians, against the use of much soda in cooking. There is no doubt that it is of great injury to health when used as constantly as it is by many cooks. Physicians very generally agree that its frequent use debilitates and relaxes muscular strength, and is peculiarly injurious to the digestion, and greatly weakens the tone of the bowels, often ending in acute inflammation. Dr. Alcott has no hesitation in expressing his belief that the habitual use of soda is one great cause of the great mortality, particularly among the young, from bowel complaints. The coats of the stomach and bowels are so weakened by the use of this alkali that they have no power to resist the debilitating effects of the intense hot weather.

A New Way to Treat Diphtheria.—Quite a discovery in the treatment of diphtheria has been made. A young man, whose arm had been amputated, was attacked by diphtheria before the healing took place, and instead of the matter incident to that disease being deposited in the throat, the greater portion appeared on the wounded arm, and the diphtheria was light and easily managed. Dr. Davis of Mankato, profited by this, and in his next case of diphtheria blistered his patient's chest, and on this blistered part the chief deposits appeared. This was also an easy case of the disease. The theory of Dr. Davis is that diphtheria usually appears in the throat because of the thinness of the lining of the throat. Hence, when the blister breaks the skin upon any part of the body, the disease appears there.

Typhoid Fever from Diseased Meat.—An epidemic of typhoid fever, interesting in its etiology, followed a musical festival at Zurich, in May, 1878. Out of some 700 assistants, 500 were attacked by the disease, of whom 100 died. The symptoms could not be mistaken, and the autopsies confirmed the diagnosis. A minute inquiry into the circumstances left but little doubt that the epidemic was due to the use of bad veal furnished by an innkeeper of the place. It may be claimed by those who attribute to general causes the power of originating specific diseases, that the typhoid fever was due to a septic poison present in the veal, depending possibly on a beginning fermentation, which was not destroyed by the cooking to which it had been submitted. On the other hand, as the animal from which the meat was taken was sick, it may be asked whether it might not have been suffering from typhoid fever, although this disease has never yet been recognized among animals. It is a remarkable fact that in 1839 a similar but much less fatal epidemic occurred in a neighboring locality. After a reunion that took place under similar circumstances, 440 persons were taken sick with all the symptoms of typhoid fever. It is probable that in this case also the meat of a sick calf gave rise to the disease.

An Inspiration.

When a poet composes a set of verses that stir men's hearts we say he is inspired. So indeed he is. When celebrated students of hygiene, after careful study, gives us a panacea for many of the ills that flesh is heir to, we say they have made a lucky hit. We are wrong, it is equally an inspiration. Debility, bronchical affections, and consumption number their victims by the thousands, but how soon these difficulties could be ameliorated if we only knew it. Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda is the remedy preeminently adapted to such conditions, and if taken long enough is almost sure to effect a cure. It is also perfectly agreeable to the taste. w41-d80-1m

The kidneys are subject to a variety of dangerous and painful diseases, arising from various causes. By the judicious use of Victoria Buchu and Uva Ursi, these affections may be cured. Bright's disease, diabetes, and all female complaints, are successfully combatted by this popular remedy, which is for sale by all dealers. Price, $1 per bottle.

ENGLAND.

It is stated that Mr. Knowles paid a hundred guineas for each of Mr. Gladstone's two latest articles in the Nineteenth Century.

It is probable that the Empress Eugenie will go to Abergeldie early in October, the Queen having placed it for the time at her disposal.

A young Englishman residing at Neufchatel has swum across that lake, for a wager, in two hours forty-eight minutes, two boats following him.

In connection with Spurgeon's church in London are 80 colporteur. They visit 75,000 families every month. The visits last year numbered 026,290.

A Cornish pedestrian named Carlisle, who has won fame in that county, has commenced to walk from Penzance to John O'Groats, starting on the 23rd Sept.

Rumor has it that Falkland Palace, the old royal residence, is to be purchased for the Queen, to be re-transformed into its ancient state. It was last occupied as a palace by Charles II, of England, in 1651, when on his way to Scone to be crowned King of the Scots.

The death is announced by cable of Field Marshall Sir William Rowan, aged 90 years. He commanded the forces in Canada from 1849 to 1855, and was made a G. C. B. in 1856. Subsequently he rose to be field marshal, and was always pleasantly remembered as an accomplished and efficient officer.

A joint-stock company has been formed in England with a proposed capital of $5,000,000, in shares of $5, for the avowed object of diminishing intemperance. It is intended that temperance hotels shall be opened in all parts of the Kingdom. In the prospectus, the name of the Archbishop of Canterbury heads the list.

A circular has been issued in England asking for funds to build a Presbyterian church at Canterbury. It says: "Presbyterianism is no new thing in Canterbury. Its old English form has died out, but its French form has never been extinguished; and the Presbyterian service, begun three hundred years ago for the Huguenot refugees, is continued to this day in the crypt of the Cathedral."

There are said to be fully 200,000 beggars tramping about the German Empire, and they are estimated to get as alms not less than $18,000,000 annually in money, without considering the value of food and clothing given them. Many of these beggars got into the habit of gaining their livelihood in this way through the oppressive laws formerly in vogue that required apprentices to travel about, literally as journeymen, with a view to perfecting themselves in their respective trades.

Victoria Chemical Company, Toronto,

Gentlemen,—Confirming my statement a short time ago, as to the satisfactory results from the use of your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, I will further add that fresh proofs of the genuine benefits conferred on patients requiring it are constantly coming under my observation; parties to whom I have recommended it, have in a short time, with the deepest thankfulness, acknowledged the relief they have experienced, and in some cases have asserted that it, and it alone, have saved their lives. It gives me much pleasure to assure you that I consider your Syrup, the Victoria Hypophosphites, the best preparation of any which has come under my notice for Debility and all Pulmonary Complaints, Bronchitis, Coughs, &c., and believing this, I constantly recommend it before every other Compound.

Very truly yours,
H. F. McCARTHY,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

That's the Way They Used to Do It.

With a thumb and finger on the nose, a bright silver dime on the table as a bribe, and the Castor Oil bottle in the other hand is the way our mother had to approach us when she was about to attack a severe case of colic that had tied our little intestines in knots. Those days, and that scene, comes no more to us, neither will our little ones ever be obliged to tread in the rough path our parents trod in their childhood. Now we take Scott & Bowne's Palatable Castor Oil as complacently as we do condensed milk, and it is just about as cheap—25 cents a bottle. w41-d80-1m

Advance in Flour.

Now that wheat has advanced to $1.12@$1,15, the millers have had to advance the price of flour, and we now quote spring wheat flour at $5.25 @ $5.50, fall wheat flour $5.50@$5.75 per barrel; oatmeal $5.00 @ $5.25 per barrel.

◆

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are: moderate to fresh winds, increasing cloudiness, followed by rain to-morrow. The weather in Peterborough has been clear and warm, more like a midsummer day, wind southerly to south-easterly.

◆

Almost an Accident.

Last evening as the afternoon special freight train on the Midland Railway was coming from Hilliard's mills, a man named Rule was seen lying drunk upon the track near Simcoe street crossing. He would have been run over and killed but for the prompt action of a Mr. Murty and Mortie Huston, who dragged the inebriate out of the way.

◆

Death of Mr. H. C. Hall.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. H. C. Hall, of Buckhorn, which melancholy event occurred this morning, after a lingering illness. He was induced to undergo an operation last spring, which it was hoped would remove the disease, but unfortunately it proved a failure in his case. There is a large family connection to mourn his loss.

◆

Increase of Freight Business.

The Midland Railway are now furnishing more cars. Yesterday they had two specials down with flour, wheat, barley and lumber. To-day again there are two specials. This morning there were 20 cars already loaded for the front. There were also 11 cars brought up, with miscellaneous freight, including two cars with coal. This is a very encouraging sign of improvement when we are sending out more than we receive.

◆

Rifle Association.

A meeting of the members of the Peterborough Rifle Association was held on Monday evening at the Drill Shed, with the President, Col. H. C. Rogers, in the chair. It was determined to hold the annual matches on the range on Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 20 and 21. A committee was appointed to solicit donations of prizes, and to make all necessary arrangements for the matches. There will be a marker at the butts at any time to-day, Thursday, and Saturday of this week, and every day next week.

◆

Another Advance in Grain.

There was another advance in grain at the market to-day. Between Spring and Fall Wheat there is a range from $1.14 @ $1.17, mostly at $1.15 @ $1.16 for clean, bright grades. There is a speculative demand abroad which has affected the market here. There were some lively scenes on the market to-day and considerable competition was indulged in. There have been about two thousand bushels brought in to-day. Barley has also felt the feverishness of the market, and fifty-nine cents was paid for several lots, while some two or three loads sold up to 61; this, however, is not deemed a fair quotation; 60c. is the highest quotation this evening. The receipts have been heavy. The farmers would be greatly benefitted if they would take more pains in cleaning their barley. By a thorough cleaning the barbs are removed, the grain looks brighter, and is much heavier. It would command the higher price quoted.

BOBCAYGEON.

Fall Show.—The fifteenth annual Fall Show of the Township of Verulam, held here on Saturday, was a complete success in every particular. The number entries of was largely in excess of any former year. In horses of all classes the display was much better than any former exhibit. In cattle and sheep the exhibit was really good. Not many pigs were shown, but those that were on exhibition were first class. The show of poultry was excellent, Dr. Bonnelle showing a large lot of very fine high bred fancy fowls. In the hall the display was better both in quantity and excellence than in any former Show.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

THE AMEER'S ANXIETY.

London, Oct. 6.—The Standard correspondent says the Ameer having failed to stop the advance is now very anxious to return. The general opinion in Camp is that he was only allowed to leave Cabul on condition that he would do his utmost to block the way to its gates, anxious to get home as speedily as possible, and put himself at the head of his mutinous regiments. There lies his one chance of safety. None of the London papers believe he will be allowed to quit General Roberts' surveillance, although his entry into Cabul with the General's forces will ruin him irretrievably in Afghan estimation. In the end, even if he escapes death, there can be little doubt England will have to get up another ruler in his place.

THE AFGHAN ARTILLERY.

The report that the garrison at Shutargardan is entirely cut off from Ali Kheyl and Kushi is false. It is reported the forces were detained by difficulties of transportation, but will arrive at at Cabul to-day. The Afghan artillery did not join the mutineers, but at present protects the Ameer's property and family. They now threaten to sack the city and disperse unless the Ameer returns. Orders have been issued to shoot the marauders wherever seen.

GEN. ROBERTS' ADVANCE.

Simla, Oct. 6.—General Roberts on Sunday reached Charasiasme, seven miles from Cabul, having left tents and baggage at Seahidabad. He was expected to be before Cabul early on Monday morning.

AFFRAY IN A BILLIARD ROOM

An Indian Seriously Wounds a Citizen of Brockville With a Cue.

Brockville, Oct. 6.—Some excitement was created here this evening on account of an affray which took place in a billiard room under the St. Lawrence Hall. It appears the Indian doctor Utawaun and Mr. P. Toner, of this place, were engaged in a game of billiards, when a slight dispute arose about the count, whereupon the Indian, without any provocation, struck Mr. Toner on the forehead with the butt of a cue, knocking him insensible and inflicting a serious wound. The police were notified, but before they arrived the Indian had escaped. Toner was taken to the St. Lawrence Hall, where two doctors were attending him. The police are on the look-out for the Indian, and he will likely be arrested this evening.

BELLEVILLE

Grand Junction.—The first train over the Grand Junction railway, under the new arrangement with the Grand Trunk arrived on Monday morning, with a good number of passengers and several cars of freight. The Madoc passenger car proceeded to the Junction, where the passengers are transferred to the Hastings car, and the freight cars are attached. The same operation is gone through on the journey north, and thus only the one train passes over the line from the Junction south, which arrangement is economical. Two special freight trains will be run to-morrow.

CORRECT PRONUNCIATION!

Teaching the Teachers How to Pronounce Correctly?

(From the Philadelphia Record.)

At the meeting of the Teachers' Institute, held at the Girls' Normal School on Friday last, Mr. Jacob H. Sides, Principal of the Belmont Grammar School, was assigned the duty of illustrating correct pronunciation by pronouncing fifteen words. Being allowed but five minutes' time, the gentleman was only able to struggle with thirteen words, which are frequently mispronounced even among those who have been liberally educated. It is charitable to suppose that the errors committed by this class are the result of carelessness rather than ignorance.

The words pronounced by Mr. Sides were in this order Pronunciation, which should be pronounced as if spelled pro-nun-she-a-shun; association should be pronounced as if the third syllable were spelled she, instead of ci with the accent on the last a.

"I was surprised," remarked Mr. Sides, "to hear the word universally mispronounced by the members of the Teachers' National Convention, which met recently in this city." The word telegraphy should be pronounced te-leg-ra-phy, not tel-a-raph-y. Squalor, frequently pronounced "squoller," should receive the long sound of a, as in mate—squa-lor. The word vagary should be divided into three syllables, va-ga-ry, with the accent on the a in the second syllable. In recess the accent falls on the last syllable, and is pronounced re-cess. The n in government is too often omitted, as the word is pronounced gov-ern-ment. Enervate is pronounced e-ner-vate, not en-er-vate. Indisputable is pronounced both in-dis-pu-ta-ble and in-dis-pu-ta-ble, but the former mode of pronunciation is the correct one. The word isolate should be pronounced is-o-late (the a is in mate), not i-so-late. Allopathy is pronounced al-lop-a-thy, not al-lo-path-y, Rise, when a noun, is pronounced "rice," but when a verb it is pronounced rize. The last word referred to by the expositor of correct pronunciation was laugh, which created considerable merriment, so much that the listeners laffed and they loffed and they larfed, when the proper thing for them to have done was to have struck the sound of a as in far, and they would have been just right.

DEATH-WATCH AND THE BOOK-WORM.

The curious little insect called the "death-watch" is a kind of beetle, the scientific name of which, Anobrim, is derived from a Greek word signifying "resuscitated," because, like many of the beetle family, when caught, it feigns death with extraordinary exactness, so much so, indeed, that a French writer asserts that "one of the species of the genus has been held in the flame of a candle without giving the slightest sign of life, and has yet run away with the greatest rapidity the moment it found itself safely on the ground."

The larvæ of these insects are extremely partial to old furniture, in which they perforate numerous round holes. Hence the genus is called vrillette by the French, from vrille, gimlet. In the larva state they resembled small, white, soft worms, with six short, minute feet. The head is scaly, and it is terminated by two strong cutting pincers, with which these little insects scrap the wood into the finest sawdust. Other species of the genus feed on flour, bread, wafers, and other substances, in which they form grooves or galleries, according to the thickness of their working materials. The sound called the death-tick is made by the insect striking its mandibles upon the wood. The number of distinct strokes is generally from seven to eleven, and if the insect be in a situation where it can be watched, it will be observed to nod its head as it makes each stroke, the whole being done with great force and quickness. The sound greatly resembles a moderate tapping on a table with the finger-nail; and, indeed, in old houses, where these insects are numerous, they may be induced to make their noises at any time, by tapping on a table the wood of which contains them.

The little insect called the "book-worm" belongs to the same genus as the "death-watch," and in some cases it will bore through books with as much ease as the "death-watch" bores through furniture; and Kirby and Spence, in their "Introduction to Entomology," mention an instance where, in a public library but little frequented, twenty-seven folio volumes were perforated in a straight line by the same insect, in such a manner that on passing a cord through the perfectly round hole made by it, these twenty-seven volumes could be raised at once! Other insects occasionally attack books, but this beetle is the most destructive.—Leisure hour.

PRICE OF CHEESE.

Liverpool, Oct. 8.—Cheese is quoted at 49 shillings and 3 pence.

AMERICAN.

GRANT'S TOUR.

Philadelphia, Oct. 8.—Gen. Grant writes to G.W. Childs, that he expects to start for Galena, on Oct. 27th, with a week's detention en route, it is not probable he will go farther east than Chicago, before the holidays.

FRATRICIDE.

Bradford, Pa., Oct. 8.—Robert Butler shot his brother Henry, fatally, yesterday during a drunken quarrel.

AN INVENTOR'S FAILURE.

Boston, Oct. 8.—The inventor of the air cushion, to prevent elevator accidents tried it at the Parker House yesterday. The newspaper reporters and others in the elevator, which was allowed to drop from the fifth floor, were seriously shaken up and hurt. The damage to property is about $1,000.

STEAMSHIPS ARRIVED.

New York, Oct. 8.—The Wisconsin from Liverpool, the Canada from Havre.

A TRAMP'S REVENGE.

Hainesville, N, J., Oct. 8.—Moore Johnson was refused a lodging by a farmer at Tuttle's Corner on Saturday, when he fired the barn in revenge. It was destroyed and Johnston was arrested. Lynching is threatened.

A WIFE POISONED.

Norwich, Conn., Oct. 8.—The body of Mrs. Riddle, who it is alleged was poisoned by her husband, was exhumed yesterday. It is reported that evidence of a mineral poison was discovered.

THE FEVER SPREADING.

Concordia, Miss., Oct. 8.—There have been nine new cases of fever and 3 deaths since last report. The relief fund is exhaustead.

A TERRIBLE STORY.

San Francisco, Oct. 8.—The captain of a schooner from the Arctic Ocean reports that he saw the triumphant passage of Nordenskjold, through Behrings Strait, with colors flying and guns firing. The captain also reports a frightful case of starvation at St. Lawrence Island, where 250 corpses were found in one field. The living had carried the dead away from their huts until, being overcome themselves, they also died. Nearly every trader goes to the Arctic Ocean loaded with rum. So long as the liquor lasts the natives will not go fishing. Then it is too late, and starvation follows.

A WALKING MATCH.

San Francisco, Oct. 8.—Ten thousand persons witnessed the close of the walking match last night. The scores of the four highest were, McIntyre, 500 ; Carmichael, 478 ; Scott, 455 ; Murdoch, 430. The net profits approximate $10,000, of which half goes to the competing contestants,

SUICIDE FROM GRIEF.

Saratoga, N.Y., Oct. 8.—The wife of Walter Jennery, one of our leading business men, cut her throat this morning. She has been melancholy for a few days in consequence of the death of her father.

THE O'LEARY BELT.

New York, Oct. 8.—About 300 people were in Gilmour's Garden this morning. The interest in the affair is dying out. Murphy continues in splendid condition. The race now lies between him, Faber and Curran. Braudgerst has withdrawn.

FOREST FIRES.

Norfolk, N. Y., Oct. 8.—The barns and contents of Elijah Stearns, of Chase's Mills were burned yesterday. The cause was the forest fires. The smoke is so dense that one cannot see 30 feet. There are no signs of rain.

PREPARING FOR WAR.

Odessa, Oct. 8.—The Russian staff officers have been ordered to the Austrian frontier for exercise in studying how best to meet the invasion from that quarter.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS

CABLE.

TOO LATE REGRETS.

London, Oct. 7.—The Times this morning regrets the Colonial Secretary's despatch to the Marquis of Lorne, Governor-General of Canada, respecting Lieutenant-Governor Letellier's removal, and thinks the result is as unpalatable as it is strange.

THE PRUSSIAN ELECTIONS.

Berlin, Oct. 7.—The final elections to the Lower House of the Prussian Diet resulted in the return of nine Progressionists for Berlin. The returns so far show that out of 405 members of the Prussian Diet known to have been elected to-day by direct electors, 154 are Conservatives, 92 Ultramontanes, 101 Liberals, 34 Progressits, 19 Poles, 4 Particolorists, and 1 Democrat. Among the best known men returned are Von Kamencke, Bitter, Clenburg, Falk, Hobrecht, and Friedenthal.

READY AT ANY MOMENT.

London, Oct. 7.—The Post says the cavalry at Liverpool are under orders to be ready to proceed to Ireland at any moment. The present week is not improbable. The Irish troubles, as well as the critical position of foreign affairs, may have had something to do with summoning yesterday's Cabinet Council.

AMERICAN.

ABDUCTED FROM CANADA.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 7.—Two tramps have been arrested here, having a lad named Wm. Thompson with them, who was ascertained to have been abducted from Acton, Canada, 33 miles west of Toronto. The tramps and the boy will be sent to Acton.

DAMAGES AGAINST A LANDLORD.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Joseph Wiley occupied the upper floor of the house owned by Patrick Mullady. The fire broke out in the house so that escape by the stairways was impossible, and there being no fire escape, Mrs. Wiley and her child suffered death. Wiley brought two actions against Mullady to recover $5,000 each for the loss of his wife and child. One of the cases was tried in the City Court and the plaintiff recovered a verdict for $1,571. Mullady carried the cases to the General Term, which affirmed the verdict, and thence to the Court of Appeals, which has just affirmed the verdict and the General Term's decision in the other case is now on the calendar of the City Court.

AN IRATE CAPTAIN.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 7.—The Spanish brig Delegente was totally wrecked while coming over the lower bar. The vessel was in charge of a pilot. When the captain saw the loss of the vessel was inevitable, he drew a revolver and fired three shots at the pilot, who immediately jumped overboard, followed by the irate captain. A sailor also threw himself into the bay to assist the captain, but both were drowned. The pilot and the rest of the crew swam ashore safely.

INDIAN WAR.

Details of the Attack on Thornburgh's Command A Gallant Stand Against a Well Armed Tribe.

Telegraph to the Review.

A SEVERE FIGHT.

Rawlins, Oct. 8.—The mail carrier from Snake River, who is just in, reports that Merritt reached Payne's command on Monday afternoon after a severe fight, killing 37 Indians. He found the command all right. The colored cavalry joined Payne last Friday night, loosing all their horses but two in doing so.

INDIAN RUMOURS.

Denver, Oct. 8.—A despatch from Leadville says there are no Indians within 50 miles from there. A despatch from Alma reports that there are Indians between there and Breckenridge, and that Breckenridge has been entirely burned down. This report is doubted.

Cheyenne, Oct. 8.—A courier from the front brings the following news :—

Battle Field, Milkeyneer, Oct. 3. 6 p.m.—The Indians still surround us, and pour in an effective fire from commanding bluffs at a distance of 5 or 6 hundred yards. Having a cross fire upon our position, which was chosen hastily, all our horses and all but twelve mules have been killed. We sheltered them as best we could with the waggons, but to no purpose. Captain Dodge and Lieut. Hughes, with a company of the 9th cavalry, came to our rescue yesterday morning at daybreak, after a forced night's march of 35 miles from Bear River. A lull in the firing enabled them to come in and shelter their horses, as well as possible, taking them to the fortifications quickly, when the attack redoubled its fury. Had the heights been accessible, Captain Dodge would have charged them with his company while we covered him from our rifle pits, but this being utterly impossible, the ascent being nearly perpendicular, all we could do during the day was to keep a good lookout from the loopholes and return the fire when an Indian showed his head. This was rare, as the Indians have rifle pits and loopholes. Before dark every horse, but three of Dodge's command, was shot down. It has been very fortunate that the Indians have left us unmolested at night, with the exception of an occasional shot to make us scatter to our pits. We have been able at great risk to haul off the dead animals every night, otherwise the stench would be intolerable. A sally is made every night for water, 200 yards from our entrenchments. The night before last Private Erser, of company F, was shot in the face while out with the party after water. The Indians were only a few yards away, and were driven off by a volley from the guard and the trenches. The field of battle was admirably chosen for a defence by the Indians and had it not been for Major Thornburgh's advance guard, commanded by Lieut. Cherry, discovering the ambuscade it is believed that the entire command would have been anihilated. He saw a small party of Indians disappear over a hill half a mile in front, and at once divided his party to reconnoitre, and only discovered them when he had flanked their position by about 200 yards. Cherry rode back at full speed with two or three men who were with him, and notified Thornburgh, who had already began the descent into the deep ravine, which was intended to engulph the command. The Indians were dismounted, lying down along the crest of a high ridge from a hundred yards from the point where the deadly assault would have commenced. The troops were withdrawn a short distance, dismounted, and deployed in line of battle, with orders to await the attack. Lieut. Cherry was ordered by Thornburgh to take 15 picked men, and make a reconoisance and communicate, if possible, with the Indians, as it was thought they only desired to oppose his approach to their agency, and would parley or have a big talk if they could be communicated with. Cherry moved out at a galop with his men from the right flank, and noticed a like movement of about 20 Indians from the left of the Indian position. He approached to within 200 yards of the Indians, and took off his hat and waved it, but the response was a shot fired at him, wounding a man of his party and killing his horse. This was the first shot, and was instantly followed by a volley from the Indians. Work had now begun in real earnest and seeing the advantage of the position he held, Cherry dismounted and deployed along the crest of the hill to prevent the Indians from flanking his position, or to cover his retreat, if he found it necessary to retire upon the wagon train, which was then coming up slowly, guarded by Lieut. Paddock and Company D. of the 5th cavalry. Orders were sent to park the wagons and cover them. The two companies in advance were Capt. Payne, with Company F. of the 5th cavalry, and Capt. Laroson, with Company E. of the 3rd cavalry, which were dismounted and deployed as skirmishers, Payne on the left, and Laroson on the right. From Cherry's position he could see the Indians were trying to cut him off from the wagons and at once sent word to Thornburgh, who withdrew in line slowly keeping the Indians in check until opposite the point which his men held, when seeing the Indians were concentrating to cut off his retreat, Payne with a company of the 5th cavalry was ordered to charge, which he did in gallant style, his horses being shot down under him and several of his men wounded. The Indians having been driven from this point the company was rallied on the wagon train. Thornburgh then gave orders to Cherry to hold his position and cover Laroson's retreat who was ordered to fall back slowly with his led horses. Cherry called for volunteers. Of 20 men, who responded promptly and fought with desperation, nearly every man was wounded before he reached camp, and two were killed. Cherry brought every wounded man in with him. Capt. Laroson, a brave old veteran, displayed the greatest coolness and courage, during the retreat sending up ammunition to Cherry's men when once they were nearly without it. Thornburgh started back to the wagon train after giving his final orders to Payne to charge and to Laroson and Cherry to cover the retreat. He must have been shot dead when barely half way there, as his body was seen by one of Laroson's men with life extinct, and lying on the face. Payne, who was then in command, at once set about having the wounded horses shot for breast works, dismounting the wagons of boxes, bundles of bedding, corn and flour sacks, which were quickly piled up for fortifications. Picks and shovels were used vigorously for digging entrenchments. Meantime a galling fire was concentrated upon the command from all the surrounding bluffs which commanded position. Not an Indian could be seen, but the incessant cracks of their Sharpes' and Winchester rifles dealt fearful destruction among the horses and men. The groans of dying and wounded told what fearful havoc was being made among the determined and desperate command. Every man was bound to sell his life as dearly as possible. About this time a great danger was approaching at a frightfully rapid pace. The red devils, at the beginning of the fight, had set fire to the dry grass and sage-brush to the windward of our position, and it now came sweeping down towards us, the flames leaping high into the air and immense volumes of smoke rolling on to engulf us. It was a sight to make the stoutest hearts quake, and the fiends were waiting ready to give us a volley as soon as we were driven from our shelter. Now it reaches the flank, and blankets, blouses, and empty sacks were freely used to extinguish the flames. Some wagons were set on fire which required all the force possible to smother the flames. No water could be obtained, and the smoke was suffocating, but the fire passed and we still held our position. Meantime a constant volley was poured upon us, Payne being wounded for the second time and 1st Lieut. Dolan, of Company F. killed instantly. Corporal McKee was killed and many others were wounded. The greatest danger is now past. Just about sundown a charge was attempted but was repulsed, the Indians trying to drive off some of our horses, which had broken loose. The attack ceased at dark and soon every man was at work enlarging the trenches, hauling out the dead horses, caring for the wounded and burying the dead bodies. At daylight the attack was resumed and firing of the sharp shooters has been kept up every day and occasionally at night sending us to our pits in a scramble. The names of the killed are Major Thornburgh, John Dolan, private, John Burns, Michael Gerton, Samuel McKee, T. Mooney, Michael Lynch, Chas. Wright, all of the 5th cavalry, Dominick Cuff 3rd cavalry, wagon master McKensie and teamster Maguire.

The New Gilmour Firm.—The following new firm is announced : Allan Gilmour, of Quebec ; John Gilmour, of Gatineau Mills ; David Gilmour, of Trenton, and John David Gilmour, of Quebec. The name of the firm is Allan Gilmour & Co., Quebec, and Gilmour & Co., Gatineau and Trenton.

The Bonus By-law.—The voting on the Toronto and Ottawa railway two hundred thousand dollar bonus by-law, on Tuesday passed of very quietly, and as the figures show, a comparatively light vote was polled. There was little excitement, but a good deal of work was done on both sides in a quiet way. There is a good deal of enthusiasm in the city over the result, the by-law being carried by a majority of 537. Before the polling there had been a good deal of Grand Trunk influence brought to bear to defeat the by-lay. There was no public demonstration.

THE OLD LADY'S TICKET.

The gates at the passenger depots which shu out persons not holding tickets for the trains were yesterday closed at the Union Depot against an elderly woman wearing spectacles and using an umbrella for a cane.

"Can't pass without a ticket," said the man at the gate.

"I want to see if there's anybody on that train going to Port Huron," she answered.

"Can't pass without a ticket madame."

"I've got a darter in Port Huron, I have."

"I can't help it. My orders are very strict."

"I tell you, I want to send word to my darter," said she, adjusting her spectacles for a better view of the official.

"Yes ; but we can't help that, you see. Please show your ticket."

"I want this ere railroad to understand that I've got a darter in Port Huron, and she's got a baby four weeks old, and I'm going to send her up word in spite of all the gates in this depot."

"Please show your ticket, madame."

"I tell you once more—"

"Please show your ticket, madame."

She gave the umbrella a whirl, and brought it down on his head with all the vim of an old fashioned log raising, and as he staggered aside she passed him and said :

"There's my ticket, sir ; and I've got more behind it ! Mebbe one man and a gate can stop me from sending word to my darter to grease the baby's nose with taller if the weather changes cold, but I don't believe it."

And she walked down to the train, found somebody going to Port Huron, and came back carelessly humming the melody of the "Three Blind Mice."

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1879.

AN IMPORTANT VICTORY.

WE have no hesitation in expressing the opinion that the victory obtained by Mr. Scott at Ottawa yesterday in securing the passage of the by-law granting a bonus of $200,000 to the Toronto and Ottawa railway is a most important one not only for this Town and County, but for the whole Province of Ontario. Had the by-law been defeated, this important project would have been dead as a door nail for the time being at least, but, carried as it has been, it not only places the scheme in such a financial position as to ensure Government aid, but it proves that the people of this Province are becoming thoroughly aroused to the danger of allowing a single railway company to have a practical monopoly of the carrying trade between the east and west, as is at present the case with the Grand Trunk between Toronto and Montreal. While, however the carrying of the Ottawa by-law is a most important step forward in this matter, we would warn people against supposing that it is yet an accomplished fact. Much yet remains to be done. The Grand Trunk, it is evident, will fight it to the death, and it is a powerful opponent. Without the aid of a bonus from Toronto, it will be impossible for Mr. Scott to proceed with even the undertaking between here and Ottawa, unless the ratepayers of this town and county will consent to in some way relax the conditions of their by-laws, requiring that a million of dollars of municipal bonuses shall be voted before work is commenced. For our part, we care very little whether Toronto falls into line, so long as we get the road from here to Ottawa, with the necessary connections from thence to the sea-board. Were the locomotive only whistling over the road between Ottawa and Peterborough, Toronto would soon be knocking at our doors for a connection, and hence we should not have the slightest hesitation in recommending the ratepayers to so amend the present by-law, or rather to pass a new by-law, permitting the amount now applicable to the road between here and Ottawa, to be expended upon the bonuses obtainable between here and Ottawa being duly voted. Such a course would in no way reduce the quarantees afforded by the present by-law, while we believe it would secure almost the immediate commencement of work. There is also another point to which we trust our Norwood friends will give heed and act with their usual liberality. Much as the country is interested in this undertaking, there is no part of it so deeply interested therein as the village of Norwood and portions of the townships of Asphodel and Dummer, and the township of Belmont, and we think they may fairly be asked to supplement the sum which they will contribute under the county by-law. Should this scheme from any cause whatever drop through or even be delayed, they would lose more than they are likely to be asked to contribute. Between this and the meeting of the legislature Mr. Scott will have his hands full—very—full in endeavouring to complete the financial basis of the undertaking, and while we have no doubt he will prove himself the right man in the right place in the future as in the past, we do trust every one will do all that in them lies, to render him a ready and hearty assistance.

DRILLING AT SCHOOLS.

THE following circular from the Minister of Education has been received by the Secretary of the Board of Education:—

CIRCULAR OF THE MINISTER OF EDUCATION FOR THE INFORMATION OF THE BOARDS OF HIGH SCHOOLS AND COLLEGIATE INSTITUTES WITH RESPECT TO ASSOCIATIONS FOR DRILL THEREIN.

1. In conformity with the provisions contained in section 58 of the Dominion Act, 31 Vic., chap. 40, and the General Orders of the Militia Department at Ottawa, dated 25th July, 1879, associations or companies for the purpose of drill are authorized to be organized, under the Militia Department, in certain educational institutions of the Dominion, the number in the Province of Ontario being limited to 34, and to Universities, Colleges, Normal, and High Schools.

2. These companies will be instructed in Military Drill and Training only, and will not be employed in active service.

3. Rifles and accoutrements will be furnished where the Company in each institution is not less than 40 of the regular students therein.

4. The services of a Drill Instructor will be supplied by the Dominion Government for one month in each year, divided into parts if desirable, and at such times as will be suitable to the circumstances of each company and the convenience of the Institution.

5. Each Institution desirous of taking advantage of this Act should make application to the Adjutant-General's Department, through the Deputy Adjutant-General of the District within which the Institution is situate, and may now be made as soon as convenient.

6. The Deputy Adjutant-General will furnish such further information as may be desired.

7. The importance of this subject, and the advantages thus offered to the schools under this Department, make it desirable that the necessary action should be taken at once by such whose circumstances will permit of a compliance with the conditions of the Regulations of the Militia Department.

ADAM CROOKS,
Minister of Education.

Toronto, 24th September, 1879.

Mr. J. Frith Jeffers, the Principal of the Collegiate Institute, had already formed a drilling class, being fully qualified as an instructor. We hope our Collegiate Institute will be placed on the list, as it would be a great advantage to the pupils to be drilled at an early age.

A TELEGRAPH MESSAGE FOR 20 CENTS.

Why the Dominion Telegraph Company has Reduced its Rates.

(From the Montreal Witness.)

The announcement this morning that the Dominion Telegraph Company had reduced its rates for ordinary telegraph messages to twenty cents, caused considerable interest in business circles and no little discussion to-day. The action of the Dominion Company was considered plucky, but it was not thought that, necessarily, a disastrous war of rates between our two companies would grow out of their action. With the object of obtaining further information in regard to this important movement, a Witness reporter to-day interviewed Mr. Charles R. Hosmer, the Superintendant of the Eastern division of the Dominion Telegraph Company's Line.

Mr. Hosmer seemed willing to give what general information he possessed in regard to the action of his manager, Mr. Swinyard. He said: "My time or your space would not admit of my going into the various causes that have led to and culminated in the reduction announced this morning, but our action has, I imagine, been hastened by a serious misunderstanding that has arisen between the head office of the two companies at Toronto, the particulars of which I am not at liberty to mention. I am, however, free to speak to you about matter that has caused considerable agitation in press and telegraph circles, and which is, I believe one of the many reasons why our Managing Director has determined in the future to manage our Company as it may best serve the interests of ourselves and the public. You know that our Company has, through its connections with the National Associated Press of New York, been enabled to protect the press of Canada from being entirely at the mercy of the Montreal Telegraph Company and the Associated Press.

"Then we owe the reduction in rate to a misunderstanding" interposed our reporter, "What would have been your course if this misunderstanding had not arisen?"

"Well, I don't feel that my knowledge of the situation allows me to speak positively upon this question. All I can say is that I know our people think that the time has arrived, or is about arriving, for our company to advance from the second place it has heretofore held to the first position. We have, since the first of July, been improving our lines and enlarging our facilities in every direction, and with our superior cable and Maritime Province connections, and the prospect of a live connection in the States, we feel that we can divide the public business with the Montreal company, and shall not be satisfied with anything short of it."

"Will you reduce your tariff to all parts of the United States when your connections are completed?"

"Well, I wouldn't be surprised if the Company did," replied Mr. Hosmer; "but it's rather too early to say much about that."

"When will your connections with the United States be completed?"

"The two wire lines from Montreal to New York will be completed this week, but we will not likely open it to the public until the rest of the system is completed."

"I notice the Gazette says your are going to give your customers free telephone connection with your office; that seems to be a wonderful stride forward."

"That is a mistake; we have, however, recently secured a very valuable call-bell and recorder, and this we intend putting into every business house that guarantees us their business free of expense. When they have a telegram to send they will signal and we will send a boy to get it. We have twenty-five of these bells in now, and will have a hundred more in before the close of the week."

IRELAND.

PRINCE LEOPOLD is at present visiting some places of interest on the north coast of Ireland.

PROBABLY no magazine was ever floated with so little capital as the Dublin University. It was started by six collegians, of whom Charles Lever was one, who each subscribed £10.

ONE hundred policemen in plain clothes were posted in leading streets of Dublin lately, to find out who has of late been shooting pellets from small catapults against plate glass windows.

IN Dublin, during the past week or two, plate glass windows valued at £303 have been destroyed by leaden bullets thrown from catapults used by persons on the tops of omnibuses or in hansoms passing through the streets.

AQUATICS.

THE HANLAN-COURTNEY MATCH.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Hanlan and Courtney report themselves in splendid condition. Both are getting trained down to the finest point. Yesterday Courtney weighed 169½ lbs., and Hanlan 162 lbs. Hanlan's backer arrived this afternoon with Hanlan's repaired boat, which weighs 30½ lbs. Courtney's new boat weighs 28 lbs. To-morrow Hanlan removes his quarters back to Mayville.

The following despatch from a special correspondent at Jamestown to the New York Graphic, dated October 4, will be read with some degree of interest:—

Courtney's condition appears to be well nigh perfect. He weighs in rowing costume 169½ pounds, which is not far from his racing weight. The climate evidently agrees with him, his appetite is excellent, and he is taking long rows daily at 10 a.m and 4 p.m. It has been feared by his friends that he would train too fine, but his trainer is looking out for that, and a long tramp in the woods, with gun and dogs, is occasionally substituted for work in the boat. His complexion is bronzed, and his appearance is decidedly more athletic than that of "Ned" Hanlan, whose looks, however, are always deceiving. * * * The condition of the Canadian favorite seems to be excellent. Though he does not appear to show the bronzed skin and athletic frame of the Union Springs oarsman, his muscles are well developed, his complexion is clear and healthy, and he is doing considerable work in the boat, rowing morning and evening and taking long walks. No trace of the alleged indisposition remain, except possibly a slight nervousness. He weighs in ordinary clothing 165 pounds, but as his active training begins to-day will soon throw off his superfluous flesh and bring down the scales at 150 pounds, his rowing weight. Colonel "Dave" Ward, his trainer, backer, and friend, is expected in a day or two.

Both oarsmen declare the course perfect, and say that they have never rowed on finer water. Ever since they have been here the lake has been smooth enough for practice, and there are no currents or eddies to give them a moment's trouble. The course just begins above the grounds of the National Sunday School Assembly at Fair Point, on the west side of the lake, near its head, and extends straightaway two and a half miles to within a few hundred feet of the wharves at Mayville. From the bluff opposite the starting and finishing line every inch of the course can be seen. Here an enclosure is being made with 2,000 feet of water front. Inside the grand stand refreshment booths will be erected. A railroad track is being constructed from Mayville to the starting point, and steamboat docks are being erected. The course is soon to be officially surveyed, and will be exactly determined.

An ample fleet of lake steamers will afford thousands an opportunity to see the race. The railroad connections to the lake are ample, and an immense crowd can be brought here. Excursion steamers will run from Canadian ports to Dunkirk, and special trains are expected from Rochester, Toronto, Cleveland, Buffalo, Lockport, New York, and Cincinnati. New Yorkers desiring to see the race will most conveniently reach the lake by taking the Erie Railway direct to Jamestown. The vast crowd, it is believed, can be easily accommodated at the numerous large summer hotels on the lake and at Jamestown.

Excursion steamers each day take large crowds over the lake to see the men at their practice.

Super-scientific gentlemen are figuring out the effect of the great altitude, 1,325 feet above tide level, on the time. The oarsmen say the water is very "light," and the race will be a fast one.

THE ABDUCTION CASE.

The Young Bride Carried off by Her Mother Opposition by the Husband.

It will be remembered that on Thursday night Mrs. Foster, the young bride, suddenly and mysteriously disappeared from her mother's residence. The latter denied on oath knowing anything of her departure or whereabouts. Act number three in this exceedingly interesting affair has now come off, and was witnessed by a large crowd of citizens. On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Cummings and her daughter, now Mrs. Foster, came to the city and had their supper at the Dominion Hotel. Nothing took place to attract attention until a little time after, when young Foster put in an appearance and demanded that his wife be given up to him. This request was refused by Mrs. Cummings. About half-past nine word was sent to the Police Station that there was a disturbance, and Detectives Littlehales and Gates started out to see what was the matter. Just as they did so there appeared on the Market Square a carriage in which were Mrs. Cummings, Mrs. Foster and a young man. This conveyance was closely followed by another, in which were Mr. Foster and another gentleman. Both carriages were surrounded by an eager and excited crowd of people, who evidently sympathized with the young husband. As they reached the Market Square Foster jumped out and asked the detectives to detain the girl on the ground of being an "absconding witness." This they declined to do without some authority. The first buggy, still followed by the throng, was then driven around in front of the City Hall, and there stopped for a few minutes. Foster jumped up into it and kissed his wife, an act which was greeted with cheers by the spectators. Mrs. Cummings started again and drove up York street, with Foster standing behind on the buggy endeavoring to get his wife away, and the old lady belaboring him vigorously all the time with an umbrella. The aggrieved husband would, no doubt, have suffered anything rather than lose his wife in such a manner, and he held bravely on beneath the swift-falling and heavy blows of his irate and equally-determined mother-in-law, but an end was put to the proceedings in front of Mr. Seaman's tailor shop on York street, where the detectives came up and interfered. They asked the young lady whether she wanted to go on with her mother or remain with her husband. She replied that she wanted to be with her husband. They told her that if that was really her desire she should, of course, do so, and on her assuring them that it was, they assisted her out and placed her in Foster's buggy. The latter then drove off, happy in the possession of his hard-won bride, while Mrs. Cummings rent the air with her lamentation and invectives against Foster, the detectives and the crowd. The latter were strongly in favor of Foster, and had not the detectives interfered when they did it is probable they would have assailed Mrs. Cummings and compelled her to release her daughter. The last seen of the mother was when she was driving west.—Hamilton Spectator.

HAGYARD'S PECTORAL BALSAM is composed of the most healing balsams and gums. The Balsams, which enter into its composition, were used by the natives when America was first discovered, and are combined with other vegetable tonics, so blended together, that it is a specific for all affections of the throat and lungs. Thousands of bottles are used annually, and it is considered one of the standard preparations of the day.

The kidneys are subject to a variety of dangerous and painful diseases, arising from various causes. By the judicious use of VICTORIA BUCHU AND UVA URSI, these affections may be cured. Bright's disease, diabetes, and all female complaints, are successfully combatted by this popular remedy, which is for sale by all dealers. Price, $1 per bottle.

The Trent Valley Canal.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Montreal Gazette says:—"The Trent Valley canal project is not likely to be allowed to rest by the towns and villages interested. Deputations have been appointed by Bobcaygeon, Peterborough, Trenton, Fenelon and other places, and will ar here to press the importance of the scheme and the advantages of the Trent Valley route upon the Government. The Bobcaygeon deputation will be armed with an array of facts and figures, and will, without doubt, make a very strong case.

Our trade in Paper Bags and Wrapping Papers has gradually grown to an extent which has made it hardly worth the while for travellers to come to Peterborough. And the result has been to make them jealous of our success and annoyed at their loss of sales.

THE SOLARGRAPH WATCH!
☞ONLY $1.00☜

A perfect Time-keeper, Hunting-Case, and HEAVY PLATED CHAIN, latest style. We warrant it for five years to denote time as accurately as a $100 Chronometer Watch, and will give the exact time in any part of the world. It also contains a FIRST-CLASS COMPASS, worth alone the price we charge for the Time-keeper. For Men, Boys, Mechanics, School Teachers, Travellers, and Farmers it is indispensible. They are as good as a high-priced watch, and in many cases more reliable. Boys, think of it! A Hunting-Case Watch and Chain for $1.00. The SOLARGRAPH WATCH is used by the Principal of the Somerville High School, and is being fast introduced into all the schools through the United States, and is destined to become the most useful Time keeper ever invented. The SOLAGRAPH WATCH received a Medal at the Mechanics' Fair, at Boston, in 1878.

This is no toy, but is made on scientific principals, and every one warranted to be accurate and reliable. We have made the price very low simply to introduce them at once, after which the price will be raised.

The SOLOGRAPH WATCH AND CHAIN is put up in a neat outside case, and sent by mail to any address for $1.00. We have made the price so low, please send two stamps if convenient to help pay postage Address plainly,

OCTOBER.

Conquest-flushed, like a warrior bold,
On his mettlesome steed, October brown,
Over the hills, the valleys adown,
Rideth;
Trampling the rustling leaves of gold
As his steed he onward guideth.

At every tramp of his charger's hoof
He buries a treasure and mutters a charm,
And the wandering wind a jubilant psalm
Singeth;
Whilst mischievous frost-sprites stand aloof,
Nor harm the seed that hingeth.

But the night-stars whisper to him who wakes,
A deeper meaning than dreamers can read,—
"Life shall arise from the buried seed;
Then know
That Death gives Life for the life he takes.
As nature doth forth-show."

Over lakes and rivers he shakes his spear,
And the angler stands where the river rolls past,
And the purple mountains deep shadows cast
In the tide;
And he sees far down in the waters clear
The speckled troutlets glide.

Tramp through the orchard, each bough low bends
Laden with treasure October to greet,
Eager his blushing wealth at his feet
To pour;
For the kindly smile that on all he sends
Hath made him a king twice o'er.

When the fire crackles and logs bright blaze,
And Hallowe'en nuts are burning slow,
And mirrors to maidens their lovers show,
Fill up!
And drain to jolly October's praise,
It's ale that he's kissed, a parting cup.

MR. HESS'S LUCKY NUMBER.

A Baltimore Young Man who Wins $15,000 to his Father's Grief.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 24.—Mr. John J. Hess, the owner of a small grocery store in the eastern part of Baltimore, has met with a piece of unexpected luck. He has been fortunate enough to draw the capital prize of $15,000 in the Kentucky State Lottery at its last drawing, which was held September 16. Mr. Hess exercised remarkable reticence not only when he invested in a ticket but after he had been paid the amount of his prize, and no one knew of his good fortune until last Saturday when he returned from New York with the check in his pocket. Then the news spread rapidly in the neighborhood where Mr. Hess lives, and he was immediately besieged not only by friends and acquaintances, but by strangers who were anxious to know in what way he went to work in getting the lucky ticket. Of course Mr. Hess could give no further information than the simple story of his investment in the Kentucky State Lottery. Your correspondent visited Mr. Hess to-day at his house, No. 98 Fairmont avenue, a little way above Chester street, to hear the story of his good luck from his own lips. Mr. Hess lives with his parents in a small three storey brick cottage, which is prettily situated on a small hill in the suburbs of the city some distance back from the avenue. Your correspondent was invited to enter a small and plainly furnished parlor and a few moments afterwards Mr. Hess made his appearance. The lucky holder of the capital prize ticket is a manly-looking young fellow of fine physique, and he has a pleasant, frank countenance and keen grey eyes. Although he looks like an ordinary intelligent mechanic.

When the object of the visit was made known Mr. Hess expressed great reluctance at having the story of his good luck published. However, he was finally induced to give the details of the the transaction. He said that the idea of buying a lottery ticket first occurred to him on Friday, September 13, and was suggested by a conversation among a number of his friends regarding the advisibility of making ventures in lotteries. Mr. Hess disclaimed having had any "premonitions" or "presentiments" and said that on the day after the conversation among his friends the subject returned to him. He then resolved to buy two tickets of the Kentucky Lottery for the next drawing and immediately wrote to the managers of the company at No. 599 Broadway, New York, and inclosed $2 for two whole tickets. Two days later he received his tickets by mail. One of them, as he has good occasion to remember, was number 30,530. The drawing took place on the following Tuesday, although by this time Mr. Hess had almost entirely dismissed from his mind the fact of his investment. The next morning he was greatly astonished on receiving from the New York agency of the company a telegram notifying him that his ticket No. 30,530 had drawn the capital prize of $15,000. While telling the story of his good fortune Mr. Hess preserved a most indifferent manner, and this suggested the inquiry:

"How did you feel when you first heard the news of your good luck?"

"Oh," said he, "I took it very coolly so far as that was concerned. But to say the truth I was rather scared in another respect, because I knew the old gentleman would raise a row about my buying the tickets."

Mr. Hess further said (and his reticence is almost incredible) that he did not tell any one of the bonanza he had struck, but simply took the train for New York on the Thursday after the drawing and went at once to the office of the managers, 599 Broadway, where the information which was telegraphed to him was confirmed. The managers, after congratulating Mr. Hess on his good fortune, gave him a check for $15,000 on a New York bank. He drew $2,000 of the money and taking a certified check for the remainder returned to Baltimore last Saturday. Since then Mr. Hess has deposited almost the entire amount of his prize in a Baltimore bank, and he expresses his intention of holding on to it.

"Do you intend to try your luck in the lottery again, Mr. Hess?" asked your correspondent.

"No sir," was the emphatic reply. "I have got enough now, and don't intend to run the risk of wasting any money. You see," he continued, "I just bought those tickets on an idle moment, without any expectation of winning a prize, and now that I have the money I propose to keep it."

Mr. Hess said that he was not at all proud of the transaction, for the reason that, as he had feared, he had incurred the displeasure of his father, who was angry at his having bought a lottery ticket, although he had drawn a prize. Mr. Hess is unmarried and has an excellent reputation for business capacity and energy. Although his lottery ticket has made him comparatively rich, he was before in comfortable circumstances and did a good business in his grocery store at the corner of Ann and Baltimore streets. His reputation has greatly extended within the past week and he is constantly visited not only by friends, but by strangers who endeavor to tempt him to invest his money in various wild-cat schemes. He pays no attention, however, to these self-appointed advisers and intends to leave his money in the bank for some time.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A REMARK said to have been uttered by Sir Louis Cavagnari just before his departure for Cabul receives a melancholy interest from what has since occurred. The story goes that a military friend of the Envoy was indulging in some Cassandra-like views as to the possible fate of the Embassy, at the same time warning Sir Louis to be on his guard against Afghan treachery. "Che sara, sara," replied the doomed man; "even if I am knifed my death will only hasten the accomplishment of the splenid work to which I have been allowed to set my hand." "What work is that?" was the immediate question. "The carrying forward of the frontier to the Hindoo Koosh," answered Sir Louis; "nothing short of that will ever secure India on the north-west, and even if my life is to be the price I am ready to pay it to finish the good work I had some hand in beginning."

APROPOS of the capture of Cetewayo, a story is told in Natal which deserves to be true. When Sir Garnet Wolseley was in Natal some years ago he called together a meeting of all the great chiefs, and sent a special invitation to the Zulu monarch to be present. Instead of complying with this request Cetewayo caused a bag of wheat to be despatched to Sir Garnet Wolseley, accompanied with a notification that the Zulu warriors were as numerous as the ears of wheat. Sir Garnet, equal to the occasion, caused the corn to be ground, and in that form returned it to the King, with a message to the effect that if he (Cetewayo) did not take care, he (Sir Garnet) would have him pounded like the wheat. It is not stated what effect this characteristic rejoinder had upon the allegory-loving King of the Zulus.

PROF. NORDENSKJOLD is a man of few words. When he got to Yokohama the other day he telegraphed his congratulations to the patron of his expedition, the King of Sweden; then he sent this pithy little message to his proud wife: "Anna Nordenskjold, Stockholm. All well, Adolph." Curiously enough both telegrams arrived at Stockholm at exactly the same hour as they were handed in at Yokohama, the seven hours which the transmission occupied representing exactly the difference of time at the respective places.

GLEANINGS.

LOVE turns men from their savage rudeness.

No enjoymemt, no matter how inconsiderable, is confined to the present moment.

FINE connections are apt to plunge you into a sea of extravagance, and then not to throw you a rope to save you from drowning.

A SOFT answer turneth away wrath. Biting sarcasm, though its use may flatter the vanity of a weak person, is more apt to have its sting in his own heart than in that of the person to whom he addresses it.

LIFE is like a roll of costly material passing swiftly through our hands, and we must embroider our pattern on it as it goes. We cannot wait to pick up a false stitch, or pause too long before we set another.

MANY of the men whom we calmly set down as failures may have been doing as much as those who have made ten times as much noise in the world. A great deal of the best work in the world is anonymous, if we do not confine the term to writing.

MARRIAGE.—Two persons who have chosen each other out of all the species, with the design to be each other's mutual comfort and entertainment, have, in that action, bound themselves to be good-humored, affable, discreet, forgiving, patient and joyful, with respect to each other's frailties and imperfections, to the end of their lives.

AN IMPOSSIBILITY.—It is utterly impossible that two ordinary persons should live contentedly together and not offend each other sometimes. The offence may not be intentional; it may occur inadvertantly. In order to enjoy life, all unintentional offences ought to be forgiven. It would be well, however, if persons studied not to give offence, even unintentionally.

LITERARY EMPLOYMENT.—It is surely not the least advantage of literary employment, that it enables us to live in a state of blissful ignorance of our next door neighbour's fortune, faith, and politics; that produces a state of society which admits of no invasion on domestic privacy, and furnishes us with arms against ennui, which supersede the necessity of a standing army of elderly female moralists and domestic politicians.

PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE.—A well-known wealthy Parisian has had himself painted, by an eminent artist, "as he was," "as he is" and "as he will be." "As he was," represents him, at the age of twenty-five, a poor wretch in ragged garments, with his toes peeping through holes in his shoes—slinking, half-famished, by the side of a wall. "As he is," figures him fat and jolly as an alderman, well-dressed, with gold chain decking his waistcoat, and diamond rings blazing on his fingures. And, in "as he will be," he is made a hideous corpse, not the least singular feature of such a singular freak is the fact that he has the paintings hung in his drawing-room.

DOMESTIC QUARRELS.—Married people, who have common sense and control over themselves do not openly quarrel. They very soon learn that doing so is a mistake. Quarrelling destroys their peace of mind, makes the servants and people in general talk, and leads to no practical result. When two persons are tied together for life, and there is not a superabundance of affection upon either side, the best thing for them to do, judged merely from a utilitarian point of view, is to avoid open ruptures, and jog along together as smoothly as circumstances will permit. This is what is in many cases done. The man goes to his business. The woman flies to her friends and keeps herself in good heart by discussing the affairs of her neighbors, and conclusively knowing that the latter are, in their domestic relations, about as miserable as they can be.

Business Men, Hotel-Keepers, Lodging-House Keepers, and every one with an article to sell, or a want to supply, should ADVERTISE in the REVIEW.

An Inspiration.

When a poet composes a set of verses that stir men's hearts we say he is inspired. So indeed he is. When celebrated students of hygiene, after careful study, gives us a panacea for many of the ills that flesh is heir to, we say they have made a lucky hit. We are wrong, it is equally an inspiration. Debility, bronchical affections, and consumption number their victims by the thousands, but how soon these difficulties could be ameliorated if we only knew it. SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA is the remedy preeminently adapted to such conditions, and if taken long enough is almost sure to effect a cure. It is also perfectly agreeable to the taste. w41-d80-1m

OTTAWA, ONTARIO.

VICTORIA CHEMICAL COMPANY, TORONTO,

Gentlemen,—Confirming my statement a short time ago, as to the satisfactory results from the use of your COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES, I will further add that fresh proofs of the genuine benefits conferred on patients requiring it are constantly coming under my observation; parties to whom I have recommended it, have in a short time, with the deepest thankfulness, acknowledged the relief they have experienced, and in some cases have asserted that it, and it alone, have saved their lives. It gives me much pleasure to assure you that I consider your Syrup, the VICTORIA HYPOPHOSPHITES, the best preparation of any which has come under my notice for Debility and all Pulmonary Complaints, Bronchitis, Coughs, &c., and believing this, I constantly recommend it before every other Compound.

Very truly yours,
H. F. McCARTHY,

That's the Way They Used to Do It.

With a thumb and finger on the nose, a bright silver dime on the table as a bribe, and the Castor Oil bottle in the other hand is the way our mother had to approach us when she was about to attack a severe case of colic that had tied our little intestines in knots. Those days, and that scene, comes no more to us, neither will our little ones ever be obliged to tread in the rough path our parents trod in their childhood. Now we take SCOTT & BOWNE'S PALATABLE CASTOR OIL as complacently as we do condensed milk, and it is just about as cheap—25 cents a bottle. w41-d80-1m

LOCAL NEWS

Lacrosse Club.

A meeting of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, will be held in the Choate House on Friday evening Oct. 10th.

Market Square Crowded.

The market square has been crowded all day with teams of barley, wheat, hay and oats. The scene has been a lively one.

The Midland and Freights.

The tracks of the Midland Railway at the Station were well blocked up with cars this morning. There are over thirty cars loaded and being loaded, ready for the front to-day. Another special was ordered this morning.

A Sprig of Heather.

Our attention being attracted by a button hole bouquet, the gentleman who wore it informed us that it was a sprig of heather just received from the hill of Scotland, an interesting and pleasing memento of the old country.

Wheat Flour.

We have again to note an advance in the price of flour. The advance in the price of wheat yesterday has compelled the millers to advance the price of flour to $6.00, there being no distinction between fall and winter wheat.

New Store.

Mr. Thos. E. Pope is preparing to open up an extensive stock of dry goods, groceries, boots and shoes, &c., in Lundy's block next door to the REVIEW Office. It being a bankrupt stock, the prices will be very low.

Base Ball.

The Peterborough Base Ball Club meet for practice every afternoon this week. All who expect to participate in the game with Trinity College School on Saturday must get their hand well in if they intend to keep up the reputation of Peterborough.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto at 10 o'clock to-day, are Partly cloudy to cloudy weather, with rain. In Peterborough wind south to south-westerly, very warm cloudy weather.

Smoke.

There seems to be a constant cloud of smoke in Rubidge & Shaw's store, an indication that good tobacco and cigars are to be had at that place. There is also a fine assortment of smokers sundries to be seen at this place. They are very cheap.

Produce for Europe.

Large quantities of potatoes are being shipped from Montreal to Europe. We see it stated that there were shipped yesterday at Point St. Charles, 1,000 bags of early rose potatoes, at 50 cents per bag of 90 pounds, and 250 bags of chilis, at 50 cents.

Furniture Sale.

There will be an auction sale of household furniture, by Mr. Chas. Stapleton, at the house of Mr. McLeod, on George Street, north, on Wednesday Oct. 15th. The sale will be for cash, without reserve. A good opportunity to buy cheap. See large bills for particulars.

Street Improvements.

The Street Inspector has been around lately in the west end. The sidewalks so long out of repair on Brock Street, near Reid Street, has been attended to. There are other streets in the west end that need examining. There is also some attention needed in the north end of the town.

Cheese Markets.

The cheese market is strong. At Little Falls, N.Y., sales were made yesterday of 5,000 boxes at 10 cents; 5,000 at 10½ cents, and 500 boxes at 9¾ @ 10 cents. Cheese in the English market was quoted yesterday at 49s. 3d. The Montreal market is quoted for September at 10¾ @ 11 cts, and August, 9 @ 10½ cents.

Wheat and Barley.

The wheat market was again excited to-day. The market opened with one load, which was sold at $1.15, subsequently the market became excited and $1.19 was paid. The small arrivals of to-day have had a tendency to keep up the competition and $1.21 was said to have been given for one load. This was, however, afterwards denied. The bulk of the sales ranged from $1.14 @ $1.19. This feverish condition will no doubt last as long as the speculative condition of the other American markets continues which may be broken at any moment. We quote the market to-day at $1.14 @ $1.20 for both fall and spring, much of the wheat in to-day was not well cleaned. Barley has been very active to-day and the offerings have been of a better grade. It has been very steady at 50 to 60cts; the range for the best qualities being 55 to 57cts; 62 has been paid for some clean, white and heavy grains. This, however, is not a quotable figure. Oats remain as heretofore, only a few loads being brought in.

Hall, Innes & Co.

This well-known firm have placed in their stores for the fall trade such an elegant selection of their endless variety of stock that an idea of its richness, if not of its diversity, can only be gained by individual inspection of their articles. Hall, Innes & Co., have always been noted for their large stock of heavy rich and costly goods. In fact, all the more costly goods are one of the leading features of this firm. But not alone in cashmeres, laces, satins, etc., do they excel, but also in the amount of cheaper goods they have on hand. Calicos, medium dress goods, factories, cottons, kid gloves, fancy articles in ladies' fancy costumes and paraphernalia, everything finds a headquarters in their dry goods department. The firm makes its purchases in Europe and imports them directly to this country, thus avoiding the advance in prices consequent upon much intermediation, and securing the latest, most attractive styles, besides being able to warrant the quality of their goods. Only manufacturers are dealt with, and the immediate mutual relations established are the covenant of fair dealing and reliability.

THE CONSOLIDATED BANK.

Indictment of Sir Francis Hincks and His Co-Directors—The Grand Jury Return a True Bill—Text of the Charges.

MONTREAL, Oct. 7.—This morning the Grand Jury reassembled, and among the first indictments submitted to them was that against the Directors of the Consolidated Bank for having published false statements. The prosecution is undertaken by Mr. John Monk, advocate, and others, and the charge is brought against all the Directors, and the late manager, Mr. J. B. Renney. In the afternoon the Grand Jury brought in a "true bill" against Sir Francis Hincks, Messrs. R. J. Reekie, John Rankin, John Grant, W. W. Ogilvie, Hugh Mackay and J. B. Renney.

His Honor, in reply to Mr. Devlin, said that he would cause no warrant to issue, as no complaint had been lodged with him, and in view of the extraordinary nature of the affair.

Mr. Ritchie, Q.C., stated that he appeared for one party to the prosecution, and Mr. Archambault informed the Court that to-morrow the regular proceedings would be taken, and the case proceeded with.

The witnesses in the case before the Grand Jury were Messrs. John Monk, F. H. Burnett, and Lonergan. The indictment charges that on the 9th July the Directors "did unlawfully and wilfully make a certain wilfully false and deceptive statement in a certain return partly printed and partly written, respecting the affairs of the said bank, which said statement was wilfully false and deceptive; that certain liabilities of the said bank, to wit, other deposits payable on demand, amounted on 31st December, 1878, to $2,654,864, and it was therein falsely stated certain other liabilities of the bank, to wit, other deposits payable after notice on a fixed day, amounted to $1,964,305.60, and it was therein falsely stated that no amount was due on that date by the said bank to other banks in Canada, and falsely stated that the specie amounted to $270,252.96, and that the Dominion notes amounted to $401.165."

A number of civil actions will be immediately entered against the Directors for the recovery of damages.

Directions for Preserving Autumn Leaves in Their Rich Tints.

The substance and structure of the leaves of most kinds of trees are such, that if they are kept dry after being matured, they will remain unimpaired in form and substance for an indefinite length of time. This fact suggests the disirability of fixing by some means the beautiful colors and tints which leaves of many kinds assume in the autumn, that they may be preserved on account of their beauty. The method here described for accomplishing this, is one that has been repeatedly tried, with uniformly successful results, by the writer, and its simplicity will strongly recommend it to all. As the leaves which are to be preserved have been freshly gathered, an ordinary flat-iron, heated not very hot, and on which some Spermaceit has been melted by touching the surface with it, is passed over each one separately and repeatedly, as it lays on a cotton cloth folded to a number of thicknesses, until no steam escapes, and the leaf, in all its parts, presents a dry, hardened glossy appearance. A little trial with the iron heated to a less or greater degree will teach the operator how hot it may best be. By this process all the colors and tints will be beautifully preserved, although some may undergo a slight change. Green leaves and those naturally variegated, like Abatilon Thompsonii, may also have their colors fixed by this means, but these will fade somewhat after some months. When a collection has been prepared, they can be arranged as initials, monograms, words, and in other designs for framing, or they may be collected into an album.—Long Bros., Florists, Buffalo. N. Y.

The Mule and the Small Boy.

A boy, apparently very much agitated, rushed into a house yesterday and said to the lady:

"I don't want ter alarm yer, but I've got big news. The man sent me up from the livery stable to tell yer."

"Good heavens, what is it?"

"Why, you know yer little boy Aleck, what the man can't keep outen the livery stable 'round the corner?"

"Yes, well?"

"I told Aleck just now not to go into the stable among the horses, but he wouldn't mind me——"

"Oh, dear! What has happened?"

"He said he wanted ter see what a mule 'ud do when yer tickled its heels with a straw."

"Oh, heavens!" gasped the lady, and clung to the mantle for support.

"Well, sir, yer boy Aleck got a straw, snuck up behin' a sorrel mule, tickled him on the heels, an——"

The lady started for the door.

"An' the blamed critter never lifted a hoof," called the boy. "Never as much as switched its cussed tail. It's a mighty good thing for Aleck that he didn' too; an' I thought I'd come up an' tell yer." And he dodged out at the side entrance.—Cincinnati Inquirer.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

THE COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS GET INTO TROUBLE AGAIN.

Inspector's Report on Teachers' Certificates —Principal's Report—School Drill—The Collection of Rates.

The Board held their regular meeting at the Council Chamber, on Tuesday evening the 7th instant.

Present,—Jas. Stevenson, Esq., and Messrs. Errett, Shaw, Romaine, Wrighton, Toole, Edmison, Menzies and Cook.

In absence of Mr. Morrow, Mr. Menzies was requested to act as Secretary and read the minutes of the the last special meeting, which were approved.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Miss S. J. McLeod applying for a position as teacher in the employ of the Board as soon as a vacancy was at their disposal. The lady enclosed testimonials as to her ability as a teacher and stated her qualification.

From Mr. Jeffers enclosing a report of the work being done in the Collegiate Institute, and of the number of pupils in the various classes and under the various teachers.

From the Minister of Education, enclosing a circular containing information to the Boards of High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, with reference to the Drill Associations proposed to be established in connection therewith. (We print the circular in full in another column.)

From the Inspector, Mr. James Stratton, respecting the legal standing of the certificates held by the teachers in the employ of the Board, furnished in compliance with a resolution to that effect passed at a previous meeting.

ACCOUNTS.

W. H. Robertson, advertising	$2 00
S. Johnston, cutting wood, &c	10 50

DISPOSALS.

The communications from Miss McLeod and the Inspector were received. The account of W. H. Robertson was ordered to be paid, and that of S. Johnston referred to the Property Committee.

PRINCIPAL'S REPORT.

Mr. JEFFERS handed in the report of attendance at the Institute and Public Schools for the past month. The report is summarized below:—

	No. on Roll.	Av. Atten.
Collegiate Institute	129	114
Central School	467	390
South Ward School	401	160
West Ward School	168	142
Auburn School	68	42
	1233	848

DRILL ASSOCIATIONS.

Mr. SHAW enquired if the Principal had received any detailed instructions with regard to the Drill Association proposed to be established. He commended the effort being made as a step in the right direction. The expense attending it would be small, the Government having undertaken to furnish the arms and acoutrements and provide an instructor free of cost.

Mr. EDMISON said the Principal was already in advance of the Board, having the boys fully organized and under instruction. Mr. Jeffers was competent to put them through their facings in a creditable manner.

Mr. ERRETT suggested the advisibility of finding some place to drill in. The cold weather coming on, would prevent using the platforms at school for that purpose.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS.

The CHAIRMAN explained that in the absence of the Chairman of this Committee, he had prepared a report in conformity with the wishes of the Committee, which was read as follows:—

PETERBOROUGH, Oct. 4, 1879.

The Committee on Appointments submit the following report:—

They have considered the communication of Miss Baguley, and recommend that so soon as she has obtained a Second Class Certificate, she be placed on the staff of teachers on the first suitable vacancy.

2. That Miss Beckett be appointed to fill the place vacated by Miss Elsworth,
3. And that Miss Brook be appointed to fill the place vacated by Miss Brown,
4. And that Miss Irwin be appointed to fill the place vacated by Miss Baguley.
5. That Miss Gamble be appointed temporarily in Miss Irwin's place.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

On behalf of the Chairman,
J. STEVENSON.

Mr. ERRETT moved the adoption of the report.

Mr. MENZIES took objection to the adoption of that portion of the report having reference to the appointment of Miss Gamble to the South Ward School. He regretted to have to make objections to any appointment made by the Committee, as it was unpleasant to have to criticise any teacher's fitness for a position in such a public manner before the Board where the public and the press were in attendance. But he felt in justice to the School in his Ward, that the peculiar circumstances which led to Miss Gamble's appointment on the staff of that school, warranted his interference to prevent it. It was well enough known that at the first meeting of the Committee on Appointments last week, Miss Gamble was appointed to fill a vacancy in the West Ward School. It was likewise well enough known that the very next day, as soon as it leaked out, the appointment became obnoxious to a number of the principal residents of that Ward who have children attending that school; and likewise that the head teacher of that Ward school had expressed herself strongly in opposition to the appointment. The result was that a petition from the residents of the Ward was at once signed and presented to the Committee on Appointments, taking objection to the appointment, and praying for a "stronger" teacher. The Committee at once called a special meeting last Saturday to re-consider the appointment, and they got over their trouble by transferring Miss Gamble from the West Ward School to the South Ward School. Mr. Menzies thought that this was not fair. The same objections which had induced the committee to make the change for the West Ward residents, should have held good in preventing the appointment to the South Ward or any other Ward in the town, and he was not going to allow the school in his own Ward to be slighted. The head teacher in the South Ward School had spoken to him in disapproval of the appointment, and hoped that Miss Baguley might be retained for the remainder of the year. He would therefore move in amendment,—That Miss Baguley be retained in the position which she has been filling so creditably in the South Ward School, until the end of the year.

Mr. ERRETT thought the course taken by Mr. Menzies was not judicious. He took exception to the petition spoken of by Mr. Menzies, which had been simply a request to Mr. Dumble, Chairman of the Committee on Appointments, to do something.

Mr. MENZIES said that he had the interests of the school in the Ward he represented to look to. He admitted that it was injudicious to speak of a teacher's unpopularity in such a public way, but the teacher in this case had the Committee on Appointments to blame for causing it. The matter had been made as public as it well could be before that night by the industrious way in which the West Ward had been canvassed in obtaining signatures to the petition spoken of.

Mr. ERRETT assured the Board that the petition referred to was simply asking for a "strong" teacher to be appointed, but it did not specify where she was to be "strong." (Laughter.)

Mr. TOOLE tendered the information for those members of the Board who were not on the Committee, that the appointments suggested by the Committee had been made with the approval of the Inspector and Principal.

Mr. EDMISON was of the opinion that it would be injurious to the work of the school to have Miss Baguley removed before the end of the year. If there was any reasonable objection made by the people of the South Ward to the proposed appointment, such objection was worthy of consideration.

Mr. TOOLE had found the Board in favour of these changes, and felt sure that the people who had elected the Trustees would be satisfied with the action taken.

Mr. MENZIES pressed his amendment to the report.

Mr. ERRETT objected to it as not being in accordance with the rules of the Board, as it was unlawful for the Board to appoint a teacher who held no certificate.

Upon the CHAIRMAN stating that it would take a majority of the full Board to carry the amendment, a vote was taken on the original motion, which was carried.

COLLECTION OF RATES.

Mr. ERRETT called the attention of the Board to an alteration in the matter of collection of rates, as recently authorized by the Supplementary School Act, as follows (Sec. 13, Act of 1879):—

> "The children of all non-residents alike, whether ratepayers of the section or not, must now pay a school fee not exceeding twenty-five cents per calendar month, in advance. The School Act of 1879 declares that 'from and after the eighteenth day of August next, (1879), the fee to be imposed upon any non-resident pupils shall not exceed the sum of twenty-five cents for each pupil for every calendar month.' (Sec. 13, Act of 1879.)
>
> NOTE.—Formerly the fee chargeable might be fifty cents per calendar month, now it cannot exceed twenty-five cents. Formerly, also, the children of non-residents who paid a school tax in support of the school were exempt from the payment of fees to such school; now, all non-residents alike pay the prescribed fee, as well as resident or non-resident supporters of Separate Schools who desire to send their children to the Public School school of the section. The law, however, as explained in the foot note on page 20, ch. II., Part I., remains unchanged."

The CHAIRMAN said that the Secretary would be instructed to notify teachers of the alteration.

Mr. ERRETT urged the injustice of parties living in town and paying only a nominal tax, deriving the benefits of educating several members of the family at the expense of the ratepayers.

The CHAIRMAN undertook to look into the matter during the interval before the next meeting.

At the suggestion of Mr. EDMISON the Secretary was instructed to make application, with regard to the Drill Association, as directed in the circular from the Minister of Education.

The Board then adjourned.

A FATAL BLOW.—R. W. Turner, the clerk who was struck on the head by Smyth, a commercial traveller, with whose wife he had been too intimate, died this morning at the hospital. He obstinately refused to say one word about the affair. Smyth, who feels his position keenly, will now be tried for murder.

OTTAWA.

From the Morning Papers.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.—Messrs. W. J. Johnstone and A. P. Wright, of the standard branch of the Inland Revenue Department, left on Monday night, the former for the western and the latter for the eastern portions of the Dominion, for the purpose of instructing the recently appointed inspectors and assistant inspectors of weights and measures in the use of the standards entrusted to their care, and of the books, forms, &c., to be used by them in connection with the performance of the duties of office. The object aimed at by the Department in sending these gentlemen on the above mission is to ensure a thorough and common-sense system of administrating the law under the new Weights and Measures Act. It is also said that the books, forms, institutions, etc., connected with this branch of the Department have recently been in a great measure remodeled and very much simplified.

TORONTO AND OTTAWA R. R.—Mr. W. H. Scott, M.P.P., has left for Perth, where the Lanark County Council is in session. A by-law is to be submitted there to replace the one which was recently allowed to lapse. There is only some $200,000 of bonuses to be voted between here and Peterborough. Mr. Scott says the vote of Tuesday secures the building of the road between these two points, and that when it reaches there, it will not be long before being extended to Toronto.

BLOCKED BY EELS.—The turbine water-wheel at 40-horse power furnishing the motive power for Patterson & Law's Foundry, New Edinburgh, has been stopped by eels during the past two days. One of the eels taken out measured three feet eight inches in length, and over nine inches in circumference. The blockade was perfect. The eels take lodging in the wheel when it is not in moiton. This is the second time this season that the wheel has been stopped from working through the same cause.

AID FOR IRELAND.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—A telegram has been received from New York, guaranteeing two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to assist the Irish tenants if an Irish member of the advanced party will visit the United States. Parnell will probably go.

ADVANCING ON HERAT.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—It is rumored that the English Government has ordered an advance upon Herat. It is asserted that the Russians are also marching on Herat. If they seize it, England would probably declare war, but the chances that Russia will so occupy the capital of western Afghanistan are considered remote.

NEW TARIFF IDEA.

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—The North German Gazette recommends the admission of France into the proposed German tariff league. The article is regarded as a feeler in favor of a policy of establishing free trade among the nations on the same level of industrial development, and consequently excluding England and America from the continential market.

AMERICAN.

A CATTLE PLAGUE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Putman County is excited over ravages of the cattle plague, a new phase of contagious pleuro-preumonia. At a meeting of citizens of the county yesterday, John G. Borden offered to advance ten thousand dollars towards crushing out the disease. It is supposed that the disease was communicated by a drove of cattle coming from Buffalo via Albany. It is proposed to quarantine the whole county.

RECEPTION OF GRANT.

CANTON, Ohio, Oct 9.—The Presbytery finds the Rev. Mr. Park guilty of immorality, and suspends him.

THE TELEGRAPH COMPANIES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—President Green, of the Western Union Company, says that President Jewitt, of the Erie Company, had been invited to a seat on the Western Union Board of Directors last spring. He did not think there was any hidden meaning in Jewitt's election. Ex-Governor Morgan said that no change in the officers of the telegraph company was contemplated. He said Vanderbilt was interested largely in Erie securities, but he was confident that Jewitt would retain his present office.

THE LOST AERONAUT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—Professor Wise's son has left for St. Louis to settle up his father's affairs. He believes him to be dead.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The World's Paris correspondent reports an interview with DeLesseps who says he means to go on with his canal. He will go to America and examine the ground personally. If he then asks for capital he does not doubt that he will get all he wants. He does not expect that the United States Government will oppose the scheme.

SUICIDE IN A CELL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Hertog Haas, the sixth avenue cigar dealer, who was arrested on Tuesday, being charged by a little flower girl with a criminal assault, was found dead in his cell. It is supposed that he committed suicide by strangulation. The charge, it is now believed, was unfounded.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Geo. B. Newton, agent of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company in this city, said yesterday that the Lehigh Valley Company had advanced the price on all coals 25 cents a ton. He also stated positively that Packer would not sign the agreement for a new Combination.

THE NEW MEXICAN MINES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—A Washington special report to the Times states that it is feared that the rush of persons from the United States to the rich New Majoda mines in Mexico, will cause complications with the Mexican Government. It is reported that Mexican officers are attempting to excite ill feeling.

A TRAIN ROBBED.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 9.—The Chicago and Alton train was robbed of its express money at Glendale, 15 miles east of this city. The train was stopped by 20 masked men, who kept up firing while the messenger's safe was robbed. The messenger was knocked down. $50,000 is the estimated loss. The agent at Glendale is missing.

A LARGE BALLOON.

ALBION, Mich., Oct. 9.—A large balloon passed over this city this morning going south rapidly at a great height. To all appearances a car was attached.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

THE GALLANT VICTORY OF THE BRITISH FORCES BEFORE CABUL.

Admirable Conduct of the Troops—The Enemy Routed After a Stubborn Resistance—Two Standards Taken.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Gen. Roberts telegraphs from Charasiab on the evening of the 6th inst., that the Afghans advanced from Cabul in force, and there was heavy fighting all day. The Afghan position was carried and twelve guns were captured. The British loss was about eighty killed and wounded, General Roberts hoped to be able to march close to Cabul on Tuesday.

There is generally wide-spread disapprobation in the United Kindom over the recent army regulation which prohibits newspaper correspondents from accompanying the troops in Afghanistan.

ROUT OF THE ENEMY.

General Roberts, in a despatch dated Charasiab, Oct. 6, 8 p.m., says, reconnoitering parties were sent out on all the roads leading to Cabul at daybreak this morning, who reported the enemy advancing in great force from the direction of the city. These parties had to retire soon afterwards. A high range of hills intervening between Charasiab and Cabul was crowned with Sikh troops and the people from the city, while parties of Ghilzais appeared on the hills running along both flanks of the camp, and reports were received that the road to Seahidabad was threatened. Along this road General McPherson was advancing with a large convoy of stores and ammunition. A warning was sent to McPherson and some assistance in cavalry. It was absolutely necessary to carry the heights in front before evening. General Baker was entrusted with this very difficult duty, which he completed in the most admirable manner. He sent a party under Major White, of the 92nd Highlanders, consisting of a wing of that regiment, three guns of the 8th Battery, 3rd Brigade of Royal Artillery, 100 of the 23rd Pioneers, and two squadrons of the 5th Punjaub cavalry, to advance by the right of the gorge. After

AN OBSTINATE RESISTANCE

Major White succeeded in driving the enemy off the main hills, and later in the day he captured twelve guns. Our loss here was was four killed and nine wounded. General Baker, with the 72nd Highlanders, a wing of the 5th Ghoorkas, 100 of the 5th Punjaub Infantry, the remainder of the 23rd Pioneers, 4 guns of No. 2 Mountain Battery, and 8 Gatling guns, made a turning movement to the left and was soon hotly engaged. He reports the advance of the troops was made to his entire satisfaction, height after height being carried in gallant style. Our loss was as follows:—Captain Young, of the Punjaub Infantry; Lieutenant Ferguson, of the 72nd Highlanders; and Dr. Duncan, of the 23rd Pioneers, wounded, and about seventy men killed and wounded. The enemy's loss is unknown, but must have been considerable. They and lost two standards. We have strong pickets posted, as large numbers of Ghilzais are still in the neighbourhood, but I hope to-morrow to be able to march to within a short distance of Cabul. The Ameer states the palace of Bala-Hissar is no longer in possession of people he can trust. His family moved into the city. The head men of Chardih and the suburbs of Cabul have asked if they may pay their respects to me. Others will probably follow this example, and I am sanguine the country will quiet down, now the people see opposition is useless; but at present there is very great excitement in the city and country generally.

FLED IN GREAT CONFUSION.

NORWOOD.

OUR SHOW.—The Register says:—We beg to remind our readers of the East Riding Exhibition to be held here on Tuesday and Wednesday next. From what we can learn this will be the best show ever held in the Riding. Mr. Roxburgh the Secretary, informs us that he has already received a number of entries of superior stock from some of our frontier towns. Mr. Roxburgh with a competent staff, is now tastefully fitting up the Drill Shed for the reception of exhibits assigned for the inside department.

INDIAN WAR.

The Utes Vanquished and Payne's Command Released by Merritt.

RAWLINS, Oct. 8.—Merritt on his approach to Payne's camp discovered the hostile Utes. The Indians discovered Merritt at the same time. The General ordered his men to fall back in rapid retreat. The Indians were encouraged to rush from their hiding places, and Merritt pushing his troops to a run, drew them out on the open plain. He then gave the order to wheel. In less than two minutes his men poured into the Utes a fire which forced them to seek every available cover. The battle began on Monday afternoon and lasted a few hours, during which the Indians suffered a loss of 37 killed. Merritt did not lose a man. The Utes threw up a white flag for a parley. This was granted by Merritt, and several chiefs entered his camp willing to surrender. Merritt told them that if they would give up their arms and ponies he would do nothing more for the present. After a brief consultation all the chiefs agreed that if the soldiers invaded their reservation they would fight them until the last. They left Merritt's camp and returned to the canyons. Merritt pushed forward with all haste and joined Payne.

By Telegraph to the Review.

FORCED MARCHES.

RAWLINS, Wyoming, Oct. 9.—Lieut. Almy, adjutant of General Merritt's command gives a very interesting account of Merritt's march from Rawlins. He says "We marched continuously on Saturday night making seventy miles in 24 hours. The command arrived at the scene of action on Sunday, after marching seventy miles the day previous. Dodge's company arrived on Thursday and had to cut its way in. General Crook has established his headquarters at Fort Steele, but comes here every morning and remains during the day. He is watching things closely and is despatching messengers daily."

HAGYARD'S PECTORAL BALSAM is composed of the most healing balsams and gums. The Balsams, which enter into its composition, were used by the natives when America was first discovered, and are combined with other vegetable tonics, so blended together, that it is a specific for all affections of the throat and lungs. Thousands of bottles are used annually, and it is considered one of the standard preparations of the day.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1879.

TORONTO AND OTTAWA RAILWAY.

IMMEDIATELY after the passing of the Ottawa by-law, granting a bonus to the Toronto and Ottawa Railway, there comes the news that Mr. Scott has gone to Perth, to see to the submission of a by-law in Lanark County. The prospects of the Company look excellent, and it is evident that the President will spare no exertion to forward operations, in which he can count upon the efficient and energetic co-operation of Mr. Dumble. In spite of all opposition, we may hope to see this enterprise successful before very long.

NOT VERY CONSISTENT.

MANY of the Reform journals which praised Mr. Letellier for dismissing an administration, having a large majority in the Legislative Assembly, argue strongly in support of Mr. Joly, who at the present moment is unable to face the House from the knowledge that he has not a majority in it. Those who were formerly supporters of Mr. Joly, but now refuse to follow any longer a lead which they find to be prejudicial to the Province, are abused in the grossest terms, while Mr. Turcotte, who openly and shamefully sold himself, is still lauded to the skies. Reformers with nothing to reform are put to strange shifts sometimes to justify their erratic course.

DUMMER.

FOUND AT LAST.—At the time of Mrs. Panye's murder by Brenton, a rifle, with a number of other things, were missed, and it was supposed that the murderer had hid them. Mr. Tighe, who owns the adjoining property, while clearing up a fallow on Saturday, discovered the rifle, the stock of which was almost destroyed by fire. After a further search, some bedclothing, which had disappeared at the same time, was also found.

A TERRIBLE DEATH.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The death on the 27th ult., in Brooklyn, of George Arthur Gardiner, nephew by marriage of Prescott, the historian, was attended with distressing circumstances that have only now obtained publicity. A certificate of death filed by Dr. Saml. S. Guy, states that death was caused by gangrene of the mouth and face, arising from treatment of the tooth. The history of the case in brief is as follows:—About the first week in September, Mr. Gardiner had business in Boston, and suffered so much with the first molar on the right lower jaw that he had it treated by a Boston dentist named Waters, the tooth being decayed aching. He was then about coming to Brooklyn and on arriving not finding relief, went to Dr. Marvin, dentist. At the time of his visit Dr. Marvin, the pain was shooting through his head very much as neuralgia goes. That was on the 14th, and on the 16th Mr. Gardiner had grown so ill that Dr. Guy was called in, but he grew rapidly worse, his blood-engorging tissues decomposing, and his system absorbing gangrenous matter until he died, one by one the connections between the head and body having died until little was left save the spinal column. Dr. Guy is positive that Mr. Gardiner was suffering from some kind of arsenical poisoning when he first saw him, and he is positive that arsenic was taken from the tooth, where it had been placed to kill the nerve, by the saliva, and carried and distributed by it through the system. A. C. Lewis, who watched with deceased through his long and terrible suffering, says there cannot be a doubt that Mr. Gardiner died from the effects of arsenic placed by the dentist in the tooth to kill the nerve. Mr. Lewis says no man ever died such a terrible death as Gardiner did. When he was dead, every connection between his head and body, except the spine, had been eaten through and completely severed by the action of the poison. Mr. Lewis proposes to sue Dr. Waters for malpractice. The case is attracting wide attention. Mr. Gardiner was a splendid specimen of physical manhood in the prime of life, was nearly six feet high, weighed 174 lbs, and measured 46 inches around the naked chest; he was about 56 years of age.

SOUTH MONAGHAN SHOW.

Fifteenth Annual Exhibition of the South Monaghan Agricultural Society.

There was a beautiful day for the yearly agricultural show at Centreville, and a large concourse of visitors was attracted to it. THE GREAT NORTH-WEST.

Equal to and Better than Minnesota—Tom White Interviewed.

From the Montreal Star.

The Great North-West, when spoken of, conveys but little to the general public. An indistinct idea that it is a new country, somewhere "back," would probably be all that men most could tell. At an agricultural banquet at Aylesbury, Lord Beaconsfield, when referring to the territory ceded by the Hudson's Bay Company to Canada, spoke of it as being "an illimitable and fertile wilderness." Residents may write from a new country, but their statements will be taken with more or less doubt, but when a well-known fellow-citizen goes through the country, his views are generally considered of much weight. With this idea in view a Star man sought an interview with Mr. Thomas White, M.P., who has just returned from a several weeks trip through a portion of the North-West Territory.

"How far did I go? Well, I went about six hundred miles west of Winnipeg, which is almost on the Pembina Branch of the Canada Pacific."

"If it is not an impertinent question, would you kindly tell me what your business was?"

"Certainly. My object in travelling where I did was for nothing but the purpose of seeing the country, and the habits and thrift of the half-breeds and settlers. I believe that the North-Western Territory is to be the most important and all-absorbing question in the future, and, wishing to thoroughly understand the subject, I made up my mind to make a personal inspection."

"What is the country like, Mr. White?"

"The whole region, that is to say, that portion through which I went, is, indeed, a fine country. The land is deep, rich and fertile. Manitoba's is better than, while the average, three hundred miles west, is equal to that of Minnesota. Along the banks of the rivers poplar and spruce grow in sufficient quantity to supply the settlers with fuel, while to the north of the Saskatchewan forests of timber abound, furnishing ample building material."

"Are the natives thrifty?"

"The majority of them are not. They are indolent and improvident, and about the only thing they succeed in doing is the mortgaging of their farms. These mortgages are taken by residents chiefly, who are only waiting their turn to foreclose and take possession of the land. The new settlers, on the contrary, are very thrifty, and get along well. They are chiefly Upper Canada farmers, who have gone up there and settled through the country, not particularly in villages, but more scattered, after the plan of settlers in the Far West. They are very glad to have immigrants come in."

"The soil, is it productive?"

"Yes, the soil is very productive. Cereals grow almost without cultivation. The land is rich and easily worked, and farmers who are at all thrifty do well."

"The markets?"

"The markets are nothing, so to speak. There is but little outside communication; everything that is raised is consumed, partly by the residents and partly by the Mounted Police. Of course, in such a new country, their markets are very limited; but I did not hear a single complaint that farmers could not get rid of their surplus. In Winnipeg, wheat was only worth about sixty cents, while in other portions, from a dollar and a half up to two dollars a bushel."

"Do you think that the present immigration and homestead laws are what they should be, when the inducements offered by the United States are considered?"

"At present, yes. I think the laws and inducements offered are sufficient. Of course, as time rolls on and the results are seen of the practical working of the laws, modifications will undoubtedly be made. The country wants settlers—agriculturists—and I do not think that the Government will lose sight of that fact."

"Is the climate as severe as in Montreal?"

"No, it is not. To be sure they have cold weather, but the thermometer does not go down as low as in this city. The consequences are that farmers allow their horses to run out all winter, and they generally come out as well, the cattle are housed about five months."

"Is the railroad that you went over in good condition?"

"No, it is not. The line runs from St. Vincent to St. Boniface. Men are working at it, grading and fixing the track, so that on my return it was better."

"From what you saw and learned, would you advise young men to go to the North-West?"

"I should say so, decidedly not unless they are willing to go with the idea of farming, laboring, or turning their hand to anything that might turn up. Persons going there with the idea of getting situations are pretty sure to be disappointed. Business men who have a very large amount of capital might do well in starting a new store of something of that kind, but those whose fortunes are broken down here had better not go there with the the idea of getting something to do, unless they are willing to till the soil. As to the professions, there is but little opening. They don't want more lawyers and doctors than they have now, but, of course, as more people go up and business increases, things will change."

Thanking Mr. White, the reporter withdrew.

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

GREASY LEATHER.

BY WM. J. MACLEA.

[The following fire song of Jackson Hose No. 1, written twenty years ago, will recall to many old [illegible] the happy hours spent in the [illegible] street fire station amongst the boys who [illegible] the volunteer department. The Jackson Hose, Tiger Engine Co. No. 6, British America No 3, Deluge No. 5, Victoria No. 4, Union Hook and Ladder, and Independant No. 2 ("Saucy Two") were all crack companies in the old brigade. Many of the "old-timers," alas! are dead, and sleep beneath the sod; others are scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land, while the bulk of those remaining have long since confined the duty of extinguishing fires to younger and more active hands. To those members of the old brigade yet living, this fire song of the Jacksons will revive many pleasant recollections of "auld lang syne," and give our younger firemen an idea of what fire duty once was in Toronto.]

Now, boys, I'm going to sing a song,
It's one you've never heard, sirs,
Of the Jackson Hose and the reel they run,
We call her our "blue bird," sirs.
We [illegible] sirs, how tired we are—
How hot or cold the weather—
Our "blue bird" [illegible] both [illegible] and fat
To spread the greasy leather.

Chorus—With a Hi! hi! hi!
When the alarm is heard,
None of them can pass us
With our gay "blue bird."

There's Tiger Six, that lays next door,
They have a good machine, sirs;
They are a gallus lot of boys,
And friends to us have been, sirs.
Long may that friendship to us last,
For we've always run together;
And we'll always "lay up" first to Six
A "butt" of greasy leather.
Chorus—With a Hi! hi! hi! etc.

When the bell rings forth the dread alarm,
We're quickly at our hall, sirs;
And fifty stout hearts soon are found
Right there when duty calls, sirs.
We are as good a lot of boys
As ever got together,
And it's our delight at a fire at night
To spread our greasy leather.
Chorus—With a Hi! hi! hi! etc.

Victoria Four—up on Queen street—
I'll speak a word of them, sirs;
You'll always find them, when we meet,
A hard-working lot of men, sirs.
Long may Victoria be their name.
And may our hearts ne'er sever;
We'll always try and use them well
And bring them greasy leather.
Chorus—With a Hi! hi! hi! etc.

There's Union Hook and Ladder One,
I must not let them pass, sirs.
Although I've got them late down here,
You'll never find them last sirs;
I'm sure they'd help us in a muss,
And we will all endeavor
To lend a hand if they should need
The help of greasy leather.
Chorus—With a Hi! hi! hi! etc.

There's Independant Number Two
That lately came to town, sirs.
They made their boast before she came
They'd take all others down, sirs,
But when *The Ghost her mighty host
Around her brakes had gathered,
They couldn't touch "Old Tiger Six"
Or our Greasy Leather.
Chorus—With a Hi! hi! hi! etc.

But now my lay is all layed out,
And I must end this song, sirs;
I might put on another length,
But that would be to long, sirs,
I have uncoupled what I knew,
Picked up what my wits could gather,
And reeled it up into a song
And called it Greasy Leather.
Chorus—With a Hi! hi! hi! etc.

*A pet name for their engine.

A DEBTOR CORNERED.

Very adroit was the march that Lije Loomis stole on the "Statue of Limitations." Lije was the factotum of Guy's Neck. He did a miscellaneous business as carpenter, cow-doctor, coffin-maker—adding to his other functions that of undertaking to the county poor-house. He was withal, an easy, good-natured fellow, free to trust, and a most indulgent creditor.

Among the others whom Lije had trusted to his cost, was Greg Grimes, without exception the greatest promise-maker and breaker in Guy's Neck. I verily believe he would, if possible have put a creditor off till the Last Judgment and then, on the score of being a busy day, have begged him to wait till to-morrow.

Greg had wheedled Lije with promises till the latter's claim was "outlawed." Losing patience at last, Lije took his account over to the Squire's, when to his no small discomfiture, he learned that unless he could get a new promise from his debtor, with a witness to it, he might whistle for his bill. Such fellows as Greg always know a good deal of law, especially the sharp points of it. Greg would talk as freely and full of promises as ever when he and Lije were alone, but, before others, would evade the subject, or else remain provokingly mum.

One day Lije drove up to Greg's door with his old gray mare and spring wagon, a plain pine coffin—one of those flat-topped affairs deemed good enough for poor folks—being behind the seat.

"Mornin', neighbor," said Lije.

"Same to you," said Greg, "goin' to plant a pauper?"

"Y-a-a-s: old Boke took rather sudden leave last night, and went to try the charity of another world."

"Which is no mor'n fair," said Greg, "seein' how long he's lived on the charity of this."

"Would you mind gettin' in and comin' long neighbor?" said Lije; "it's mighty dull goin' to a funeral all alone by one's self."

Greg didn' mind, but straightway mounted by Lije's side.

The two chatted away, after a sort, to prove how cheerful good company can render even a grave occasion.

"[illegible] haven't forgot that little bill [illegible]," Lije at last took the liberty to hint.

"Not by no means," said Greg. "Let's see now—how much did you say it was? I misremember rightly."

"Even sixty-nine dollars, besides seven years interest."

"Quite right," Greg assented; "I recollect now."

"Ef it's at all inconvenient to pay it," said Lije, "don't you put yourself out on no account."

"I've been threatenin' to pay it for a month back," said Greg; "but times hev been tight, an'—an' how would Monday week do?"

"To a dot," answered Lije.

"I'll send it round," said Greg.

A curious sound came from the coffin. The ghost of a chuckle, Durdles would have called it. Greg gave one jump and "lit" in an adjacent cow pasture. Looking back, he saw Lije's prentice, the most mischievous imp in Guy's Neck, but with plenty of sense and of a lawful age to be a witness, sitting up in the coffin and laughing like mad.

Greg took in the situation at a glance. He had been duped into committing himself before a witness.

"It's a dirty, nasty, mean trick!" he exclaimed.

"What is it?" said Lije.

"Why, triflin' with a body's feelin's about old Boke, makin' b'lieve he's dead!"

"An' so he is," said Lije, "only I was goin' arter the body, instid of fetchin' it away."

Greg turned off in disgust, Lije bawled after him:—

"Don't forget Monday-week; and p'r'aps it'll save both of us some trouble."

Greg didn't forget, but has never more than half enjoyed himself at a funeral since.

AN INTERESTING WILL CASE.

The Late Rev. Father Timlin's Property in Dispute—A Narration of the Facts.

COBOURG, Oct. 7.—The Fall Assizes for the united counties of Northumberland and Durham opened here yesterday, before Chief Justice Wilson. Thos. Hodgins, Q. C., appears for Crown. The docket is a rather large one. It is understood that the Government do not intend prosecuting the charge of murder against Cope Mallory, implicated in the notorious Castleton abortion case. It is reported that the Port Hope jeweller, Montgomery, against whom there are several charges of forgery, will plead guilty. His trial comes on this week.

The time of the Court was taken up to-day in a case wherein considerable interest is manifested and a sum of $40,000 involved. The case is most easily explained by giving a short sketch of those who are party to it. Over seventy years ago there was a family of Timlins living in a village of Ireland. One by one they came to this country. The youngest son, the late Rev. Father Timlin, of this town, came a young man to Canada, and entered a college at Montreal and prepared himself for the priesthood. He acquired a farm in a place called Dundee, in the Province of Quebec, and when his brother John came out he settled him on it. Another brother, Martin, came out soon after, and the priest said he might share the land with John till he could do better, but owing to some trouble with John's wife Martin came on west and proceeded to take up a farm in the township of Mara, where a sister was already settled. His shanty was put up, but before he got fairly to work he disappeared and has never since been heard of. Some human remains were found in the bush not far from his shanty some years after, and a boot was found and identified as belonging to Martin. On this evidence his friends formed the conclusion that he had lost his way and had died in the woods. His family soon followed on after him, but they never found trace of him, and took up land in the same township. This was about the year 1844. Somewhere about or before this time the younger brother, the priest, was stationed in Cobourg and remained here up till the time of his death some three years ago. He accumulated over $40,000 in bank stocks, and held the title of the church parsonage and school property. The present law suit concerns these two latter, but involves also the money. The persons bringing the action are the sons of this Martin Timlin who was lost in the woods, and the nephews of the priest. They are endeavoring to break the will of the priest, and prove themselves the rightful heirs. The parsonage is now held by the present priest of Cobourg, and the school-house is controlled by the School Board. The will of Father Timlin first provided for $3,000 being left to his married sister, named Kelly, also settled in Mara, and and the residue to All-Hallows College, an institution near Dublin, for the training of Catholic priests. In making his will he sought the advice of the Reverend Father John Quirk, priest at Hastings, not far from Cobourg. Quirk was also made executor. The heirs are trying to prove that some of the many changes and erasures on the will were made after Father Timlin's death. Father Quirk, on the other hand, asserts that they were all made on the express command of Father Timlin. The heirs are further endeavoring to make out that Father Quirk influenced Father Timlin to leave the residue of his fortune to All-Hallows College, an institution where the former had been educated, but with which Father Timlin had never any connection. Father Quirk in his testimony gave an emphatic denial to any such imputation. Shortly before his death Father Timlin added a codicil to his will, taking away the legacy of $3,000 he intended leaving his sister, and substituting therefor an annuity of $300 per annum. All the evidence was taken to-day, and is conflicting on several points. It will all come under review before the full Court, and judgment will be given at Toronto.

ABBREVIATING MULTIPLICATION.

From the Talkhys Amali al Hissab.

The "Talkhys Amali al Hissab" ("Analytical Resume of Calculating Process"), written by Ibm al Banna, of Morocco, contains, in the chapter devoted to the multiplication of integral numbers, some abbreviated methods by means of which in certain particular cases, the product of the multiplication of two integral numbers may be obtained very quickly. As these processes deserve to be known, and are not found in any arithmetical treatise (although the "Talkhys" gave them nearly six centuries ago), we publish them for the benefit of our readers.

FIRST RULE.—Suppose it be required to multiply by itself a number composed of figures, each equal to unity; for example, 11,111 x 11,111. We say that the product will be 123,454,321.

To obtain this we write the number of figures contained in one of the factors, and to the left and right of this number we place symmetrically the natural decreasing series of numbers less than it. Thus in the example proposed we write down 5, that being the number of figures in one of the factors, and then we place on each side of that number the natural decreasing series of figures less than 5, that is, 4, 3, 2, 1, in the following form, 1234 5 4321.

Another Example.—Multiply 1,111,111 by 1,111,111. The product will be at once by writing to the left and right of 7 (the number of figures contained in either of the two factors) the numbers 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1, as follows:—1,234,567,654,321. If we multiply 11 by 11, the application of the same rule will give as result, 121.

SECOND RULE.—To multiply by itself a number composed of figures, each equal to 9; for example, 99,999 x 99,999. We say that the product will be, 9,999,800,001.

To obtain this result, we write down the figure 8, placing to its left as many nines, and to its right as many ciphers, as there are figures less one, contained in either of the two factors, afterwards adding to the extreme right of the resulting number the figure 1. Thus, then, in the proposed example (99,999 x 99,999) we write the figure 8, and to its left the figure 9, repeated four times (5—1), and to the right four zeros (5—1), giving as a result 9999 8 0000; now annexing the figure 1, we obtain the product sought, 9,999,800,001.

Another example.—If we desired to find the product of 9 x 9, we should obtain, by applying the general rule, 81. In fact, in this case, the number of figures of either factor, diminished by 1, gives zero as a result. This explains why the figure 8 does not appear accompanied by nines or cipher, but only by the figure 1 of the units.

THIRD RULE.—To multiply a number composed of figures each equal to 9, by another whose figures, although equal to each other, are different from 9; for example, 999 by 666.

In this case we say the product will be equal to 665,334.

To obtain this result, we first obtain the product of a figure of the multiplicand by that of multiplier; the figure of the units of this preliminary product will be the number of the units of the product sought. To the left of the figure of the tens of the said preliminary product we write the figure of the multiplier as many times as there are figures, less one, in either of the two factors; and to its right we place the same number of figures, each equal to the difference between a figure of the multiplicand (9) and a figure of the multiplier (6). To the extreme left of the quantity thus obtained we annex the figure of the unit of the preliminary product; thus we have the product sought. To make this clearer: in the proposed example, 999 x 666, the preliminary product will be 9 x 6 =54; so that, to the left of the figure (5) of the tens, we place the figure of the multiplier (6) as many times, less one, as there are figures in either factor, which in this case will be twice (3—1), and to its right twice the figure 3 (the difference between 9 and 6), as follows, 66 5 33; and to complete this number we annex to its right the figure (4) of the units of the preliminary product (54). We then have the product sought, 665,334.

Another Example.—Suppose it be required to multiply 9,999,999 by 3,333,333. The preliminary product is 27, and the number of figures in each of the factors is 7; so that, writing to the left of the figure 2 (of the tens of the preliminary product) six (7—1) figures, each equal to one of those of the multiplier (3), we have, 3333332. Now, if to the right of the same figure (2) we write six figures, each equal to the difference between the figures of the two factors (9—3), we have, 333333 2 666666; and finally, we obtain the definite product by annexing to the right of the foregoing quantity the number 7 (the unit figure of the preliminary product), as follows: 33,333,326,666,667.

Another Example.—If 99 be multiplied by 22, as the preliminary product is 18, and each factor contains two figures, it will be sufficient to write, to the left of the figures of the tens (1), the figure of the multiplier (2) but once, and to its right the figure 7 but once (the latter being the difference between 9 and 2); we will thus have 217, and to this we annex the number 8 (the unit of the preliminary product), and obtain the product sought, viz., 2,178.

This rule will hold good in all cases except those in which the factorys contain each but a single figure. If, for example, we should apply the rule to the case 9x2, the preliminary product, 18, would at the same time be the final product. It is easy to see that the second rule may be considered as a particular case of the third—one in which the difference between the figure of the multiplicand and that of the multiplier is zero.

An Inspiration.

When a poet composes a set of verses that stir men's hearts we say he is inspired. So indeed he is. When celebrated students of hygiene after careful study, gives us a panacea for many of the ills that flesh is heir to, we say they have made a lucky hit. We are wrong, it is equally an inspiration. Debility, bronchical affections, and consumption number their victims by the thousands, but how soon these difficulties could be ameliorated if we only knew it. SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA is the remedy preeminently adapted to such conditions, and if taken long enough is almost sure to effect a cure. It is also perfectly agreeable to the taste. w41-d86-1m

OTTAWA, ONTARIO.

VICTORIA CHEMICAL COMPANY, TORONTO,

Gentlemen,—Confirming my statement a short time ago, as to the satisfactory results from the use of your COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES, I will further add that fresh proofs of the genuine benefits conferred on patients requiring it are constantly coming under my observation; parties to whom I have recommended it, have in a short time, with the deepest thankfulness, acknowledged the relief they have experienced, and in some cases have asserted that it, and it alone, have saved their lives. It gives me much pleasure to assure you that I consider your Syrup, the VICTORIA HYPOPHOSPHITES, the best preparation of any which has come under my notice for Debility and all Pulmonary Complaints, Bronchitis, Coughs, &c., and believing this, I constantly recommend it before every other Compound.

Very truly yours,
H. F. McCARTHY,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

LOCAL NEWS

An Unsightly Front.

Since the first day of the Central show last week, the old awning frame has been left dangling from the front of the store on the east side of George street, one door south from Simcoe. It is not at all attractive.

Foot-Ball.

The Peterborough Foot-ball Club have made up their team for the coming match with the Trinity College School Club of Port Hope, on Saturday. It is to be hoped that the reputation of Peterborough will be maintained in this contest.

The Midland's Business.

A heavily laden extra train left the Midland Station last evening, and another this morning. Another extra is expected up to-day. There is much difficulty experienced by the company for the want of track room, for the accommodation of the freights that is now crowding them.

Handsome Bottle and Teas.

Yesterday Messrs. Rush & Elliott received a heavy shipment of teas, imported direct from China. These teas are very cheap. There is being displayed in the window of this firm a "bottle" said to be suitable for picnic parties. It is about 18 inches high, champagne bottle shape.

Funeral of Mr. H. C. Hall.

A large number of teams went up the Chemong Lake road yesterday, to meet the funeral train of the late Mr. H. C. Hall. The cortege, however, come down the Lakefield road through George street. The remains of Mr. Hall were taken to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Midnight Nuisance.

Complaints are being made by those living in the immediate neighborhood, of the noise and confusion incident to the shipping of cattle, sheep and pigs at the railway station. There is also swearing and boisterous talking which is very objectionable. The question is asked, why cannot these animals be shipped in the day time as other freight is and not at night as now practised?

They are Coming.

The advance guard has arrived, and arrangements have been made for the coming of the Duprez & Benedict Minstrels, now in the 29th year of their organization. The company comprise 22 vocalists, musicians, comedians, dancers, &c. The proclamation for Peterborough has been put up, and in a few days their advertisement will appear in the REVIEW, giving full particulars. The combination is one of the strongest known.

Runaway.

A young colt attached to a buggy became frighted, while standing untied on the Charlotte Street bridge in front of Mr. English's boat shop and ran away, running upon the sidewalk. Although the horse ran but a short distance, yet the buggy was much damaged. One of the thills and the cross-tree were badly broken. The parties having the colt in charge tied up the broken thills, got in and rode off without any further ceremony.

Farm Stock Sale.

On Thursday, Oct. 23d, there will be an auction sale of horses, cattle, implements, &c., by Mr. Chas. Stapleton, Auctioneer; on the premises of Mr. Michael Leary, lot 30, in the 3rd concession of the township of Otonabee, one mile from the Neebing Hotel, Indian River. This stock sale is to close the farming business of Mr. Leary. Lunch will be served at noon, and the sale takes place at 1 p. m. This is a rare chance for those who wish to add to their stock.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto, at 10 o'clock to-day are: light to moderate winds, partly clearing weather, followed to-morrow by increasing winds, cloudy to rainy weather. In Peterborough, last evening a warm gentle rain set in, and continued during a larger portion of the night. To-day cloudy warm murky weather with wind south-easterly to southerly. Afternoon partly clearing.

The Wheat Market.

The recent speculation movement in wheat in the Chicago market has been felt in Peterboro', and the price of wheat was run up to $1.20. Yesterday evening a telegram was received here announcing a break which created a panic and the price immediately fell to $1.15. This morning buyers were very quiet and for a couple of hours were undecided as to what to do, when some of the more venturesome offend $1.15, which was not taken until it was discovered that the teams were accumulating so rapidly and fearing another break, the offer was accepted. The market has been very steady at $1.15 @ $1.16 for both spring and fall wheat. Large quantities have come in and the above figures have ruled. Barley has been steady at 55 @ 57cts, for the better grade, and farmers seem to be well satisfied and do not wait long for bids. Our quotations will cover the rates now given for the various grades.

Chas. Stapleton's Coming Sales.

The following aution sales are advertised to take place at the dates and places mentioned below:—

Saturday, Oct. 11.—Auction sale of valuable farm in the Township of Otonabee, part of the East Half of Lot No. 22, in 15th con., about 3 miles from Peterborough, known as the "Rouse Farm." Sale at the Stewart House at 2 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 11.—Unreserved Auction Sale of house and half acre lot, being part of Park Lots No. 11 and 12, in lot No. 12 in 12th con. North Monaghan, near the Catholic Cemetery. Sale at Stewart House at 2 p.m.

Monday Oct. 13.—Bona-fide sale of Farm Stock and Implements of Mr. Michael Holland, on his premises, lot No. 6, 4th con. of Ennismore, about 3 miles from Mud Lake Bridge. Sale at 11 a.m. Lunch provided.

Tuesday, Oct. 14.—Special Unreserved Sale of Lumber of Mr. Geo. W. R. Strickland, at his water mill, in the Village of Lakefield. Sale at 12.30 sharp. No reserve.

Wednesday, Oct. 15.—Important and Unreserved Sale of Household Furniture, at the residence of D. McLeod, George street north. Sale at 1 p.m. No reserve.

Monday, Oct. 20.—Peremptory Sale of Farm Stock, Implements, &c., of Mr. Joseph Ritson, on the premises, lot 2 in 10th con. Township of Cavan, about 3 miles from Sharp's Corners. Sale at 11 a.m. No reserve,

Wednesday, Oct. 22.—Important Sale of Real and Personal Estate, consisting of farm and town property. Sale at the Stewart House at 2 p.m. See large posters. For particulars apply to J. Burnham or H. C. Strickland.

Wednesday, Oct. 22.—Important Auction Sale of Valuable Farm in the Township of Otonabee, being lot No. 19, in 15th con., known as the "Ryan Farm," about 5 miles from Peterborough. Sale at the Stewart House at 2 p.m.

Thursday, Oct. 23.—General Unreserved Sale of Farm Stock Implements, etc., of Mr. Michael Leahy, on his premises, lot 30, in 3rd con. of Township of Otonabee, about 1 mile from "Neebing Hotel," Indian River. Sale at 1 p.m. Lunch at noon. No reserve.

THE DROWNING ACCIDENT.

At the adjourned inquest on the body of Miss Clara Strickland, Mr. Eugene Clementi-Smith gave the following evidence:—

Remember the 23rd September, Tuesday; was out with the deceased Miss Strickland in a canoe, about 4 p.m.; I left Mr. Grieve's boat-house with deceased for a troll; we paddled between the weeds and the shore; deceased got a bite, and I asked her to take in the troll; we heard the steamboat coming, when we kept in the bay opposite Mr. Grieves'; after the steamboat passed we again resumed trolling, and in going up the bay I noticed some ducks flying on the Smithtown shore; a sudden gust of wind blew off my hat, deceased made a sudden grasp at it and we went over; I came up with my back to the canoe; I swam to where I saw deceased had gone down, and dived and caught her by the wrist and brought her to the canoe; she made no struggle until I got her to the surface of the water; I encouraged her all I could, and retained my presence of mind having no fear that I could not save her; she made no effort to take hold of the canoe, but got one arm around my neck which held it out, and helped to prevent my breathing; I tried to remove her arm and in doing so lost hold of the canoe and we both went under the water; on coming up I took breath and swam to the spot I had noticed her come up, but she at once sank again; I dived and caught her by the shoulder and again took her to the canoe; she made no effort to take hold of it, although I encouraged her to do so; I again dived and brought her to the surface but let go immediately, as I was exhausted; I do not know how I reached the canoe; after doing so and recovering breath, I called for help, and remember seeing people on the shore, and soon after a boat with two men coming toward me, and recognized Mr. Grieve; I also remember another boat coming up, and between them being taken ashore; when I started from the boathouse I was on my knees, and so paddled through the rice, but at the time of the accident I was sitting on the thwart, with my legs drawn up almost to the gunnel:—my usual way of paddling, owing to a lameness in my leg; I was going up the lake when the accident happened; my boat was bottom up when I first came to the surface, and continued so; cannot say how long I was hanging on the canoe; the trolling line was out at the time, and I felt it once while in the water; I left coat, vest, gun and ammunition in Mr. Grieve's boathouse, intending to come for the flight shooting of ducks as I have done other evenings after I left deceased; cannot tell how long after I hollowed before assistance came; deceased was gone then; I may have been half an hour in the water; I used to be a good swimmer, but cannot do so since I met with the accident at Sandy Lake; I had every confidence that if she assisted me I would be able to save her as I did not lose my presence of mind; I must have swallowed some water; the only word deceased spoke was the exclamation, when we first went over, "oh, uncle."

Several witnesses testified to helping Mr. Smith ashore, to the state he was then in, and to the recovery of deceased's body.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning.

COBOURG.

THE PORT HOPE FORGER.—At the Fall Assize Court held here On Wednesday, J. R. Montgomery, the Port Hope forger, was arraigned before his Honor Chief Justice Wilson, on three indictments for forgery and one for the fraudulent movement of goods under the Insolvent Act. He pleaded "guilty" to all the indictments. The Hon. Sydney Smith, who was defending the prisoner, told his lordship that Montgomery wished to address a few words to the Court. The judge in reply, said he would not pass sentence now, and that when passing sentence the prisoner would then be at liberty to address him. Montgomery looked well and healthy, but he felt his position keenly, as he kept his hands over his face nearly all the time he was in the dock. It it reported that a largely signed petition from Port Hope was sent into the judge, requesting him to be lenient with the prisoner.

That's the Way They Used to Do It.

With a thumb and finger on the nose, a bright silver dime on the table as a bribe, and the Castor Oil bottle in the other hand is the way our mother had to approach us when she was about to attack a severe case of colic that had tied our little intestines in knots. Those days, and that scene, comes no more to us, neither will our little ones ever be obliged to tread in the rough path our parents trod in their childhood. Now we take SCOTT & BOWNE'S PALATABLE CASTOR OIL as complacently as we do condensed milk, and it is just about as cheap —25 cents a bottle. w41-d80-1m

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Eleven Persons Killed and Two Hundred Injured.

The calamity which turned the city of Adrian, Mich., on the 2nd inst., from a scene of general mirth, gayety and pleasure to one of agony, woe and mourning, appears to have been caused by a slight negligence on the part of some builders. It appears that some eight hundred people were congregated on the grand stand at the Lenawee county fair then in progress, when—as the band was playing just before the ladies' race, and the judges were decorating the horses that had just won a previous series of races—a terrible crash was heard, and in a twinkling the stand gave way and went down, taking with it to the ground below, men, women and children, all in one confused mass.

A HORRIBLE SCENE

ensued. Horses and stock were stampeded, carriages overturned, people knocked down and crushed under foot on the track, while from the ruins of the stand arose the groans of the dying, shrieks of the wounded, and hoarse shoutings of those who had hurried to the rescue. It was found that many had been under the stand, and not until the work of clearing away the debris had been well advanced was a full knowledge of the catastrophe revealed.

THE DEAD AND INJURED

were taken out as fast as possible, and a corps of physicians got to work speedily to succor those who needed it, while citizens, hackmen, druggists, hotel-keepers, hall owners and all who could be of assistance, gave the wounded all needed attention. At first it was thought that but three persons had been killed, but it soon proved that eleven lives were lost and about 200 persons more or less injured.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

People who were on the judges stand, facing the "death-trap," say that at a few minutes before three o'clock, when the stand was packed full of people waiting for the "lady race," a crashing, crackling sound was heard, and the rear of the stand was seen to sink and fall outward, and in a moment the upper floor and seating area "dropped like a trap door," and was followed by the heavy peaked roof, and then all settled to the ground with a mighty crash.

The stand was built by local workmen for Mr. Lawrence, the owner of the fair grounds, and he sent to Toledo for plans, etc. It is said that the carpenter work was all good, with the exception that instead of "mortice bracing," etc., lapping and spiking was done on the pine timbers of the frame. The necessity of properly shaping the race track caused the builders to drive piles out in the bed of the river Raisin, diagonally across and straightening the stream, making a barrier and then filling it in behind with earth; and the rear of the stand stood straight up over this revetement, the peak of the shingled roof being about 30 feet from the water's level.

The stand cost $1,500 and strict injunctions were given to spare no expense to make it the best in the state.

WHAT GAVE WAY

is not yet known, but the most rigid examinations are in progress, and the blame will be fixed where it belongs. The roof was fortunately so built as to hold together, and did not fall on a level—a circumstance that probably saved hundreds of lives. Under the main floor, were booths and carriage exhibits, and this department was crushed almost flat, most of the damage being done here.

There is scarcely a town or hamlet in the southern part of the State to which this calamity does not bring mourning.

HEART-RENDING INCIDENTS

were numerous. One mother had both legs broken, while her babe was uninjured, and clinging to her neck in fright could not be released. One boy, a son of Dr. Lord, had one leg crushed, his face mangled, and was thrown into the river, but was rescued and will live. Irving Powers, of Madison, was amusing his little boy on the river bank by throwing pebbles in the water, when a rafter struck him on his back, breaking his spine. Fred. Clark, proprietor of the depot eating-house, got out of his buggy with his child, and a second later the buggy was crushed and horse injured. Clark escaped. There was a large number of people under the stand, but the frames and wheels of the waggons on exhibition there held up much of the strain, and thus hundreds who else would inevitable have been killed escaped with but slight injuries.

The Detroit News says—"The calamity carries with it its own moral. Time and again have builders, architects and committees having charge of such structures as that whose collapse caused this dreadful slaughter, been warned of the necessity of every precaution. The result of a slight negligence in the present case has been a disaster worse than that which befel Major Thornburgh's command the other day in their battle with the Utes."

Daily Evening Review

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1879.

CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

MONTREAL.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 10.

The Bank Directors.—The Directors of the Consolidated Bank appeared in Court this morning, when their counsel made a motion on technical grounds to quash the indictment. The Crown prosecutor applied for a postponement until to-morrow to consider the motion, as he had not been previously notified. The application was granted.

OTTAWA.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 10.

The Toronto and Ottawa.—It is thought that work will be commenced on the Toronto & Ottawa railroad, early in the spring of 1880.

Strike Ended.—The men who struck for higher wages on the Chaudiere railway bridge have all returned to work ta the old rate.

Exporting Oatmeal.—A large trade in oatmeal has sprung up between Ottawa and European ports. One firm shipped over three thousand barrels this week.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 10.

A New Export.—The first full cargo of potatoes for England was shipped yesterday for Liverpool.

Lumbering.—Extensive preparations are being made along the river for lumbering and the wages of lumbermen have advanced to $8 per month compared with last fall. An extensive drive is now near Fredericton. It comprises some millions of feet of logs.

QUEBEC.

Special Telegram to the Review, Oct. 10.

The Crisis.—Hand bills have been distributed announcing a political meeting on Tuesday at Kamouraska. The Hon. Messrs. Joly, Langelier and others for the Government, and the leaders of the opposition will address the masses. The Hon. Mr. Dionne, Legislative Councillor for Granville Division, is expected to give his reasons for having voted for the refusal of the supplies.

From the Morning Papers.

OTTAWA.

Fish Cultivation.—Overseer Gilchrist arrived in Ottawa on Thursday from Rice Lake, with five large boxes containing maskinonge. He started from the lake with 23 fish, but lost 3 on his way, very fair success considering the tenderness of the fish, and the delicacy required in handling it at this season of the year. The fish ranged from twelve to twenty pounds in weight. Half an hour after their arrival at the station, they were carted to the Ottawa River, placed in a perforated reservoir, and towed down by a small tug to the Government fish pond at Campbell's Bay, where they will be kept in close confinement for re-stocking purposes.

The Railway By-law.—On Thursday at 12 o'clock, noon, the City Clerk summed up the votes for and against the by-law, at the City Hall, and publicly declared the same assented to by a majority of 535.

A QUEER STORY.

We find the following under the head of "Canada," in the Globe of Oct. 10. We do not see why Mr. Smith should assume that the "Peterborough" in question is in Canada, when there are several towns of the same name in the United States:—

"Mr. W. J. Smith, tanner, of Goderich, writes to the Huron Expositor as follows:—I see by the New York Hide and Leather Reporter, a man in Peterboro' shipped a lot of hides to Boston. On their arrival there they were handed to a public weigher. After he had shaken off salt and other foreign matter, he weighed and found the hides 595 pound less than the invoice called for. This is an answer to the question as to how hide dealers pay so high prices and still get a profit. If this Canadian had succeeded he would have made about $40 by his stuffing the hides with foreign substances. Salt is cheap here and sand costs nothing, and some of our Canadian hide doctors are as expert in using these things to increase the weight of hides as the Jews are said to be in milling gold coin for the dust they extract, and of the two characters the hide doctor is the most disreputable. I have got hold of hides from some of those parties so filled with sand that they would turn the edge of tanner's tools every five minutes. A hide inspector is much wanted in this county."

AFTERNOON TELEGRAMS

Press Despatches to the Review.

CABLE.

PRICE OF CHEESE.

Liverpool, Oct. 10.—Cheese is quoted at 50s 6d.

SERVIA AND THE ALBANIANS.

London, Oct. 9.—The British Minister at Belgrade, Mr. Gould, having addressed a question to the Servian Government as to the repatriation of Albanians who had fled from their homes at the approach of the Servian troops, M. Ristics replied that Servia was prepared to take all the necessary steps for this purpose in accordance with the Treaty of Berlin, but the Porte would have first to come to an understanding with Servia in the matter, in order to protect Servian territory against an invasion of Turkish Albanians. He added that the Porte having refused to grant Servia the compensation she claims for the last Albanian raids, Servia cannot enter into the question of restoration to their homes the Albanians who have fled to Turkish territory.

THE EDITORIAL AFFRAY.

London, Oct. 10.—Truth publishes a letter from Labouchere, violently attacking Edward Levey Lawson for declining to fight a duel. Lawson now sues Labouchere for libel. Lawson refused to fight a duel on the ground that he had thrashed Labouchere like a dog, and that the latter was therefore not entitled to the satisfaction of a gentleman.

TROOPS IN MAYO.

London, Oct. 10.—Infantry will be stationed throughout every available portion of County Mayo, Ireland.

EMIGRANTS WITH MONEY.

The farmers who sailed from Liverpool for Texas are mostly well provided with money.

SCULLING CHALLENGE.

London, Oct. 10.—Elliott announces his willingness provisionally to withdraw his challenge to Hanlan that Elliott may meet Boyd. Elliott is still anxious to meet Hanlan, and he therefore proposes that the winner of the suggested match should sign an agreement to leave £200 with the Editor of the Sportsman as a full deposit for the match with the champion.

THE IRON TRADE.

Birmingham, Oct. 10.—At the quarterly meeting of the iron trade, prices were strong all around. Extensive purchases of tinplate were made by Americans, also large contracts for raw and old iron.

FOREIGN RACERS.

London, Oct. 10,—The second great challenge stakes at Newmarket at the second October meeting were won by DeLagrange's colt Rayon D'Or. Lorillard's Parole was fifth. He was beaten off.

London, Oct. 10.—The juvenile handicap today at Newmarket was won by Lord Anglesey's Early Morn, Lorillard's Geraldine being third. The race was won by a neck with the same distance between the 2nd and 3rd horses.

THE POSITION GRAVE.

Simla, Oct. 10.—The silence of Sir Frederick Roberts since Monday is believed to imply the closing of the Ghilfais on the rear of his communications. He probably renewed the fighting on Tuesday, which unpeded his advance to Cabul. There has been interruption telegraph lines between Peiwar and Kurrum. This fact points to the disturbance having isolated Shutargarden. It is thought that the position is rather grave.

QUIET IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Cape Town, Oct. 10.—The presence of the troops and Sir G. Wolseley's emphatic declaration that England indends to claim the Transvaal, have produced a quieting effect on the Boers. Affairs in Zululand are quiet. A report is current that Dabulmanzi, a brother of Cetewayo, has been killed. It is likely that Zicoroi will submit. Moirosi continues defiant.

AMERICAN.

FALSE RUMOURS.

Omaha, Oct. 10.—Information has been received from the Shoshone, Bannock and Arapahoe agents showing that the rumours that these Indians had been seen travelling southward to join the Utes were false.

STILL SPREADING.

Memphis, Oct. 10.—At Carson's Landing ten cases of yellow fever and one death are reported.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Franklinville, Oct. 10.—James D. McVey, Surrogate of Cattaraugus County, dropped dead of heart disease, yesterday.

ACCIDENTALLY POISONED.

New York, Oct. 10.—Miss Mary Gregory, who was accidentally poisoned at North Haven on Friday by an overdose of morphine, was buried on Wednesday. The funeral had been appointed for Monday, but the body gave signs of animation, but mortification made death certain.

A BUSY ROUND.

San Francisco, Oct. 10.—General Grant will reach Portland on Monday, and will return on the 20th. He will be the guest of the Railroad Company at Crocker on the 21st. He will be at Sacremento on the 22nd. On the 25th he attends Oakland races, and rests on Sunday. He attends Grant's twenty-five dollar banquet on Monday and departs on the 28th for the east via Virginia City.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

New York, Oct. 10.—The Pennsylvania Coal Company announces an increase of 20 cents on all coals, except 10 cents on pea coal.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

Dr. Peangnut, a French physician, was yesterday run over by a Harlem train. Both legs were cut off and his death is probable.

GREAT HEAT.

New York, Oct. 10.—The weather yesterday was phenomenally warm. The mercury touched 85°. The heat was uncomfortable and unprecedented.

AN INSANE TESTATOR.

New York, Oct. 10.—Probate of the will of the late Paymaster-General Bradford was refused yesterday on the ground that testator was of unsound mind. The will disposed of a million, while the estate is only valued at $60,000.

LONGSHOREMEN'S STRIKE.

New York, Oct. 10.—The longshoremen along the north river front are again on strike for an increase of from 25 to 30 cents per hour. Their demands have been refused, and their places filled by new hands, who are protected by a large force of police.

INDIAN MASSACRE.

Denver, Oct. 10.—A runner from Los Pinos agency, with the news of agent Meeker's death, says:—"After the fight with Thornburgh, the Utes proceeded to the agency and attacked the employees, who had barricaded themselves in a building which was set on fire, and the men shot as they rushed out. The fate of the women is still in doubt."

A MURDERED HUSBAND.

Orange Depot, N.J., Oct 10.—John Meirhoffer, of Northfield road, West Orange, was murdered at noon yesterday. He was shot in the back of the head. His wife accuses Frank Laminens, a workman. Laminens and the woman were in bed together when arrested.

TERRIBLE RAILWAY COLLISION.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 10.—On the Michigan Central railroad, a short distance east of Jackson, about 1 o'clock this morning, the Pacific Express train bound west collided with a switch engine, telescoping the baggage and express cars and piling the remaining eleven coaches on the top of the others. The first coach was filled with immigrants, most of whom were killed or seriously injured. Many occupants of the other coach were killed or injured It is supposed that 20 or 35 passengers were killed, and 20 to 30 wounded. The majority of the number are thought to be immigrants, and second class passengers. Physicians were at once summoned from Jackson, and a special train carrying physicians left Detroit at 5 o'clock. A large force of employees of the railroad with a number of citizens of Jackson are on the ground extricating the bodies.

JAY GOULD'S RETURN.

New York, Oct. 10.—Jay Gould returned from his western trip this morning.

ACCIDENTAL SHOT.

College Point, L. I., Oct. 10.—Powell Bond, a prominent resident of Roslyn, died last night from the effect of an accidental pistol shot from the hands of his brother on Wednesday.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

Albany, Oct. 10.—A mixed train on the Susquehanna Railway this morning at 2 o'clock ran into a trestle and was thrown off and took fire. Three cars were partially burned.

THE O'LEARY BELT.

New York, Oct. 10.—Gilmore's Garden was almost deserted this morning. Brain and Spellacy have withdrawn, leaving 11 men on the track. Murphey is still fresh and is leading. At 10 o'clock he was 21 miles behind Rowell's record.

PRUSSIAN ELECTIONS.

Berlin, Oct. 9.—The Conservative journals are very much elated over their victory in the recent elections. The ultramontane organ says the elections show the people demand their religious rights and liberties.

RENEWED AGITATION.

Paris, Oct. 9.—The renewed agitation in favor of a plenary amnesty derives importance from the support of the Republique Francaise, which is commonly believed to reflect the views of Gambetta. It is believed that the Cabinet is almost unaminous against the revival of amnesty.

THE SPANISH INSURRECTION.

Madrid, Oct. 9.—Military proceedings against the threatened insurrection in the Northern provinces continue to be taken, and that the extent to which these measures are adopted indicates that the Government is in possession of far more serious information than has been made public. The persons arrested here are mostly merchants, artizans of the better class, and military men. In certain quarters in Madrid it is reported that this anticipated insurrectionary movement in Spain has been gotten up in sympathy with the renewal of the revolutionary outbreak in Cuba.

IRELAND FOR THE IRISH.

London, Oct. 9.—A committee, consisting of Parnell, O'Connor Power, and Finegan, Home Rule members of Parliament, and others, has been formed for the purpose of conducting the anti-rent agitation in Ireland. They have agreed upon an appeal to the Irish race in the Colonies and the United States, to promote the ownership of the soil by occupiers instead of landlords, who, the appeal declares, should, however, be fully compensated.

THE FRENCH COMMUNISTS.

London, Oct. 9.—A Paris despatch says some uneasiness is caused by the attitude of the radicals and returned communists. At the funeral of two of the communists who have died since their release, the crimes of the commune were openly extolled. The candidacy of non, amnestied communists for vacancies in the Chamber of Deputies is beginning to be organized. These disquieting symptoms furnish the reactionaries with a plausible pretext for diffusing distrust in the republic.

AMERICAN.

INCREASED FREIGHTS.

New York, Oct. 9.—The earnings of 22 railroads during September, compared with the earnings during the previous September, make the most favourable exhibit that has been had for some time past. Every road on the list returns increased receipts, with the exception of the Hannibal and St. Joseph, and the Toledo Pevria and Warsaw. The most noticeable gain is in the Milwaukee and St. Paul, and the Chicago and North-west, the St. Louis and Iron-mountain, the Union Pacific and the Wabash. The increase compared with the receipts of September 1878, is about 20 per cent.

THE AFGHAN VICTORY.

Two Companies of Highlanders Defeat Two Thousand Natives.

London, Oct. 9.—Special despatches from Afghanistan report that during the attack of the 6th on the principal heights before Cabul, two companies of Highlanders were opposed to 2,000 Afghans. The latter held their ground until the Highlanders were within twenty yards. The total Afghan force is said to have been eleven regiments with artillery and an immense number of hill men. The backbone of the resistance is broken for the present, but the whole country is seething with excitement. The people would rise at the slightest reverse to the British. The whole British force was to be within striking distance of Cabul on the 7th.

For all purposes of a Family Medicine, Hagyard's Yellow Oil is at the head of the list. It is used with unprecedented success, both internally and externally. It cures Sore Throat, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites; relieves, and often cures Asthma.

THE CANADA PACIFIC.

THE recent advertisement calling for tenders for the construction of four sections of the Canada Pacific Railway from Yale to Kanloops Lake in British Columbia, has excited a fresh commotion among the Reform journals, who never can be satisfied with anything undertaken by their opponents. Sir Charles Tupper is now accused of arbitrarily changing the location because he has not carried out the dicta of these prophets of evil, that he would adopt the Bute Inlet route. We, in common with other Conservative journals, pointed out there was no such adoption of that route, but merely a suspension of judgment till further investigation. We were told, however, that this was only a blind, that the Bute Inlet route was determined upon for a variety of most iniquituous reasons. Of course it is very annoying to these carping critics that their accusations are proved to be false, and that the present Government have adopted a route that had, at one time at least, the approval of Mr. Mackenzie. The fact is that under the present regime the best route is selected when sufficient information is obtained without regard to other considerations, and this great national work is pushed forward instead of being toyed with as it was under the late Government.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The following letter appeared lately in the English London Times :—

"Sir,—"The trade" are no doubt well informed as to the state of the corn crop throughout the world, and act accordingly; but three-fourths of the farmers of this country are entirely uninformed on the subject and have no guide to their dealings. A few facts, therefore, obtained from the best sources of information may be of some use to them at the present juncture, and prevent their sacrificing their produce, provided their landlords will give them time to realize.

"The wheat product of Europe is this year estimated as under, in some cases by Government officials, and in others by parties in the trade and private individuals :—

"England has about two-thirds of a crop, and will require at least 17,000,000 quarters to supply her wants. France wants eight millions; Italy, 2½ millions; Belgium, Switzerland, China, and the West Indies, two millions each; together six millions; Austro-Hungary, Germany, Spain, and Portugal, one million each; together three millions; Holland, three-fourths of a million. These show an aggregate want of 37½ million quarters.

"The estimated surpluses, after repeated revision, up to the beginning of this month, are now set down as under :—

"United States and Canada, 24 million quarters; Russia, 5 millions; Turkey, Egypt, India, and Australia, 3 millions; and Algeria, 200,000 quarters; together, 32,200,000, which is 5,050,000 quarters less than is required for ordinary consumption.

"This circumstance, more than any of which we have any record, shows clearly that the owners of wheat are in a favorable position for holding it.

"Three months ago the average price of home-grown wheat was under 40s. a quarter; now it is 49s. 7d. in spite of the greatest importations during the last two months ever known, ranging from 250,000 to 480,000 quarters per week, which latter quantity is at the rate of more than double our total consumption.

"These excessive importations are beginning to slacken, our home deliveries do not amount to half those of last year, and railway charges and freights are rising against importers.

"Some of our home industries are reviving, our potato crop is almost lost, and there is thus every sign that the price of breadstuffs will rise before long.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
"THOS. C. SCOTT.

HARVEY.

COUNCIL MEETING.—The Harvey Council met at the Clerk's office on the 6th inst. Members all present except C. McIlmoyle. Minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. Account from C. E. Stewart for printing read. On motion N. Crowe and N. Harris were allowed to do two days each of statute labour, charged against them on the Collector's Roll, and report the same on or before the 10th inst. to the Township Clerk. Orders drawn on the Treasurer in favor of George Oliver for turnpiking and ditching, $19.80; Harold Page, work on side line road, $3; Isaac Arscott, one day on side line road, $1; James Gibbons, one day on side line road, $1; John Flanigan, boy and team two days and man 1 day, $5; C. E. Stewart, for printing, $15; Thos. Brummell, self and man 1 day helping surveyor, $2; Geo. Brummell, helping survey and freight on scraper, $2.30; John Angove, one day helping survey, $1. The grants on roads to be expended as follows:—On the south side of Pigeon Lake, Chase's beat, $100; from Weir's Corners to Sandy Lake, $15; on side line between lots 5 and 6, 15th con., the sum of $15; Buckhorn plank road, $80; Government road, $25; Landrum's road, $3 and $4.50 between Archy Johnston's Corners and Buckhorn. Isaac Arscott was allowed to cut and clean up the north half of the side line road allowance, adjoining the east half of lot 21, con. 16, and agreed to take the timber for the job. Council adjourned to meet at the Town Hall on the 17th day of November next.

YOUNG'S POINT.

THE BRIDGE.—The bridge is in great want of some repairs before the winter sets in. The County Engineer should see to it at once.

THE DAM.—Some person let loose all the brackets on the dam, on Saturday night, the 4th of October. It was a loss to Mr. Chalmers of about 1000 feet of lumber and 200 ties, which went down the river. A drive of logs went through here lately and it is presumed it was done to let them have more water for Monday morning, for a good run to the mills. Mr. Chambers intends to inquire into the matter. Permission should have been asked before destroying his property. The brackets were replaced on Monday morning.

DOG POISONED.—Mr. L. G. Fobert had a valuable black Newfoundland dog poisoned last Wednesday evening. He hopes to find out the guilty party and have him punished.

CAMPBELLFORD.

A NORTHERN MONSTER.—The Herald says while we were roaming the forest of our back country, last week, we looked upon a pine tree so prodigious that four men surrounding it with outstretched arms, could not lock fingers. Its lowest branches waved as high as the trees standing beside it, and its head towered high above the loftiest of the forest. An old bushranger who has spent many years in the backwoods between Sarnia and Ottawa, says it is the largest tree in Canada.

PORT HOPE.

PERSONAL.—The Times says :—The many friends of Mr. D. Rubidge, formerly of Port Hope, but now of Denver, Col., will be glad to hear that on the consolidation of the Kansas Pacific, the Denver Pacific and Union Pacific Railways, he has been appointed chief Freight Agent for all the companies. As he is a gentleman of excellent abilities, and is popular with all whom business brings in contact with him, we have no doubt of his giving satisfaction in his enlarged sphere.

COLOR-BLINDNESS.

From a review in Scribner for October of Dr. Jeffries' recent book on this subject, we take these interesting facts :—Holmgren's plan for the determination of color-blindness does not contain anything original either as regards the materials (colored Berlin wools) or the method (comparison of the colors and shades, independent of their names). Seebeck had used the materials and the method years before. What Holmgren did was to shorten the method without lessening its accuracy, and thus make it practical for extensive examinations. By Seebeck's method more than twenty-five persons could not be examined in an hour, whereas according to Holmgren's plan, a hundred or more can be examined in that time. Holmgren's method is as follows :—A large assortment of Berlin wools of all colors and shades of color (150 to 200 skeins) is spread before the person to be examined, and a bright green skein (not inclining to either yellow or blue) is laid aside as a "sample" He is then told to select from the pile those skeins which appear to him of the same color but of different shades, i. e., lighter or darker. If he can make this selection properly he is not color-blind. If, however, he lays by the "sample" other colors, particularly brown or gray, he is color-blind. This examination, when the person examined is one of ordinary intelligence, is made in a minute or even less time and the question of color-blindness is settled. Practically, this is sufficient, but if it is desired to know the particular color to which the individual is blind, another examination must be made. At present three kinds of color-blindness are recognized—corresponding to the three so-called primary colors, red, green and violet or blue. As violet, or blue-blindness, is exceedingly rare, an examination as to the first two is sufficient, particularly as they are the two first colors most important in practical life. In this second examination, a pure purple is laid aside as a "sample," and the person examined is told to select shades appearing to him like it. If he selects grays or greens he is green-blind; if violet or blue he is red-blind; if orange or yellow he is violet blind. * * * * *

The results of examinations made in various parts of the world to this time, aggregating over 100,000, show that one male in about every twenty-five whites (four per cent) is color-blind in a greater or less degree. It would seem from a limited number of examinations of Jews by Cohn and Magnus in Breslau, that this race is more subject to color-blindness than Christians, and from some examinations by Dr. Swan M. Burnett, of Washington, of the negroes in the public schools of that city (3,050 in number), it appears that that race is less affected with the color-blindness than the white race. The female sex is rarely affected, only about one in four hundred. As a rule the defect is congenital, though it is sometimes acquired through disease and it is frequently hereditary.

The importance of a true sense of color to railway and marine employees, where the lives of many persons depend on a proper discrimination between a red (danger) and a green (safety) signal is apparent, and it is evident that a law should be passed requiring an examination of such employees in respect to their colour-sense. Dr. Jeffries has succeeded in having such a law passed by the Massachusetts Legislature, and it to be hoped, in the interest of humanity, that the matter will be pressed to the same result in all the States, or in our national Congress.

ATTEMPT AT GAOL-BREAKING.

One of the Toronto Kidnappers Cuts the Bars of His Cell with a Saw.

The interest which has been manifested by the public in the Deal brothers and their recent kidnapping adventure will not be lessened when it is learned that an attempt by the elder brother has been made to break the bounds of the city gaol to which they are at present confined, pending their trial at the Assizes. On Monday afternoon one of the prisoners called the attention of the gaol authorities to the fact that two of the iron bars of the elder brother's cell were severed. The cell is one of eighteen which open on a corridor running east and west, in which the prisoners are allowed to walk during the day. It seemed somewhat strange at first that the prisoner should have attempted an escape by means of this corridor when a much more feasible exit presented itself through the window of his cell, which is about fifteen or twenty feet from the ground, and being in the south part of the building is not surrounded by a wall. On a closer inspection of the building, however, an explanation presented itself in the fact that an escape by the window had been attempted; for it was found that the fastenings were partially removed. The tools used in the attempt were a steel saw and a file. These were found hidden at one end of the corridor, but how they came into the possession of the prisoners is as yet unknown. The occupants of the remaining cells on this corridor are prisoners either awaiting their trial at the Assizes or about to be removed to the Central Prison or Penitentiary. The supposition is that some at least of the prisoners had knowledge of the attempted escape, and had Deal been able to reach the corridor, other doors would, in a like manner, have been forced, and a general attempt made to escape from the gaol. Up to the time that the information was given by one of the prisoners the authorities were in ignorance of the dangerous position of affairs, and had a longer time been allowed to elapse it is not improbable that the scheme would have been carried out successfully. An enquiry is to be at once set a foot, and it may turn out that the tools were supplied by outside accomplices. In the meantime the elder Deal has been removed to another cell, and further danger from the convicts has been obviated by their removal yesterday to the Central Prison or Provincial Penitentiary where they will serve their terms. —Globe, Oct. 8.

SLEEP.

Leigh Hunt is said to have perpetrated a very bad pun connected with the dormitory, and which made Charles Lamb laugh immoderately. Going home together late one night, the latter repeated the well known proverb, "A home's a home, however homely." "Aye," added Hunt, "and a bed's a bed, however bedly." It is a strange thing, a bed. Somebody has called it a bundle of paradoxes; we go to it reluctantly, and leave it with regret. Once within the downy precincts of the four posts, how loth we are to make our exodus into the wilderness of life. We are as enamoured of our curtained dwellings as if it were the Land of Goshen or the Cave of Circe. And how many fervent vows have those dumb posts heard broken; every fresh perjury rising to join its cloud of hovering fellows, each morning weighing heavier and heavier, on our sluggard eyelids. A caustic proverb says we are all "good risers at night;" but woe's me for our agility in the morning. It is a failing of our species, ever ready to break out in all of us, and in some only vanquished after a struggle painful as the sundering of bone and marrow. The Great Frederic of Prussia found it easier, in after life, to rout the French and Austrians, than in youth to resist the seductions of sleep. After many single handed attempts at reformation, he had at last to call to his assistance an old domestic, whom he charged, on pain of dismissal, to pull him out of bed every morning at two o'clock. The plan succeeded, as it deserved to succeed. All men of action are pressed with the importance of early rising. "When you begin to turn in bed, it's time to turn out," says the old Duke; and we believe his practice has been in accordance with his precept. Literary men—among whom, as Bulwer says, a certain indolence seems almost constitutional—are not so clear upon this point; they are divided between night and morning, though the best authorities seem in favor of the latter. Early rising is the best elixir vitæ; it is the only lengthener of life that man has ever devised. By its aid the great Buffon was able to spend half a century—an ordinary lifetime—at his desk; and yet had time to be the most modish of all the philosophers who then graced the gay metropolis of France.—Domestic Monthly.

With a thumb and finger on the nose, a bright silver dime on the table as a bribe, and the Castor Oil bottle in the other hand is the way our mother had to approach us when she was about to attack a severe case of colic that had tied our little intestines in knots. Those days, and that scene, comes no more to us, neither will our little ones ever be obliged to tread in the rough path our parents trod in their childhood. Now we take SCOTT & BOWNE'S PALATABLE CASTOR OIL as complacently as we do condensed milk, and it is just about as cheap —25 cents a bottle. w41-d80-1m

BIDE A WEE, AND DINNA FRET.

Is the road very dreary !
Patience yet !
Rest will be sweeter if thou art a weary,
And after night cometh the morning cheery,
Then bide a wee, and dinna fret.

The clouds have silver lining,
Don't forget ;
And, though he's hidden, still the sun is shining ;
Courage, instead of tears and vain repining,
Just bide a wee, and dinna fret.

With toil and cares unending
Art beset ?
Behind thee, how the storms from Heaven descending
Snap the swift oak, but spare the willow bending,
And bide a wee, and dinna fret.

Grief sharper sting both borrow
From regret ;
But yesterday is gone, and shall its sorrow
Unfit us for the present and the morrow ?
Nay ! bide a wee, and dinna fret.

An over anxious brooding
Both beget
A host of fears and fantasies deluding ;
Then, brother, let these torments be intruding,
Just bide a wee, and dinna fret.

> Push off their fellows, pause upon the brink
> And then drop after."

Captain P——, of the Life Guards, was a confidential officer in His Majesty's household ; his house was the scene of considerable excitement one day by the arrest of one of the servants, a young man who, judging from his prepossessing appearance, intelligence and amiable manners, and the confidence previously placed in him by the captain, was the last person you would imagine to be guilty of the very serious crime charged against him. A friendless stranger in a low position, without means, and having no lawyer to defend him, he had little chance against his powerful opponents. When brought to trial he merely asserted his innocence, and threw himself on the mercy of the court. The prosecution rested solely on the evidence of the Captain's lady, on which he was convicted and sent to penal servitude in the jail of E———, where, by his good conduct, he soon gained the esteem of the jailor, who gave him a discretionary liberty, and made him a sort of superintendent of the labor of the prisoners.

When parties are isolated from society on exploring expeditions in ships, or confined in jails, a feeling of sympathy brings them on mutual terms of familiar intimacy, and every trivial circumstance is made the subject of conversation. In the same ward in which he was confined there were other prisoners awaiting trial at the ensuing assizes, each told the others his history, dwelling particularly on the circumstances connected with the offence charged against him, the nature of the evidence pro and con, character of the judge, &c., &c. In conversation one day with two of the prisoners who were very dejected, and each had given a full recital of his case, the young stranger readily gave his opinion, which judging from what followed, we may naturally infer was shortly as follows :—Addressing the last speaker he said, "Your case is such a bad one that no counsellor will undertake your defence, nor will the jury have it in their power to acquit you, nor by any extenuating circumstances to recommend you to mercy, you will most assuredly be hanged. I therefore solemnly beseech you to prepare to meet your awful doom." "And you," said he, addressing the other, "presuming on the truth of your statements, it seems clear the evidence will not sustain the charge against you, the grand jury will ignore the bill or the crown will abandon the prosecution after you are arraigned, and you will be honorably acquitted, and in a position in which you can be of essential service to me. As I am as innocent as the child unborn of any crime deserving punishment, I earnestly entreat you to use your influence for my release. Gratitude for services rendered should have prevented my persecutor's sin, which was the cause of sending me here. Sometimes I dream of liberty and the pleasing scenes of youth, and in lonely, sleepless hours my thoughts often revert with a mingled feeling of pleasure and pain to the sweet endearments of home in my distant native land, to the affectionate and tender care of my dearly beloved father, who has little notion of how I came to this country, and charged with a foul crime, imprisoned in a strange city, and without a sympathising friend, and of the atrocious conduct of my prosecutor, could you reciprocate my feelings, your compassion would prompt you to use the same efforts for my restoration freedom that you would for an affectionate brother. I feel confident, however, that the Lord will send means for my deliverance."

The prisoner thus addressed, remembering the friendship of the intelligent young stranger, made solemn promises to befriend him on his acquittal, which took place shortly afterwards. But although he was restored to the office he formerly held, and had only to mention the circumstance to have the case inquired into, which doubtless would have obtained his liberty, the ungrateful, unfeeling man never uttered a word on the subject for upwards of two years. "Yet did not the chief butler remember Joseph, but forgat him." What must have been the feelings of Potipher's wife when she saw Joseph riding in the second chariot as Prime Minister of the Kingdom, her husband doing honor to him who, by her false accusations, was a poor prisoner for more than two years. It is probable Joseph came in contact with Mrs. Potipher afterwards driving in his chariot and on his visits.

The world has been ungrateful, not only to God and his prophets, to its Redeemer and his followers, but in many instances to its best benefactors in the discoveries of science, &c., as in the cases of Gallileo, Columbus and others. Solomon tells us of a poor wise man who by his counsel delivered a besieged city, "yet no man remembered that same poor man." How often have parties who rose to lucrative positions, treated with cold indifference, those in lower circumstances who were previously their equals or superiors and their best friends, who assisted them in former days. Blunders by grateful, generous, clever politicians who rise to distinction, will be readily and cheerfully forgiven, even by their opponents, while glib politicians who make their legitimate business second to their politics, act selffishly and ungratefully to former friends who they refuse to do a friendly service, are treated with contempt and contumely by those who would gladly have befriended them. The best acts of such coldhearted ungrateful men pass like dissolving views into oblivion. Nabal, who was a wealthy man, owned three thousand sheep, and one thousand goats, refused refreshment to the young man, who, while at Carmel, disinterestedly guarded his sheep from marauders, for this act of ingratitude and cheerlishness he would have been severely punished were it not for the timely interference of his generous wife. See the whole account in the 30th chap. of the 1st Samuel. Saul was guilty of ingratitude to David, who after chasing away the evil spirit by the music of his harp, killing Goliah, and successfully fighting the battles of his country, was hunted from one hiding place to another to escape his vengeance.

Of the ingratitude of Ahithophel his Prime Minister David says :—

My own familiar friend
On whom I most relied
Has me, whose daily guest he was
With open scorn defied.

The ingratitude of Absalom resulted in his tragic death while hanging by his hair in the branches of an oak tree.

That of Haman to Mordecai in his being hanged on the gallows, 75 feet high, which he had errected to hang Mordecai on.

That of Judas to his Lord, by hanging himself.

Ingratitude is so demoralising that no man will own himself guilty of it. It follows in the train of covetouness which St. Paul calls idolatry. Tramps in this country are strongly suspected of being ungrateful scoundrels, which some have proved themselves to be ; honest journeymen, mechanics seeking for employment, in Ireland, were designated tramps.

Men have, from pure friendship, hospitably entertained in their families, deceivers who inveigled the wives of their hosts to elope with them.

Prompt in business, strickly honorable in his dealings, grateful for favours, patient with customers, clean and neat in his person, with an open friendly countenance, and generous to a fault, in was no was no wonder that Sam Bell got a treasure of a wife, and succeeded beyond his expectation as a saddler in the city of Dublin. He was the best friend in the city to Dan Martin, a retailer of groceries and provisions, who was an old schoolfellow of his. One evening, after some conversation on business, Dan said he had a serious dispute with old Collins, his principal creditor, who threatened to issue an attachment for £100 over due, if not immediately paid, that he could easily pay if he got a little time—as he had plenty of means, but if the threat were carried out it would ruin his prospects. "Don't let it trouble you," said Sam. "I have as much as will relieve you," so saying he went to his safe and counted out £100 to Dan who was profuse in thanks and promised to pay punctually in three weeks.

In three months, however, Dan apolgised for not being prepared to pay. In six months Sam requested payment to purchase some stock, but without success. In about nine months Sam sent a friendly note for the money; the reply was :—"Tell your master to go to h——. I owe him no money." Sam was thunderstruck, reflected a little, then satisfied himself as to the solvency of Dan. He then went to Counsellor Curran, to whom he minutely detailed the whole affair. "Your case," said Curran, "is gloomy. Without acknowledgment, directly or indirectly, you cannot recover, and the ungrateful scoundrel knows it. It is a lesson for you for life. Never lend money even to your dearest friend, without a written acknowledgment. Business should be done, in view of accidents and sudden death, for the sake of survivors." After a pause he said, "We must use stratagem in this matter. Can you raise another £100." "Yes," replied Sam. "Then do so at once. Go to Martin, treat what he said to your messenger as a joke, talk friendly about his business, hope he may soon be in a position to buy all his stock for ready cash at bankrupt and other sales, and express sorrow for being obliged to ask for payment. Say you unexpectedly received a large sum of money to-day, and will let him have any money he requires, which he can return in such sums as he may find convenient. If he accepts, bring him with you, let some witness see you giving him the £100, without appearing to be a witness. In about an hour afterwards go and tell him a good investment has just offered, that the transaction must be closed at once, and to let you have the £100, and to come to you in the evening and you will surprise him. Then come to me."

Dan was glad his message was taken as a joke, was glad to get the money, and willingly returned it, and Sam again appeared before Mr. Curran. Now, Mr. Bell," said he, "the £100 Martin gave you back to-day is the first £100 you lent him. We will issue a writ immediately for the last £100, which the witness saw you giving him. When he comes to you this evening, tell him the business is not closed, and refer him to me. And so it was. Dan came and was surprised. To save the expense of a writ, exposure and his credit he paid the $100, fell out with his best friend, and went to the bad.

"Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

As nothing can be more degrading to the moral nature of man than ingratitude, which is shown in various ways by unthankfulness for, and neglecting to acknowledge favors received, how scrupulously should we guard ourselves, and especially our children, against the first approaches to that which makes a young man contemtible in the eyes of good people, and is a complete bar to his future prospects. Everybody shuns an ungrateful man. Nobody will trust him with anything.

Tom Short, about 30 years old, was a stout good looking, good natured industrious fellow, an only child whose parents were dead and he lived alone in his house on 5 acres of cheap land, 4 miles west of Enniskillen. Ellen Clifford, a good girl aged about 22 years, lived with her parents about one mile distant from Tom's farm.

She was cheerful, handsome, stout, healthy and fair,
With sparkling blue eyes and curly black hair ;
Dimple chin, ruby lips, pearly teeth, pretty nose,
Archid eye-brows, high forehead and cheeks like the rose,
She and Tom did agree for better for worse
To live in one house, and have but one purse.

They had been two years engaged, while Tom worked hard on his little farm, and in repairing and furnishing his house and saving every shilling for sufficient means to commence housekeeping, nor was Ellen idle in getting ready bedding, house linen, clothing, &c. One day when returning from town with his wedding suit and presents for Ellen, he overtook Neddy Mullen, an old acquaintance out of employment and who he had often served. Neddy gladly accepted Tom's friendly invitation to stop a couple of days with him, and as he had arrangements to make that evening with Ellen about the wedding which was to have taken place in three days, he left Neddy in charge of the house. It was late when he returned to find Neddy gone as well as his wedding suit, and £20 his two years' savings on which so much depended, his painful surprise at the perfidious conduct of Ned may be imagined as he walked to town and informed the police who had Neddy's description put in the Hue and Cry, a paper posted in every police station in Ireland. It was a sad disappointment to Tom and Ellen dashing to the ground the cup of happiness they so long anticipated and worked for, causing the marriage to be postponed. About two weeks afterwards Geo. Montford, a decent farmer with silver gray hair, residing near Crom Castle, 15 miles south-east of Enniskillen, called at the nearest police station, and being intimate with the Sergeant, told him that having had business on two or three occasions within the past few days at the house of a neighbor, he noticed a stranger, who, from his demeanor, and that of the family, was on his keeping, or a fugitive from justice. The Sergeant, after asking some questions, produced the Hue and Cry, and under the head of 'Co. Fermanagh,' read the description of Neddy Mullen, which, Mr. Montford declared answered the man. That night the Sergeant and two of his men dressed in plain clothes and quietly got to the house, about three miles distant. After cautiously reconnoitering, one man was placed at the rear, the other in the best position ; the Sergeant, after considerable knocking, obtained admittance, lighted his candle, and asked for the stranger. "The divil a stranger is in this house," said the man. "Come, my good man," said the Sergeant. "I warn you to beware. The Earl of Erne, your landlord, will hear all about this night's work ; so best tell the truth and shame the devil. Where is the stranger?" "Thry in that wee room," whispered the man. While this was going on, the man at the rear caught a fellow jumping through a little back window, and brought him into the house. He was about to deny, when he saw the Sergeant bringing a bundle containing a new suit of clothes from the room. The police then commenced a minute search of the stranger's person, and found £19 in bank notes, sewed in the lining of his old waistcoat ; handcuffed and marched him to the station ; and next day to Enniskillen, from whence a cavalry policeman was despatched for Tom Short, who, in about two hours, confronted the prisoner. The moment he saw him, he ejaculated thus :—"O, murdher and ounthers, let me at the vagabone robber, the curse o' Cornwell light on you, Neddy Mullen, you ungrateful thief o' the world ; the divil has ye hard an' fast at last. Where's my new shute of clothes? Where's my money? you ugly villain!" "Keep still," said the Sergeant, who opened the bundle and produced the notes, all of which were identified by Tom by marks and otherwise. Informations were prepared, Neddy was committed, tried at the next competent court, convicted and sentenced to 12 months in jail at hard labor. His whole future ruined by one covetous thieving act of base ingratitude. Tom and Ellen were married the next week after Ned's committal, and did well.

The memory of those guilty of ingratitude is soon buried in oblivion.

Who can describe the anguish of affectionate parents, who, after many years labour and study, early and late, for the health, food, clothing, education, and prospects of their children, who they intensely watched over and protected from infancy to maturity, how rejoiced at their pleasure, and delighted on the anticipation of their society when grown up, to be requited with ingratitude? How pleasing is the reverse of this sad picture? Doctor Dick says "there is nothing in the whole range of human enjoyment that creates a higher and more unmingled gratification to parents, than the dutiful and affectionate conduct of their offspring. It sweetens the bitter ingredients of life, and adds a relish to all its comforts and enjoyments. It imparts a continual satisfaction and serenity to the parental breast. It cheers the spirits under the infirmities of declining years and makes the dying bed easy, and the joy and satisfaction thus felt by parents, would produce a union of interest, a cordiality of affection, and a peace of mind in every member of the family, which no adverse occurrences could effectually destroy. How abhorrent must ingratitude be in the sight of our beneficient Creator, who gave His Son for our salvation, the rejection of his offers of mercy to treat with indifference, the design of our Heavenly Father to make us happy under every circumstance, a life by the earnest of his spirit and bring us to eternal joy, by trust in Christ—is ingratitude of the deepest die. "Were there not ten cleansed, but where are the nine," the strongest illustration of ingratitude in the New Testament, is the parable of the unforgiving servant. Peter's ingratitude resulted in his repentance unto life, and every sinner who has hitherto been ungrateful to God our Father, who is pitiful and of tender compassion, may by accepting and trusting in Jesus enjoy the peace of God which passeth understanding here, and an abundant entrance into the realms of everlasting joy.

An Inspiration.

When a poet composes a set of verses that stir men's hearts we say he is inspired. So indeed he is. When celebrated students of hygiene, after careful study, gives us a panacea for many of the ills that flesh is heir to, we say they have made a lucky hit. We are wrong, it is equally an inspiration. Debility, bronchical affections, and consumption number their victims by the thousands, but how soon these difficulties could be ameliorated if we only knew it. SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA is the remedy preemiently adapted to such conditions, and if taken long enough is almost sure to effect a cure. It is also perfectly agreeable to the taste. w41-d80-1m

HAGYARD'S PECTORAL BALSAM is composed of the most healing balsams and gums. The Balsams, which enter into its composition, were used by the natives when America was first discovered, and are combined with other vegetable tonics, so blended together, that it is a specific for all affections of the throat and lungs. Thousands of bottles are used annually, and it is considered one of the standard preparations of the day.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1879.

LOCAL NEWS

A Visitor.

Mr. John Langton, the ex-Auditor General, is now in town visiting his numerous friends in this neighbourhood.

St. Paul's Church.

Rev. J. Smith, of Erskine Church, Toronto, will preach in St. Paul's (Presbyterian) Church next Sabbath 12th inst., both morning and evening.

The Weather.

The weather probabilities for this district, as reported from Toronto, at 10 o'clock to-day are: moderate to fresh winds; partly cloudy weather. In Peterborough the wind has been southerly to south-westerly; cloudy to partly cloudy, warm weather.

Harvest Festival.

On Thursday there were special services of thanks given for the harvest in St. John's chapel which was beautifully and appropriately decorated for the occasion with grain, fruit and flowers. In the evening the chapel was crowded to its utmost capacity.

Popular Lecture.

Rev. J. Smith, of Erskine Church, Toronto, will lecture next Monday evening, in the George Street Methodist Church. Subject—"Social Talkers." The choir and Messrs. Templeton Brown and Davis have consented to sing. Proceeds in aid of the Mission School.

Foot-Ball.

The match between Trinity College School vs. the Peterborough Foot-Ball Club, will take place to-morrow, at Port Hope. The following are the Peterborough team:—F. Haultain, W. Haultain, A. D. Braithwaite, V. Ketchum, F. Burney, E. Peck, G. Geddes, G. Hatton, W. P. Shaw, J. Dolan, J. Robertson, and R. B. Rogers, Captain.

No. 1 Company 57th Battalion.

We notice in the window of Messrs. Muncaster & Sanderson two handsome medals, one gold, the other silver, belonging to this company, which will be competed for by members of the company at the Association Matches on the 20th October. We understand that the company is being reorganized, and that drill will probably be commenced next week. Those wishing to join should send in their names to the captain at once.

Freight Accommodations.

The Midland Railway sidings from Peterborough to Port Hope are crowded with loaded cars of flour, wheat, barley, lumber and wool. There are no vessels at Port Hope to take away the accumulations. For this reason the company cannot furnish cars to the shippers here. Flour is accumulating rapidly in Peterborough for want of cars for shipment. The forenoon train of to-day brought up only 7 cars for grain, and these were loaded long before evening. The buyers and millers are holding back, fearing they cannot have cars fast enough to forward the stock that is accumulating upon them.

The Wheat and Barley Market.

The wheat market to-day has been steady under increased offerings. The receipts have been equal to the last 3 days together. While we hear of some lots of very clean, choice winter wheat bringing $1.18, the bulk of the sales were at our quotations, $1.15 @ $1.16. There appears to be some little distinction between Spring and Fall, but the difference is so slight that we have not deemed it necessary to note it. Barley has been sold mostly at 57 @ 58 cents, while the range is 50 @ 60 cents, according to quality and color. The bulk of sales have been at 57 @ 58 cents. The receipts contiue heavy.

Thanksgiving Service.

Thursday, Oct. 9th, being the day appointed by the Bishop of the Diocese as a day of thanksgiving for the late abundant harvest, the congregation of St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, determined to make the occasion a memorable one, and to celebrate it with more than ordinary care. During the week the young people of the congregation met to decorate the Church, and certainly the result gives remarkable evidence, not only of their faithful labors, but also of the excellent taste and skill they possess. The Church never looked half so beautiful; it was completely transformed—wreaths and fruit and flowers and vegetables appearing on all sides—the chancel especially receiving much care and attention. A text, "Honor the Lord with thy substance," circled the arch, and on the Holy Table was piled grapes, and ears of wheat in vases, flanked on either side with white flowers and snow-drops. About four o'clock in the afternoon the members of the congregation, with their numerous friends and neighbours, assembled in the commodious Grange Hall adjacent to the Church, where the ladies had prepared a bountiful repast. A few hours were spent here in social converse and in refreshing the inner man, after which all repaired to the Church, when the service proper began. At the conclusion of evening prayer the Incumbent, Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, preached an appropriate sermon, based on Proverbs, iii., 9, 10, after which a collection in aid of the Mission Fund was taken up. Much credit is due the members of the congregation for the very active and zealous way in which they laboured to make the festival a success, but, indeed, a meed of praise is due to outsiders also, for all assisted nobly. We are convinced the occasion will long be remembered in the vicinity, and there is little doubt that hereafter such pleasant reunions will prove of annual occurrence at St. Mark's.

Fire.

On Thursday evening, about a quarter past 5 o'clock, a fire was discovered under the roof of the storage building of Mr. Wm. Hamilton's foundry and machine works, on Reid Street. An alarm was immediately sent to the town hall, when the bell was sounded at twenty-three minutes past five. In the mean time the workmen in and about the works stretched the hose from the foundry pumps, and water was soon thrown upon the fire, which was making considerable headway along the rafters. The hose was not long enough to extend beyond the first window, but it was sufficient to keep the fire under control until the Fire Brigade arrived, some fifteen minutes after the bell sounded. This delay was occasioned by a misunderstanding as to the location of the fire. It was thought to be at Mr. Peter Hamilton's agricultural works, and the Fire Brigade went first to them, instead of striking direct for Wm. Hamilton's works. Had the foundry hose been one length longer there would have been no necessity for stretching the brigade hose. The fire originated from a wooden cross support for the rafters along side the foundry chimney. The two brass furnaces had been used all day and the chimney had become heated to such an extent as to set fire to the wood work behind it. Fortunately few patterns were in this part of the building, or the damage would have been heavy. It is impossible to learn the extent of the loss without further examination, but it will not be heavy. The principal damage will be from the water, rather than the fire. This occurrence is another evidence of the necessity for a change in the present mode of sounding an alarm. When a fire is discovered in the west end or north end of the town, word has to be sent to the town hall, before an alarm can be sounded, giving the fire ample time to get full headway.

THE RINK COMPANY.

Annual Meeting of the Peterborough Curling and Skating Rink Company.

The Peterborough Curling and Skating Rink Company held its annual meeting on Wednesday evening, Oct. 8. The President, J.F. Dennistoun, Esq., was in the chair, and there was a full representation of the Directors and Stockholders. The President presented a statement of the affairs of the Company, and moved its reception and adoption. The motion was seconded by Rev. V. Clementi, and unanimously adopted. The following is the statement of revenue and expenditure to Oct. 3, 1879:—

REVENUE.
Capital Stock paid to date		$1,845 00

Total amount paid on expense account		333 92
Total expenditure to date		$2,746 70
Balance in Bank of Commerce		59 00
		$2,805 70

Messrs. Peter Connel and Robert Innis were then appointed scrutineers, when the following gentlemen were elected directors for the ensuing year:—Messrs. James F. Dennistoun, Wm. Manson, R. S. Davidson, W. G. Ferguson and Adam Hall.

Resolutions of thanks were passed to the Board of Directors for the efficient manner in which the affairs of the Company had been conducted; to Mr. Edg. Pearse, for gratuitously auditing the accounts; to the trustees of the Dickson Estate, for the facilities afforded for water, &c.

A meeting of the Directors was held immediately after, when Mr. James F. Dennistoun was unanimously chosen President for the ensuing year.

The late improvements made, and those that are to follow, will add greatly to the convenience and comfort of visitors. The arrangements are such as to enable the managers to turn on the water as soon as may be needed. The directors will arrange the prices and furnish tickets, and prepare other detail matters in ample time for the use of the people, due notice of which will be given in the columns of the Review.

CHAFF.

A Great Secret.—Old bachelor uncle: "Well, Charley, what do you want now?" Charley: "Oh, I want to be rich." Uncle: "Rich! Why so?" Charley: "Because I want to be petted, and ma says you're an old fool, but must be petted because you are rich—but it's a great secret, and I mustn't tell."

The Telegraph Boy.—A telegraph messenger boy in a western office got his dispatches mixed one day, and handed a horse-jockey a telegram which read, "Can you supply our pulpit next Sabbath?" And to a well-known clergyman in town a despach was read, "The trot is postponed till Monday. Can't you come down and spend Sunday."

DARING TRAIN ROBBERY.

Fifty Thousand Dollars of Express Money Stolen Heavy Reward Offered.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—The general manager of the Chicago and Alton railroad has offered a reward of $15,000 for the arrest of the gang of train robbers who last night stopped the Chicago and Alton train, and rifled the express company's safe at Glendale, Mo. Auditor Bridges, who was at the station when the affair occurred, telegraphs here to refute the insinuation that the station agent at Glendale was in the conspiracy to rob the train. The Express Company will save a large portion of the property stolen, as payment will be stopped upon the drafts, cheques, etc., which largely made up the contents of their packages.

AN EYE WITNESS' STORY.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—The Chicago and Alton railroad has offered a heavy reward for the capture of the Glendale train robers. The following is a statement by a railway witness received in a special by the Daily News:—"After we left Independence, the engineer pulled out lively, as it was not the intention to make any more stops until we met the west bound train, where a car is switched off and attached to a train coming west. We were running very rapidly when the engineer saw a green light ahead and remarked:—"What's the matter, now. Will we have to stop here in this out of the way place to-night?" As the train stopped at the station, there was no one in sight at first, but suddenly, as if by magic a crowd of armed men sprang up from both sides of the track, covering the engineers with their guns and revolvers. They told him not to move an inch. Half a dozen then went for the express car. The car was chopped and knocked all to pieces inside and the safe broken open. The messenger said he lost $4,000 $5,000, but I think he did not care to tell just how much he did lose. I heard him say, "Well, boys, you got me this time." The robbers numbered twenty in all, and were all armed with shot guns, carbines, and three revolvers to each man. They kept shooting all the time they were there. They were masked, except two and the leader, who was not masked. He was a tall man with red whiskers. After they rifled the safe they mounted horses and rode off to the south-west. The passengers were all badly frightened, as they expected the robbers to go through the train, but no one was hurt except the express messenger. He was struck on the head with a revolver. He attempted to escape with a revolver. The fact that they did not stop to rob the passengers leads me to think they must have got a pretty good pile out of the safe."

ENNISMORE.

A Grand Turn Out.—Mr. R. Eagan, contractor, had a large bee drawing the material for the building of the R. C. Presbytery now in course of erection here. The material was shipped from Mr. Thurston's lumber yard, Liudsay, at 5 p.m. on Friday, the 3rd October, on board a scow, towed by the steamer Sampson, which was met at Bridgenorth by about 40 or 50 teams and laid on the ground here at 3 p.m. on Saturday. Mr. Eagan should feel grateful to the people of Ennismore for their aid. Mr. Eagan provided dinner at the Ennismore House, where the host catered in good style. M. P. McNamara, with a gang of men from Peterborough, are now making rapid progress with the masonry and brick work.

Ottawa, Ontario.

Victoria Chemical Company, Toronto,

Gentlemen,—Confirming my statement a short time ago, as to the satisfactory results from the use of your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, I will further add that fresh proofs of the genuine benefits conferred on patients requiring it are constantly coming under my observation; parties to whom I have recommended it, have in a short time, with the deepest thankfulness, acknowledged the relief they have experienced, and in some cases have asserted that it, and it alone, have saved their lives. It gives me much pleasure to assure you that I consider your Syrup, the Victoria Hypophosphites, the best preparation of any which has come under my notice for Debility and all Pulmonary Complaints, Bronchitis, Coughs, &c., and believing this, I constantly recommend it before every other Compound.

Very truly yours,
H. F. McCARTHY,
Pharmaceutical Chemist.

PRIVATE OR CORPORAL.

A Singular Case of Mistaken Identity—A Woman Marries the Wrong Man.

HALIFAX, Oct. 10.—A curious case occurred here last night. On Wednesday night a female sought protection at the police station. She said she was to be married the night following to a corporal of marines. Last night she turned up at church, but instead of the corporal a private of marines appeared to fill the post of bridegroom. He had a license, and she either did not notice the change for a moment, or did not care and the ceremony was performed. It turned out the corporal was drinking at a saloon to nerve him for the expected task, while the private, who had previously arranged to cut him out, was being married. All three subsequently met in a bar room. The bride was wild with grief and throwing her arms around the neck of the man who was to have been her husband swore she would never leave him. The successful and unsuccessful suitors then indulged in a long and hard fistic combat. The bride refuses to live with her husband and he left her.

SOME of the bogs in the heart of Ireland, after a long rest, shake themselves together and go in for a season of activity. Just now the Mylerstown Bog, in Kildare, is on the march.

THE Paving, Lighting and Cleansing Committee of the Dublin Corporation have resolved to recommend the grant of the site at present occupied as a cabman's shelter in Upper Sackville street for the statue of Lord Gough.

THE results of the first examination held under the Intermediate Education Act show that 4300 boys and girls signified their intention of presenting themselves for examination, and paid the half-crown fee. Of these, 3900 actually presented themselves for examination.

THE Royal Humane Society, among a long list of saving or attempting to save life in various parts of the world, awarded the society's medal to Miss Amy Kathleen Bewley, a young lady, only fourteen years of age, for courageously plunging into the sea at Bray, county Wicklow, to the rescue of a lady named Ensor, who, while bathing there on May 15th, was in imminent peril, having got out of her depth.

Indian Graves.

In the vicinity of Midland City are numerous Indian graves. Recently Mr. James Thornton, of Omemee, was visiting Midland, and in company with a friend proceeded to examine one of these graves, in which were found fifteen skeletons. These were evidently the remains of some who had fallen in a fight. The bodies had all been buried in the one position—on the left side with the heads towards the east. One of the skulls, which Mr. Thornton brought home with him and presented to Mr. Shaw for his school museum, bear marks of having received rough usage, having had a tomahawk driven into it five times.

A POLITICAL DUEL.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—A duel took place on the Spanish frontier on Thursday between Jean Jacques Alicot, a former Republican Deputy, and M. Sassere, a Bonapartist. The latter was seriously wounded in the arm. The cause was a political grudge.

IRON EXPORTS.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—During the present week 5,000 tons of iron have been shipped from the River Tees to the United States. A further shipment was made to-day. The orders now executing amount to 45,000 tons of pig iron. The recent rise checked orders, but inquiries are now renewed.

THE PLENARY AMNESTY.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Cassagnac, in the Pays, advises the reactionies to vote for the plenary amnesty as the only thing lacking to the overthrow of the Republic.

CHURCH AND STATE.

GENEVA, Oct. 11.—After prolonged debates the great council at Geneva adjourned the consideration of the separation of Church and State until May.

AMERICAN.

A BIGAMIST'S WIVES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Chas. W. Lewis was sentenced yesterday to 3 year's imprisonment for bigamy. Both of his wives fell fainting, as he was led from Court room.

HEAVY CITY TAXES.

NEW YORK. Oct. 11.—The tax levy was presented to the Board of Aldermen last night. It amounts to $28,827,000 and requires a tax rate of 25 8-100. The rate last year was 25 5-100.

HEAVY STOCK OPERATIONS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Yesterday's transactions on the Stock Exchange, aggregating 530,000 shares exceeded anything ever before recorded in the New York market.

ANTI-VACCINATION LEAGUE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The first anti-vaccination league of America was formed last evening. It was brought about mainly by the presence of Wm. Tebban, an Englishman.

DIED FROM GRIEF.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Mrs. Ellen Collins, mother of Jerome Collins, who sailed with the Bennett Arctic Exploration, died on Wednesday from grief over her son's absence.

THE UTE MASSACRE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A Washington special despatch to the Herald reports that Sherman says the Utes are to be thrashed into submission forever. Ralph Meeker, a son of the murdered agent, arrived and will probably be authorized by Schurz to visit the scene of the massacre and recover bodies of people who were killed.

THE "GEORGIA TIGERS."

ATLANTA, Ge., Oct. 11.—The Judge of Baldwin County has made application to the Goverment for a military organization to suppress the "Georgia Tigers" band of outlaws, who hold half the county in awe. They killed two men on Tuesday and burned several houses. In the past three years they killed twenty men and women, mostly negroes.

THE UTE RISING.

RAWLINS, Oct. 11.—A statement at second-hand from a man who left Merritt's camp, on Milk Creek, on Wednesday is that Merritt, after three days preparations, had resolved to advance towards White River Ute agency on Thursday morning. More than 1,000 troops have left Rawlins for the front, and more are coming. Bands of marauding Indians are infesting the whole country between here and the Ute agency for 200 miles. Soon after Merritt had passed their rear 120 Utes attacked James Henderson, a ranchman. He got into his waggon, made breastworks with flour sacks, and fought the Indians until they left. He received three wounds. Nearly all the horses belonging to the settlers on Bear River has been stolen. A fierce snow-storm swept over Rawlins and the southern road, laying the dust.

A COLD WAVE COMING.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The signal service reports that a cold wave is coming from the westward.

MISSIONARIES SAILING.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Fifteen missionaries sent by the American Missionary Union sail today, bound for different parts of Asia.

INDIANS REPULSED.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 11.—The Herald publishes despatches from a staff officer with Merritt, dated Oct. 6th, stating that the Indians attacked Merritt's lines on the 5th, but fell back under a heavy fire.

NORDENSKJOLD IN JAPAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 11.—Advices from Tokio give the details of an audience given to Nordenskjold by the Mikado, and of the grand banquet in honor of the explorers. The Mikado, in proposing the health of Nordenskjold, made extended remarks, congratulating the explorers on being the first to circumnavigate the ice bound north coast of Siberia and discover the long sought north-east passage. Nordenskjold thus far lost none of his crew, an unprecedented experience in Arctic explorations.

WELL-DISPOSED UTES.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—A telegram from Salt Lake City yesterday says the Indians at Uintah agency are well-disposed, and remain on the agency. This agency is the Ute agency nearest to the White River.

BOILER EXPLOSION.

BRISTOL, R.I., Oct. 11.—A boiler in the works of the National Rubber Company exploded this morning, completely demolishing the engine house. Mr. Neeron was scalded and several others slightly injured.

A PANIC CHECKED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Smoke made its way into the girl's play room at Grammar School No. 4, yesterday, where 600 or 700 children were gathered. Some boys started a cry of fire, and the children rushed to the doors, where they were met by their mothers, who increased the excitement. The teachers checked the senseless fright before it developed into a panic. No one was hurt.

HID IN THE FOREST.

EAST LEMPSTER, N.H., Oct. 11.—Roland Polland, who betrayed the young lady, who died from malpractice at the hands of Dr. Richards, of Bradford, has been arrested and confessed. Officers are searching for Richards, who is supposed to be hid in the forest.

A PATHETIC LETTER.

DENVER, Col. Oct. 11.—A company has been formed at Animos City. The say that Ignacio and his band are there making threats. Alhandrose, a war chief of the Utes, has been warning one of the employees to leave at once. Courriers to the Indians have arrived in great haste, and after they came a war dance was held. The daughter of Agent Meeker has written a pathetic letter severely criticizing the government for delaying the timely assistance requested by her father.

TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The old officers of the Western Union Telegraph Company were re-elected yesterday.

A NOTORIOUS CONVICT.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 11.—Sergeant John Desmond, last night arrested James Morrow, a notorious convict. While taking him to jail, Morrow snatched the officer's club, knocked him senseless and escaped. He was subsequently caught, Desmond's life is despaired of.

GERMAN UNITY.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The North German Gazette discussing the retirement of Count Andrassy says he firmly established relations with Germany founded on the mutual confidence of the two Empires. All alliance with Austria in the form corresponding with the positions now occupied by Austria and Germany and Europe has been from the beginning regarded by German states man as the final object in the movement for German unity.

THE SERVIAN ARMY.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The Belgrade Government is now taking steps for re-organization the Servian army and completing the necessary war material for about 17,000 troops. Formerly the Servian army consisted only of four battalions, two squadrons and twelve batteries. A standing army is to be organized in European fashion, and the Skuptchina has already voted the funds for breech loaders and guns, the former of which were ordered in England last spring, and the latter are being constructed in the arsenal of Kragujevats.

BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The Austrian War Department is considering the advisability of reducing the Austrian forces in Bosnia and Herzegovina, which now consists of five infantry divisions, or 40,000 men. The reduction will probably amount to about eight thousand men, the present state of affairs in the above provinces being so peaceful that it is not considered any longer necessary to maintain so large a force there as hitherto. It is true that there has been a slight disturbance in the district of Nevesinge, but this had no political significance, being simply caused by some ex-insurgents who had taken service in the gendarmerie, and being tired of the discipline imposed upon them, had taken to brigandage. They were speedily dispersed by the troops, meeting with no resistance from the people.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

GUNS CAPTURED.

SIMLA, Oct. 10.—General Roberts was before Cabul on the 8th inst. Generals Baker and MacPherson have been detailed in strength to attack the enemy, who have assembled from the hills above Balchiwar. If these forces can be brought into action Roberts thinks the enemy will be unable to make another fight. General Massey, who was sent to cut off the retreat of the Afgans on the road between Bannian and Kohistan, captured 78 guns in Shalpur. The guns were found in an abandoned contonment and among them are 17 Armstrong guns.

THE CITADEL EVACUATED.

A despatch from Binihissar near Cabul dated at a late hour of the 8th inst, says news is being received that the citadel and palace of Balachissar in Cabul have been evacuated by the enemy, and a peaceful entry will immediately take place. There will probably be no further resistance.

RUSSIAN OVERTURES.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—A Berlin despatch reports that Russian overtures to England, relative to Afghanistan, have either been or are about to be made. The Czar desires an assurance that England will not occupy Herat or the Badakshan Plateau.

ABOUT TO ATTACK.

An official report from Gen. Roberts, dated Oct. 8, says at sunset Gen. Baker was about to attack the enemy's position. A despatch from the British camp before Cabul, dated Oct. 8th, says Baker's brigade is engaging the enemy on the hills to the south-west of the city, and an obstinate struggle is expected. On the 9th the enemy expected a reinforcement of three regiments from Ghusma.

FRESH AFGHAN FORCES.

A despatch from Gen. Roberts' camp reports three Afghan regiments previously unengaged, with remnants of other regiments and many of the city people are opposing the advance of Gen. Baker. The Afghans occupy a strong entrenched position in the hills west of Cabul. The engagement mentioned in the previous despatch was confined to an artillery duel. The coming on of night prevented the infantry making an attack, but heavy firing continued after dark.

HAGYARD'S PECTORAL BALSAM is composed of the most healing balsams and gums. The Balsams, which enter into its composition, were used by the natives when America was first discovered, and are combined with other vegetable tonics, so blended together, that it is a specific for all affections of the throat and lungs. Thousands of bottles are used annually, and it is considered one of the standard preparations of the day.

THE PROPOSED CANAL.

WE are glad to observe the very general interest that is being taken in the proposal to carry out at once the construction of the long projected Trent Valley Canal. Nearly every paper published in the district through which the proposed route would run, we find to contain paragraphs in favour of the project, or accounts of municipal or popular action in its support. The meeting of delegates from the different localities interested, which is to be held in this Town next Thursday, will no doubt show conclusively the great interest taken in the project and the desire for its accomplishment.

TORONTO AND OTTAWA RAILWAY.

THE Montreal Post has the following editorial note:—

"After a sharp newspaper war and an exciting contest, Ottawa has voted $200,000 as a bonus towards the construction of the Toronto and Ottawa Railroad by 557 of a majority. Ottawa is naturally ambitious, and it has a right to be, but until lately it was very badly off for railroad communication. The growing habit of cities saddling their posterity with responsibilities is a bad one, but in the case of Ottawa is justifiable."

The Montreal press may well feel a deep interest in the construction of this railway, which will prove such an important feeder for the ports on the St. Lawrence.

THE BEACONSFIELD PREDICTION.

The St. John Telegraph, copying the New York World, has stated that either Sir John A. Macdonald or Sir A. T. Galt was the "highest authority" referred to by the Earl of Beaconsfield when he assured his English audience that Canada was likely to take the place of the United States as an exporter of breadstuffs. The World has now withdrawn its statements, and the Telegraph will, of course, servilely hasten to follow the example. The World's London correspondent, Mr, Louis Jennings, writes:—

He (the Earl) told his audience that they had nothing to fear from the United States, because the United States themselves were destined to be beaten by Canada in wheat growing. These are his words and they are well worth quoting: "I feel convinced that * * * when you see circumstances so transitory that the very place of competition is doubtful, and when you hear that Canada expects completely and successfully to beat the United States from the European markets, it is wise for us not to take any precipitate steps." (Times report, September 19.) Where the Premier could have picked up this amazing idea I could not at first imagine, but probably he indicated the source in an earlier part of the speech. He had conversed, he said, with one "who may probably be considered the highest living authority on such matters," and this authority thought that when Canada brought its 200,000,000 acres into cultivation, the "market of the United States would be destroyed." The authority thus referred to is doubtless Mr. James Caird.

The World says, editorially:—

Our admirable London correspondent, Mr. L. J. Jennings, formerly the editor, when it last had an editor, of the New York Times, informs us, it will be seen, that it was neither Sir. A.T. Galt nor Sir John A. Macdonald, but on the contrary Mr. James Caird, who gave Lord Beaconsfield the wonderful views as to the decay of American agriculture with which he has just electrified Buckinghamshire and the universe.

It would appear that Mr. James Caird and Earl Beaconsfield are supported by pretty good authority on this side of the Atlantic. The following appeared in our St. John evening papers on Saturday:—

TORONTO, Oct. 4.—The British Agricultural Commissioners, now in Winnipeg, were entertained to a public banquet on Thursday evening, the Premier of the Province presiding. Our great wheat-growing belt in the North-west was the chief topic of the several speakers, United States Consul Taylor remarking that THREE-FOURTHS OF THE WHEAT-PRODUCING TERRITORY OF THIS CONTINENT LIES NORTH OF THE BOUNDARY LINE.

We have, then, three important facts:—

1. On the best authority in the United States, (for Consul General Taylor has made a study of the suqject for many years) "three-fourths of the wheat-producing territory of the Continent lies north of the boundary line,"—that is, in Canada's North-West, Manitoba and Ontario.

2. The Dominion Government has resolved to expend five millions of dollars annually in building a railway, to open up the North West wheat fields for settlement.

3. Steps are already being taken to influence to the North West the farming population of England, who are about to emigrate by tens of thousands.

It is a fact that the attention of the people of the United States, of the agricultural districts of England as well as of all parts of Canada has been directed to the Canadian North West and that there is no longer any doubt of emigrants pouring into that country as rapidly as railway facilities can be provided for moving the settler crops to a market. The future of the North West is assured. Equally certain is it that the wheat fields of that country are nearer to Europe (via Hudson's Bay) than those of the Western States of the Republic. Under all the circumstances there are good grounds for believing that the virgin soil of Canada's boundless North West wheat fields will throw completely into the shade the already partially exhausted and limited areas of the Western States.—St. John, N. B., Sun.

AQUATICS.

HANLAN.

To the Editor of the Mail.

SIR,—Popularity is a fickle jade, but how is it that so little interest is taken in the forthcoming race between Hanlan and Courtney? Of course the rumours prevalent after the Lachine race are more or less the cause of this deadly-lively state of things, and not unreasonably. I have heard it assumed that the loser will get a green-backer consolation plaster of $2,000 from the winner; but I don't see why that should stop a good and honest race, even if it were true. The Barrie fiasco has got something to do with it; but it is difficult to see why Hanlan is to be abandoned because he once chose after a prolonged spell of hard training to appear at a regatta slightly out of form. The question is whether a defeat would be regarded among rowing men as decisively settling the superioity of his conqueror. If a doubt exists on this point the indifference of the public is explained. Hanlan has undoubtedly changed his habits considerably this summer. He yields to the baneful influence of the weed, and occasionally laves his throat with strong drink. Now, sir, if you can give the public any bona fide assurance of Hanlan's fitness to row this race, supported by the testimony of those who have hitherto garded him with so much tutelary zeal—Mr. Ward or Mr. Davis preferred—you will be the means of immediately infusing that interest to the race which is now so conspicuous by its absence. If it be true that he has not since his return to Canada put on flesh as rapidly as after his other races, there would be some reason to suppose that he has overtasked the strength of his constitution and wants a prolonged rest; for it must be remembered our champion is not built in the mould of Hercules, and has not the brute strength of many of his rivals.

Yours, etc.,
PATRIOT.

Kingston, Oct. 8.

AN INTERVIEW WITH THE CHAMPION.

From the Jones own Journal.

The gentlemanly Canadian oarsman, "Ned" Hanlan, is hard at work training for his coming race, and wisely improving every opportunity for practice in his boat, knowing very well that an unfavourable "spell of weather" may come on and interfere with his rowing practice. A reporter of the Journal visited him on Saturday and the information be gained may not prove uninteresting to the public.

When I arrived at Bemus Point, Saturday morning, Hanlan had just finished his morning row, and was dressing. He soon came down, and entered readily into conversation. He is looking in excellent health, and is by no means trained as "fine" as Courtney. In reply to questions as to his physical condition, he said:—

"My stomach troubles me a little yet. When I am right, any one who rows me stands a chance of taking a good lot of beating."

He was reticent about the coming race, saying, "I cannot say much on that score yet. I don't think I am up to the mark like I used to be, though."

"Well, Hanlan, you are picking up and are working hard?"

"Yes, I get in a good bit of work every day. I row morning and evening and walk a good deal. I run considerably. There is nothing like running to put a man in condition. A half-mile run after a row is a splendid thing."

"How about your diet? I don't suppose you adhere at all to the old "heroic treatment" which was once deemed essential to put a man in condition for a rowing race?"

"Oh, not at all. I think I did more than any man to explode that idea, and to bring into vogue common-sense training. I eat almost everything in the way of plain, substantial food, no pastry, and I take a bottle of 'Bass Pale Ale' with my meals."

"Whom do you regard as the most formidable antagonist you ever met in a race?"

"Mr Courtney."

"What do you think about the time in the coming race?"

"The winner will have to beat any time yet on record."

"What boat will you row the race in?"

"The Louise; she had to be taken to Toronto to have a new plank put in her, and has been returned in as good condition as ever."

THE HANLAN-COURTNEY RACE.

A gentleman who left Mayville, the scene of the coming race between Hanlan and Courtney on Chatauqua Lake on Wednesday morning, brings news of the champion's movements. After Hanlan's arrival from Chatauqua House, Bemus Point, on Tuesday afternoon, he took an hour's spin over the beautiful lake. The champion still complains of being out of sorts, but he is improving rapidly, and, before the 16th expects to be in first-class condition. He is being looked after by Messrs. Ward, Coulson and Adair. During his stay at the Chatauqua House, the champion was the recipient of many acts of kindness. At Mayville Hotel also, he is receiving the kindest treatment possible. Courtney, who is being looked after by Frenchy Johnson, is stopping at a farm house about two miles from Mayville. He is reported by his intimate friends to be in the pink of condition. The American is inclined to be reticent on all matters bearing on the race, and declines to be "interviewed" by press-men or anyone else. The betting is comparatively quiet, the friends of both men holding back. In Buffalo Hanlan appears to be the favorite, and in Rochester the American leads the pool.

I Suffered fearfully with swollen joints, went on crutches, tried every remedy without success; Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia cured me.

ANTI-RENT IN IRELAND!

An Appeal for Support to the Whole Irish Race—Text of the Address.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The Herald's London special of the 8th says:—Mr. Parnell and such of his colleagues among the advanced Home Rulers as have seats in Parliament and are engaged in the anti-rent agitation, intend to forward an appeal to the American Irish to win the support of the whole Irish race. An address has been issued to-day. It says:—

"Apart from the effects of American competition with the products of rent-tied Ireland, all the Irish evils are referable to the barbarous land-system. It is that system which has reduced the people to such desperate circumstances, and which has compelled them to proclaim ownership of soil by the people and not by the landlord. No confiscation of proprietorial rights is demanded, but Societies must be organized in every county, and assistance must be rendered to tenants against landlords. The power at present lies wholly with the latter. To give advantage to the former, two things are necessary. The six hundred thousand landless farmers must be welded together in one organized body, and aid must be given them. They require money. The community has had more bitter experience of the land system than those Irish who have been compelled to seek abroad the food that had been denied them at home. Nowhere will this appeal sound such depths as in that great sheltered land where ten millions of Irishmen have taken refuge. Let them remember that the state of things which Ireland now desires to abolish has banished them from their beloved land to benefit by laws which afford equal protection to all classes of citizens. In that great American Republic they can appreciate all efforts that aim at affording equal incentives to progress to their crushed and persecuted kindred at home. This appeal is made to all whom evil laws have driven from their native land. It is addressed to those men and women of other nationalities all the world over who can sympathize with a wronged and impoverished people; and that people, being resolved to find a remedy for their evils do now appeal to American Irish, that they might lift themselves from social degradation into a position where notices to quit and rack-rents shall no longer operate against industry, security, and contentment. No one must think that there is any wish to place the anti-rent agitation in antagonism to other departments of national labor. The freedom of the Irish soil is a task far above the influences of party movement. It has won the endorsement of public opinion. It will win the endorsement of Irish America, and Irish America will at last obtain for Ireland possession of an unfettered soil."

Such is the address. It is signed by Parnell, O'Connor Power, Finnegan, Biggar, and others. It has already won much sympathy. A telegram has been this evening received from New York guaranteeing $250,000 if Irish members of the advanced party will visit the United States. Mr. Parnell will probably go.

All speak in its favour who have used
Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

That's the Way They Used to Do It.

With a thumb and finger on the nose, a bright silver dime on the table as a bribe, and the Castor Oil bottle in the other hand is the way our mother had to approach us when she was about to attack a severe case of colic that had tied our little intestines in knots. Those days, and that scene, comes no more to us, neither will our little ones ever be obliged to tread in the rough path our parents trod in their childhood. Now, we take SCOTT & BOWNE'S PALATABLE CASTOR OIL as complacently as we do condensed milk, and it is just about as cheap —25 cents a bottle. w61-489-1m

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' succesful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

THE GREAT NORTH-WEST

THE UNITED STATES CONSUL TAYLOR'S OPINION OF CANADA.

Speeches of the Royal Commissioners from England — The Dominion the Future Granary of the World.

We extract from the account in the Winnipeg Times of the complimentary banquet given to the Royal Commissioners, the speeches made by them, and by the United States Consul, the latter especially being of the greatest interest :—

HON MR. NORQUAY next proposed the health of the President of the United States, associated with the name of U. S. Consul Taylor. (Cheers.) If any one had taken an interest in this country it was Consul Taylor. Whenever we had been invaded by grasshoppers or by Fenians, Mr. Taylor had been the first to render assistance.

CONSUL TAYLOR acknowledged the compliment in a neat and very able speech. He had thought that inasmuch as they had received the toast of the Queen and that of the Prince of Wales, who were absent, in silence, they would observe the same rule in the case of the President of the United States, who was also absent, and hear the Royal Commissioners. But he would endeavor to say a few words. The Presidents of the United States, who had occupied the White House since his residence in Winnipeg had been the eminent General Grant, who was now again on the continent. He had often before repeated that Gen. Grant deserved credit for his prompt measures, through Colonel Wheaton, at Fort Pembina, on the occasion of the Fenian invasion. As for the present U. S. Executive, he had shown his interest in the development of the North-West by his investments in Duluth. He was pleased to see the distinguished gentlemen, and regretted that they had been unable to visit the great Saskatchewan country. He could say on behalf of the United States that the people of that country were deeply interested in the development of the British North-West. There could not be a greater mistake than to suppose the American people desire to return the progress of this country. Minnesota had a special interest in the colonization of the North-West. He then explained the three great productive belts of the North American continent, speaking of the cotton belt of the south, the corn and pork belt to the north of that, and then the great wheat and meat belt of the north, three fourths of which, at least, he said, is comprehended within the Canadian North-West. The great country between the Red and Peace rivers was to supply the old world in the future. Minnesota was only on the southern margin of this belt. Indeed, Canada was to be the great future grain supply of the world, with Russia as her only competitor. Before taking his seat he would like to speak of the meat supply. He would pass over the inevitable hog of the central belt, for the meat supply of Canada was superior to anything that could be furnished in the United States. He found that the herders of the south were compelled to drive their cattle into the northern regions of Montana and Dakota, even in the winter—districts which do not materially differ from those of the Peace and Saskatchewan countries. He had received a letter from Fort Benton asking after the prospect of an export cattle trade from that section to Canada, and had laid the matter before a gentleman in Winnipeg—a man well suited for the business, but was told that cattle could not now be driven here from the United States with a profit, on account of the tariff, because they could be raised cheaper and of a much better quality in the far-off western districts of the great Canadian North-West. (Cheers.)

Hon. Mr. Norquay then asked those present to join him in drinking the health of "Our distinguished guests." As all were aware this little portion of Her Majesty's great Dominions was now becoming to engage the attention of those in other places. We had, now and then in the past, visits from distinguished people, and even from the noble Earl of Dufferin, but we have, at last, the honor of a visit from members of the British Parliament. He was sure this country would derive a benefit by the visit of these gentlemen, and he felt satisfied that it would make a remarkable era in the history of Manitoba. This country would not only furnish food for eastern countries, but prosperous homes for all who may settle here. He referred to the vastness of our western prairies, and said that it was all for the want of railway facilities that they had not been already largely developed.

The toast was received with prolonged cheering, followed by the well-known dinner piece. "For he's a jolly good fellow."

MR. PELL, M. P., was the first to respond. He said that he had some difficulty in expressing his feelings at the handsome manner in which they had been entertained. He felt that he was out of place in rising first, for, although he was the eldest in years, his colleague was the oldest in Parliamentary honors. He would not detain his hearers long, but give way to his friend, to whom he had so often listened with profit. However, he would give his impressions of the country. He had always been of the opinion that only a man of extraordinary physical powers could succeed in reaching Manitoba from the outside world. Indeed, he had found this true for a considerable part of it. He had gone to sleep in his car after a long ride over a comparatively well graded road, but when he came on to the Pembina Branch a change came over his dreams. He thought he was again on the billows of the Atlantic. (Laughter.) However, in the morning he beheld the waters of the Red River and the notable Fort Garry in the distance, and the moment he touched Winnipeg he felt safe. He regretted that their stay was to be so short. But they had not come to America merely to receive kindness, but rather to perform the important work entrusted to them. It would not be fair to give their report in advance, but still he thought that Consul Taylor was about right. He hoped that if Englishmen had to be dusted to death with flour it would be Canadian flour. (Applause.) The Yankees had given them very good pork, and he had no doubt but that the Canadians would excel them in beef. From what he had been able to see of the country he was inclined to believe that wheat could be produced in great quantities, but it should not be carried to the market in a Red River cart, (laughter) ; and he would heartily second the motion of those who wanted the railway pushed forward. He spoke of the agricultural depression in England, and said that if Englishmen had to leave their country for another, they had English blood in their veins, and knew how to use it. (Applause). He hoped that he had not been too pronounced in his opinions. He would not state whether he was a Protectionist or a Free Trader, but if anyone would accompany him down to Texas, he would tell them in confidence. (Laughter.)

MR. READ, his colleague, followed him, and observed, amid deafening cheers, that one of the most wonderful things he had met in Manitoba was the loyal attachment to the Mother Country. In his schooldays he had read of Fort Garry as a place where loyalty was not likely to enter. He said the loyalty of the Canadian people was not misplaced. England had a good Queen. He thanked the citizens for the most sumptuous banquet which they had tendered, and said that he could not adequately express his gratitude for the kindness received. A few days ago he had been entertained and guided in his journey on the prairies of the west. There was no doubt but that the farmers in England were having a hard time, and that their condition would not be soon improved. However, agricultural laborers in England had been well paid until recently, but now landlords were sharing in the disaster. He spoke of the future wheat competition between Canada and Russia, and said that the latter country would have to give up some of her military schemes before she would be able to successfully compete with any great wheat producting nation. Her railway system had been constructed with a view to the rapid and advantageous movement of vast armies, and not for the purpose of aiding the commerce of the country. However, the time for Canada's great wheat competition with Russia had not come just yet, (laughter). Manitoba had the best and most productive land in the world. He concluded amid cheers, proposing the health of the Chairman, which was responded to with three hearty cheers for Hon. Mr. Norquay.

Death of a Witness of the Battle of Corunna

Mr. James Sharp, an old Invernessian, died somewhat suddenly at his residence in North Church Place lately. He was preparing to go to church, when he took suddenly ill, and died within a short time. Deceased was 76 years of age. The father of deceased was sergeant-major of the Black Watch, and when quite a child he followed the regiment in company of his mother through a large part of the Peninsular campaign. At the battle of Corunna his father was one of the first to support Sir John Moore when he met with his death wound, only himself shortly afterwards to be mortally wounded. Our deceased townsman is supposed to be the last survivor of all who were present at Corunna.—Inverness Advertiser.

The Uncomplaining.

Every one has a welcome for the person who has sense enough to take things quietly. The person who go without her dinner and not advertise the fact ; who can lose her purse and keep her temper ; who makes light of a heavy weight, and can wear a shoe that pinches without any one being the wiser; who does not magnify the splinter in her finger into a stick of timber, nor the mote in her neighbour's eye into a beam; who swallows bitter words without leaving the taste in other people's mouths ; who can give up her own way without giving up the ghost; who can have a thorn in the flesh and yet not prick all her friends with it—such a one surely carries a passport into the good graces of mankind.

Anniversaries.

The Germans pay much more attention to anniversaries than other nations. Hardly a week passes but in some part of the country somebody's birth, death, or noteworthy achievement as poet, philosopher, artist or soldier is being celebrated ; and this custom has the advantage of keeping before the eyes of the masses what is worthy of admiration and imitation in their distinguished men, and of stirring the pride of otherwise obscure localities in the notable personages to whom they have given birth.

How to Do It.

A restaurateur at Berlin has devised an ingenious plan for keeping his place free from beggars, knaves, and other undesirable customers. He just puts a policeman's hat on the table near the door, and when an undesirable customer looks in it meets his fascinated gaze, and he closes the door gently and departs.

Never Despair.

People who are apt to think that the hard times which they experience are the hardest times that have ever been ; and so they are for them. But one needs only to read the history of the world to learn that hard times have been perpetually coming to all nations in all periods of their existence.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

BISHOP COXE remarks that 36 such rectorships as that of Dr. Shelton of St. Paul's, Buffalo, would carry us back to the time of St. John—so that the tracing of the Apostolic succession is by no means so difficult as is sometimes imagined.

THE Japanese government has given permission to a native publisher to print an edition of Genesis in Chinese. This is the first time it has authorized any portion of Scripture to be published.

THE ministers of the Free Church of Scotland have been enjoined by the General Assembly to discountenance raffles or bazaar lotteries, and other similar methods of raising money for religious purposes.

THE Belfast (Ireland) Presbytery is gravely discussing the question, whether in the parish of Newtown a special service in which a harmonium is used should longer be tolerated. The special service has a larger attendance than either of the two regular services, where no instrumental music is allowed.

THE munificence of the Duke of Norfolk as a Catholic is wonderful. It is estimated that within the past ten years he has applied over a million dollars to his religion. He has just undertaken to defray the cost of a new church at Sheffield, and is about to build another at the east end of London.

Dr. PUSEY is described as an indefatigable worker. Dr. Liddon having once been asked if the venerable man ever dined, answered : Well, I once called on Dr. Pusey about luncheon time, and found a chop in a plate on one of his books, and some potatoes hiding themselves among the papers. I never had any other evidence that he ate.

Rev. Dr. SULLIVAN, rector of St. George's Church, Montreal, is about to commence a series of sermons on scepticism. He does so because he believes "that there is far more of scepticism in the religious atmosphere of the day than is commonly suspected, and that many of our young men are in danger of wandering away from what you rightly term 'the eternal truths of the Gospel,' out into the bleak and barren wastes of unbelief."

THERE is considerable discussion in the Church of Ireland about laxness in receiving candidates for ordination. It is charged that, owing to the fewness of properly qualified candidates, some have been accepted without regard to their learning or fitness. One of the church papers says "it would raise the tone of a diocese at once if it were known that one man were rejected." It commends the example of the Methodists, who out of a list of 140 candidates sent back 35.

A WRITER to the New York Observer says :—"The greatest man present, (at the Basle Conference) is M. Neckar, from Geneva. He is a giant, but a mild and lovely Christian giant. Private hospitality shrink, however, from entertaining so much of a man, and a specially constructed bed at the 'Trois Bois' is needed, that he may sleep in safety and comfort. He is great in mind as well as in body, a direct descendant of the Minister of Finance in the court of Louis XIV., and a leader among his brethren."

IT is said that in Minnesota a large congregation of Quakers is losing ground and dwindling in numbers. The fact is accounted for by one of its own members in this way :—"It is because of our failure to hold and interest our youth. The energy of other churches around us, exerted through their Sabbath schools, draws our young people away in spite of all we can do." Many another church has gone down because of its "failure to hold and interest its youth." The church that cares most for the children will be the successful church of the future.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

SATURDAY, Oct. 11.—The market this morning was a fine one so far as the attendance was concerned. There were a vast number of teams in ; but the majority had apples and grain. The immense stock of apples embraced every variety known and unknown, and prices were equally deversified, selling all the way from 40 to 75 cts per bag, 50 @ 60 being the medium rates. Some golden pippins were sold at $2.00 per bbl. Potatoes were scarce and the price strong at 50 @ 60 per bag. Some lots were sold at 55cts per bag, we continued to quote them at 50 @ 60cts. Onions in moderate supply, red at 70 @ $1.50 per bag ; yellow, at $1.00 per bushel. Soanes had some white pickling onions at $2.00 per bushel. Turnips scarce and sold only by the small measure. Cabbage at 3 @ 10cts, medium sizes were sold at 5 @ 6cts. Cauliflowers, fine quality, were plenty at 5 @ 10 cts each. Tomatoes are still coming in and are of good quality at $1.00 per bushel. Cellery, 45 @ 50 cts per dozen. Chickens, ducks and geese very few offering. The market was steady at quotations. Pears, supply light. Grapes were offered at 5 @ 6cts per lb. Hay was plenty at $7.00 @ $8.00.

An Inspiration.

When a poet composes a set of verses that stir men's hearts we say he is inspired. So indeed he is. When celebrated students of hygiene, after careful study, gives as a panacea for many of the ills that flesh is heir to, we say they have made a lucky hit. We are wrong, it is equally an inspiration. Debility, bronchical affections, and consumption number their victims by the thousands, but how soon these difficulties could be ameliorated if we only knew it. SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA is the remedy preeminently adapted to such conditions, and if taken long enough is almost sure to effect a cure. It is also perfectly agreeable to the taste. w41-d80-1m

For all purposes of a Family Medicine, HAGYARD'S YELLOW OIL is at the head of the list. It is used with unprecedented success, both internally and externally. It cures Sore Throat, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites ; relieves, and often cures Asthma.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1879.

LOCAL NEWS

Unusual Heat.

Some cows at 10 o'clock this morning might be observed cooling themselves in the creek, a strange sight for the 11th of October.

Found Drunk.

Early this afternoon, James Bird was found drunk in the hallway of the Town Hall, and taken to the lock up by Constable McGhee.

Young Men's Meeting.

A meeting of young men will be held in the George Street Methodist Church on Sunday morning at 9.45 o'clock. All young men are cordially invited to attend.

Look Out for Your Clothes Lines.

Last night some person entered a yard on Aylmer Street, between Simcoe and Charlotte Streets, and took away two new clothes lines. The identity of the culprits is more than suspected, and they may yet be exposed.

Recovering.

We were glad to receive a visit this morning from Mr. C. D. Macdonald, our efficient town clerk. He had been suffering for over a week from inflammatory rheumatism, but is now sufficiently recovered to be able to take a walk again, though still partially disabled by the disease.

The Weather.

The weather probabilties for this district, as reported from Toronto, at 10 o'clock to-day are: moderate to fresh winds, mostly northerly to easterly, partly cloudy, slightly cooler weather. The weather in Peterborough may be slightly cooler, but the people are not willing to admit it.

The Band To-Night.

The Fire Brigade Band will hold forth this evening at the new Post Office corner at 7.30 o'clock, when the public will have an opportunity of listening to the following very choice and new selections of music:—"Old England's Mine Forever." "Sir Garnet and the Gallant 24th." "The Relief of Ekowe."

Cheap Domestic Woollen Goods.

Messrs. T. Dolan & Co. have just received a large supply of heavy wool shirtings and coatings, of Peterborough manufacture. These goods are especially adapted to the back country in winter weather, and are cheap. This is another satisfactory result of the National Policy. It will pay well to examine these goods before purchasing.

More Track Facilities.

The opponents to additional track facilities on the Midland railway station now begin to realize their suicidal policy, and are becoming clamorous for better track accommodations, which the Midland Company claim they are powerless to give. It has got to come sooner or later. Peterborough is advancing in spite of all the opposition that a few individual capitalists can bring against it.

Personal.

We have just seen a letter from one of the Professors of Trinity College, Toronto, from which we are glad to see that Mr. C. H. Clementi "has passed his matriculation examination very satisfactorily." He left for Toronto this morning to enter upon his career as an undergraduate. His continued success must prove gratifying to Mr. Barron, of Rice Lake, at whose excellent school he has been studying, as well as to all his friends in Peterborough.

The Midland Blockade.

The blockade of full freighted cars on the Midland railway is being removed to a certain extent, and cars are now coming forward again. There were 37 cars at the station this morning loaded and loading for the front. The change of weather we are now having it is thought will bring in vessels at Port Hope in sufficient numbers to remove the accumulations at that port. Mr. Gladman informs us that every effort is being put forth to facilitate the movements of grain, lumber and other products ready for shipment.

The Grain Market.

The grain market opened this morning dull, buyers being shy. The tendency to speculation having ceased, for the time being, a better range of prices was obtained. Wheat is coming forward more plentifully at the ruling figures, $1.14 @ $1.15 being paid for spring, and $1.15 @ $1.16 for winter wheat. Barley has sympathized with wheat, and 55c. has been paid to-day mostly for fine grades; 56 has been paid for some few lots of clean, white and heavy barley. The receipts are heavy. Oats were in request at 30c. There are large quantities to come forward, but the farmers are so much taken up with the wheat and barley market that they have neglected oats and the minor crops. Rye is not coming forward, some say there is none to come forward. Peas have assumed a stronger position, and 55c. is paid for good grades.

FENELON.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—The Independent says:—Active steps are being taken here to promote the construction of the Trent Valley Canal. A meeting of a most unanimous and enthusiastic character has been held, and delegates will attend the meeting in Peterborough on Thursday next, the 16th.

LINDSAY.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—The Warder says:—His Worship the Mayor has issued circulars for a meeting to be held this (Friday) evening, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of considering a proposal from the promoters of a projected canal to connect the Georgian Bay with the Bay of Quinte. It is hoped that the meeting will be largely attended, as the matter is of importance. We notice that the Peterborough Council have called a meeting for Thursday next for the discussion of the same subject.

OMEMEE.

NARROW ESCAPE.—The Herald says:—Mr. Wm. Neill, sr., had a narrow escape from being killed on Wednesday morning. He was chopping down a tree at the foot of Mount Nebo; when nearly cut through the tree fell suddenly in the direction of the old man, who, unable to get out of the way in time, was knocked to the ground and held there, the trunk being across his body. Being in a rather lonely spot, his cries for help were not heard for fully two hours, when assistance arrived, and the prisoner was released from his painful position. It was feared at first that a leg was broken, but this fortunately was not the case. His body was badly bruised however. Dr. Higinbotham attended the sufferer.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

Peterborough and the villages along the proposed route are agitating the old project of a canal from the Georgian Bay to the Bay of Quinte, via the Trent and the chain of lake which it drains. It is claimed that this route will shorten the distance from Chicago to Montreal by 235 miles. A canal of two hundred miles is required, one hundred and fifty of which would be through waters already navigated by steam vessels and barges. The cost of the work is placed at three million dollars, a small sum if the advantages claimed for the route can be realised. We are glad to see the matter agitated anew, for Canada ought to neglect no reasonable measures for securing the through trade of the West.—Oshawa Vindicator.

Cold Water Upon the Heated Body.

In order to exemplify how drinking cold water when the frame is heated acts upon the skin and system, instead of merely checking perspiration, a correspondent says:—A young man when greatly heated sat down and called to a servant to bring him a pitcher of water just drawn from the well. Of this, as soon as he had recovered his breath, he drank a large quantity at once. His head suddenly fell upon his shoulder, and he bent forward; his countenance became pale, he struggled for breath, and in a few minutes he died. Now, it is evident that arrest of perspiration could have nothing to do with the fatal event; this was far too sudden for such an agency to have intervened, and is for this reason that I have selected it, as showing conclusively that the more severe form of action, which can be conceived to result from the perspiration being thus checked, takes place, not through shutting up the pores of the skin, but by a violent impression made upon the part with which the cold liquid comes in contact, and most probably in the following manner:—Hard exercise tends to raise the heart's action—a fact with which all but the most unobserving are quite familiar—and whatever does this attracts a proportionate amount of vital power to the part in motion. The longer this is continued the greater the strain on the system, and when, in addition to this, a new disturbing cause appears, like that of cold water suddenly precipitated into the stomach, such an increased withdrawal of power takes place from its natural seats in the vital organs that enough is not left in them to carry on the functions of life, and fatal syncope ensues.

How to Distinguish Mushrooms.

Amateur gatherers of mushrooms are often spoiled of their enjoyment in eating the result of their researches by the fear of poisoning in the shape of venomous congeneric. A French contemporary gives a simple means whereby to distinguish the real from the spurious comestible. "The stem of a genuine mushroom is short, thick and white, marked under the head with a prominent ring. The head is white and regularly convex, the edges are bent inward, the flesh is white and firm, the under leaves are deep pink and seperate as they approach, but do not touch the stem. When the mushroom grows old the hat-like shape changes; it becomes brown, flat, and scaly, the under leaves also turn brown. It is better when eaten young. Spurious mushrooms have their heads covered with warts and other membranaceous substances, which adhere to the upper surface; they are heavy, and spring from a species of bulb; they generaly grow in bunches. When the mushroom, are doubtful sprinkle a little salt on the under and spongy part if they turn yellow they are poisonous if black they are good."—Land and Water.

Management of Children.

There is too much mistaken kindness in the management of children. The law of love is great, but united firmness is greater. Your children can be your aids to good housekeeping. Make them helpful and useful, and you make them happier. Let them early form habits of neatness and order, and when you are weary you will not have to wait on their carelessness. Teach them to give you courteous speech and manners, and they will live to honour. Let no part of your house be too good for your family. Let the boys' as well as the girls' bed-room be light and cheery. Take great pains to have the home attraction stronger than can come from outside influence. So few children confide in their parents or guardians. Would it not be well to take an interest in them and draw them toward us, instead of repelling?

AN INDIAN'S LOVE STORY.

He Elopes with and is Married to a Youthful White Girl.

COBOURG, Oct. 10.—The prisoner in this case was an Indian, of about the age of eighteen years named Black, and of rather handsome personal appearance. The facts of the case are as follows:—The prisoner for a year or so ago had been paying marked attentions to the daughter of one William Taylor, a white girl of about fifteen years of age, and considered one of the prettiest girls in that section of the country. On the 18th day of September the prisoner called on Mr. Kennedy, issuer of a marriage licences, Campbellford, to purchase a licence, and swore out an affidavit to the effect that Miss Taylor was of the age of eighteen years, and that he (the prisoner) had obtained the consent of the parents of Miss Taylor. At the trial Mr. Taylor swore that he had only once heard that his daughter had been in the company of the Indian, and that he (witness) had forbid his daughter going with the prisoner. On the 18th September she left home in company with the prisoner, while witness was absent from home, and without his consent or knowledge, and was married at Campbellford. Considerable interest was taken in the case. A letter written by the Indian to Miss Taylor was read in Court, which breathed of love and trust in the object of his affection, the style of composition and treatment of the subject being such as would reflect discredit on some of his white cousins. The prisoner was ably defended by Wm. Jex, the Crown being represented by Mr. Hodgins, Q. C., of Toronto. After a short absence, the jury brought in a verdict of "guilty" against the prisoner. Sentence was deferred. The prisoner was also arraigned on a charge of abducting the girl, whom he married. The evidence was much the same as that given in the first trial. The jury was unable to agree and were discharged.

AT THE BANK.—A country fellow entered one of the New York banks, and walking up to the counter, exclaimed, "Here I am. I want you to take a fair look at me." Without a word further, he strode out. The next day the same customer appeared uttered the same words and again disappeared. The third day about the same time, he walked in, and advancing to the letter's desk, threw down a draft payable three days after sight. "Now," said he, "you've seen me three times, I want the money for it."

OTTAWA, ONTARIO.

VICTORIA CHEMICAL COMPANY, TORONTO,

Gentlemen,—Confirming my statement a short time ago, as to the satisfactory results from the use of your COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES, I will further add that fresh proofs of the genuine benefits conferred on patients requiring it are constantly coming under my observation; parties to whom I have recommended it, have in a short time, with the deepest thankfulness, acknowledged the relief they have experienced, and in some cases have asserted that it, and it alone, have saved their lives. It gives me much pleasure to assure you that I consider your Syrup, the VICTORIA HYPOPHOSPHITES, the best preparation of any which has come under my notice for Debility and all Pulmonary Complaints, Bronchitis, Coughs, &c., and believing this, I constantly recommend it before every other Compound.

Very truly yours,

War with the Bagmen

IT having come to our knowledge that certain travellers for Paper Bags have been offering to sell to Peterborough merchants at various percentages lower than our quotations, in the hope of damaging our business in this Department, we have determined to make the following

STANDING OFFER

NAMELY:—

We will sell our Paper Bags CHEAPER than the very best bona fide offer made to any Merchant in Peterborough, FREE of Freight or other Charges.

Our trade in Paper Bags and Wrapping Papers has gradually grown to an extent which has made it hardly worth the while for travellers to come to Peterborough. And the result has been to make them jealous of our success and annoyed at their loss of sales.

Retain your future orders for us. We are bound to "Hold the Fort!"

A perfect Time-keeper, Hunting-Case, and HEAVY PLATED CHAIN, latest style. We warrant it for five years to denote time as accurately as a $100 Chronometer Watch, and will give the exact time in any part of the world. It also contains a FIRST-CLASS COMPASS, worth alone the price we charge for the Time-keeper. For Men, Boys, Mechanics, School Teachers, Travellers, and Farmers it is indispensible. They are as good as a high-priced watch, and in many cases more reliable. Boys, think of it! A Hunting-Case Watch and Chain for $1.00. The SOLARGRAPH WATCH is used by the Principal of the Somerville High School, and is being fast introduced into all the schools through the United States, and is destined to become the most useful Time-keeper ever invented. The SOLAGRAPH WATCH received a Medal at the Mechanics' Fair, at Boston, in 1878.

This is no toy, but is made on scientific principals, and every one warranted to be accurate and reliable. We have made the price very low simply to introduce them at once, after which the price will be raised.

The SOLOGRAPH WATCH AND CHAIN is put up in a neat outside case, and sent by mail to any address for $1.00. We have made the price so low, please send two stamps if convenient to help pay postage. Address plainly,

THE ASSIZES.—The Autumn Criminal Assize Court was opened by Mr. Justice Burton at noon to-day. The docket, although numerically light, comprised some heavy cases. Among those coming up for adjudiciation are the Lambton Mills murder case, the Rimer forgeries and the Deal kidnapping case. His Lordship in his address to the Grand Jury referred to the unhealthy condition of the Court House, and drew a striking contract between it and the new Hamilton Court House.

SERIOUS FIRE.—Thirty-six houses were burned by the fire at Shediac this morning. The fire did not reach Weldon House or the Railway Depot.

The fire commenced in an unused outbuilding at the back of the old Adam's house, and destroyed all the buildings on both sides of the main street from that point up to the railway crossing. This comprises the entire business portion of Shediac. Only one store is left. The fire broke out about 11 o'clock p.m., and was plainly visible in Moncton.

MONTGOMERY SENTENCED.—Montgomery was brought up on Saturday before Chief Justice Adam Wilson, and was sentenced to two years in the Penitentiary. The time he has been in jail will be deducted from the term, leaving 21 months to be served.

THE AFGHAN REVOLT.

GUNS CATURED.

SIMLA, Oct. 11.—Sir Fredrick Roberts telegraphs that in Monday'affair the enemy was evidently placed so that the Ghilzais and other irregulars should attak his flank and rear, while the regular Afghan regiments opposed his advance to Cabul. Twenty guns, instead of twelve, were captured on Monday, making 98 captured thus far. The General hopes to be able to restore commucations through the Khyber Pass in a few days.

A CAVALRY PURSUIT.

SIMLA, Oct. 12.—Gen. Roberts telegraped on the 10th inst. from Zeh Singh, 1,300 yards yards from the citadel of Bala Hissar, that during the night on Wednday, the enemy confronting Gen. Baker fli, abandoning twelve guns. The British cavalry pursued several miles, but the enemy dispersed in so many directions that only small parties were overtaken. Roberts intended to make a public entry into Cabul and take possession of Bala Hissar on the 11th or 12th inst.

BALA HISSAR OCCUPIED.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—A despatch from Simla says Bala Hissar has been occupied by General Frederick Roberts, who has issued a proclamation to the people of Cabul, warning them against resistance, and promising punishment to the guilty only. The Ameer is strictly guarded.

SHOOTING LANDLORDS.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—At the great anti-rent meeting at Navan yesterday in honor of Parnell. there were shouts in favor of shooting landlords. Parnell, Sullivan, O'Connor, Power, and O'Sullivan spoke. The last named declared that shooting landlords could do no good in the future whatever it might have done in the past.

THE IRON TRADE.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Advices from Barrow, in Furness, says that the orders on hand for iron and steel are said to be sufficient to maintain the activity of the trade throughout the winter.

A RIDE THROUGH CABUL.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—A special report dated the 10 instant, from the British Camp before Cabul, says that when the cavalry returned from pursuing the enemy on the 9th instant, they rode through Cabul. Some shops in the bazzar were open and people were sitting about all quiet.

ARRESTED FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

DETROIT, Oct. 13.—The Coroner's Jury in the case of the Adrian Fair accident, caused by the falling of the grand stand, implicate the owner, architect, and builder of the stand. They have been arrested for manslaughter.

THE HOME RULERS.

NAVAN, Oct. 13.—Parnell and the other liberal leaders were welcomed yesterday by an immense crowd. There were triumphal arches at every corner, bearing mottoes, "Down with the Land Robbers," "Parnell for Ireland," and so forth. There were 30,000 people in town. The streets were constantly paraded by armed police.

THE UTE TROUBLE.

LOS PINOS AGENCY, Col., Oct. 9.—The employee, Brady, who went to White River with an Indian escort, under Chief Safeners, has returned. The Indians obeyed Ouray's order, as soon as communicated, to cease fighting, and they moved off. No further trouble is anticipated unless the soldiers advance. Ouray endorses a despatch to Washington asking for a Peace Commission to investigate the trouble and let blame rest where it belongs. A runner just in from the southern Ute agency reports that the Utes will abide by Ouray's order. They want peace and will have nothing to do with the White River trouble, and they request Ouray to inform the White River Utes of their decision.

A CRITICAL STAGE.

RAWLINS, Oct. 13.—The Ute war has reached a critical stage. Merritt's forces have been moved a mile from Payne's old position to await reinforcements and rations. The Utes are strengthening their position and are receiving reinforcements. It is believed that Merritt will make a night sally and dislodge them. It is likely that Crook will take the field himself. It is believed that the whites who were with Meeker at the agency, who were not killed, will be held as hostages. Ouray says the fight was brought on by Meeker's folly.

A SERIES OF CRIMES.

LEBANON, St. Clair Co., Ill., Oct. 13.—Mrs. Alice Danbrough, living 3 miles south of this place, her husband, Thomas and his brother George Danbrough lived together in apparent harmony. George was supposed to have money, 16 months ago he died suddenly, and about nine months ago Thos. also died very suddenly. Suspicion being aroused, a post-mortem examination was demanded, but Mrs. Danbrough seemed to suffer so much grief that the examination was waived. Some days ago she charged rape against George Liston, of East St. Louis. He stated that he had a letter which would prove that she had poisoned her husband and his brother. This letter proved to be from John Freeland, a brother of Mrs. Danbrough, which threatened to expose the poisoning if she did not send him three dollars. Freeland, Liston and Mrs. Danbrough have been arrested. It is reported that Mrs. Danbrough has confessed. There is also a rumour that she contemplated murdering Mrs. McCloudy, a neighbor, so that she might marry her husband.

A BLOW AND ITS RESULTS.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 13.—Philetus Conkling aged 70, while driving a load of wood on Saturday night, struck with his whip the little child of John W. Walthall, who was standing in the roadway. The father rushed out and struck Conkling with a billet, injuring him probably fatally. Walthall has been arrested. He is a respectable, wealthy citizen.

A FATAL MISTAKE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Benjamin S. Clark, a lawyer of this city, living at New Rochelle, was roused at 1 o'clock yesterday morning by his wife who thought she heard burglers. Clark took a revolver and going to the rear entrance found it open and some one pushing the door from without. Giving a warning and receiving no reply, Clark fired twice. He found he had killed his uncle Joseph D. Barker, who lived in the house and had gone out upon the piazza in his night garments.

PROVING AN ALIBI.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Captain Bull who was arrested on suspicion of robbing Dr. McLean, the London physician, of $18,000, proved an alibi and was discharged.

A SAFE ROBBED.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—A thousand dollars were stolen from the safe of Joseph A. Newell last night. False keys were used.

MYSTERIOUS SUICIDE.

OGDENSBURG, Oct. 13.—Robert Gordon, a prominent citizen, committed suicide by taking morphine. The cause is unknown.

THEFT OF SECURITIES.

MILFORD, Mass., Oct. 13.—Securities worth $8,800 were stolen from Leonard Fairbank's residence. A painter has been arrested on suspicion.

A FREE FIGHT.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13.—A free fight occurred in the west end last evening between roughs. After the fight Fred. Andrew Myer, drayman, aged 50, was found dead. There were no external marks of injury.

A MELANCHOLY CASE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Mary Eagan, aged 19, after her mother's death a few years ago, supported herself by sewing. She has been suffering from a painful illness caused by overwork. Her uncle Luke Eagan, of Brooklyn, had some of her money left her by her mother, but refused to let her have it. She brought a lawsuit, and the case dragged through the courts until her savings began to melt away, and she became very melancholy. This morning, when alone in her room, she shot herself dead.

GREATLY INCREASED COMMERCE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—September furnishes the most extraordinary statement of foreign commerce at this port that has ever been recorded. The imports for September, including 27 millions specie, reached 57 millions, against 25 millions during the previous September. The exports reached 36 millions, against 32 millions during the previous September. The total produce and merchandise exported during September is the largest in the history of the port, although the figures for the same month last year were then without precedent.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13.—Yesterday afternoon a handsomely dressed woman entered the Budnet House and called for S. M. Hickey, the advance agent of Miss Anderson, the actress. Hickey seemed a little annoyed, but entered the reception room. A moment later the report of a pistol was heard. Hickey rushed from the room with blood streaming from his head, exclaiming. "She shot me. Arrest her. Don't let her get away," and staggered into the arms of a gentleman. Another shot was heard and an employee rushed into the room to see the young woman fall to the floor dying from a shot by her own hand. The woman was Miss Florence McDonald of doubtful repute, from Syracuse, N.Y., which was also the home of Hickey. Since he left Syracuse Miss McDonald has been following him, endeavoring to persuade him to return to her. Hickey refused, and told her he hoped for something better—probably marriage with Miss Anderson. This seems to have enraged her beyond measure, and she determined to take his life. She died an hour after she shot herself. He is still living, but there is little hopes of his recovery. Hickey is still conscious, but talks little. He gave the woman's nature and admitted that he had been trying to get rid of her. Entries in a diary, found on the girl's person, show that after his business relations with Miss Andrews began, his attentions to the writer gradually lessened, and he finally sought to desert her entirely, telling her he loved Miss Anderson, and hoped to make her his wife. Miss Anderson says that the supposition that Hickey was making love to her is entirely unfounded. Another report states that Hickey will live unless inflammation supervenes. The murderess was a sporting-woman in Syracuse, and Hickey's mistress, when he was managing a theatrical circuit in that section. Her parents sent her to a convent at Buffalo, but she ran away to Canada, and for some time lived with a car conductor named McDonald. Hickey was formerly a real estate broker in New York and afterwards had a saw mill in Williamstown, Oswego County, which he exchanged for an acdemy of music in Auburn. He afterwards mortaged the Oil City Opera House and the Barton Opera House in Syracuse, but was unsuccessful in his ventures, until he undertook Miss Andersen's management in which he was very successful.

A SCANDAL MONGER ARRESTED.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Adolph Rosenberg, editor of a cheap society paper called Town Talk, was arrested yesterday on a charge of libel, preferred by the famous beauty Mrs. Langtry and Mrs. Cornwallis West. Mrs. Langtry accused Rosenberg of stating that her husband had petitioned for a divorce. Lord Londesbrough and Lord Lonsdale being the co-respondents in the action. Mrs. West alleges that Rosenberg stated that she asked photographers for a commission on the sale of her photographs. Messrs. Langtry and West both appeared in court and denied the imputations concerning their wives. Rosenberg was imprisoned in default of £2,000 bail.

A PEREMPTORY DEMAND.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—It is rumored that the Russian Government has demanded from Constantinople separation within twenty-four hours, for insults recently offered the Russian Consul-General at Salonica by the populace of that city, threatening to send a war vessel to Salonica if the demand is not complied with. Other foreign Consuls at Salonica have asked their Governments for instructions.

AN INTERNATIONAL DIFFICULTY.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 11.—At a celebration to-night commemorating the Cuban revolution a letter from Jamaica was read stating that a company had been sent from there in a vessel with arms and ammunition for the purpose of taking Santiago. Cubans state that the reason this news has not reached this country officially is because the Spaniards have control of the cable.

DROUGHT IN VIRGINIA.

PETERSBURG, Va., Oct. 11.—The dry weather of last month has caused creeks in the adjoining countries to dry up, and the mills to cease operations, causing great inconvenience to the country people. In some places wells which heretofore stood the severest drought are drying. The Appomatox river is lower than for years. The mills along its banks cannot do more than half work.

ROBBING THE MISSIONARY.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 11.—The grand jury have found a new indictment against Charles Dimond, in seven counts, charging him with the embezzling $40,000, the property of the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society, on Sept. 1st, 1873; $54,000 on March 1st, 1877; $65,000 on March 1st, 1878, and $70,000 Sept. 1st. 1878.

A WHOLESALE ROBBERY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—$15,000 worth of Bank of England notes were stolen from a trunk in the room of Dr. N. C. Maclean, of London, now visiting New York. The police subsequently arrested a man suspected of stealing the money and $15,000 worth of diamonds. The prisoner is said to be Capt. Bull, an Englishman, who came over in the same vessel as Maclean, and boarded at the adjoining house. It is said the doctor showed the captain the diamonds, and the latter knew where they were kept. No stolen property was found on the captain.

HAGYARD'S PECTORAL BALSAM is composed of the most healing balsams and gums. The Balsams, which enter into its composition, were used by the natives when America was first discovered, and are combined with other vegetable tonics, so blended together, that it is a specific for all affections of the throat and lungs. Thousands of bottles are used annually, and it is considered one of the standard preparations of the day.

TORONTO AND OTTAWA RAILWAY.

We are glad to learn that the County Council of Lanark has given two readings to a by-law for granting a bonus of $75,000 to the Toronto and Ottawa Railway. The by-law will be submitted to the vote of the ratepayers on the 17th of November, and its adoption is considered certain. The interest in the projected road along the proposed route is steadily increasing, and the company is now acquiring a position that will ensure the commencement of construction at no distant date.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

We extract from the Trenton Courier the following article on the Trent Valley Canal, for through it contains much with which we utterly disagree, it shows forcibly the universal desire for the speedy construction of this work even among those who would wish to see the navigation under the control of the Provincial Government:—

"A communication has been received by Mr. Francis from Peterborough containing resolutions anent the Trent Valley Canal and appointing a public meeting at Peterborough on the 16 inst., asking Trenton to send delegates.

It is to be hoped a deputation will be appointed that will enter heartily into the project and that such an excitement will be aroused and such an influence brought to bear on the Government that they will be induced to accede to the wishes of the petitioners and commence the work at once. We are aware that the Government have not taken the initiatory in this matter for canal purposes, but to be able to frame an excuse to annul the transfer of the River Works to the province of Ontario. If the Dominion Government won't build or assist the construction of this canal it should relinquish all claims to the works. It is too bad for political purposes they should be found sacrificing the best interests of Ontario. They have obtained their places by promises that are not fulfilled and are not working favorably for Ontario and it becomes them to do us a grain of justice. These works were being built when provincial troubles arose and then were discontinued. The representatives of this section ever since have been so patriotic as to sacrifice home interests in the clamour of more energetic men and the midland counties have been neglected. Ontario contributes largely to the revenue of the Dominion, even towards the building of a railroad to carry the trade of the North West of our doors without as much as knocking, and money has been spent to facilitate the transportation of the products of some district for a short distance through Ontario by means of canals only to send the same by American Railroads and canals to the seaboard. The Trent and Georgian Bay Canal would counteract this diversion of trade to American Bottoms and secure it for Canadian vessels trading at Quebec or Montreal and be the means of building up these cities as no other improvement can. Freight by rail is costly compared by canal. The outlay required is only a trifle. If the Government will not construct the canal, they should give a land bonus towards its construction and it will be built to the lasting benefit of the whole Dominion."

Irish Officers.

The commander of the forces now marching on Cabul, Major General Sir Fredrick Roberts, is an Irishman. The General Massey who is to have the post of danger and honor in the attack on Cabul, is the young fellow who was first in the hotly contested Redan, when Russia fought France, England and Turkey, in the Crimea. He was known as "Redan Massey." He was a boy when he leaped through fire and smoke upon the Russian works. To-day he is a full-blown general and on his way to meet the Afghans, who are said to be massed on the way to Cabul. He brought home from the Crimea a stiff leg, which, however, he hopes to carry on horseback into the Afghan capital. Massey is a native of the County Cork. The gallant action of Irish officers and Irish soldiers has often enhanced the glory of British arms.

SMYTH-TURNER CASE.

TURNER, THE VICTIM, DIES WITHOUT MAKING A DEPOSITION.

His Parents Live in Millbrook—Coroner's Enquiry—How Mrs. Smyth Had Acted at the Hospital.

From the Mail.

About midnight on Thursday, Robert William Turner, the victim of the late assault case, breathed his last in the General Hospital. During his conscious moments he persistently refused to reveal any of the particulars of the melancholy case, and passing away he took with him the name of the person who inflicted the fatal blow. At half-past eleven o'clock yesterday morning Coroner Riddel, in the Hospital theatre, opened an enquiry into the cause of death. After the body of deceased had been viewed, a post mortem examination was ordered, and an adjournment took place till 3 o'clock.

During the interim a post mortem was made by Drs. Zimmerman, McConnell (Thornhill), and O'Reilly, assisted by Drs. Riddel, Thorburn and Johnston. The result was not officially given, but it was learned that the brain of the deceased was compressed by two abscesses in the ventricles of the brain. These abscesses were supposed to have resulted from external injuries, which are held to have been the immediate cause of death.

On resuming at three o'clock, Lawrence Smyth, who, it is alleged, dealt Turner the fatal blow, entered the room in charge of a policeman. The heavy trouble is commencing to show itself in his face, which presents a careworn and anxious appearance. During the investigation he occupied a seat beside his counsel, Mr. MacDonald, and paid close attention to the testimony of the witnesses called.

Dr. McConnell, as associate with Coroner Riddel, sat at the table.

William McMullin, of Yorkville, deposed—I am a constable for the county of York. I was personally acquainted with the deceased, Robt. William Turner, whose body I identified. I met Mr. Turner at Mr. Smith's drug store, on the corner of Scollard and Younge streets, Yorkville. My attention was first called to him about three months ago. At that time Mr. Smyth met me on Younge street, at the corner of William street, when he told me that he wished to go and see a person who had done him an injury. Having a violent temper, he said he did not wish to trust himself in the presence of the person without being handcuffed. At first I hesitated, and informed him that the handcuffs were at my house, to which he replied that he would walk home with me to get them. I procured the handcuffs, but did not place them on his wrists until we neared Yonge street, which was done at his request. The distance from my house, on Hazleton avenue, to the place I met the prisoner is about fifty or sixty rods. After putting the handcuffs on Smyth threw a handkerchief over them. It was daylight at the time, possibly about nine or ten o'clock in the morning. The prisoner went into Smith's drugstore, where he confronted Mr. Turner, the deceased. He made the remark to the deceased that he was handcuffed, and could do him no harm, and that he wished to have a talk with him. The prisoner, in my presence, accused the deceased of doing him some injury, and leaving his children worse than orphans. Angry words followed, and the prisoner invited the deceased to go to the cellar, where he desired a private conversation. This Turner agreed to, and the two went down in the cellar for an hour, during which time the handcuffs were on the prisoner. I was afterwards called down, when the prisoner said, "he was perfectly quiet, and that they had arranged matters." I took the handcuffs off, at the request of the prisoner, and left them together in the cellar. After a short stay there, they came up together into the back part of the shop, where they conversed, sometimes in a quiet and sometimes in a loud tone of voice, but I did not hear the prisoner make any threat. About 12 or 1 o'clock the prisoner left the place, when he seemed to be less excited than when he had entered it. After the prisoner came out, he said he had found out from Turner what he desired to know. I saw the prisoner once or twice on the street afterwards, but we merely noded or passed the time of day. About two weeks ago the deceased came to my place, and informed me that the prisoner and come to the store again, that he was afraid of him and wished him put under arrest. I went to the store, but the prisoner was not there. About two or three minutes afterwards he came in, and said to Turner that he was perfectly quiet, and wished to talk with him. They then when round the end of the counter, where they talked for some time. I heard the prisoner ask the deceased where his wife was, and that he wished he would tell him. Turner refused to tell him for some time. The prisoner, although not speaking in a loud voice, appeared angry. He insisted on knowing where his wife was, as he said he had some business with her, such as signing papers. I heard the deceased tell the prisoner that he would tell him where his wife was if he would call the following day. To this he, the prisoner, replied that he wanted to know to-day. After the prisoner left the store, the deceased informed me that that he had told him where to find his wife. The deceased, when I first told him I suspected something was wrong between him and Mrs. Smyth, denied such was the case. I remarked that it was a dangerous thing, and he had better be careful. The second time I was called there the deceased said that people would be thinking he was a very bad man, but that if they new everything he would not appear so black. I said, in reply, that if he was guilty of the act the prisoner accused him of, he was a bad man. The deceased at no time told me in plain language that he had criminal intercourse with Mrs. Smyth. On the occasion of the prisoner's second visit to the store, he told Turner that his act was making his children worse than orphans, and ruining his reputation and business.

To a juror—Turner did not tell me at any time where the prisoner's wife was.

TESTIMONY OF TURNER'S EMPLOYER.

Edwin A Smith, medical student, Yorkville, sworn, said—I keep a drug store in Yorkville; deceased, R. W. Turner, was in my employ as manager; he was in my service since the 1st of last December; I trusted my business with him entirely; he was attentive to it until lately, when he neglected it a great deal; he went away without my leave two or three times; he generally left my store at 10.30 on Saturday nights, when he should have kept it open till 11 o'clock, and did not return until noon on Monday; on two occasions he did not return till Wednesday; I knew he did not go home, but suspected where he was, and on account of this suspicion I spoke sharply to him about going away; one Sunday a woman, whom I was led to suppose was Turner's sister, called at the drug store; I have seen her once since—at my place; I saw her last Monday evening; she called at the store and asked if I were Mr. Smith; I asked if she were Turner's sister; she then went to the door and beckoned to me to come outside; there were several customers in the store at the time; I went outside, and she said, "Then you know me," and I said "Are you Mr. Turner's sister?" she said "No, you know me, I am Mrs. Smyth"; she asked me to go to the Hospital to see Turner; I told her to wait until I had taken my tea, but I did not think Dr. O'Reilly would allow her to see Turner; she waited in my sitting-room while I took my tea; I came to the hospital with her, and Dr. O'Reilly said he would not let her see Turner on any consideration; I did not go up to see Turner; we left and got as far as the gate when Mrs. Smyth came back again saying she must see Turner; she was crying and I told Dr. O'Reilly the best way would be to send out a man and say that unless I left the place at once they would have me arrested; I left with Mrs. Smyth, and went to 436 Church street, where she was staying; I did not go into the house; I have not seen Mrs. Smyth since; I accused her plainly of having misconducted herself with Turner; she presisted in denying it till within five minutes of the time she went into the house; I asked her how many children she had, and she told me either five or six; I asked how old the youngest child was; she said nineteen months; I asked her if it was Smyth's or Turner's child; she said she did not know; I said, "Now you have acknowledged to me that there has been an intimacy between Turner and yourself;" she tried to explain it away, when I repeated her own words; I remember Turner coming to my store the day he was hurt, which was two weeks ago to-day; it was about two o'clock; he sat down behind my dispensing place, and said, "I have a knock on my head, come and look at it;" I looked, and saw a small quantity of matted blood on the back part of his head; I went out then and came back in the evening, when Turner was [illegible] and attending to business; I came down and opened the store about 7 o'clock next morning; he came down about 8 o'clock; I asked him how his head felt; he said it did not ache so badly as on the previous day; he had complained of neuralgia for a few days; I stayed till 10 o'clock in the morning; Turner seemed to be all right when I left; I went to Garrison Common and returned about 5 o'clock; my wife said she was so glad I had come home, because Turner was obliged to go upstairs and lie down; in a few minutes I went upstairs with a cup of tea for Turner; he was in bed then; he drank the tea; I told him he had better have a doctor, and thought he would be better in the morning; next morning about 9 o'clock I took up some tea to Turner; he was perfectly sensible then, and spoke to me; when I went up for the tray he said he had a strange feeling in his arm, and I thought he had a paralytic stroke, but did not say anything to him; I advised him to have a doctor, but he would not; he pointed to his left arm as he spoke of the strange feeling, and I raised it; he declined having a doctor at noon and in the evening; in the evening I persisted in calling in a doctor, and he said, "I guess I will have Dr. Berryman;" that was about 6.30 in the evening; Dr. Berryman came about 10 o'clock that night; I telegraphed to Turner's father since, telling him his son was dangerously ill and must be removed; the last message was not answered, and I thought Turner's father would be coming to Toronto; he had not arrived on Tuesday night, and Wednesday morning, October 1st, we had the patient taken to the Hospital; Turner never told me who had struck him on the head, or what he had been struck with; he simply said to me he had received a knock on the head; he did not tell me where he was when he was struck, nor who struck him; Turner's parents live in Millbrook; that is where I was given to understand he lived; I telegraphed to his father there, and he (Turner) invited me several times to go to his home at Millbrook with him.

Some discussion here took place—the witness wishing to know if he could tell anything Mrs. Smith said to him when she was hysterical on the day she called for him to go to the hospital; he, however, said that when he told the woman that Turner was not going to live, she began raving, but she did not say that she saw her husband hit Turner; all she said was that it was a dastardly mean thing to hit a man like that.

Dr. Riddel then informed the jury that as Mrs. Smith could not be found; and as other witnesses were likely to turn up, he would adjourn the inquest to a day and hour agreeable to them.

The inquest was adjourned at 5 o'clock till 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon.

Cetewayo on His Dignity.

Cetewayo behaved lik a king in his downfall. Lord Gifford, with his wiite cavalry and natives, got within four miles of the kraal where the Zulu King was at daybreak, and there lay in ambush, fearing to ad ance across the open ground and waiting for the night to make the attack lest the King should see and escape into the bush, which borders the kraal within 100 yards on the north sid. Lord Gifford was on the south-east side. In the meantime, Major Marter, with the King's Dragoon Guards, appeared on the north-est, and was seen by the King, but was not feard, the King thinking the cavalry in the bad gound could not approach quietly or without waning. Major Marter, however, had stripped he saddles and left the scabbards behind. Diappearing from view, he stole up noiselessly through the bush. The Native Contingent, wom he had concealed, were put in advance, and they were able to move more rapidly than the horses. These men dashed out of the bush, and surrounded the kraal, saying, "The white man is coming; you are caught." Major Martr then rode up and dismounted, entered the kaal, and, coming straight to the hut in which he King was, called on him to come forth and surrender. The King feared and said, "No, you come unto me;" but Marter was inflexible, and the King, creeping out, stood up among the dragoons with stately composure. A dragoon sought to lay his hands upon him, but he wavd the man back distainfully, saying, 'white sodier, let me be.' He then asked to be shot. The King's bearing on the march between the line of the Sixtieth Regiment into his tent in the camp at Ulundi was dignified and calm. Wearing a red blanket upon his breast in the manner of a Roman toga, he stepped slowly, looking round with head thrown back and haghty gaze at the soldiers around him. When cptured he asked the rank of the officer who hadtaken him. He treated the native contingent contemptuously.

That's the Way 'hey Used to Do It.

With a thumb and fingr on the nose, a bright silver dime on the table as a bribe, and the Castor Oil bottle in the other hand is the wy our mother had to approach us when she was about to attack a severe case of colic that had tied our little intestines in knots. Those days, and that scene, comes no more to us, neither will our little ones ever be oblige to tread in the rough path our parents trod in thir childhood. Now we take Scott & Bowne's Palatable Castor Oil as complacently as we do condensed milk, and it is just about as cheap—25 cents a bottle. w41-d80-1m

MANHOOD:

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc, resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' succesful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

TREASURES.

The rose, preserved with tender care,
The perfumed note, the tress of hair
  That speak of boyish folly,
From cosy depths of easy chair,
I scan them all with shrugging air
  Of cynic melancholy.
The "carte de dance," the crumpled glove
The netted purse—"with Polly's love"—
  (Confound it! which was Polly?)

The posey ring I gave to Bess,
When softly came that whispered, "Yes,"
  Which seemed a dream of heaven,
We turtle-doves were wont to plan
(On something very small per ann.)
  A dainty cote in Devon.
Ah fickle Bess! she ran away
With Puller of the Guards, they say,
  And died in '37.

A foolscap page of lover's sighs,
To one whom I apostrophize
  As "stony-hearted Janet."
[illegible] the damsel cruel—cold,
In threadbare terms about as old
  As this decrepit planet.
Ah, well, those self-same halting rhymes
Did duty half-a-dozen times—
  They all had hearts of granite!

'Tis sweet to dream of vanished youth,
Of days long dead and gone—in truth,
  A pleasing occupation!
Of boyhood's "fitful fever" o'er;
Of follies past—a matter for
  Sincere congratulation!
Ye dusty relics! with a sigh—
(An epitaph unspoken)—I
  Consign you to cremation.

Ah, lips of woman!—rosy, ripe—
The amber mouth-piece of my pipe
  To me is twice as charming.
When one arrives at fifty odd,
The arrows of the archer god
  Have lost their power of harming.
A wounded heart will ache, no doubt
But then one finds a twinge of gout
  A trifle more alarming!

BREACH OF PROMISE.

An Interesting Case at London A Fifty Thousand Dollar Man of Fifty Mulcted in a Tithe of His Shekels for Deceiving a Coy Maiden of Twenty.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—A breach of promise case which excited an unusual degree of interest was tried to-day at the Assizes before Mr. Justice Morrison. The plaintiff, Miss Minnie Goodman, is handsome, well educated, and highly-accomplished young blonde of about twenty-two years of age, the daughter of a man who was until lately a farmer residing in the township of Colborne, near Goderich. Her father, mother, and sister, who were the witnesses for the prosecutor, are all people of good social standing and connection, and the manner in which they gave their testimony showed them to be more intelligent than the majority of those who figure in such actions. The defendant, James Blair, is a well-preserved and not bad-looking gentleman of about fifty years of age, a resident of this city, where he has long acted as valuator for the Dominion Savings and Loan Society. He is reputed to be wealthy, and, according to his statements to the plaintiff's father when courting his daughter, he is worth about $50,000. The fact that the defendant, who, by the way is now married, is so well known in the city, added to the interest with which the trial of this class of cases is generally regarded, and during the trial the court-room was packed, the audience being chiefly leading residents of London.

The case for the prosecution was very ably conducted by Mr. B. L. Doyle, while Mr. Warran Rock conducted the defence with great ability, though he had to contend against an overwhelming mass of almost unassailable evidence offered on behalf of the plaintiff.

In March, 1876, defendant, who was then a widower, visited the farm of plaintiff's father for the purpose of valuing it, with a view to a loan which Mr. Woodman desired to effect upon a mortgage through the Society which Mr. Blair represented. After inspecting the farm he accepted the invitation of Mr. Woodman to partake of dinner with the family. During the meal he evinced unmistakable signs of being smitten at first sight with one or the other of the young ladies, but which of them was not then made very apparent. Before leaving he asked for their addresses, which he obtained, and he started for home amid the mutual expressions of good-will by the parties to this new but auspicious acquaintanceship. About a week afterwards he sent plaintiff a copy of Moore's Melodies, and by the same mail sent her mother a letter informing her of the present, and stating that it was at once an acknowledgment of the kindness with which he had been treated by the family, and a token of his regards for the plaintiff personally. This note showed the direction in which his affections were straying, and the plaintiff, on the advice of her mother, acknowledged the present in a formal note of thanks. He responded in a sweet and gushing letter which showed that the tender passion, though so recently developed, was growing at a very rapid rate in the bosom of this middle-aged but highly susceptible gentleman. Thereafter things went along swimmingly between the lovers—for a while at least. Letters passed frequently between them, and, what is remarkable about epistles which find their way into breach of promise cases, though they were of the very tenderest description they were couched in very good English. The defendant sent Miss Woodman several pieces of music and made her presents of gloves and other articles, indicative of his affection for her. In one letter he said he felt like embracing her in an "ecstacy of joy" the next time he saw her; and in another letter, written in the leafy month of June, he, after telling her that he is coming to pay her a visit shortly, adds, "I am often persuaded that my dreams will yet be ministered to by my sweet Minnie, and that my aching head will yet be pillowed upon her sweet and innocent bosom." When he made the visit he brought a hat for each sister, and when he saw plaintiff apparently dissatisfied with hers, he enquired what was wrong, and on being told that she did not like flowers on her hat and preferred a plume, he drove her to Goderich and purchased a plume. It should be mentioned that on every available opportunity during his courtship the defendant broke into poetry, and what is still more remarkable, though it was rather gushing, it was very respectable poetry. On the occasion last referred to he presented her with some verses which unfortunately, we are unable to preserve in the columns of the Globe, as they were lost. He went back to Goderich at night, not intending to return for several days, but he could not stay away longer than next morning, when he again paid her a visit. Next day he sent out a note from Goderich by a messenger, asking her to come into town and see him. To this the father objected, but by the interference of the mother he was persuaded to let her go—the mother taking the ground that there could be no impropriety in his meeting her there at the house of her married sister. In view of the honorable manner in which he had thus far treated her, she was allowed to go, on the understanding that defendant should come back with her and see the father. Plaintiff met Miss Woodman on the bridge near Goderich, and this meeting on the bridge was the theme of one of the defendant's most touching odes, which fortunately has been preserved. It reads as follows:—

THE MAIDEN OF THE BRIDGE.

Let warriors boast of thousands slain,
  Let poets chant their funeral dirge:
My own sweet girl shall be my theme—
  The girl I met upon the bridge.

I think I see that gentle maid,
  With sudden smile and golden hair;
The step was light as evening shade,
  Her voice was sweet as morning air.

Her bosom heaved a gentle swell,
  Her dark brown eyes their lustre shed;
They spoke a language none can tell;
  I felt their power, but nothing said.

I breathed an inward, silent prayer,
  A prayer inspired by purest love
That my sweet girl a crown may wear
  When angels sing their songs above.

My highest ambition is humbly to share
  A kind passing thought in a pure maiden's prayer.
No earthly possession, nor palace, nor dome,
  But love and my friend in a neat cottage home.

Defendant, in accordance with the request of the plaintiff's father, went to plaintiff's house the same evening, and in answer to Mr. Woodman's question in the plaintiff's presence said it was his intention to marry Miss Woodman, and kissed her in her father's presence, at the same time making use of endearing terms. The same evening he asked her to accompany him to Goderich that evening when, the plaintiff's mother said she did not think she could spare "Minnie," and defendant encircled plaintiff's waist with his arm, and asked what they would do when he took her away from home altogether. Mrs. Woodman replied that she did not know what she would ever do without her. Defendant the same evening went out with plaintiff into the farm yard, and stood by and watched her as she milked the cows. Frequent visits ensued, during one of which defendant, when conversing with the mother, alluding to a photograph of plaintiff he drew the photo from his breast pocket, where he had been carrying it in an envelope near his heart. Defendant also embraced her in the presence of her family when he came and left, and made no secret of his relation to her. He made her a number of presents, including a seal skin hat, a muff, a pair of winter kid gloves, and some sort of a skirt. For Christmas a special piece of poetry was prepared, the commencement of which unfortunately has not been preserved. The last stanza, however, was as follows:—

Then robes that are warm and hearts that are light,
Lips that are pouting and eyes that are bright,
A bosom that is pure and soft as the down!
Oh! give me those charms and let them be mine;
I would rather have these—I am really sincere—
Than honour and wealth and good Christmas cheer.

At Christmas time he also told her mother that "Minnie said she would rather be his and die than another's and live." After having been intimate with the plaintiff some 20 months, during which time he had written some 75 or 80 letters he attempted to get the letters he had written away from plaintiff, and had managed to get them in a bunch in his pocket, when they were noticed by plaintiff's mother, and he then returned them. Soon after this he returned, and then brought her a lot of oranges, and wrote her a valentine. Defendant also sent her a piece of music entitled, "Have I not been Kind to Thee?" He also sent her another piece entitled "Must we then Meet as Strangers." On one occasion he reprimanded her sharply for sending him a newspaper instead of a letter. In April, 1877, defendant came to plaintiff's house about nine o'clock on Sunday morning, giving her the making of a handsome dress, but could not succeed in getting his letters back; but at a second visit he induced plaintiff in her mother's absence to burn the letters in a stove, upon the promise that he would send her one more letter which would amply recompense her for the loss of all the rest. After the letters were burned defendant commenced to cool off. When bidding plaintiff good-bye on the occasion on which he had procured the burning of the letters, the plaintiff said in her mother's presence, "Don't forget the beautiful letter, James." Defendant replied, "Oh, no, I never forget." Shortly after this he wrote a letter to plaintiff, which commenced without any formal introduction, "My own dearest Minnie," as he had formerly done, but commenced with, "I am going to a funeral." His letters after this one were so written that they contained nothing which could be used against him. He continued visiting the house at intervals until October, since which time he did not return. He never intimated other than by his coldness that he intended leaving her. In March, 1878, defendant sent plaintiff a bottle of perfume by her brother, but there was no letter with it. This present revived her hopes, and she wrote a letter in reply in which she called him "Robie," a pet name which she had for him, and said, "Robie, Robie, if you don't intend to return again return me this letter and I will not look for you, but will try to forget you." Nothing more was heard from him until 7th May, 1878, when her mother saw a notice of defendant's marriage with another lady in a London newspaper, but plaintiff, so strong was her faith in defendant, would not believe it, and protested that it could not be so. So great was the effect of this notice upon her that for three days plaintiff could not touch food, and ultimately the family had to remove plaintiff for a change of scene.

The whole correspondence and other evidence went to show that a strong affection had existed between the parties, and an affection which, according to the evidence of the plaintiff's mother and sister is yet as strong on her part as ever.

The damages asked were $20,000. The jury, after about half an hour's retirement, brought in a verdict for plaintiff and $4,500 damages.

HEADING OFF A LAWYER

Rufus Choate, in an important marine assault and battery at sea case, had Dick Barton, chief mate of the clipper ship Challenge, on the stand, and badgered him so for about an hour that at last Dick got his salt water up and hauled by the wind to bring the keen Boston lawyer under his batteries.

At the beginning of his testimony Dick had said that the night was "dark as pitch, and raining like seven bells."

Suddenly Mr. Choate asked him:

"Was there any moon that night?"

"Yes, sir."

"Ah, yes! A moon did you see it?"

"Not a mite."

"Then how do you know there was a moon?"

"Nautical almanac said so, and I'll believe that sooner'n any lawyer in the world."

"Ah—you are growing sharp, Mr. Barton."

"What in blazes have you been grinding me this hour for—to make me dull?"

"Be civil, sir. And now tell me what latitude and longitude you crossed the equator in?"

"I shan't."

"Indeed! You are chief mate of a clipper ship, and unable to answer so simple a question."

"Yes, 'tis the simplest question I ever was asked in my life. Why, I thought every fool of a lawyer knew there ain't no latitude on the equator."

That shot floored Rufus Choate.

THE ex-Empress Eugenie has, it is asserted, declared her intention to live in absolute retirement, so that a settlement of her fortune will be necessary. Her son's will is not exactly valid according to English law, not having been signed by the testator in the presence of two witnesses; but as the Empress alone could test the validity of it, no opposition will be raised on this point. The property to be sold to be the legacies not having been indicated, the executors will have to chose those portions which can be sold to the best advantage.

All speak in its favour who have used
Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Poultry Notes.

Of all farm stock hens are the most easy taught. The education of hens can be commenced at any age; but best while young. They should be housed and shut in every night, and not be allowed to roost on sheds, well sweeps, or trees; even a neglect to shut the door on them for one night will cause the timid ones to seek a higher roost the next night and that can only be found out of doors. This leads to laying out of doors—a nuisance—and to constant loss from roving night enemies. At sunrise every morning call the hens around you and scatter a full feed for them; let this always be done on the same spot of ground. Keep, in a convenient place, a reservoir of fresh clean water, if you have no running stream. At certain and regular times in the day you will find the whole flock there. Throw no scraps of food around the dwelling, or you will teach them to become a house nuisance. Burn all the egg shells, or you will teach the hens to eat eggs in the nest. If you coop your chickens, take hen and brood to the hen-house as soon as the coop is despensed with; otherwise, when winter sets in you will have to spend hours every night for a week before they will house well. Protect hens while sitting, by a light board or lattice cover to the nest so they shall not be annoyed by other hens wishing to lay with them. In fact, any bad habit, or any one which does not suit your surroundings may be entirely broken up and changed by reasonable preventive measures.

An Inspiration.

When a poet composes a set of verses that stir men's hearts we say he is inspired. So indeed he is. When celebrated students of hygiene, after careful study, gives us a panacea for many of the ills that flesh is heir to, we say they have made a lucky hit. We are wrong, it is equally an inspiration. Debility, bronchical affections, and consumption number their victims by the thousands, but how soon these difficulties could be ameliorated if we only knew it. SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA is the remedy preeminently adapted to such conditions, and if taken long enough is almost sure to effect a cure. It is also perfectly agreeable to the taste. w41-d80-1m

LOCAL NEWS

POLICE COURT.

DRUNK.

MONDAY, Oct. 13.—In the Police Court this morning Constable McGhee brought before the Magistrate, James Bird, who had been in the lock-up since Saturday, where he has had time to get sober. He pleaded guilty. The Magistrate, after reprimanding him for spending his money for drink instead of supporting his mother, allowed him to go without a fine. It was his first appearance in court.

The Freight Troubles.

Shippers of flour, wheat, barley, cattle, wool and lumber have been uneasy about getting cars. The Midland Company have been and are doing all in their power to aid the shippers. It is for the want of track room that they have not been able to furnish cars faster. All the sidings from Fraserville to Nassau are full of cars awaiting opportunity to reach the storehouses. The want of sidings in Peterborough is the trouble. There were two special trains out on Saturday night, and there are to be two to-day. These are independent of the shipments from Millbrook and other points. The Midland is now taxed to its utmost capacity in moving freight. The road has never done the business that it is now doing. The company say they will do all that it is possible for them to do to forward the products of the country to market. The fault has been with the people themselves in opposing improvements to the road.

Land Sale.

The "Rowse Farm," in the Township of Otonabee, about 4 miles from Peterborough, containing 49 acres, was sold on Saturday at the Stewart House by Mr. Chas. Stapleton at auction, and brought $46 per acre. The sale of the house and lot of Mrs. Eliza McIlmoyle, lots No. 11 and 12, in lot No. 12 in the 12th concession of the Township of North Monaghan, was adjourned to Wednesday, Oct. 22, when other valuable personal property and real estate, consisting of town and farm property will be offered.

Broken Sidewalk.

There is a broken plank in the sidewalk on Park Street, near Dr. Esmond's house. A new one is needed. The Street Inspector probably does not get out so far every day, and has failed to see the break. There is also a bad plank on Donegal Street, near Brock. Several of the broken walks that have been mentioned in the REVIEW have been repaired, and the sidewalks generally are in good condition.

Lost Child.

Yesterday the little daughter of Patrick Sullivan, living near the George Street Methodist Church strayed from her mother and wandered through the lower end of the town. Constable McGhee discovered the little girl, and finding who she was, restored her to her parents.

Barley.

Barley is coming forward very rapidly again this morning, when the market opened tamely, at 55c. for best grades. No wheat came in up to 10 o'clock. The market then opened at the figures of Saturday; peas were taken at 55c.

I. O. G. T.

Peterborough Lodge, No. 340, I.O.G.T., meet to-night in their hall on Water street. The cooler weather, no doubt, will call out a full force and the meeting will be an interesting one.

Fire Brigade Changes.

At a meeting of Protection Hose Company No. 1. Mr. S. H. Henderson was elected captain in place of Mr. A. Moffat, resigned. Other changes are to take place soon.

Deer Hunting.

Several parties have started out for hunting. It is expected there will soon be plenty of game coming in. The weather is getting very fine for the lovers of this sport.

Lecture To-night.

Don't forget the lecture at the Methodist Church on George street, to-night. The subject is "Social Talkers." It will prove a treat.

Watermelons and Apples.

New fruit just in. Ripe and delicious. At J. H. BAILEY & Co's. d24

Repairs and Steel Rails.

On Saturday night a special train brought up a large number of steel rails and other articles for repairing the Midland Railway. Where rails have to be replaced, the steel rail will be used. The entire road from Millbrook to Peterborough is to have steel rails laid in the spring. Other improvements are in contemplation, and they will be carried out as soon as they can be effected without interfering with the business of the road. The President, Mr. Geo. A. Cox, is determined that it shall be a first-class road, and it will be.

Dangerous Spot.

The bridge over the brook at Donegal street needs looking after. The eastern approach is aprupt, and in a dark night somebody who is driving, unless he keeps well to the centre, will meet with a mishap. Several loads of gravel are needed to raise the street to a level with the bridge. The Street Inspector would do well to take a look at it.

The Weather.

The weather probabilties for this district, as reported from Toronto, at 10 o'clock to-day are: fresh to brisk north-easterly to south-easterly winds, partly cloudy, to cloudy weather; areas of rain in south portion. A delightful change in the temperature in Peterborough, it being considerably cooler. Wind easterly and sky clear.

Hunting.

Mr. Joseph Dunlop and his party at Burleigh are having good sport with the deer, one of them, Mr. J. D. Collins shot a magnificent buck last week.

Untimely.

A gentleman, who from his position should know better, was out with his gun yesterday morning.

PERTH.

BONUS BY-LAW.—On Friday the Lanark County Council gave two readings to the by-law granting a bonus of $75,000 to the Toronto and Ottawa Railway on the route via Perth, and ordered the same to be submitted to the ratepayers on the 17th November. The group is somewhat larger than before, taking in the Townships of Bathurst and Drummond, with South Sherbrook, Burgess, Elmsley, eight concessions of Elmsley, and three of Montague. The last by-law was carried by 803 to 253. About 150 more votes are added in this group.

GREAT PRIORY OF CANADA.

This great body held its annual meeting in the British Masonic Chambers yesterday, the V. H. and E. Great Prior of Canada, Col. W. J. B. McLeod Moore, of Laprairie, presiding, when the following officers were elected:—

Grand Chancellor—R. E. Sir Kt. Daniel Spry, Toronto.
Grand Treasurer—R. E. Sir Kt. David McLellan, Hamilton.
Grand Registrar—R. E. Sir Kt. John Moore, Ottawa,

PROVINCIAL GRAND PRIORS.

Western Ontario—R. E. Sir Kt. D. B. Birch, Lambeth.
Central Ontario—R. E. Sir Kt. Henry Robertson, Collingwood.
Eastern Ontario—R. E. Sir Kt. Donald Ross.

A Broken Heart.

Rev. Alex. Wright, a chaplain in the United States Army, narrates to the Steubenville, Ohio, Press a romance of the late Princess Monica, a daughter of Spotted Tail. A short time ago Monica visited Fort Laramie to look upon the palefaces and their manner of living. She was shown around by a handsome young Lieutenant of a cavalry regiment, and in thanking him for his courtesy, she acknowledged with charming naivete, that she loved him. The surprised and flattered officer told her that she must not love him, as his heart was placed among the palefaced girls in an Ohio town. Monica visited the fort on the day following that on which she lost her freedom, and so for many weeks in plain, neat attire, the poor girl sat throughout the afternoon on the doorstep of the officers' quarters. The great Sioux chief, whose warriors outnumber those of Sitting Bull, was mortified at the conduct of his best beloved daughter and sent her to a little camp in the Rocky Mountains. One day a courier arrived at the chief's camp with the tidings that Monica was dying. Spotted Tail rode with all haste to her side, and heard her farewell injunction:—"My chief, live with the palefaces in peace and bury Monica on the hill before the fort." Gen Maynadier, commander, at the post; Col. Bullock, the post trader, and Chaplain Wright gave the body Christian burial. The grave is now a point of interest to travellers, as Fort Laramie is approached on the Cheyenne road. Gen. Maynadier testifies as to the truthfulness of the girl's death from a broken heart, and to the effect it has had upon the Sioux.

Our Late Governor-General.

Lord Dufferin, it is believed, has formally declined the duty of representing the British Government at Constantinople. The noble Earl, as his career shows, is not deficient in courage, but is not a man to engage in a task foredoomed to failure. Lord Beaconsfield who is now perfectly conscious that Sir H. Layard has lost all influence at Constantinople, desired Lord Dufferin to go there with the special object of securing the execution of the Anglo-Turkish Convention. The Ambassador wished to know with what degree of authority he would be authorized to speak to the Turkish Government, and especially whether his demands, if neglected, were to be enforced by something stronger than remonstrances. On this point the head of the Government spoke with uncertain sound; but it was clear enough that the English Ministry were not disposed to exert any effective pressure to secure the execution of the reforms required by the Anglo-Turkish Convention. Lord Dufferin is not the man to play the part of a sham. He would not undertake the function of addressing frequent but fruitless lectures to the Turkish Government, and so he goes back to St. Petersburg, where his duty is comparatively easy and simple.

ON September 15th, the house of Mr. John Keegan, of Kildordan, was attacked by an armed party of men, who fired several shots from guns and revolvers into the house. Three revolver bullets were found embedded by the police in one of the window frames. One of the inmates a young woman—narrowly escaped, as a bullet was lodged over her head in the room where she was sleeping. No arrests have been made.

RAILWAY DISASTER.

Collision on the Michigan Central—A Harvest of Death.

DETROIT, Oct. 10.—On the Michigan Central Railroad, a short distance east of Jackson, about one this morning, the Pacific express train bound west collided with a switch engine, telescoping the baggage and express cars, and piling the eleven remaining coaches on top of the others. The first coach was filled with emigrants most of whom are killed or seriously injured. Many occupants of other coaches are killed or injured. It is supposed that twenty or twenty-five passengers are killed, and twenty to thirty wounded, the majority being emigrants and second-class passengers. Physicians were at once summoned from Jackson, and a special train carrying them left Detroit at five o'clock. A large force of employees of the railroad, with a number of citizens of Jackson, are on the ground extricating bodies.

Up to noon eighteen bodies were recovered, ten of whom are from an emigrant car and not yet identified. The killed are:—Milton Gilbert, Detroit, engineer; C. B. Smith, Jackson, fireman; John Rice, wife, and daughter, Philadelphia; Mrs. Garland and a ten-year-old daughter, Philadelphia; Louis Morgan, Buckingham, Canada, and infant daughter; Mrs. G. A. Jones, Chalado, Pennsylvania.

The following is a list of the wounded as far as can be ascertained:—M. D. Carlisle, express messenger, Detroit; A. A. Bennett, baggageman, Detroit; Wm. Buggy, Troy, Vt., leg and thigh crushed; Daniel Finn, Chicago; S. M. Sparling, Philadelphia; Arthur Rogers, Philadelphia; Reuben Carter, Gardner, Ill.; George A. Cunningham, Janesville, Wis.; H. Misdas, Canada; E. J. Parnell and and Mrs. Parnell, St. Catherines; Mrs. J. F. Parnell, Toronto; John Jeffries, Newark, probably fatal.

LATER.—Willie Rice, aged four, Philadelphia recovery doubtful, father, mother, and sister all killed; Mrs. Laura A. Fidley, Walworth, N.Y., bruised about the head; Mrs. R. J. Warren, Gaines, Mich; Henry barrows, Newfoundland, Pa; A. Randus Maisonneuve, Palmas Maisonneuve, Buckingham; Delbert M. Benjamin, Jersey City Heights; Wm. Brinney, Gault; Mrs. Amsteele, Detroit; Miss Clementi, Lockport, N.Y., arm and head badly cut; Mrs. B.B. Hart, Clinton, Iowa; Robert Neil, Trenton, Canada; Leopold Hoffman, Randolph, Mass; Mrs. Geo. A. Jones, Chaloda. Penn; one of her chiidren, eighteen months old, killed instantly, and another badly bruised: S. M. Harklin, Philadelphia, thinks his wife, and his children, aged 3 and 6, among the dead.

The engineer and fireman of the express train were literally torn to pieces. The engineer and fireman of the switch engine escaped by jumping. The train was made up of seven Wagner sleepers, four passenger coaches, and mail and baggage cars. The tender of the express engine was telescoped into the baggage car about half its length. This car in turn forced its way into the mail cars, and these crowded the first passenger coach to the right on to an embankment, and crushed back through the two following. The passengers in the first coach were comparatively unharmed, the harvest of death being reaped in the second and third coaches. The fourth coach escaped with slight damage, and none of the Wagner coaches were injured.

The accident was caused by the switchman having charge of the making up of freight trains occupying the main track with a switch engine and caboose, understanding that the Pacific Express was considerably behind. The express train, however, had made up nearly all her lost time.

A Collegian Answered.

A skeptical young collegian confronted an old Quaker with the statement that he did not believe in the Bible. The Quaker said: "Does thee believe in France?" "Yes, for though I have not seen it, I have seen others who have; besides, there is plenty of corroborative proof that such a country does exist." "Then thee will not believe in anything thee or others have not seen?" "No, to be sure I won't." "Did thee ever see thine own brains?" "No." "Ever see anybody that did?" "No." "Does thee believe thee has any?" The young man left.
